DIME BANK TROUBLES.

The Question of Receivership Is Not Yet Disposed Of.

Value of $20,000 In Notes Now In Dispute.

A Suspicion That Cashier John Walden Has Gone to Jamaica.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Aug. 1.—The hearing on State Attorney Hunter's application for a permanent receiver for the Dime Savings bank came up before Judge Shumway in the superior court yesterday. Attorney E. B. Sumner, representing the bank, asked for a postponement. Said he: "The directors believe the bank is solvent and should be continued. If we find upon further investigation that a receiver is necessary, we shall offer no further objection." Mr. Sumner presented to the court petitions signed by numerous depositors protesting against the appointment of a receiver.

In reply, State Attorney Hunter stated that a week ago last Monday morning notes to the amount of $20,000 matured at the bank. At that time there was $250 in the bank and $13,000 on deposit in other banks, the books had not been written up, and the doors were closed against depositors. Mr. Crofut now asks for a receiver to determine the standing of the bank and not to trust this to the men who brought the bank to its present condition.

Attorney Sumner made application to the court for a temporary injunction restraining the bank's officials from paying out money at present.

Bank Commissioner Crofut was placed on the witness stand, and testified that on July 21 there was in the bank $117,000 in worthless paper not charged off, and a cash deficit of $11,957. On July 23 the bank was insolvent to the amount of $27,469.

The hearing occupied the entire day, and was adjourned until Aug. 5, at which time $30,000 in notes, considered uncollectible by the bank commissioner, will be examined by the defense, who claim them collectible.

Where Is Walden?

It is now believed that Cashier John Walden is in Jamaica, Julius Pinney, formerly of this city, and an intimate friend of Walden, having sailed for that place July 24. Pinney was formerly general manager of the Automatic Light company of this city, of which Walden was treasurer. Recently he has been employed in Boston by a firm handling the Welsbach incandescent gas burner.

Pinney was in this city July 18, and told friends that he was going to Jamaica on business for that firm. The next day, it is said, Assistant Superintendent Hine, of the Boston Pinkerton agency, found a man who saw Pinney and Walden together in Boston, and Pinney stated that Walden intended to sail for Jamaica the following day. It is thought, however, that this trip was postponed until the 24th, and that Walden accompanied his friend Pinney.

Defender's Day.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—The Defender beat the Vigilant yesterday in the run of 42 miles from New London to this point. The weather was in favor of the Vigilant all the way through. It has been often said by those who know, that the Vigilant can beat any yacht afloat in running before the wind, but yesterday it was not the same. From start to finish, the Defender gained on the Vigilant, and came home far ahead. The finish showed the new boat to be 12m. 2s. to the good in actual time. The Jubilee, by her refusal to start yesterday, indicated that she does not want to go into a race when there is a blow, and a victory in such weather cannot be of great value just now, for the chances are that the cup races will be sailed in light weather, and that is the game the Valkyrie III was built for.

Author and Prelate.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 1.—Rt. Rev. Mark A. De Wolfe Howe, Episcopal bishop of central Pennsylvania, died yesterday at his summer residence at Bristol, after a sickness of only a week's duration. Bishop Howe was born in Bristol April 5, 1809. He was educated in the public schools, and graduated from Brown university in 1828. He was made bishop of central Pennsylvania in 1865. Brown university and the University of Pennsylvania both conferred on him the degree of D.D. He was for some years editor of The Christian Witness, and published a number of essays and sermons.

The Michigan Knights.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Great interest is being manifested by the Knights Templar of Michigan in the approaching triennial conclave, and the division representing that state promises to be one of the most imposing in the Templar parade. Detroit commandery No. 1 has already been accounted for. This is one of the best drilled commanderies in the land, and their appearance in the streets of Boston is awaited with no small amount of interest by the fraters of this jurisdiction.

Police Still Puzzled.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—The police resumed work on the Alberta Stuart mystery this morning, with the possibility of turning up something which will throw some light upon it, or else the work of the past few days will go for naught. All their investigations so far have been conducted on the theory that the girl was murdered, but yesterday's developments were remarkable for the fact that most of them petered out along the suicide line.

His Liberty Was Short.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 1.—James W. Phenix was released from state prison yesterday after serving a five years' sentence for burglary, but he was immediately re-arrested by Deputy Sheriff Vial on a warrant charging him with burglary and assault with intent to kill in Norristown, Pa., eight years ago. There are more than a dozen counts pending against Phenix. He was ironed and left for Philadelphia in charge of two officers.

Struck a Pier.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 1.—The three-masted schooner Adella Corson, of Philadelphia, Captain Corbin, coal laden, sank in the Merrimac river, after having struck the pier at Deer island bridge, a quarter of a mile away. Captain Corbin and his crew of six men rowed ashore.

Tragedy In Maine Woods.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 1.—Game Warden E. O. Collins of Presque Isle went to the Allegash river in pursuit of poachers, and was resting in the house of a man named Pelky, in Connor's village, when a guide named Morris came in and threatened to kill some women and children who were gathered there. Collins interfered, when Morris fired at him, sending a rifle ball through his left lung. Morris then started up the Allegash in his canoe, and Collins was taken to Fort Kent. He may live, but the chances are against him. It is said that Morris has killed two men before. He is thought to be crazy.

Charged With Forgery.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Abbie A. Huchins of Hubbardston was arraigned at Gardner yesterday afternoon on a complaint charging her with the forgery of an order on the Worcester County Institution for Savings in this city. Mrs. Huchins protested her innocence. Bail was furnished for her future appearance.

Attempt at Murder.

SACO, Me., Aug. 1.—Two men and a woman went out on the Saco river yesterday in a towboat, and when in the middle of the river the men pitched the woman overboard. Some men on the shore rescued her after considerable difficulty. She refused to give her name or divulge the names of her assailants.

Fishing Trips Postponed.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 1.—The water of the bay for the past two days has been very rough, preventing President Cleveland from engaging in his favorite pastime of fishing. He is looking remarkably well, and his appearance indicates that he has received much benefit from his rest.

Noted Architect Dead.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—R. M. Hunt of Hartford, one of Newport's summer residents, died suddenly yesterday of heart failure. He was a well-known architect, having designed Vanderbilt's marble palace, the new Breakers, and several buildings at the World's fair.

Providence Youth Drowned.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 1.—John W. Taylor, 17 years old, son of Rev. W. B. Taylor, pastor of the Primitive Methodist church at Lonsdale, was drowned in the Blackstone river yesterday afternoon. He was fishing from the banks, and in some way fell into the water.

Whitecaps' Warning.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—George N. B. Tuttle, a farmer of Sterling, has received a letter, signed "Whitecaps," in which he is ordered to remove his trespass signs and stop killing dogs that have been killing his sheep. The letter is from Leominster.

A Hard-Hearted Woman.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Band, wife of Julius Band, was arrested yesterday for cruelty to her two stepchildren, aged 10 and 6 years. It is stated in the charge that she tortured the children, beat them with a hot poker and pulled out their eyelids.

Twenty Rounds to a Draw.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 1.—Patrick Hennessey stayed with Martin Flaherty 20 rounds last night. Flaherty did all the work, but Hennessey was sandy and on his feet in the 20th round, so Referee Scully called it a draw.

HOLMES' DEADLY VATS

Belief That They Were Used to Suffocate His Victims.

Janitor Quinlan Is Suspected of Many Crimes.

Convict In Little Rock Prison Expected to Make Startling Revelations.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—Another link in the chain binding Quinlan to the alleged crimes of H. H. Holmes was forged yesterday by an admission made by Quinlan when questioned by Chief of Police Badenoch.

He said he was hired by a man named Allen (otherwise known as Hatch) to go to Fort Worth, Tex. At the time he was engaged he said he had only one day's acquaintance with Allen, and on the following day he started for Fort Worth. Quinlan had previously claimed that he had no knowledge of any crimes committed by Holmes, although he had admitted that in Fort Worth he met and knew a man called "Mascot." Now that Allen and "Mascot" are practically proven to be one and the same man, Quinlan's contradictory stories have placed him in a still worse light with the police.

That Mrs. Quinlan, the wife of the janitor who is supposed to know so much about the misdeeds of Holmes, made a partial confession to the police yesterday is almost certain.

At an early hour the two principal investigators of the case went to the Harrison street station, where Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan have been confined, taking with them a stenographer. Chief Badenoch declared that nothing had transpired which he could give to the press without injuring the police status of the case.

He admitted that Quinlan broke down completely and wept like a child, but denied that he had said anything which would implicate either himself or Holmes in the murders laid at their doors.

"Mrs. Quinlan was very much affected," said Chief Badenoch. "She not only wept throughout the whole interview, which I need not say was unusually severe, but she said, 'I call on God to witness that I know nothing more of the murder than I have already told. If Pat says I know anything more about it he simply lies, that's all.'"

This remark was called out by the decoy statement made to her that her husband had confessed everything. At least this is the story the police told, but it is believed from the whole circumstances of the interview that much more was said than the inquisitors cared to give out.

"We shall not go to Little Rock at all," said Inspector Fitzpatrick. "We are going to bring Hatch here, if possible. We cannot bring him on a requisition, as he is already confined on an offense of which he had been convicted, but I think we can get him here on a parole."

Allen's Secrets.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 1.—Convict Allen persists in his assertion that Minnie Williams was alive six months ago and in the belief that she is alive now. He did not meet Holmes in Arkansas, and his connection with him was confined to Fort Worth, Tex. Allen declares that the detectives from Chicago will get nothing for their troubles unless they are able to secure his release from the penitentiary. The only place at which Allen met Holmes, he says, was at Fort Worth, and he knows a great deal about his crookedness in that city. "When the authorities come to my terms I will talk, and not before." This is all that Allen will say in regard to the case. Allen undoubtedly knows all about Holmes' operations in Texas, but that he knows the whereabouts of Minnie Williams or that he had anything to do with her disappearance is considered extremely doubtful here.

Counsel Disturbed.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—The finding in the Little Rock penitentiary of Hatch, who has figured so prominently in the Holmes case, has apparently upset the plans for the prosecution of Holmes. If it can be proved that Hatch is the individual whom Holmes has dragged into the case as the custodian of the Pitzel girls, whose bodies were found in Toronto, a new line of work will have to be started upon. From the start Hatch was considered by the police here to be a myth, but now they seem to have experienced a change of opinion.

Lawyer Shoemaker, who represents Holmes, stated that he was astonished that one or a dozen men named Hatch had not previously come to the surface. He said that his client adheres to the statement that the two Pitzel girls were left in charge of Hatch, and that the whereabouts of the latter are unknown.

Still Another.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Holmes, the insurance swindler, persuaded Mabel Barrett, an orphan, 18 years old, to go to New York in July, 1893, ostensibly to open a manicure establishment on Sixth avenue with a woman named Mary Forster. The Barrett girl came here in answer to an advertisement and was lured into a house of ill-repute on Columbus avenue, from which she was rescued by a charitable woman. Through an advertisement she became acquainted with one Minnie Williams, who is supposed to be the woman Holmes is accused of murdering in Chicago. All trace of Mabel was lost after she left Boston.

Mystery of the Vats.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Experiments were made yesterday with the liquid found in the bottom of the vat in the cellar of Holmes' house, and it was found that whenever mixed with benzine or kerosene it would emit a vapor so deadly that no human being could live in it. Whether or not Holmes used the vapor for suffocating his victims is not known, but the police are inclined to favor such a theory.

—Boston's commission, appointed by Mayor Curtis to investigate her finances, reports a net debt of the city, excluding the water debt, of $43,000,000. Its opinion is that the time has come for a halt in borrowing and to raise the rate of taxation.—Somerville Citizen.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

A LOCAL IMPROVEMENT society is a worthy institution and may do good work for a community along various lines. An association can accomplish much where an individual would fail, and not by force or threats, but by showing that there is a public need of this or that improvement, rather than an individual wish. It is not the work of such an association merely to find fault with existing circumstances generally, but to work along some definite lines. Not simply to point out that this or that should be done, but strive to do it with or without help. If the Houghs Neck Improvement Association believes that a ten-cent fare on the street railway is working a great injury to Houghs Neck it should call a meeting of the residents to discuss the matter. Petitions, committees and argument to the company may convince them of their error. If street lights are deemed necessary the association might establish a few and later ask the city to maintain them. If better streets are desired they should be put in condition for acceptance by the city. If better fire protection is demanded show wherein it may be supplied and petition the city.

The DAILY LEDGER will cooperate with such an association heartily, but it is quite another thing to attempt to capture the city government and force matters, and in this case foolish to attempt it. Whether Houghs Neck pays a tax of $8,000 we don't know, but suppose it does. It does not follow that this sum or one-half of it shall be spent there. One-half of the tax levy goes to the support of the schools, and all property owners must pay their share whether they have school children or not. The payments on the purchase of water plant, the interest, and maintenance is another large item and it is idle for "Manet" to say that Houghs Neck has already paid its share. The present number of water takers at the beach will hardly pay for the maintenance of hydrants there at $35 each per year. It is not sufficient to pay the interest on the cost of the extension but the maturing water debt and future enlargements of the source of supply, maintenance, etc.

It is the custom for other parts of the city to petition for street improvements street lights, etc., and why not Houghs Neck? "Manet" writes, "we have no grievance against the present Mayor." It is possible they have no grievance at all. If they are not receiving their share of the appropriations the responsibility certainly rests largely with the Mayor, for the sums he recommends are appropriated and they are spent by officers appointed solely by him, and responsible alone to him. If Quincy is making a profit out of Houghs Neck, it will all be needed in a few years to build that four mile boulevard.

THE BRAINTREE tax rate is more within reason this year and a happy medium between 1893 and 1894. In the first year it was $14 80 and the latter $21.60. This year it is $17.60.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Burns of Quincy was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued one week to enable him to pay his fine of $5.

James M. Sweeney of Braintree was arraigned for assault on Lewis E. Beverley and for drunkenness. Cases continued until next Monday.

Williams—Sullivan.

There was a quiet home wedding in Boston, Wednesday evening, and Mr. T. L. Williams, the popular jeweler of West Quincy, has secured a jewel more highly prized than his diamonds. The bride, Miss Eva B. Sullivan, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan. The knot was tied by the Rev. F. W. Hagar of the Baptist Tabernacle, Bowdoin square, at 8 P. M. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will take a short trip, and will be at home at 106 Copeland street after August 5.

—The Beverly Citizen finds it is singular how cheap bicycles are since the assessors began to talk of taxing them. Heretofore most men were ashamed to ride anything less than a $100 wheel, but lately most of them are riding a $30 machine; second-hand, you know.

AT HOUGHS NECK.

A Newsy Budget From Quincy's Sea Shore Resort.

Sundays and holidays are practically the only days when there is much life at Houghs Neck. This is due to the fact that this is really a residential summer resort and entirely free from the many objectionable features that usually characterizes many places. Then again the larger portion of the male residents are employed away during the day and are only here nights, so that in reality there is more excitement in the evening than during the day. At night there is considerable going on in the way of dances, bowling and social gatherings so that it is usually late before the last light has been extinguished.

Dr. W. W. Fullerton of Brockton is at Hough Neck for the month of August.

The annual meeting of the Houghs Neck Union Chapel society will be held Tuesday evening August 6.

E. J. Backus, stage manager of the Empire theatre, New York, Lillian Thougate, the actress, L. E. Springer, the actor, and Mrs. Springer, who compose the theatrical party who have been guests at Pierce's during the month of July, took their departure today.

The St. John's cadets of Worcester, to the number of fifty will open camp here Saturday.

Those at the Loretto are: Mrs. Collins and family, Miss Knox, Miss Beady, Miss Gallagher, Miss Mary Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown, Charles and Frank Divine, Miss Lottie White and Miss Mamie Goodman, of Roxbury; Miss May McDonough, Dorchester; Mrs. Stanley and family, Cambridge; Mrs. Jacobs and children, Mrs. Hohn and family of Springfield, Miss Fox, and the Misses O'Connell, of Canton, and Louis Lang of Cambridge.

William George and family of Roslindale are in a cottage on Charles street.

Mr. Coveny and family of Hyde Park are in the Cavanagh cottage on Bay View avenue.

Rumor has it that the Dedham band is to give concerts here every evening during the month of August.

DISASTROUS CLOUDBURSTS

Cause Loss of Human Lives and Heavy Damage to Property.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Aug. 1.—A freight train on the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad was caught in a landslide and derailed near Adelaide. A succession of cloudbursts occurred about 12 miles north of Adelaide. Engineer Gove and Brakeman Dolan lost their lives in the water. Six persons are known to have been drowned at Adelaide, and two others are reported missing. The railroad for 10 miles near Wilbur has been washed away. More destruction is reported at Camp McCourt.

CATSKILL, N. M., Aug. 1.—The Red river is swollen to a higher point than it had reached for years by a cloudburst, causing much damage. Much of the railroad track and many bridges between this place and Sopris, and also between Catskill and Vasquez, were washed away, and it will probably be several days before the damage can be repaired sufficiently for trains to pass through. Ranchmen also suffered heavy losses.

A LESSON IN HISTORY

For the Benefit of Those Who Seek Possession of the Island of Trinidad.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 1.—The text of the letter of the Brazilian minister of foreign affairs to the envoy and minister of Great Britain in Brazil tells the history of the island of Trinidad, which Great Britain has invaded, and possession of which it presumes to retain.

Trinidad was discovered by the Portuguese in 1500. The English navigator, Dr. Halley, arrived at the island and wrote a description of it in his logbook in 1700. Cook took possession of the island in his majesty's name in 1781. The Portuguese recaptured Trinidad in 1782, and voluntarily abandoned it in 1795.

The conditions of the island have been studied by the Brazilian government for development as a part of Brazil's domain. Enthusiastic cheers greeted the cruiser Newark as it left this port yesterday for Trinidad.

Two Miserables.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—Isaie Gauthier, the cigarmaker who shot and killed his sweetheart, Corinne Consigny, in an assignation house, says: "I was suffering from consumption and she from some incurable disease. The cure to whom we went to get married refused to marry us on that account, and, as we loved one another madly, we decided to die. In my excitement, however, I emptied the revolver, and no bullets were left for me. I am ready to die, however. My lungs are gone, and I probably will not live over a week under any circumstances."

Hot Times Ahead.

OMAHA, Aug. 1. — The situation in Omaha over the efforts of the A. P. A. to get control of the police force is becoming more serious hourly. Two police forces will be doing business in the city within 24 hours. A collision is imminent. The A. P. A. interests have organized and filled a police force to do their bidding. Church Howe says that Tom Majors has tendered his service to the A. P. A. to take command of their forces in Omaha today. Not to be behind his friend Majors, Howe has volunteered to assist General Barry in any capacity.

"Kenkel" Was a Nobleman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—August W. Kenkel, who shot himself Sunday night, died yesterday. His real name was Algernon W. Djalinski, a count of Poland. He was born in Prussia in 1823. An ardent patriot, he aided his country in its war for independence. He was selected for the most important of duties, and entered Russia as a Polish spy. After the subjugation of his country a price of 50,000 roubles was placed upon "Kenkel's" head by Russia, but he escaped across the borders of Poland and came to America.

Strikers Are Gaining.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The only business of any real importance transacted yesterday in the interest of the striking tailors was the issuing of bonded agreements to contractors. Of these 110, representing over 80 shops, furnished the required security, and 2000 coatmakers resumed work this morning. The intelligence of fresh acquisitions added to the ranks of the strikers brought fresh hope to the leaders. It is expected that the major portion of the strikers will be working before the end of the week.

Antarctic Expedition Probable.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Daily News announces that there is reason to believe that the international Antarctic exploration, as suggested by the international geographical congress, will become an accomplished fact at no distant date. Dr. Murray, leader of the Challenger expedition, supports the theory that the Antarctic continent is not a succession of volcanic islands, and that investigations in the Antarctic ocean ought to be undertaken by the navies of the world.

Both Want It.

BOSTON, Aug. 1. — At the colored women's convention yesterday an attempt was made to form a national organization of colored women, but a schism arose over the question whether the convention should be absorbed into the Colored Women's league of Washington or the Women's Loyal league of New York, and the question was not settled.

No Need of Uneasiness.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Captain English of Halifax, who reached Chicago yesterday, said that there need be no uneasiness regarding his yacht, the Sunbeam. The yacht has on board the son of the governor general of Canada, and has been reported as possibly lost on Lake Michigan.

Second Raise.

YORK, Pa., Aug. 1.—The puddlers in the York Rolling mill were yesterday notified that on Aug. 12 the rate for puddling would be increased from $2.75 to $3 a ton. The rate was recently increased from $2.50 to $2.75.

Lake Banks Gave Way.

GENEVA, Aug. 1.—A portion of the embankment of the lake of Geneva, near Montreux, gave way, leaving a gap 1000 metres long and 20 metres deep. The pecuniary damage is enormous.

Four Persons Drowned.

GASPER, Wy., Aug. 1.—During a cloudburst at the head of Garden creek two children named Harris and a Mrs. Newby and daughter were drowned.

Gully Is Safe.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The cabinet has decided not to oppose the re-election of William C. Gully as speaker of the house of commons.

A PEOPLE'S CHURCH.

The Park and Downs Union Society Have Prepared Plans for New Edifice.

At a special meeting of the "Park and Downs Union society," held on Tuesday evening of this week, it was voted to approve the plans of chapel, prepared by Mr. Charles F. Marr, under the direction of the board of trustees, and to authorize the trustees to proceed to build as soon as the necessary funds can be raised. The lot of land owned by the society, faces the east on Rawson road, has a frontage of eighty-five feet, and is quite near the site purchased by the city for a new school house. The designs call for a wooden structure, rectangular in shape, giving a seating capacity of two hundred in auditorium, which can be increased to 250 by throwing open the ladies parlor. There will be a cellar under entire building. The rooms will be heated by furnace and furnished with electric lights.

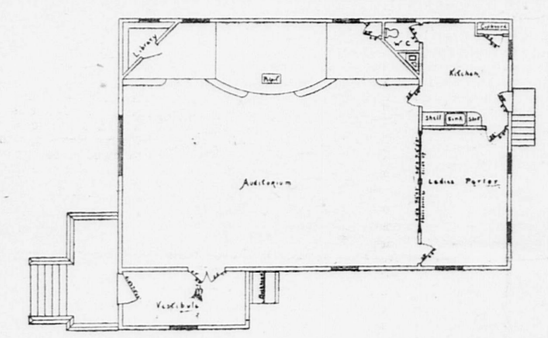

We give an engraving of the proposed chapel, and an outline of floor plan.

This society owes its origin to the "Park and Downs Improvement association," organized early last winter. Under the auspices of this association a committee consisting of Henry Weymouth, Levi Nichols, Frank Rogers, Herbert Polk and Walter Coombs was appointed to plan for Sunday religious services in this section of the city. The hall at Norfolk Downs was at once engaged and a praise service held every Sunday afternoon. A Sunday School was also organized and much interest was manifested. In March the Society was re-organized and incorporated. The purpose as stated in the charter is for maintaining non-sectarian religious services, and furthering all kinds of Christian work.

Since the reorganization, the society has worshiped in the Quincy Mansion. A library is maintained in connection with the Sunday School. The influence for good is already felt in the community. With a convenient chapel such as is proposed, the work of the society can be very much enlarged.

It is the intention of those interested to make it strictly a "People's church," where persons of all denominations can worship and be welcome, supported by voluntary contributions.

Effort is now being made to raise money for the chapel. At best it will be necessary to ask for $500 outside of the society. Contributions can be sent to the treasurer, or any member of the board of trustees. A. W. Polk, president; Mr. Milbury, vice president; A. E. Linnell, treasurer; Levi Nichols, secretary; C. F. Marr, W. D. Given, Henry Weymouth.

EAST MILTON EXTENSION.

Work Nearly Completed Before Conditions Were Known.

The deadlock on the East Milton extension of the Quincy & Boston street railway is unbroken as yet, as the selectmen did not hold any meeting Wednesday and will not meet until the regular Friday evening.

The story in Wednesday's LEDGER although wrong in some respects was in the main correct.

It now seems that no franchise had been granted when the difference arose and up to the present time no franchise has been accepted.

When the Milton line was reached there were certain formalities that had to be gone through with before the location was granted, the principal one being a public hearing.

The street railway people were anxious to complete the lines as soon as possible and the citizens of East Milton were also anxious that they should. This being the case the railroad people were told to go ahead that everything would be all right. With this understanding work was commenced and as stated was almost completed.

The public hearing having been held and no opposition appearing, the location was granted and the papers forwarded to the railroad for acceptance. Then it was discovered that one of the conditions of the franchise was, that the railroad should insure the town from all land damages, and that they should move the 300 feet of fence referred to in Wednesday's LEDGER.

This the railroad refused and immediately drew off its men and operations were suspended pending an adjustment of the question under dispute.

One of the Milton Selectmen in conversation with a LEDGER reporter Wednesday evening said it was impossible to hold a meeting of the board before Friday evening, and he had no doubt but what matters would be settled satisfactory to both sides and that the road would be soon finished.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, —President Eliot of Harvard has again been shocking conservative educators. The other day he boldly remarked: "No study is necessary to the making of a man or woman except that of the mother tongue, which, except within the last 15 years, has been entirely neglected by all systems of education. Many think mathematics necessary. In reality there is no subject so unduly studied. Arithmetic is the most useless thing that any child learns."

AS TOILSOME I WANDERED.

To the music of rustling leaves kicked by my feet, for 'twas autumn,
I marked at the foot of a tree the grave of a soldier.
Mortally wounded he, and buried on the retreat (easily all could I understand),
The halt of a midday hour, when up! no time to lose, yet this sign left,
On a tablet scrawled and nailed on the tree by the grave,
Bold, cautious, true, and my loving comrade.

Long, long I muse, then on my way go wandering,
Many a changeful season to follow, and many a scene of life,
Yet at times through changeful season and scene, abrupt, alone, or in the crowded street,
Comes before me the unknown soldier's grave, comes the inscription rude in Virginia's woods,
Bold, cautious, true, and my loving comrade.
—Walt Whitman.

"7-BAR-K."

"Yes," said the old cattleman as he munched a meditative clove, "there ain't much paw an bellow, head down an tail up business to a cowboy. Speakin general an not allowin for them inflooences which disturbs none, he's as passive as a fried fish.

"About 16 years ago, before I abides in Wolfville, I was pesterin round Vegas with Bill Lockbridge, who was workin a small bunch of '7-bar-k' cattle way over on the Vermejo. We'd been slashin round the plaza all day, findin fault with the whisky an amoosin ourselves at our own expense, an along about 5 o'clock in the evenin Bill allows he's some sick of sech revels an concloods he'll pint up among the dobeys explorin of Oldtown a lot. So we all goes in concert. I wasn't frothin at the mouth none to go myself, not seein no relaxation pokin about permiscus among a passel of Mexicans, an me loathin of 'em nacheral, but I goes, aimin to sorter ride herd on Bill, which his dispisition is some free an various an liable to mix him into trouble. Not that Bill is bad —none whatever—but bein seven or eight drinks ahead of that plaza whisky makes him feel gregar'ous an friendly, an he's cap'ble of goin about a-claimin of acquaintance with people he don't know at all an feelin way hostile when the stranger has symptoms of doubt.

"So I goes along, Bill a-warblin 'The Dyin Ranger' in several keys.

"The senoras an senoritas a-hearin of the row would look out an smile, an Bill would wave his big hat an whoop from rapture. If he starts toward 'em, aimin for a powwow—which he does frequent, bein a mighty amiable man that away—they gives a squawk immediate an shets the door. Well, Bill goes on then. Maybe he gives the door a kick or two, informin 'em of his discontent, but that's all. All at once, while we're prowlin up one of them spacious alleys a Mexican thinks is a street, he comes up on a I-talian with an organ which he is grindin. This yere organ ain't so bad, an I've heerd a heap worse strains. As soon as Bill sees him he tries to figger on a dance, but no one'll dance with him.

"'In which event,' says Lockridge, 'I plays a lone hand.'

"So Bill puts up a small dance, like a Navajo, accompanin of hims'f with whoops. But the dago can't play Bill's music, so the baile comes to a halt.

"'Whatever is the matter with this yere tune box anyhow?' says Bill. 'Gimme the music for a green corn dance an don't make no delay.'

"'This yere man can't play no green corn dance,' I says.

"'He can't, can't he?' says Bill mighty scornful. 'Wait till he tries. I know this man of yore. I meets him two years ago in Druce's, an me an him has quite a time.'

"'Whatever is his name, then?' I asks.

"'Antonio Marino,' says the dago.

"'Marino,' says Bill, 'that's right. I recalls it because it makes me think fust he's a sheep man, an I gets quite hostile.'

"'I never see you,' says the dago.

"'Yes, you did,' says Bill. 'You jest think you didn't see me. We has drinks together an goes out an shoots up the town arm an arm like brothers.'

"But the I-talian insists he never sees Bill. This makes Bill ugly a lot, an before I can get to stop it he outs with his six shooter an puts a hole into the organ.

"'These yere tunes I hears so far,' says Bill, 'is a heap too frivolous, an I figgers this oughter improve 'em.'

"When Bill shoots, the I-talian man heaves the strap as holds him to the organ over his head an flies. Bill ketches the music box, keepin it from fallin, an after awhile begins turnin the crank to try it. It plays all right, only ever' now an then there's a hole into the melody like it had lost a tooth.

"'This yere's good enough for a dog,' says Bill, a-twistin away on the organ. 'Where's Merino? Whatever is the matter with him? Why didn't he stand his hand?'

"But Merino ain't here no more, so Bill allows it's a shame to let it go that way, an Mexicans suffered for music. So he straps on the tune box and goes round from one doby to another a-turnin of it loose.

"'How long did this yere Merino turn out his tunes,' says Bill, 'before he collects? However, I makes new tools for the game right yere. I plays these cadences for five minutes an then I gits action on 'em for five. I splits even with these Mexicans, which is shorely fair.'

"So Bill twists away for five minutes, an me a-timin of him, an then leans the hewgag up agin a doby an starts to collectin. He'd go up to some household a-whirlin his gun like a pin wheel, and at the mere sight of him the members gets that generous they even attempts to negotiate loans an give 'em to Bill, they're that ambitious to donate.

"One time he runs up on a band of towerists, who was sorter trackin round an lookin at things, an they comes up an listens awhile. They was turnin to go away jest before collectin time.

"'Hold on,' says Bill, pickin up his colt offen the top of the organ; 'I've seed people turn that Jack in church, but you bet you can't jump no game of mine that way. So jest you all line up agin the wall until I tucks the blankets in on this yere outbreak in F flat I'm workin on, an I'll be with you!'

"So when Bill winds up he goes along the line of them tremblin towerists an collects $11.

"'They was aimin to git away with all them nocturnes an 'peggios an arias, an not say nothin,' says Bill, 'but they can come no twist like that, an me a ridin herd. None whatever!'

"Bill carries on thisaway for three hours, an what on splits an what on bets he win he's over $100 ahead. But at last he's tired an allows he'll quit an call it a day. So he lugs the old tom-tom down to Franklin's office. Franklin is marshal, an Bill turns over the organ an the money an tells Franklin to hunt up Merino an give him the whole shootin match.

"'Where is this yere dago?' says Franklin.

"'However do I know?' says Bill. 'Last I sees him he was a-goin up the calle like a jack rabbit.'

"Just then Merino comes in view feelin some pensive an tearful about that bullet in his organ, but when he gets Bill's donation his feelin's commences to rise a lot. In fact, he begins to regard it as quite a scheme.

"'But you'll have to round up to the alcalde, Bill,' says Franklin. 'I ain't shore none you ain't been breakin some law.'

"Bill grumbles an allows Vegas is getting a heap too reserved for him.

"'It's gettin so,' says Bill, 'a free American citizen don't get no encouragement. Here I puts in half a day amassin wealth for a dago as is sittin in bad luck, an elevatin Mexicans who shorely needs it, an yere I am layed for by the marshal like a felon.'

"Well, we all goes over to Steele's. Franklin an Bill an old Steele, the alcalde, goes pokin about to see whatever crimes Bill's done anyhow. They gits by the capturin the organ an shootin into its bowels, an standin up the towerists didn't worry 'em none, but the question of the music itse'f sticks 'em.

"'I'm shorely sorry to say it, Bill,' says Steele, 'but you've been a-busin of a ord'nance about playin music on the streets without no license.'

"'Can't you beat the game no way?' says Bill.

"'I shorely don't see how,' says Steele.

"'Mi tamblen,' says Franklin.

"'Whatever is the matter with tackin them tunes on ter Merino's license?' says Bill.

"'Can't do it nohow,' says Steele.

"'Well, is this yere ord'nance according to Hoyle an the Declaration of Independence?' says Bill. 'I don't stand it none onless.'

"'Shore,' says Steele.

"'Turn your cards, then,' says Bill. 'I'm a lawabidin citizen, an all I wants is a squar deal from the warm deck.'

"So they fines Bill $50 for playin an organ on the streets without license, an he pays it an goes away peaceful."—A. H. Lewis in Chicago Tribune.

If Constantinople Falls.

What the two powers, Germany and Austria, would do in some future Russian advance toward Constantinople remains to be seen. As long as they are not occupied with serious business of their own they will be at liberty to watch the movements of their giant rival. But let war break out between Germany and France, and the situation will be changed at once. How easy it will be then for Russia to claim the object of her ambition as a reward for support to Germany or even in return for a benevolent neutrality! A precedent for such a course is to be found in her informing the powers assembled in London in 1871 that she considered herself no longer bound by the article in the treaty of Paris which required the neutralization of the Black sea. What Russia would do with her prize when she had secured it is a speculation into which there is little need to enter. That consideration does not trouble the minds of those who cast longing eyes upon the glories of the Golden Horn.

Russia will not be deterred from seeking possession of Constantinople by fears of criticism without or complications within her borders. For the one she will still have her diplomacy and for the other her divine mission. If, as the mistress of Constantinople, she commanded the mouths of the Danube, she might soothe Germany and Austria with a promise of a strict neutrality in those waters. If "Moscow would be jealous of the new Byzantium and Byzantium would hate Moscow" the same tactics that reconciled Moscow to St. Petersburg would reconcile both to the new metropolis at Constantinople.—Fortnightly Review.

Old Leather Breeches.

Old Leather Breeches was at one time the best known guide and trapper in Pike county, Pa. He lived in the woods not many miles from Milford, the county seat. His proper name no one knew, but on account of the leather trousers which he invariably wore he was known by every one as Old Leather Breeches.

Only occasional visits were made by the old man to town, and then he came for tobacco and whisky. One Sunday morning he walked into town and upon arriving at his favorite trading place was suprrised to see it closed.

"Hello," said he, "somebody dead, I guess."

Proceeding leisurely down the main street, he went to another store, only to find this closed also. Completely nonplused, the trapper hailed the first passerby with: "Say, who is dead? Must be some big gun, I guess. Where is the funeral?"

"Why, this is Sunday, old man," replied the villager.

"Sunday! Sunday!" ejaculated Old Leather Breeches in surprise. "Well, I guess I'll have to keep an almanac to home after this; had all my trouble for nothing."—New York Herald.

Little Things

if they are little wrongs, lead to a large wrongness. Backache is a little thing—not a very serious thing, in itself. It is often overlooked because it is so slight—it may come day after day and not be bad enough to cause any anxiety. The smallest kind of a Backache means coming illness—probably Kidney trouble.

Buker's Kidney Pills

will cure a Backache—cure it so it will stay cured. These pills cure the ache by removing the cause—Kidney trouble. They are a specific for Kidney trouble in the early stages—they'll make an old back new again. Druggists sell them for 50 cents. A book about Backache and Kidney trouble, free.

He Who Hath Loved.

He who hath loved hath borne a vassal's chain
And worn the royal purple of a king,
Hath shrunk beneath the icy winter's sting,
Then reveled in the golden summer's reign.
He hath with the dust and ashes lain,
Then soated o'er mountains on an eagle's wing,
A hut hath slept in, worn with wandering,
And hath been lord of castle towers in Spain.

He who hath loved hath starved in beggar's cell,
Then in Aladdin's jeweled chariot driven.
He hath with passion roamed a demon fell
And had an angel's raiment to him given.
His restless soul hath burned with flames of hell
And winged through ever blooming fields of heaven.

The Spiritual and Intellectual Forces Are Strong Among Them.

And this region, so favored by nature, owes much of its character and interest to its history as well. Settled later than the seacoast, the western part of the state was in its beginnings made up of more varied elements than the eastern. From the valley of the Connecticut colonists pushed through the mountain gaps into that of the Housatonic; the hills attracted settlers from the flat and sandy lands of Cape Cod, while the Dutch from New York have left in name and character their impress upon the Berkshire people of today. Spiritual and intellectual forces were largely prominent in the laying of its foundations, and such forces have contributed and continued their influences ever since.

Missionary zeal, represented by such names as Eliot and Sargeant, founded Stockbridge. Jonathan Edwards here spent the years which represented the prime and fullness of his powers. Ephraim Williams, the fighter in the French and Indian war, dying on the battlefield, left his fortune to plant and endow the college which bears his name. Mark Hopkins, Berkshire born and bred, another Arnold of Rugby, set his stamp upon a whole generation; throughout its history soldiers, saints and scholars have both represented and impressed its life. The reasonings of Jonathan Edwards, which for good and evil have had so great an influence upon theological thought, found their most powerful expression in his treatise on the will, which was written while he lived in Stockbridge. Lenox heard the last public utterances of Channing; his successor, Orville Dewey, born 100 years ago (1794) at Sheffield, long made that place his home, and there, too, were born the two Barnards, one the president of Columbia college, the other the soldier scholar of our civil war. Oliver Wendell Holmes lived for years at Pittsfield. Catharine Maria Sedgwick drew around her at Stockbridge and Lenox a distinguished circle of the best literary society of our own country and many cultivated wanderers from the old world. Fanny Kemble here made for years her home. Longfellow, Lowell, Hawthorne, Herman Melville, Beecher, G. P. R. James, George William Curtis, Matthew Arnold and others lingered among and loved the beauty of these hills, where plain living and high thinking have found noble expression in the past and where here and there they still survive, spite of the inflowing tide of wealth and luxury that floods the Berkshire of today.—Arthur Lawrence in Century.

IN NEED OF COUNSEL.

Venezuela Therefore Turns to Uncle Sam as Her Best Friend.

Worried Over Aggressions of Great Britain.

A Fitting Time For Investments by Capitalists of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Consul Plumacher has made a report of great interest to the state department concerning the troubles Venezuela has had with European nations seeking to seize upon her territory and substance, and pointing out the splendid opportunity open to the United States to extend our trade with Venezuela at the expense of other nations.

The consul says that the past year has been an eventful one for Venezuela in her efforts for economic and political reorganization. He describes the opportunity lost by the United States from 1890 to 1894, owing to the refusal of Venezuela to accept the reciprocity propositions of the United States, but that since the duties were decreased he notes a slight improvement in the exports to New York, increasing from $4,000,000 to $7,500,000.

He attributes the depression in Venezuela to the financial and political troubles of that country, and says if the present crisis passes, the United States will have a great advantage, owing to the diplomatic complications with Germany and Great Britain, our commercial rivals.

"The Germans," he says, "are looked upon with but little favor, on account of the threat to send German ironclads to La Guayara to enforce the payment of a subsidy due the builders of the principal Venezuelan railway. The popular feeling upon this point was intensified by a suggestion in a leading newspaper that the Germans knew very well that such payment was just now an impossibility, as the country was staggering under the burdens of the late war, and that they but, encouraged by the example of Great Britain, they probably imagined that it might be possible to secure a part of the rich Guiana territory as an indemnity."

"The feeling against Great Britain, he continues, "is now most intense throughout Venezuela. Pamphlets and newspapers are constantly being published respecting British aggressions, but as they do not circulate outside the country the world at large is not acquainted with the state of feeling."

Mr. Plumacher says that on these accounts the United States is in much favor, especially as Venezuela is now, as never before, looking to the United States for counsel and guidance. The people of the country would prefer to trade with the United States. New York is but six days from the Venezuelan coast. The American steamship line has been one of the principal factors in building up trade on the coast.

Mr. Plumacher also says: "It is to Americans also that Venezuela looks today for the development of her great natural resources, and the government would be glad to grant most favorable concessions to companies or individuals from the United States who come in good faith for that purpose."

A Ghastly Discovery.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—The badly decomposed and headless body of an unknown man of about 60 years was found in a swamp hole in Allen's woods, East Brookfield, yesterday. A pint bottle, partly full of liquor, was found on the clothing.

A BALTIMORE WONDER

Puts Up an Article of Pitching That the Bostons Couldn't Solve.

BOSTON, July 31.—Associated with the Baltimore baseball team is Pitcher Hoffer, and at the South End grounds he acquitted himself admirably. His style of delivery, actions and his peculiar twist were watched and criticised by 10,000 people. After several attempts to come together this year, an opportunity presented itself for the champions of '93 and '94 to face each other. The visitors proved themselves to be the best team that has played here this season. They play like winners, bat scientifically, run bases with judgment, and in every way play a brilliant game.

LOST IN MAINE FOREST

Seth Rowe Not Likely to Soon Forget His Unpleasant Experience.

Many Days of Aimless Wandering About.

Rescued by Friends Just In Time to Save Him From Death.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 2.—Seth Rowe of Oldtown, who mysteriously disappeared last Saturday afternoon while on a blueberrying trip at the Costigan bog, has at last been found, after large parties had searched for him night and day ever since his disappearance.

He was found in the woods about half a mile from Sunkhaze stream, near Costigan, alive and well. Mr. Lamb and Mr. Adams, who found him, took him to Costigan in a canoe.

Mr. Rowe states that when his companions left him to return to their carriage for dinner on Saturday, he went on picking blueberries and walked away a little distance.

Some time later he shouted to his companions, but received no reply. He then started to return to the place where he left his friends. He walked about for some time, and finally came to the conclusion that he was Lost In the Woods.

The longer he walked the more confused he became, and finally became so hopelessly mixed up that he had not the faintest idea as to where he was. All his shouts and outcries were unanswered, and in a little while it became dark. He picked a few blueberries to eat, and drank water from the streams.

Saturday night, his first night in the woods, there came up a fearful shower. Lightning struck a tree only a short distance away, and splintered it down to the ground. He was much affected by the shock.

Sunday morning he resumed his tramping about, but he found nothing but dense woods and a bog, and the longer he tramped the more discouraged he became. All he had to live upon were blueberries and water. At night he got under a tree and covered himself with bark.

To make a long story short, he wandered by day and slept as comfortable as possible by night, and so it went on for six days and five nights, until he

of being able to reach civilization again.

Yesterday forenoon he tramped about for a time, and about noon he was completely broken down in spirit and body, and laid down to die.

In the afternoon two men of the searching party, Adams and Lamb, found Rowe under a heap of bark at the foot of a tree. Rowe was conscious and was able to recognize his friends, although very weak.

They carried him safely out of the woods to a stream, where he was paddled down to Costigan and from there taken home by train to Oldtown. The meeting with his family was very affecting.

It was found that Rowe had in his wanderings been walking around in a circle three or four miles in circumference.

At no time was he more than a mile or two from his friends, who had been searching for him ever since last Saturday afternoon.

Large Representations.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—New York promises to furnish an imposing division in the procession of Knights Templar at the triennial conclave at Boston, Aug. 27, and in addition to the commanderies of that state already mentioned, Syracuse, Buffalo and Schenectady are busy with pilgrimage preparations. New Albany commandery of New Albany, Ind., and Jeffersonville commandery of Jeffersonville, Ind., will lead a large party to the conclave from southern Indiana. Crawfordsville commandery of Crawfordsville, Ind., will be represented at the Boston conclave by a large delegation of its members. They will be accompanied by many ladies. Pilgrim commandery of Harrisburg will come to the Boston triennial nearly 100 strong. Allen commandery of Allentown, Pa., will pitch their tent in Boston during the triennial conclave. Attack With Fists, Feet and Teeth.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Tony Bolendo and his wife occupy the house 75 Pitt street, Brighton. Bolendo came home yesterday somewhat intoxicated and very ugly, it is said. His wife was out in a field picking peas, and Tony, in a matter-of-fact tone, informed her he was going to kill her. He, it is alleged, threw her down, kicked her three times and struck her, and then he jumped on her and bit off her nose. Her cries attracted the neighbors, who ran to her rescue. Mrs. Bolendo is in a delicate condition, and the shock to her system, combined with the wounds inflicted, may prove sufficient to cause her death. Bolendo was arrested.

The Progressive Age.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 2.—Incorporators of the Haverhill, Georgetown and Danvers Street Railroad company effected a temporary organization yesterday. The cost of building the road is estimated at $250,000, and it will be 17 miles long and will connect with the Lynn and Boston railroad at Danvers, thus giving a through line between Haverhill and Boston.

A Long Name.

Boys Rescued From Death.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 2.—While swimming in the river here yesterday afternoon, three boys, Arthur Caldwell, Allen Bradshaw and Harry Horne, the latter of Boston, narrowly escaped drowning. They had sunk once, when two men rescued them in an exhausted condition. A fourth boy, named Harrihan, fell from Shaw's wharf. Edward Johnson succeeded in landing him on shore. Another boy, 15 years old, fell from the Boston and Maine railroad bridge into the river. He struck a ledge of rocks and severely cut his head. He was rescued in an unconscious condition.

About Time.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 2.—The deadlock which has existed in the city government since Jan. 1 was broken last night, and Charles F. Coburn was elected city treasurer and Girard T. Dadnum city clerk. This election was made possible by the action of Councilman Delehanty, who broke from the Democratic ranks and voted with the Republicans.

To Work Swift River Mine.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 2.—A prominent Portland man owns a tract of land in the town of Byron, on which is situated the Swift river gold mine. Hitherto the land has been used as a lumber region, but now it is thought that gold is abundant enough to pay for working the mine. A stock company is to be formed, and the mine is to be worked for all it is worth.

Not Ready to Yield.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 2.—Contrary to the expectations of the managers of the Salt textile factory, when they opened their doors yesterday for the strikers to return, only half a dozen accepted the privileges. The management will now try to secure new hands for the vacant places.

Prospective Police Picked Out by the A. P. A.

Governor Holcomb Publicly States His Position In the Matter.

OMAHA, Aug. 2.—The police are in possession of city property, armed with pick handles, to resist any effort made under the new regime. The A. P. A.'s plans have already been decided upon. Johnny McDonald is slated for chief of police, ex-Sergeant Shoup is given an office in the new make-up, and all of the policemen who were recently dismissed for the good of the service will be reinstated, with two exceptions. It is also said that when the new board calls upon the present police force to obey the new chief that at least 17 members will respond to the call.

Mayor Bemis, when asked what had prompted him to issue a riot proclamation yesterday afternoon, said it was merely a precautionary measure adopted to prevent bloodshed. He said nothing had occurred in the nature of a disorderly act or demonstration so far on the streets, but from what he had read in the newspapers it was necessary to put the people on guard against a probable riot.

Chief of Police White, when asked why he had a reserve force of police at the headquarters and the official police alarm operators guarded, said: "There has been a great deal of inflammatory talk upon the streets and there have been inflammatory articles printed, and in the event of trouble I want men on hand to suppress it. I do not expect any trouble, but if there should be, I have the men to suppress it, and enforce the law."

Editor John C. Thompson, of The American, the A. P. A. organ, received the following dispatch yesterday morning:

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.

We can furnish 5000 armed men to put down lawbreakers in your city at a moment's notice. J. W. DIXON.

No explanation of the dispatch could be made by those who would naturally be in a position to know regarding its authenticity and genuineness.

During the day there was no assemblage of persons on any of the streets, either with or without riotous or disorderly conduct. In fact, the city was quite free from gatherings of crowds.

Where the Hitch May Come.

The conflict of authority, if it occurs at all, will take place after the formally legal demand has been made by the incoming board for recognition at the hands of the police department. The governor refused to meet Attorney General Churchill and Commissioner Russell yesterday afternoon for the purpose of appointing the police commissioners, and in justification of his course made public this statement:

GENTLEMEN—Yours of present date calling attention to chapter 10 of the act of 1895, relating to the appointment of fire and police boards in cities of metropolitan class, and to the provisions of such act, is before me.

You request that said board be convened at the office of the governor Aug. 1, 1895, at 4 o'clock, p. m., of said day, to select three citizens to act as members of the fire and police commission of the city of Omaha under the provisions of said act. Permit me to say in reply that I have considered the provisions of the act to which you have called attention, providing that this appointment shall be made within 30 days after the passage of the act.

You say "This phrase doubtless would be construed to mean 30 days from and after it took effect!" The act is not to take effect until Aug. 1, 1895, under the generally accepted construction of the constitutional provisions governing the time when acts shall take effect when passed without the emergency clause. The act in question and all other acts passed without the emergency clause by the last legislature have been treated as not taking effect until Aug. 1 of this year. Therefore, under the provision of the act in question, 30 days' time remains in which this appointment may be made.

In order that there may be no undue haste or seeming desire to precipitate trouble, and in view of the doubtful validity of this act, I do not deem it my duty nor consistent with the maintenance of peace and good order to make such hasty and precipitate action relative to the appointment of a new board. I, therefore, as chairman, decline to call the meeting for tomorrow as requested, or to participate at the time suggested in the appointment of a board of fire and police commissioners under the provisions of the act referred to.

I am, sir, yours, very truly,
SILAS A. HOLCOMB.

Churchill and Russell declared that if the governor refused to meet them tomorrow they would appoint the commission and let them use force to secure the city property.

Car Broke Away.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—At Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue last night a car containing 20 people was near the top of the chute, when the cable broke and the car went tearing down the slide of 300 feet. A wild panic ensued among the people in the car, and many of them, in their desperate efforts to escape, were spilled out of the car. Twelve persons were badly injured.

Lady Somerset Loses.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—In the chancery court Justice Chitty decided a case against Lady Henry Somerset, who sought to refuse the renewal of a license for the sale of liquor in a hotel situated upon her estate in Ryegate. The justice said that Lady Henry must not allow her personal opinions to affect her actions in her fiduciary capacity.

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Young Man Reported to have been Drowned in a Fit.

A young man by the name of John Flannigan residing at Albertina street, South Quincy, fell into a pond in Wilson's quarry on Thursday afternoon and was drowned.

During the afternoon the unfortunate young man with a boy was up about the quarry the boy thinks he was seized with a fit, to which he was subject and fell into the water.

The boy ran home and told his parents, who thought the boy was fooling. Later in the afternoon they went to the quarry and saw Flannigan's hat floating on the water. Aid was summoned and shortly after 6 o'clock the body was recovered, and later in the evening was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms where he now is.

The unfortunate man was about 22 years of age.

It is now thought it was a case of suicide rather than accidental drowning.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

Wollaston Young People to Conduct Sunday Meetings.

Each Christian Endeavor convention has been in some respects like the preceeding ones, yet each has been marked by some characteristic, making it stand out strikingly from the others.

There has been the missionary, good citizenship, interdenominational, fellowship, etc., while the last has been especially marked by the evangelistic spirit prevalent in all its sessions being particularly noticable in its new departure of noon meetings.

This same spirit was shown to be universal in the reports of work of the Young People's Unions everywhere. Why not make this spirit a vital force in the Wollaston Young People's Union by taking advantage of the opportunity that has opened before us? Let it not be said that the first work undertaken by the Wollaston Young People's Union was a failure by any reason of indifference or neglect; but rather make it a success that shall be a forerunner of greater things in the future. First, by your presence; second, by your enthusiasm; third, by your interest shown in influencing others to attend.

All roads should lead to the Mansion house on next Sunday afternoon. Happy shall we be if at 3.30 we find ourselves with one accord in one place and that place the Mansion.

The street railway is rebuilding its turnout on Hancock street, near Norfolk Downs.

The party of business men who went out fishing in the Get Thursday reports a good catch of perch.

Mr. William P. Chase, a former resident of Wollaston, died at Stoughton, on Thurs day aged 64 years.

Mrs. Dowd, who was quite severely injured by a fall, Monday, is reported as being convalescent.

It is getting to be quite the fad at Wollaston for ladies to bowl on the Duck's Nest alleys afternoons.

Owing to the absence of some of the members, the water Board did not hold any meeting Thursday evening.

The Atlantic Methodist church will hold a lawn party next Wednesday evening at the residence of Councilman Barker.

Several of the grocers are in constant practice for the fat man's race on Grocers' day, which may account in a measure for the absent mindedness of some of them.

Several of the Quincy boats will participate in the races at Marblehead Saturday, others will enter the Monatiquot open race.

Applications for admission to the Woodward Institute will be received by Miss Small, the principal, at the building tomorrow.

Holy communion will be administered at the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday morning at the close of the sermon.

The local base ball cranks can be seen wending their way toward Boston in the early afternoon with smiling faces, and a few hours later looking as though they had been to a funeral.

Wollaston will probably have a golf club in the immediate future. Mr. W. G. Corthell, who is an enthusiast over the game, has the project in charge. It is understood that the grounds will be in the vicinity of Bellevue park.

The monthly business meeting of the Epworth League, of Wollaston, was held in the vestry of the Methodist church on Thursday evening, August 1. A committee was appointed to nominate officers and report at the next monthly meeting, which will be the annual meeting of the League.

There was a jolly party on the steamer City of Quincy, Thursday evening, to enjoy the moonlight sail to the lightship. It was a fine evening and a beautiful sail that was thoroughly enjoyed. The Columbus band, which was present, gave a concert during the sail. The excursion tonight will be around Boston harbor.

HUGH O'BRIEN DEAD.

Served Seven Terms as Alderman and Four as Mayor of Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Ex-Mayor Hugh O'Brien died yesterday at the home of his son, Rev. James O'Brien, in Somerville. He had been ailing for several days, but was not thought to be in a serious condition. He was just preparing to go out for a short walk when his death occurred. His son was with him at the time, but he passed away before medical assistance could be summoned. It is thought that his sudden death was due to heart failure.

HUGH O'BRIEN.

Mr. O'Brien was born in Ireland, July 13, 1827, but came to Boston with his parents when 5 years old.

Educated in Boston public schools, he in early life became a printer. His first wife, Catherine Shea, died 30 years ago, leaving four children—Rev. Father James O'Brien, T. Carl and the Misses Minnie J. and Gertrude, who survive him. His second wife, Miss Elizabeth Clinton before she married Ambrose Thayer, also survives him, as do their two children—Miss Madeline and Henry C. O'Brien.

His first public position was as alderman; he served as such eight years, and was four years chairman of the board. He became mayor in 1885; served four successive years, and was the first citizen of Irish birth ever elected to that position. His last public position was as chairman of board of survey under Mayor Matthews. A public-spirited citizen, prominent in business life, he identified himself with many municipal reforms, and was the father of the Hub's public park system.

Joe Patchen a King.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—Robert J. the king of light harness horses, met more than his match yesterday afternoon at the Cleveland driving park track. Five famous pacers—Robert J, Joe Patchen, Saladin, Directly and Mascot—were entin the free-for-all. Robert J was, of course, the favorite. When the horses scored for the first heat, Directly had the pole, but soon after the start Robert J forged to the front, setting the pace for his competitors and leading them to the wire. In the second heat Joe Patchen went to the front and won, as he did in the two remaining heats, with ease. Robert J was fairly beaten in as pretty a race as was ever seen, the time of the four heats being the fastest ever paced consecutively in a race, the average being a trifle more than 2m. 4½s.

"Guardian Angel's" Sincerity Doubted.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Daily News, in a leader, says: The document relating to the condition of the Christians, published in New York by the Evangelical Alliance of Constantinople, is of the utmost importance. The Americans' share therein is peculiarly acceptable, because America has absolutely no political interests in Turkey. It goes to prove that nothing is so futile as to entrust the Turks with administration. As it is, the powers have accepted the nomination of Shakir Pasha as the guardian angel of the new reforms, a man whose chief exploit is the organization of that dreadful Hamidieh cavalry, which is only Kurd with the government stamp.

An Old Subject.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The validity of the Chinese exclusion act will be tested in the case of four Chinamen arrested in Detroit, charged with attempting to evade the exclusion law. They were sentenced to 10 days each in the Detroit workhouse, and ordered deported at the expiration of their terms of imprisonment. The deputy United States marshal who had the four men in custody was intercepted here, and a writ was issued compelling the marshal to show cause why the prisoners should not be released on the ground that the charges made in the warrants were too vague. Judge Grosscup continued the case until Sept. 1.

As In Days of Old.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The Tammany primary elections for members of the general and district committees, and incidentally to select leaders in all the 35 assembly districts of the city, were held last night. The reorganization tickets as planned by the old "machine" leaders, in a majority of cases, went through without a murmur, and reorganized Tammany promises to be the Tammany of yore. The old leaders are to lead the reorganization in 27 districts.

Had Served His Country Well.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Sir Thomas Francis Wade, K. C. B., G. C. M. G., died at Cambridge yesterday. He was born about 1820, and entered the army in 1838, serving afterward in China and elsewhere. He was for many years in the government service in China. He retired on a pension in 1883.

Found Many Dupes.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2. — The missing yacht Sunbeam is found to be a myth, and the so-called Commodore English, who represented himself to be the yacht's anxious owner, is apparently a humbug. One of the incidents of English's anxiety was his failure to settle his hotel bill here

On Account of Robbers' Escape.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Sheriff Tamsen, ex-Warden Raabe and ex-Keepers Schoen and Schneer of Ludlow-street jail, have been indicted by the grand jury of general sessions in connection with the escape, on July 4, of the postoffice robbers.

NERVES OF SURGEONS

SUFFER STAGE FRIGHT WHEN FACING A DIFFICULT OPERATION.

Two Ways In Which It Affects Them—A Young Surgeon's First Amputation. Threaded a Needle to Steady His Nerves. Operating on a Friend.

"Is there such a thing as stage fright among surgeons?" a successful New York surgeon was asked. Though the term stage fright with reference to surgery was perhaps a misnomer, the surgeon understood the question.

"Oh, yes, indeed, there is such a thing as stage fright among surgeons," he replied. "There are two kinds of stage fright, or, rather, there are two different temperaments among doctors, and the fright, although in itself perhaps the same, has a different seeming, affected as it is by the material through which it passes. The first is the surgeon who is anxious to perform the operation, sees no difficulties in the way and nothing but a successful termination. His rest is not disturbed by reflections upon complications which may arise. Everything is lovely until the patient is before him. Then his hand begins to shake if he meets with difficulties which he had not counted upon; his nervousness increases; he hurries, perhaps with a fatal result. In the case of this man he grows worse as he grows older, and in old age he goes all to pieces.

"There is another temperament of this order. From the time this surgeon recognizes that an operation is necessary there pass through his mind all the complications which could possibly come up, and he wonders if there are not more which he has not thought of. He is by no means sanguine of a happy result. He fears this and that and the other thing. As the hour approaches he dreads to commence his work more and more. But when he is before the subject his nervousness leaves him. He commences intelligently, reflecting upon what might arise. He does not hurry or get excited, but he is intensely interested, wholly absorbed by what he is doing. I remember witnessing an operation by one of the most celebrated surgeons I ever knew. It was a most difficult operation, and the amphitheater was filled with doctors who had come to see it performed. A few moments before the surgeon was to commence he was presented by a friend to two doctors who had come from a distance to see him operate. He bowed very politely and spoke a few words. Shortly after that he commenced operating.

"The operation was of considerable length, and when it was finished the two gentlemen to whom the surgeon had been presented approached to speak a congratulatory word or two. As he did not appear to recognize them, his friend presented them again. He expressed his pleasure at meeting them without the slightest recollection that he had met them."

"Do you recall the first operation you ever performed yourself?"

"Indeed I remember it very well. I was in a hospital where there were 3,500 beds and 33 surgeons in charge. I was one of the young assistant surgeons. If an operation was necessary in any of the wards, it was our duty to report it to the surgeon in charge, who then performed the operation if he chose. I reported to my surgeon the necessity of an amputation of a great toe. The surgeon came and looked at the man and concurred with my opinion that an amputation was necessary. I was directed to get everything ready for the operation. 'Then,' said the surgeon, 'I will come and operate if I can. If not, you go on and perform the operation yourself.'

"I told my young associates of the order, and they said: 'Well, you go on and get ready, but he won't come. You will have to do the operation yourself.' And that was the way it turned out. The operation was to be at 2 o'clock. All the night before I was rehearsing what I intended to do in my mind and dreaming of it in my sleep. The next day I could not eat my luncheon. My hands and feet were cold. When it came time to commence the operation, I could only steady my nerves by threading needles. I said: 'Give me the needles to thread. I am very particular about my thread.' I took a needle and commenced poking at the eye. In a few seconds my hand obeyed my will and became as steady as I could wish. I performed the operation successfully. After that I went on performing a great many operations, but it was years before I could take a 1 o'clock luncheon if I had to operate at 2 o'clock.

"From the conscientious scientific man apprehension never departs, for he knows that it is impossible to foresee all things. And then, again, he takes in his hands a holy human life. If an actor accentuates the wrong word or halts in his lines, the worst that can come is a slight damage to his reputation. If a minister preaches heterodox doctrines, the worst that can happen to him is a trial for heresy. But if the surgeon in a dangerous operation makes but the slightest mistake it may result in death, for which there is no remedy. Many and many a time on the night previous to a serious operation have I awakened myself from an anxious, troubled sleep by performing the operation in my dreams. It is also very much more trying to a surgeon to operate on a friend than on a stranger. It is hard to tell in this case who is more to be pitied, the surgeon or the patient. I think the longer a man operates the less certain he is of the outcome of any operation. A frail little woman that one would almost say a breath of wind would blow away will survive the most painful and dangerous operation where a rough, stocky and iron built peasant woman that one would think could survive almost any possible operation will die from something which is not, as a rule, considered dangerous."

BRAINTREE.

The so called Rosenfield block of South Braintree has been purchased by the Odd Fellows. The lodge has been looking for a site to erect a building for several years and many supposed the Fuller property was bought with a view to accomodate them but this new deal makes it appear otherwise.

It seems to be the opinion of many citizens in the north village that the open air band concerts are not as desirable as at first they appeared to be. One of the objections was that the meetings in the First Parish chapel were disturbed by the noise; another and greater objection is to the hoodlums who congregate in the square from all the surrounding towns just for the sake of being hoodlums.

The annual printed list of persons taxed for a poll tax in Braintree May 1, 1895, has been issued by the Board of Assessors this week. It was printed by the OBSERVER steam job print, and contains about 1500 names, a substantial growth over last year

Private Lowe of Company K, 5th regiment, M. V. M., is indeed a crack shot and is now in a fair way to become a sharpshooter. Monday afternoon he made the following excellent scores at the range of the company:

4 5-5-4-5—23
5-5-5-3-5—23
5-5-4-5-4—23
5-5-5-5-5—25

This last score is perfect; all the shooting was done from the five hundred yard range and is therefore twice excellent.

The members of the South parish went Wednesday to Nantasket for their annual picnic and all report a pleasant time. Quite a number took advantage of the occasion and many remained all day at the beach.

Ralph McLaughlin son of William D. McLaughlin, fell and broke his wrist yesterday. The boy was playing on a banking when he slipped and fell head first. Dr. Bridgham attended him.

The water in Little pond is much higher than it was last year at this time.

Rev. O. Lord will preach at the First Congregational church on Sunday morning. Mr. Ellsworth will probably be away during the month of August and the pulpit will be filled by several different ministers.

Mrs. I. W. Hayden killed a rattlesnake near the Rufus Pierce place beside the Blue Hill reservation, one day last week. The reptile was in the road and Mrs. Hayden dismounted from her carriage and dispatched it.

The funeral of Mrs. Nathan Rosenfield, a former resident of this town, was held in Boston at her home Sunday. Mr. Rosenfield formerly owned the block at the corner of Washington and Summer streets, which the Odd Fellows purchased this week.

Rev. I. B. Hatch, pastor of the Braintree Baptist church, preached at the First Baptist church at Brockton last Sabbath.

The yacht Moondyne is on a cruise along the South Shore. On board are Mrs. A. J. Shaw, Mr. A. J. Shaw, Miss Lila Arnold and Mr. J. Henry Bayley, Jr. The party arrived at Plymouth after two days and will probably be away a week more.

At the parish meeting of the First Congregational church, Tuesday evening, a committee was appointed to consult with a carpenter concerning the enlarging of the choir accommodations. The committee beside included the regular music committee, Mr. C. S. Bates and Dr. T. H. Dearing. They will report next Tuesday evening at the adjourned meeting.

Government Seeds.

To the Citizens of the Twelfth Congressional District:

I have to inform my constituents that President Cleveland's Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary Morton, has decided that there shall be no further distribution of government seeds, in the interest of "Retrenchment and Reform." For many years the former secretaries of Agriculture have held that section seventy-seven of the Revised Statutes authorized the Secretary of Agriulture to make a wholesale distribution of seeds through the members of Congress. And there is no doubt in my mind but that the law does authorize such a distribution. And that the same has proved to be a great blessing to the people of the country, there can be no doubt, as testified to by thousands of letters to members of Congress. But "Retrenchment and Reform" are on now, and there will undoubtedly be no further distribution of seeds under this administration. And I write this open letter to my constituents to suggest to them that they preserve seed from squashes, cucumbers, beans, etc., which I sent to them by mail last Spring, and from which I hear the most flattering reports from all over the District. I will say for the information of my constituents that I think this kind of "Retrenchment and Reform" will pass away, and that even in the absence of any legislation by Congress on the subject the next administration will resume the distribution of government seeds the same as heretofore, under section seventy-seven of the revised statutes.

STILL UNEASY.

Idaho Settlers Said to Be In Fear of Attack by the Indians.

ST. ANTHONY, Ida., Aug. 2.—The people of this and surrounding towns are still very much excited over the Indian scare, and almost every hour brings fresh rumors. A young man named Paul came into town Tuesday night and declared that another band of Indians, with squaws and pappooses, were making their way toward the hole, a few miles north of this town. On the strength of this, Baxter Hopkins left immediately on horseback for the purpose of verifying the report. He went as far north as Marysvale, 20 miles, and there found the settlers in a state of wild excitement.

It is said the settlers have organized themselves, and are now making every precaution for their own safety. Guards are out by day and night. Indians have been seen in the vicinity of Marysvale for two or three days past, and five white men were detailed to ascertain what the Indians were doing. The understanding between the men was that they meet at a certain cabin in the vicinity at an appointed time. When the men approached the cabin they noticed a number of Indians surrounding it, who at once commenced firing. Three of the men returned to Marysvale, but one Wilson and Captain Harris have not, as yet, returned, and it is feared that their lives have been taken.

Outlook For the Apple Crop Very Encouraging.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—At the annual meeting of the National Apple Shippers' association a committee of apple growers, packers and dealers reported that the July report of the United States department of agriculture, indicating a short apple crop, was incorrect. Those in attendance declared the outlook to be for the largest aggregate crop of the best quality in recent years.

Preserving.

Never use poor fruit; "get the best."

All canned fruit should be kept in a cool, dark place.

Pickles should always be kept in glass or hard stoneware; never put them in tin.

The filling of jars may be greatly expedited by the use of a grocer's tunnel and a small milk dipper.

Watch sweet pickle for a few days after it is made, and if it shows signs of fermentation give it a scalding.

The failure to secure good sauces is due to an error in the process; there is no such thing as "luck."

Never, under any circumstances, use shriveled or withered and stale fruit for any kind of pickling or preserving.

It is very important in all pickling to use only cider vinegar; the manufactured kinds often contain very harmful acids.

Pickles should be kept well covered with vinegar, and not to be used for a month after making. They are better still when a year old.

Jellies may be easily covered by pouring melted paraffine upon them when cold. This hardens at once and is air tight. A paper should be put over to keep off the dust.

A good wax for sealing may be made of a pound of resin, two ounces of beeswax, one and one-half ounces of mutton tallow, melted together and run into sticks.

Seven pounds of fruit, three and one-half of sugar, and a pint of vinegar is the standard proportion for all manner of sweet pickling. The spicing may be varied to suit the taste.

All green fruits which are to be used for pickles must have a salting treatment of not less than twenty-four hours; either in a brine made of a cupful of salt to a gallon of water, or in a salt pack.

Never think any process "too much work." Read, analyze and understand before setting to do the task, and have all the materials and apparatus conveniently at hand. Even a complicated thing becomes simple as soon as it is thoroughly understood. The end justifies the effort.—Good Housekeeping.

A CRY FOR HELP

RESULT OF A PROMPT REPLY.

Two Open Letters that Should Suggest to Thousands of American Women to go and do Likewise.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

LITTLE FALLS, MINN., May 11, 1894.

"I am suffering, and need your aid. I have terrible pains in both sides of my womb, extending down the front of my limbs and lower part of my back, attended by backache and pains in the back of the neck and ears.

The doctors have given me opiates to quiet the pain. I have a very high fever nearly all the time. I am nervous, and cannot stand. My doctor says I must keep in bed. Now I place myself under your care. I am only twenty-one years old, and too young to suffer so much." —MRS. CHAS. PARKER.

The above letter was received by Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., May 15, 1894, which received a prompt reply.

The following letter reached Mrs. Pinkham about five months later. Note the result.

LITTLE FALLS, MINN., Sept. 21, 1894.

"I deem it my duty to announce the fact to my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints, that Lydia E. Pinkham's treatment and Vegetable Compound have entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is simply wonderful. May Heaven bless you and the good work you are doing for your sex!" —MRS. CHAS. PARKER.

All the druggists in town say there is a tremendous demand for Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound; and it is doing lots of good among the women.

If you are sick and in trouble write to Mrs. Pinkham. Relief awaits you.

The New Woman.

Oh, the twentieth century girl!
What a wonderful thing she will be!
She'll evolve from a mystical whirl
A woman unfettered and free—
No corset to crampen her waist,
No crimps to incumber her brain,
Unafraid, bifurcate, unlaced—
Like a goddess of old she will reign.

She'll wear bloomers, a matter of course;
She will vote, not a question of doubt;
She will ride like a man on a horse;
At the club late at night she'll stay out;
If she chances to love, she'll propose;
To blush will be quite out of date;
She'll discuss politics with her beaux
And outtalk her masculine mate.

She'll be up in the science of things;
She will smoke cigarettes; she will swear
If the servant a dunning note brings
Or the steak isn't served up with care;
No longer she'll powder her nose
Or cultivate even a curl,
Nor bother with fashion or clothes,
This twentieth century girl.

Her voice will be heard in the land;
She'll dabble in matters of state;
In council her word will command
And her whisper the laws regulate;
She will stand 'neath her banner unfurled
Inscribed with her principles new.
But the question is, what in the world
The new century baby will do.

Morphine's Victim.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—George Perkins, who, until a year ago had been leading Enquirer editorial writer, was found dead in his room in the Grand Hotel. His death, it is believed, was caused by an overdose of morphine, to the use of which he is said to have been addicted at times. He was a native of Pennsylvania, and served on Geary's staff at Gettysburg. He came here 20 years ago from Kansas City, where he had been engaged in editorial work. He leaves two children. His wife died a few years ago. He was was about 65 years old.

Publicly Executed.

LIVE OAK, Fla., Aug. 2.—George Mitchell was hanged yesterday in the presence of a large crowd of men, women and children of all colors. He made a long harangue on the gallows, protesting his innocence. Mitchell was one of three men who beat to death Alfred Byborg, robbing him of 25 cents.

MORE EXPLANATIONS.

Holmes Gives Flimsy Excuses For Presence of Bones In His Castle.

Says Minnie Williams Is a Fugitive From Justice.

Glib Statements Regarding Other Persons With Whom He Has Dealt.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Holmes has made another statement regarding the latest developments in the series of murders with which he is accused. "The Chicago officials," he said, "may claim that I am responsible for the deaths of Minnie Williams, Emily Cigrand and Mrs. Connor and little Julia, but I can show conclusively that these people have not and could not have been done away with by me."

When asked to explain the discovery of the bones in his Chicago home, he said: "I will answer that question in this way. Every person who has known me is aware I am a doctor by profession. It is also known perfectly well in Chicago that there was a restaurant in my building, 701 Wallace street, during the World's fair. At that time there were lots of bones from fowls and other cooked animals thrown outside the building. Lots of these bones, no doubt, found their way to the cellar. During the time I lived in the building I brought several cadavers there for scientific and pecuniary purposes. This may account for the bones the Chicago police say they have found."

In speaking of the Emeline Cigrand mystery, he said: "I employed Emeline Cigrand in May, 1893, as a typewriter. I engaged her from one of the regular Chicago typewriting bureaus. She remained in my employ until October, 1893. She was a good and virtuous girl, as far as I know. A respectable business man, and a personal friend of mine, knows that the girl was alive and well one year after she left my employ. If she is dead, she has gone to heaven."

Sympathy For Quinlan.

Continuing, Holmes said: "I regard Pat Quinlan, my former janitor, in the light of being persecuted. I pity his unfortunate position. The treatment of Pat by the detectives in Chicago is unjust. He has nothing to confess. This I declare positively."

He then took up and discussed as follows the disappearance of Mrs. Connor, Minnie Williams, the Pitzel children, B. F. Pitzel and Ed Hatch.

"Mrs. Connor I knew little of. She and her husband rented rooms from me. I believe she had trouble with her husband. She left my place. I had no interest in keeping track of her afterward. The charge of murder is groundless. There could have been no motive for me to injure the woman.

Minnie Williams a Murderess.

"Minnie Williams, the poor girl, was my best friend. She was unfortunate in more ways than one. I cannot believe that she is still alive. God only knows where she is, as she is a fugitive from justice on account of the awful tragedy which resulted in the killing of her sister, Nana."

Here Holmes gave a graphic description of the killing of Nana Williams by her sister. He spoke of other troubles that Minnie became involved in in Indiana. He reiterated several times that the girl was his "best friend," and spoke of her in the most endearing terms.

"As to the finding of the bodies in Toronto, I do not know that the bodies are those of the Pitzel children. As I have said before, they may or may not be. I can prove at the proper time that they left my hands safely. I gave them into the charge of Ed Hatch. I never saw them again."

"If Howard Pitzel has met with foul play, his body, I believe, can be found somewhere between Detroit and Indianapolis. Likely at some of the junction points between the two stations. Most probably at Logansport, Ind.

"I left Howard Pitzel in charge of Ed Hatch on or about Oct. 10 last. This was at Indianapolis. I was called to Chicago on important business. I can show that I was in Chicago until the afternoon of the 11th. By prior arrangement I met Hatch in Detroit on the night of the 11th. I met him at the depot, but the boy was not with him. I inquired where the child was, and Hatch told me that he left Howard with Minnie Williams. I thought the child was safe.

Elder Pitzel Killed Himself.

"I have said, emphatically, and I again declare, that Benjamin F. Pitzel took his own life. Ben was quarrelsome when drunk, and on several occasions threatened to take my life. If I had killed him at that time in my own defense I would have been justified. As it is, however, his death occurred in a way which leaves me innocent.

"Ed Hatch I hardly think is in prison. If he was, I would have known of it before now. All I can say in connection with Hatch is that he was engaged with me in some of my business enterprises It is for the police authorities to find him if they can. I am pretty confident they will not find him in prison."

Not Crazy.

When asked if there was insanity in his family, Holmes said that he had an uncle who died insane near Burlington, Vt. He says this disease is inherited. Holmes added: "I am still compos mentis, although, in view of the absurd reports that have gone about me, it might be a question as to whether I or my accusers are the crazier."

The alleged murderer claims that he is worth in the neighborhood of $300,000, and would have no difficulty in raising that amount if he was out of prison. He gives a disconnected account of his swindling operations, but admits that he bilked a number of large companies. Holmes ridicules the idea that he will be convicted of murder, and says: "It would be just as hard to prove me guilty of murder as it is to prove the moon is made of green cheese."

Nothing From Quinlan.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Pat Quinlan was in the "sweat box" two hours yesterday, but results were as unsatisfactory as the previous examinations of the janitor. Quinlan gives no evidence of weakening, and stubbornly sticks to his statement that he knows absolutely nothing of any killing.

Inspector Fitzpatrick says he has nearly abandoned hope of getting any information out of the Quinlans which would incriminate either them or Holmes. Not enough evidence has been secured to make out a case, or to warrant a request that Holmes be tried in Chicago.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 4. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Our promised land and how to reach it.—Rev. xxi, 1-7, 22-27.

Whether the twenty-first chapter of Revelation refers to the condition of things when the gospel shall triumph throughout the world or is a description of the future heaven is a matter of dispute. But in either case it may refer to heaven, the promised land of the Christian (1) as representing the reality or (2) as a type of the real glory of the future existence of God's people. From necessity the Bible does not tell us much definitely about heaven, because we could not probably understand it. What is told is in figures and types, which, if we cannot fully understand, is yet sufficient to encourage us in our efforts to enter heaven, and this is undoubtedly the purpose of what is said, particularly in the passage before us.

Our promised land is here represented as "the holy city of new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride, adorned for her husband." Jerusalem was the Jews' ideal of everything that was beautiful and desirable, and such an image would fulfill their ideal of what heaven should be as it should also ours. God dwelt in this city, for it is called the "tabernacle of God." Where heaven is we do not know, but that it is where God and Christ manifest themselves in an especial manner we do know. Where God is, where Christ is, that is heaven, and there can be no heaven without them. The presence of God was to be rich with blessing, for He was to wipe all tears from the eyes of His people, and there was to be "no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither any more pain." What a comforting description of our promised land! But God is to be everywhere present in heaven, for the city had no temple, no special place of abode for God. Heaven is also a place of security. The gates of the city are not to be shut by day, not to be shut at all, "for there shall be no night there." No night of sorrow, of watching, of weariness, of sickness, of gloom and despair. Neither is there to be sun nor moon, for the glory of God and the Lamb are the light thereof.

How may we enter this promised land? "There shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie, but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life." There is but one way to fulfill these conditions, and that is to be in Christ. His blood alone can cleanse us from sin. By His merits alone can our names be written in His book of life. Think not to enter heaven but through Christ, the door.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xiii, 21, 22; Deut. xxxi, 7, 8; Isa. xxxv, 8; Math. v, 3-12; vii, 13, 14; xxv, 34-40; Mark x, 13-16; John xiv, 1-6; x, 9; Rom. viii, 16-18; I Cor. xv, 50; Gal. v, 19-23; Eph. v, 5; II Tim. iv, 7, 8; Heb. vi, 11, 12; I Pet. i, 3-5; Rev. ii, 7; xxii, 17.

The Peace of God.

"The mind is like a hostelry, where crowds pass in and out, and the pavement is worn by many feet; or an exchange, where the products of every land are handled, or a palace made for a king, but invaded by a mob. Is there anywhere a power that can marshal these thoughts? Resisting the entrance of those that have no right to intrude and promoting the regulation of those that justly claim admission! The apostle says the peace of God can do it. He quoted from his own experience when he said, "The peace of God shall garrison your hearts and thoughts." When that peace is within, ruling there, it reduces chaos to cosmos, confusion to order, as a gentle mother in a family of boisterous children.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

What the Cross Symbolizes.

Christ's cross is a standard of service. The altar of sacrifice, with its offering of submission, becomes the standard of divine service. Sacrifice for others and submission to God's will are the elements of Christian service which are symbolized in the cross. To live selfish, thoughtless lives, disregardful of the needs of the world, caring for our own things and not for the good of others, is to live far from Calvary's cross. Selfishness has no place in Christian service, for selfishness disowns the cross. Submission to God's will in doing or in bearing is highest Christian service. The cross is the symbol of the highest service that we can render to God.—Christian Intelligencer.

Acting Toward God.

Christianity, as life, begins with acting toward God as a child acts toward father and mother. The heathen thought of God as their enemy. Christianity has been fighting this idea for 18 centuries and has not yet overcome it. The first idea a child should have of God is that of a great Father, to whom he can tell his joys as well as troubles. This being stayed by God deprives failure of anxiety and disappointment. We generally say we do the best we can and leave the rest to God. We should rather leave all to God and then do the best we can.—Rev. Dr. Parkhurst.

Christian Endeavor Jottings.

In Scotland they have established Christian Endeavor among the blind.

At an Endeavor service held last December in one of the towns of Victoria, Australia, one young lady walked more than three miles through a severe rainstorm.

Most of the young men of the Central Congregational society of New Orleans have given up the use of tobacco. A good Christian endeavor.

Some time ago the ship Linlithgowshire stopped at San Diego for a few days, and one evening, although the rain fell in torrents, a party of four Floating society workers went out in a small boat to the ship and held a service in the cabin. They were rewarded for their efforts by having ten of the sailors acknowledge Christ, and pledge themselves to the better life.

VICTORY FOR VIGILANT

Brought About by the Breaking of a Gaff on the Defender.

Syndicate Boat Led Previous to Accident.

Jubilee Came In Second While Volunteer Trailed In the Rear.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug 3.—The Defender lost her first race yesterday, and great was the pity of it, for she had walked away from three competitors and was nearing home when a new-fangled gaff at the top of her mainsail broke, and she was obliged to take a line from a tug and retire from the race, allowing the Vigilant to win.

The $500 cup offered by Ogden Goelet was the nominal prize for which the new boat was racing.

Pitted against her were the Vigilant, the Jubilee and the Volunteer. With these three opponents she put up a race that delighted the big crowd of spectators until after rounding the second turn and sailing 82 miles of the 98 of the course.

So far as practical results go, the race only reiterated what everybody knows by this time, viz: That the Defender is the fastest light weather boat ever built in America. She outpointed and outfooted the Vigilant in the beat to windward, which was the first leg of the course, and gained much more on her during the second leg—a run dead before the wind—a course supposed to be most favorable to the centerboard yacht.

Just as the new vessel undertook a stretch for home, with only 6½ miles out of the entire 38 to cover, her hollow gaff snapped in two, and she was compelled to give up. At the turning of the second mark the Defender was 7m. 35s. ahead of the Vigilant on the time consumed from the start, and she had the same opportunity to lengthen the gap that she had off Sandy Hook on July 22, when she had a stretch for home and increased her lead. The last part of the race was a closer stretch, but the high pointing qualities of the fin-keeler justify the statement that she Would Have Gained on That Leg.

Although the Vigilant won the cup, it is a growing opinion that the America cup committee are satisfied that no formal trial races will be necessary, because the sailing of the Defender yesterday was good enough to evidence her continuous improvement, and that is all that is wanted in the way of information by the committee.

However, a test of the boat in a blow is still essential, for the Defender has not been tried in that sort of weather, but it is hoped that one lacking qualification will be brought out before this cruise of the New York Yacht club is closed.

The Jubilee and Volunteer, which also started yesterday, were never in the hunt with the Defender and Vigilant, although the Jubilee did make better time than the Vigilant on the 18-mile run before the wind from Block Island to the West island lightship.

There was not much promise of wind when the yachtsmen turned out in the morning, but when the flagship Sylvia took up her position near the lightship there was an eight-knot breeze blowing. From that time on the zephyr increased, until at times during the day it reached a velocity of 13 or 14 miles. The wind was from the southwest, and signals had been sent up from the flagship that the course would be to Block island, 13½ miles to windward; thence 18 miles of a run before the wind back to the Connecticut shore to the West island lightship, and then 6½ miles of a stretch home to the Brenton's reef lightship.

How They Started.

The racers went over the line on the starboard tack, and three of them stood on that course for some time. The Defender did not. Captain Haff, apparently, has a friendliness for a short board, after getting under way, and he went about after he had gone one-sixteenth of a mile on the journey. The Volunteer was the next to go round, and the Jubilee third, but neither went about for a while. The Vigilant, which was very much behind the others, stood on her tack for a long hitch. When the Defender came about again, she was almost a mile to windward of the Vigilant. The yachts gradually ushered into shore, and then came around to the starboard tack in unison, and stood down the coast.

Off Point Judith, the Defender was so far a leader, in front and to windward, that all spectators said she would be a sure winner. It turned out that she did not beat the Vigilant so much on the beat out as most people expected. She was only two minutes ahead at the first turn off West island light. The Jubilee passed the Volunteer on the beat, and the boats went down the shore on the starboard tack in a regular procession.

During the run to West island the Defender gained materially on the Vigilant going around the second mark at 3h. 44m. 10s., while the Vigilant did not show up until 3h. 55m. 45s. The Defender was 7m. 35s. actual gainer on the Vigilant from the start, and 4½ minutes in the rough on the run before the wind.

Defender's Gaff Gives Way.

Then came the trouble. The Defender had not been past the mark more than a minute when her mainsail was seen to collapse. The gaff had split right in the middle, and its two parts were sticking down into the head of the mainsail. Club-topsail and mainsail began to flop, and the boat was instantly thrown up into the wind.

The yacht was kept on her course, which was for the home-mark, close-hauled. For five minutes she was sailed along under the injury, but she sagged so far to leeward that it was decided to quit. A towboat was called, and the Defender was towed to Bristol for repairs.

The Vigilant went on and won the cup, gaining very much on the Jubilee on the last stretch.

Such little interest as remained after the Defender obtained her big lead on the others was altogether lost when the accident occurred, and it only became a matter of universal regret that it could not be seen how much the new boat would come in ahead of the Vigilant in the former existing shape, for it is conceded that the Defender does better every time she starts.

The race between the schooners was a very secondary consideration, but they had it out just the same. The Lasca got home first, but lost the cup to Emerald on time allowance. The official figures of the day were as follows:

Sloops	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.	Cor. Time.

GRANITE STATE CRIME.

Murder at Louden Thought to Have Been Holmes' Work.

Convict Allen's "Testimony" Amounts to Nothing.

Chicago Officials Claim to Have Unearthed Some Damaging Testimony.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 3.—One morning in 1877 the dead body of a man named Beck, a prominent citizen of the adjoining town of Louden, was found hanging in a room of his house, his legs bent under him and his knees touching the floor. This circumstance, and the peculiar manner in which the rope was tied about his neck, aroused much suspicion that Beck had not taken his own life.

Holmes, now in jail in Philadelphia, and the alleged many time murderer, was a relative of Mr. Beck's wife and a member of the family, going then by the name of Mudgett. Mr. Beck's brother suspected Mudgett of murder and communicated his suspicions to the other relatives, but no action was ever taken to connect him with with the deed.

Recent alleged disclosures against Holmes revived these suspicions, and the subject is a matter of general discussion in the neighborhood where Mr. Beck lived, and where there are people who remember Mudgett and many of his then peculiar traits.

Allen's Stories Exploded.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 3.—The Little Rock end of the Holmes murder sensation is about petered out. The police, in all probabilities, will prove that Convict John Caldwell, alias Hatch, alias Allen, alias Fogg, alias Mascot, could have had no connection with Holmes and his crimes, as he was in the Tennessee penitentiary at the time he claims to have been operating in Fort Worth, Tex., for Holmes. Caldwell was born not far from Memphis, and was a farmhand up to the time he took to horse-stealing. He followed this occupation for only a brief period, when he was arrested here and sentenced to 21 years in the penitentiary. This was seven years ago. A few months ago he was pardoned, but went immediately to Arkansas and engaged in his former pursuit. There he again came to grief and was sent to the Arkansas state prison, where he now is.

Important Evidence Found.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—"You may say that we have found some new evidence which is very damaging to both Holmes and Quinlan," said Chief Badenoch, after having Mrs. Quinlan in the sweat box yesterday. "What it is I am not now at liberty to tell, but it is the most important we have yet found, and when it is made public there will be less ridicule of the department's work." This declaration is all that occurred to interest those who have been watching the Holmes case. Detective Geyer is expected here soon to assist the local detectives.

Holmes More Confident.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—Three of Holmes' creditors have agree to buy his Chicago property, and will pay him $10,000 and relinquish their claims on him. Holmes is said to be more confident now than ever that he cannot be proved guilty of murder, since he has learned that the Chicago authorities believe they cannot convict him.

Cholera Disaster In Scotland.

GLASGOW, Aug. 3.—The Auchen Harvie colliery at Saltcoats, 24 miles from here, has been flooded. Sixty men have been rescued, and 14 are entombed in the mine, and it is believed that they have perished. Searching parties have been formed, but are unable to penetrate to the point where the unfortunate victims are. There were many narrow escapes on the part of those who succeeded in getting out of the doomed mine in time.

Suicide at Sea.

Forests In Danger.

OUR NEW SUBURB.

Quincy & Boston Street Railway in Milton.

The Village of East Milton to Celebrate Tonight.

The Opening of the New Line—Band Concert and Fireworks.

On to Milton!—The misunderstandings between the Quincy & Boston street railway and the Selectmen of Milton has been settled, and nothing now stands in the way of rushing the road to completion, which will be done today.

The Selectmen of Milton held a meeting Friday evening, at which time the matter in regard to that innocent little fence was disposed of and nothing now stands in the way.

This morning every available man was sent over to Milton, and work will be rushed.

The rails are all in position, although they have got to be leveled in some places. The trolly wire is in position as far a Mechanic street, and Dan McLane is now at work on that, and by night will have that part of the work in readiness. Unless something not now known happens, the juice will be turned on tonight and the first car run.

The first car for East Milton will leave Quincy about dusk, and besides having on board the officials of the road, will have the Selectmen of Milton as well as representatives of the Quincy city government. There will be another car containing a band which will give a concert on the trip over and a concert at the end of the line during the evening.

The citizens of East Milton do not intend to let the advent of electrics pass without some demonstration, and any stray barrels, etc., will go up in smoke. This is not all, for besides shouting themselves hoarse, quantities of red fire will be burned and the air will be full of rockets, shooting stars, etc.

Sunday cars will commence making regular half hour trips.

The opening of this new extension marks a new era in the history of the village of East Milton.

The village of East Milton is situated in the southeasterly section of the town and heretofore the only means of communication it has had with the outside world has been by means of cars on the Granite branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., which was all right when Boston was the objective point, but now all the suburban towns are within easy reach via of Quincy.

While this means was good as far as it went the trains were so few in number that the people did not have the transportation facilities a village of its size should have. They had made frequent attempts by means of petitions to obtain better facilities but without avail until it became evident that the railroad was to have a competitor in a street railway.

It was too late then and in spite of the opposition offered by the exclusive set on Milton hill, who objected to the onward march of improvements, especially in the way of electrics, the wide awake citizens of the village kept up a determined front, until at last they rejoice in seeing their village linked with the City of Quincy by a band of iron.

New Magazines.

Not since "The Anglomaniacs" has there been so clever a society satire as Henry Fuller's "Pilgrim Sons," which is published in the August Cosmopolitan. The problems involved in woman's use of of the bicycle are so startling and so numerous, under the rapid evolution of this art, that one welcomes a careful discussion of the subject by so trained a mind and so clever a writer as Mrs. Reginald de Koven. The Cosmopolitan illustrates Mrs. de Koven's article with a series of posses by professional models. A new sport, more thrilling than any known to Nimrod, more dangerous than was ever experienced by even Buffalo Bill, is exploited in the same issue in an article on "Photographing Big Game in the Rocky Mountains," before shooting.

GRANITE INDUSTRY.

The Visit of the Michigan Dealers of Interest Now.

The time for the visit of the Western granite men is now but a little way off and no time should be lost on the part of the local dealers to make such arrangements as will insure a pleasant visit to the visitors, and one that will give them the impression that Quincy is a really important granite centre. The hotels of the city will be crowded with visiting Knight Templars and the chances are that the visitors will be accommodated in private houses or the homes of the members of the Quincy association. The regular meeting of the Granite Manufacturers Association will be held next Tuesday evening, at which time a committee will be appointed and plans made for the proper reception of the visitors.

The Mitchell Granite Co., have shipped several of the monuments for the state of Illinois, to be erected on the Military park.

The Merry Mount Granite company has recently put on some men.

H. W. Beattie is at work on models for the Governor Crittenden monument to be erected in Virginia. The bust is surrounded by a laurel wreath, the United States flag with thirteen stars, and the state flag of Virginia. On the back of the die is a full rigged ship just entering the bay, which is symbolic of the landing of Governor Crittenden. On the front of the cap is the state seal in high relief, and on the back a large scroll with a wreath of flowers.

C. H. Hardwick & Son are busy with a number of jobs for the New England trade.

McDonnell & Cook are putting on a few men.

Fred Barnicoat is as busy as ever and the demand for statuary seems to be on the increase.

Lots of jobs are received every day to be figured on and the general impression among the granite men is that business is looking up a little.

The Mitchell Granite Co. recently had built an addition to their travelling crane, so as to enable them to handle heavier stone.

Swingle & Falconer are putting in a new polishing wheel.

The contract for the Harry M'Glennen monument has been awarded to the Craig & Richards Granite Co., although that firm will not give out a description of it at present.

John Thompson & Son have considerable work on hand.

Has a Daughter.

Ex-Senator John F. Merrill is a papa now, his charming wife having presented him with a little girl this morning. The news that he was papa quickly spread and for an hour or more about all he could do was to answer the telephone by which congratulatory messages came with great rapidity. Scores of his friends also called and extended congratulations in person. He wore a broad smile and received the many complimentary remarks with an easy air as though he had been accustomed to having these pleasant occasions all his life.

—L. B. Hatch, proprietor of the Whitman Times, has recently made an extensive purchase of real estate at Lynn. It includes a large lot of land, a $25,000 residence, a smaller residence, hot houses, etc. Mr. Hatch will still further improve the property by having built a $9000 house, the contracts for which have been given out. Mr. Hatch is one of the largest real estate owners in Whitman.—Bridgewater Independent.

—The Plymouth County Press says: The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No paper can afford to give advertising or "notices" free, any more than a merchant can toss over the counter free gifts of dry goods or shoes. Newspapers are legitimate business institutions; its columns are its stock in trade, and announcements that are calculated to stimulate patronage in any way should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

—Judging from present indications the coming triennial conclave of Knights Templars of the country in Boston is to eclipse all previous gatherings of like nature. The Grand Commanderies of Massachusetts and Rhode Island are cooperating to this end.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

Everybody on the Move to Country and the Seashore.

The Quincy Yacht club hop last evening was a delightful affair. There was a large attendance of well know Quincy, Wollaston and Braintree society people. The moon and high tide added additional charm to the pretty scene. The next entertainment will be a promenade concert on August 16, by Baldwin's Cadet band.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

OLD KICKAPOO GUN.

AN ANCIENT CANNON THAT HAS A REMARKABLE RECORD.

It Played an Important Part in the Struggles Over Slavery In Kansas—Was a Bone of Contention—Saved From the Furnace by a Historical Society.

There was recently shipped from Chicago to the Kansas State Historical society one of the most valuable relics of the border ruffian warfare. It is the Old Kickapoo cannon which did service at Old Kickapoo, Lawrence and other points along the Missouri border during Kansas' early struggle for free state government. This old gun formed the bone of contention in many a hard fought contest between proslavery and antislavery forces, and a large number of the old citizens of Kansas can remember the stirring events clustering about the history of this remarkable implement of warfare.

Of late years the whereabouts of the old gun has been a matter of conjecture, and by many it was thought to have been lost, but it is due to the efforts of Colonel H. Miles Moore and Captain J. C. Walkinshaw of Leavenworth that Old Kickapoo has been resurrected. It now rests in the rooms of the State Historical society in this city.

The gun is a six pounder smooth-bore brass cannon and was first stolen from the United States arsenal at Liberty, Mo., and from there taken by General Richardson's army to the sacking and burning of the old Free State hotel at Lawrence, the Eldridge House, after it was indicted by the proslavery grand jury at Lecompton and ordered abated as a nuisance by Judge Cato, who had the writ directed to Sheriff Jones, who summoned the posse, mostly from Missouri, to assist in executing the writ.

The bombardment which followed was one of the memorable conflicts of border ruffian days. The cannon was placed on Massachusetts street, Lawrence, opposite, and trained on the hotel and fired by General David Atchison, then a United States senator from Missouri. The first shot went over the roof of the hotel. The second went through a second story window, and the third and fourth shots struck the stone walls, scarcely making an impression on them.

Jones, seeing that he was not likely to abate the nuisance that way, applied the torch and destroyed the building. The posse then scattered. The Kickapoo rangers then took charge of the cannon and carted it to the village of Kickapoo, six miles up the river from Leavenworth. It was planted on top of a high bluff and there remained posted as a menace to the free state men of Leavenworth.

Colonel H. Miles Moore first suggested the plan to go up to Kickapoo and capture the gun. He communicated his scheme to a few free state men, and ten of the more daredevil ones, under the leadership of Captain I. G. Losee, well armed with Sharp's rifles and revolvers, made a dash for Kickapoo one dark night, took possession of the cannon, and without being discovered were soon back in Leavenworth. Fearing the gun might be recovered by a writ in the hands of the sheriff or other proslavery officers of the county or territory, the gun carriage was hidden in the south part of Leavenworth and the cannon buried in Dr. Davis' old peach orchard, where it remained a short time.

Fearing danger, it was dug up and taken to Lawrence one dark night in the bottom of a wagon covered with hay. It remained but a short time, when it was taken back to Leavenworth and placed in Dr. Davis' temporary graveyard until the warclouds of 1856 and 1857 had passed away. The gun was then resurrected and turned over to the society of turners of Leavenworth, in whose keeping it remained for a long series of years. On each recurring Fourth of July and other state occasions and holidays "Old Kickapoo" was brought out, crowned with laurels and escorted with music and joyous crowds through the streets of the city.

Finally the turners relaxed in their care of the old cannon, and some ill advised parties without authority loaned the gun one day to the Leavenworth Coal company for the purpose of aiding them to free the shaft of a mass of debris that had fallen and clogged up the hoisting shaft. The gun was taken down the air shaft, loaded with solid shot, placed upright and fired into the mass above. As there was no chance for a recoil, the gun burst, tearing a huge piece from the side of the old warrior.

The gun was returned to the turners, but they seemed to have no use for it, and soon it was lost, and no one knew anything about it. About five years ago Colonel H. Miles Moore was passing down Shawnee street, Leavenworth, and in an alley near a tinshop noticed an old cannon. He gave it a close inspection and found it to be Old Kickapoo. The turners had sold it to the tinner for $25, and he was about to ship it to Chicago for old brass. Appeals to patriotism were in vain, and Mr. Moore subsequently communicated with the Historical society, and after some correspondence the society appropriated $200 for the purchase of the cannon. In the meantime the tinner had shipped the gun to Chicago, where it was recently found in a brass foundry ready to be consigned to a furnace. The gun reached Topeka in safety.—St. Louis Republic.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

The Usual Midsummer Lassitude Noted In All Branches.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: There is a perceptible halt which may deceive if attributed to wrong causes. Trade two months late in spring pushed forward into July a large share of business belonging to April or May. Seeing a rush of orders out of time, many imagined it would continue and hurried to give other orders. The jam of two months' business into one lifted prices. Then other orders came to anticipate a further rise. But the midsummer halt was inevitable, and it is yet somewhat uncertain how much improvement will appear after it.

Cotton has lost a little, and more people seem to believe in 7,500,000 bales than believed in 8,000,000 a month ago.

The year's business will be much affected by the crops, and the most hopeful estimate falls below a full yield, except for corn. Larger stocks than were immediately wanted have been taken by traders, as prices were advancing, and these tend to limit future orders.

The general advance in many products also causes reluctance to purchase, and the distribution of the past half year has been, in part, to make up for stocks and individual supplies depleted during two years of economy.

On the other hand, there has been enormous increase in the working force and a considerable increase in the wages paid, which enables people to buy more freely. Apprehension of monetary disturbance has been quite pushed aside. Strikes of some importance appear, but do not yet threaten to last long, though a strike of coal miners may for a time affect business extensively. The hopeful spirit prevailing in all markets may find its warrant in spite of some shortage in crops.

Business in cotton goods has been the largest in July for several years, reckoning deliveries, but not large as to new orders. A further advance of ¼ cent a yard has been made with moderate demand for some bleached and brown goods, and prices are firm for sheets and drills, while colored cottons are quiet with occasional advances.

The demand for men's woolens is less active, with some disappointment observable, while worsteds have sold relatively better. Flannels have advanced 1 to 2 cents a yard, and blankets about 5 per cent, and dress goods are firm, with good demand for the season.

Sales of wool have been only 6,072,450 pounds for the week, against 9,836,400 in 1892, but for the month of July were 50,851,314 pounds, of which 32,879,559 were domestic, against 38,557,150 pounds in 1892, of which 24,562,400 were domestic.

Wheat suddenly rose 3 cents on bad reports of condition, but has dropped all the gain as the scantiness of exports is felt, shipments in July having been only 3,495,064 bushels, flour included, from Atlantic ports, against 9,865,633 last year. Western receipts continue very small, and

ALL IS PEACEFUL.

Bannock Indians Are Now Returning to Their Reservation.

OMAHA, Aug. 3.—A report was received from Market Lake which indicates that the Indians are returning from Jackson's Hole by a straight line to the reservation.

To test its correctness, the Union Pacific railway office was asked to telegraph for information to stations along the Oregon Short line from Soda Springs westward. The following reply is from the division superintendent at Pocotella:

A stage driver just reached Soda Springs says he left Carrabo this (Friday) morning. He came through Praye's Lake and the Blackfoot river country. He reports 200 Bannocks at Grave Lake, on the way from Jackson's Hole to their reservation. They said that there had been no fighting and no desire to fight on their part. The scare seems to be over, and settlers understand they are trying to make their way back to the reservation to avoid the troops. The information is thoroughly reliable.

United States troops have reached the Jackson's Hole country, but found no signs of Indians.

The Corbett Case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Judge Gildersleeve signed a decree yesterday granting Mrs. Ollie Corbett an absolute divorce from her husband, James J. Corbett. The decree provides that Corbett shall pay his wife $5200 a year alimony. In case Mrs. Corbett remarries she will forfeit the alimony. She is authorized to resume her maiden name of Ollie Lake and can remarry. Corbett cannot remarry until his wife is dead.

Likely to Be Criticised.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Ambassador Bayard distributed the prizes at the grammar school at Boston yesterday. Afterward he was given a banquet. Mr. Garfit proposed the health of President Cleveland, to which Mr. Bayard replied, saying that the president stood in the midst of self-confident, and often times violent, people, and it took a man such as Mr. Cleveland to govern them.

Coxey's Nerve.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—The Populist state ticket complete is Jacob S. Coxey for governor; John H. Crofton, lieutenant governor; George Harper, treasurer; William Baker, attorney general; E. D. Stark, supreme judge: William A. Gloyd, public work; Thomas M. Hickman, clerk supreme court.

One Jap In Montreal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Minister Kurino and Secretary Matsui, of the Japanese legation, are back from an extensive summer tour. They found but few of their countrymen located in Canada, only one Japanese living in Montreal.

Champion Horseshoe Maker.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—In a horseshoe making contest here last night, Pugilist Fitzsimmons broke the record by forging 30 horseshoes in 27 minutes. His opponent, John Corbett, of this city, made the same number in 27m. 20s.

No War.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 3.—The frontier dispute between Argentine and Chili has been settled. It was at one time feared that this dispute would lead to war which would also involve Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador.

Will Declared Void.

MADRID, Aug. 3.—The courts have declared void the will of Alexandro Soler, who bequeathed several million pesetas to Queen Regent Christian. The decision is based upon a technical flaw in the document.

Prayer and Politics.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Anglican bishop of Exeter, in a pastoral letter, urges special thanksgiving and prayer for the defeat of the party which threatened the church.

Little Things

if they are little wrongs, lead to a large wrongness. Backache is a little thing—not a very serious thing, in itself. It is often overlooked because it is so slight—it may come day after day and not be bad enough to cause any anxiety. The smallest kind of a Backache means coming illness—probably Kidney trouble.

Buker's Kidney Pills

will cure a Backache—cure it so it will stay cured. These pills cure the ache by removing the cause—Kidney trouble. They are a specific for Kidney trouble in the early stages—they'll make an old back new again. Druggists sell them for 50 cents. A book about Backache and Kidney trouble, free.

The Drone.

Let me not like a useless weed
In rankness flourish still,
But may I both in word and deed
A true man's part fulfill.

To work, to strive, to have an aim,
No matter what it be.
If conscience free my soul from blame,
It must advantage me.

For death it is, a death in life,
For any man to stand
Apart and view his fellow's strife
And not to bear a hand.

The stagnant pool so foul to see,
The tree that rots at core,
Are fitting types of such as he
That rusteth evermore.

No work is lost, no striving or endeavor
But marches through the future's open door,
And through the present age is throbbing ever
The life of all ages gone before.

The Spent Cannon Ball.

General Sherman's reminiscences of wartime are very entertaining. One of the most magnificent specimens of manhood I ever saw, said he, was a soldier who was constantly laughing at the poor fellows who became fatigued by long marches or who sank under seemingly trifling wounds. His courage, health and strength seemed invincible. One day a heavy projectile from the enemy's cannon—what we call a spent ball—came rolling along The temptation to put out one's foot to stop such a ball was irresistible. The soldier I have mentioned yielded to it. With a merry smile he put out his foot, and in an instant it was cut off, and he sank to the ground a maimed, shattered cripple for life, weeping like a child at his awful misfortune.

A. P. A. HAS THE CALL

Has a Good Working Majority In the Omaha City Council.

New Police Commission and Force Sworn In

Despite an Injunction From the Court to Refrain From So Doing.

OMAHA, Aug. 3.—The attorney general and the land commissioner of Nebraska, both Republicans, yesterday appointed Paul Vandervort, W. J. Broach and Colonel A. C. Foster fire and police commissioners of Omaha. The governor refused to meet with them. Omaha has now two police commissions.

The police commissioners, acting under the A. P. A. police law, are doing business in Omaha regardless of the fact that the district court restrained the city council from approving their bonds.

As a result a citizens' volunteer guard of 100 men were on duty at the police station last night to maintain peace, and they and the regular police are holding possession of the city property.

The Omaha council held a special session at 4:30 o'clock to approve the bonds, but were met with an injunction returnable this afternoon in the district court. The order was ignored with a hurrah, and the new police commission appointed a full police force. They have not yet made an effort to get possession of the city property.

Military In Readiness.

The district court will take up the council's proceedings in contempt, and will probably annul its work. There is much inflammatory talk, and several companies of militia in different parts of the country have been notified to be in readiness to move on to Omaha in the event of trouble.

Governor Holcomb is prepared to maintain the law. He is using all means in his power to conserve peace and have the whole squabble carried to the supreme court.

When asked what action he proposed to take in the matter in case of an attempt to take forcible possession of the jail, Chief of Police White said that he would see that there was no rioting, and that the laws were enforced in any event. He said he did not anticipate any violence, but would be prepared to deal with any cases of lawlessness that might come up.

It was evident from the first that it was the intention of the A. P. A. majority in the city council to carry out their plans, irrespective of the order of Judge Hopewell. President Edwards refused to receive the telegram from the district judge, who is at Takamah, and which was handed to him. This example was followed by the majority.

It appeared that one or two of the members, who were ready to vote for any measure that would aid the A. P. A. in their plans, were a little doubtful as to the propriety of a direct violation of the order of injunction. Subsequently the majority took possession of the private office of the president, where the doubtful voters were looked after until 10 members were ready to defy the court.

City Attorney's Advice.

The majority called for an opinion from the city attorney as to whether the council was bound to obey the injunction. City Attorney Connell was absent from the city, and left Frank Ransom to advise the council in his absence. He advised the council that it might, with entire propriety, ignore the injunction.

He declared that since the order has been issued at Takamah the injunction was not in force in this county. More than that, he was informed that no petition had been filed in the district court and no bond to be approved by the clerk of the court. Until this was done the injunction was not in force, and the council was under no obligation to consider it. President Edwards then declared the bonds of the commissioners approved.

During the rollcall a member asked the attorney to state whether the new law repealed the law which stated that all the commissions must be signed by the governor. Mr. Ranson relieved himself by the assurance that there was no necessity for the commission at law. The law has designated the appointing board, and this carried with it the power to give a proper notification of the appointments. It was not necessary that the governor should issue any commission, nor was it necessary that it should bear the seal of the state. This resolution was then passed by the council:

The Result.

Whereas, a proclamation has been issued by Charles H. Brown and D. Clem Deaver, police commissioners, under the law which was repealed to take effect Aug. 1, 1895, declaring their purpose to continue to act as commissioners under the law, knowing the versions of the new law which Governor Holcomb certifies over his own signature took effect Aug. 1, and under the provision by which the commissioners have been appointed; and,

Whereas, under the said law, the only authorized appointing power has appointed J. W. Boatch, A. C. Foster and Paul Vandervort as such police commissioners for the city of Omaha, and their bonds have been duly approved by the city council, and they have filed their oath of office with the city clerk, as required by law; and

Whereas, it is important that all officers, employes and those having business with the city council should not be misled as to who will be recognized by the council; therefore,

Resolved, That until otherwise finally determined by the courts, the police commission composed of W. J. Boatch, A. C. Foster and Paul Vandervort, acting under the new law taking effect Aug. 1, 1895, is the only one which will be recognized by the city, and all interested parties will govern themselves accordingly.

At noon, Governor Holcomb sent a letter to the attorney general, in which he, as executive of the state, respectfully and most earnestly urges him to begin quo warranto proceedings in the supreme court at the earliest possible date in order to try the title of the respective claimants in question, and by collateral proceedings restrain any efforts which may be made to take possession of said office by force surreptitiously.

At 11 o'clock last night the district court issued a second injunction restraining the new police commissioners from interfering with the old force or any municipal property, or from acting in any capacity. The new commission has not yet indicated its action on this injunction.

FLAGSTAFF, A. T., Aug. 3.—At Grant Canyon of the Colorado, Blatchley, Lewis Porter and Arthur S. Renton, visitors fron Stamford, Conn., sought shelter under a huge bowlder during a thunderstorm. A thunderbolt struck the rock, and Blatchley and Porter were instantly killed. The others were thrown from under the rock and rendered unconscious.

Bostons Played In Their Old Form In the Contests With Quakers.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—The Bostons gave a satisfactory account of themselves, even though they lost one of the two games they played with the Philadelphias. They won the first contest—10 to 8—after blanking their opponents for eight innings, and they lost the second game—7 to 6—after a gallant struggle for 10 innings. There was something like the old-time snap and dash in the work of the home club.

Sees a Chance For Valkyrie.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Field says this morning: The Vigilant and Defender tests have raised hopes here to concert pitch that Valkyrie III has a good chance to win the cup. The statements of the Vigilant's improved form are mere guesswork, and most people here think that the Rhode Island designer has made a mistake in adopting the old-fashioned British idea, long ago discarded, that under all conditions a low-placed keel will do duty for breadth in the matter of sail-carrying power. The beating which the Defender gave the Vigilant on Wednesday will not efface the effect of Tuesday's trial. It seems that the Defender's designers have made a retrograde movement, and a skipper and crew up to the best British form ought to win the cup in the same precise manner in which the Britannia wins cups and trophies of all kinds here. Every arrangement has been made to tow Valkyrie III, if that is needed to insure her timely arrival, all concerned being bent upon sailing the series of trials before the races occur.

Labor's Victory.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—It is asserted by the leaders of the present strike of the United Garment Workers of America, for the abolition of the tenement house and sweating systems, that they have already gained their fight, and that it will be only a matter of a few days now before every member of their organization will have resumed work under greatly improved conditions. Contractors in this city flock to the office of the settlement committee, and five men are kept busy from early in the morning until late at night examining applicants and filling out the agreements.

Shot a Boy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Miss Elizabeth M. Flagler, daughter of Brigadier General Daniel W. Flagler, U.S.A., shot a colored boy who was stealing fruit from her father's garden. The boy whom Miss Flagler killed was named Ernest Green, son of Richard Green, Secretary Carlisle's colored messenger. Miss Flagler gave herself up to the police. She claimed that she didn't intend to hit the boy. The coroner's jury declined to hold her.

—It used to be doubted whether it was practicable to make electric motors strong enough to drag heavy railroad trains. Now experience has shown that electric motors can out pull steam locomotives. On the Nantasket beach road the other day, a big locomotive was hitched to one end of a heavy train, and an electric motor car was hitched to the other end. Then both locomotive and motor pull for all they were worth, in opposite directions. The train held together, and the motor dragged the train and opposing engine easily.—Somerville Journal.

A SENSATIONAL STORY

Exposing a Plot to Reseat ex-Queen Liliuokalani and Loot Hawaii.

Rudolph Spreckels Said to Be the Prime Mover.

Newspaper Man "Hires Out" and an Agent Reveals Monarchial Plans.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—An alleged plot to restore ex-Queen Liliuokalani and loot Honolulu is exposed by The Chronicle. Rudolph Spreckels, youngest son of Claus Spreckels, is said to be backing the scheme. The Chronicle says:

One of the best equipped and most dangerous filibustering expeditions ever fitted out on American soil was uncovered in San Francisco yesterday. Its object is, or was, to take the Hawaiian republic by force of arms, restore to the throne ex-Queen Liliuokalani, divide money and goods worth approximately $27,000,000 among some 200 freebooters picked up by ones and twos in western America. The active agent of the conspirators is W. P. Morrow, a native of Connecticut, aged 31 years, who was recently a resident of Grass Valley, Cal. He is still in San Francisco under surveillance, so that the federal authorities can get him if they want to do so.

The headquarters of the filibustering expedition have been at 711 Bush street, a dingy flat-fronted boarding house. There the agent of the conspirators has been receiving day and night a motley crowd of men who responded to his cautiously worded advertisements published in the city and elsewhere.

Morrow admitted last night, when he was forced into a corner and told that the game was up that he had been engaging men to go into Hawaii and overturn the republic. He had told before to a reporter that the thing was to be done, and had stated plainly who the men were and what they were enlisted for, and had stated plainly who the men were behind the scheme. Among them he mentioned one of the exiled Ashfords, and he declared that Rudolph Spreckels was the man with the money who Was Backing the Project.

Spreckels, he said, had already concealed a large number of rifles on the island of Maui, so that they would be ready when the filibusterers reached the islands.

The first local intimation of the expedition appeared in an advertisement a few days ago. The advertisement which led to the discovery of the filibustering scheme appeared in a morning paper Tuesday, July 30. It read:

Timbermen and hunters wanted to escort prospecting party; good pay to good men; state age; fare, $16. Address Box 1259, Examiner office.

A Chronicle reporter answered this advertisement and, in a few hours, received the following typewritten reply:

We want men for an expedition, and there will probably be some fighting in the interest of 90,000 people with less than 5000 to oppose them. Only a small organized body to beat, not exceeding 700, who amount to only little as soldiers, being newly recruited and officered by civilians without capacity or discipline; pay $25 and upward a month, according to what you can do; also a grant of enough fruit or coffee land in bearing to fix you for life You will have to furnish rifle and ammunition. If prospects suit you, answer and a meeting can be arranged.

It was seen what this meant. The 90,000 people are the Royalists and the natives of the Hawaiian Islands. The 5000 are the people who are loyal to the Dole republic.

Cat Out of the Bag.

The reporter then arranged an interview with Mr. Morrow, and called upon him at the boarding house on Bush street. The expedition was discussed, and the reporter evinced a desire to join it.

"Have you any idea of the goal of this expedition?" he was asked.

The Chronicle reporter said he thought it might be Salvador.

"That is a mistake," was the reply. "The scheme is to restore the ex-queen of the Sandwich Islands to her throne. We will enlist 200 to 400 men from here and take a sailing vessel from this port within 10 days or two weeks. We have given out false information as to our starting point, telling people that we were to start from the north of Alaska or some other northern port. We shall, however, go from here in about 10 days. It will cost $16 to buy the necessary outfit of clothes and ammunition, arms, etc.

"The Dole government owns three-fourths of the landed property in the islands, and the proposition is that, if the expedition is successful, to distribute the captured property to the adherents and send Dole and his supporters out of the islands without a cent. The standing army consists of 120 men and 40 officers, besides a militia of 580 men. The armament of the standing army is six gatling guns, which are stationed at the palace."

Plans at Honolulu.

"In the city of Honolulu, the Dole government claims 3000 adherents, and of these 3000 there are 1000 who are friends of the Royalists. Of the 120 men who make up the standing army, we claim to have five men ready to do the bidding of the revolutionary party, and out of the militia we can command the services of 50 men.

"The proposition is to capture the five steamers that ply between the islands, and then approach Honolulu and capture the revenue office and bank of Bishop & Co., there being from $800,000 to $500,000 in the revenue boxes and bank. The proposition in regard to the queen is to place her on the throne as a mere figurehead, the head of the revolutionary party to be in control of affairs.

"Rudolph Spreckels has planted 1000 stands of arms to be used by the revolutionists on the island of Maui," continued Morrow.

"The Spreckels have little use for the provisional government. They could furnish arms to the natives, except that the natives could not use them, and to this fact I attribute the failure of the last uprising.

"In the party that is to leave from here are three or four men who are acquainted with every inch of the island. Among them are Volney B. Ashford, the head of the affair in name. I say in name, because Ashford is partly to blame for the last affair. We have an attorney who is giving us advice, and who is to accompany the expedition. His name is Ashford.

Welcome Awaits Them.

"In regard to the makeup of the party, there are 500 men, nearly all cowboys from New Mexico, Arizona and Texas, and most of them are here."

Morrow said that the natives and people in the islands would welcome the revolutionary party; as he expressed it, "Would consider it like getting out of hell into heaven" to have the government a monarchy again.

"The first point after landing will be to take the fire alarm system and the next point will be the telephone system in order to cut off communication," said Morrow. "Next will be the police station, where there are only about 20 men, whose arms and ammunition are on the upper floors, while the men are down below. Next would be the palace, where the gatling guns are stationed on a plazza. We also depend on some of our spies to cripple a couple of the gatling guns. Next we shall take the government building, which is guarded by only 12 men. After capturing these points we will leave men to guard them. We think that we ought to capture the city within half an hour, as the points are so weakly guarded."

Consul Expects Trouble.

Hawaiian Consul Wilder, when told of the plot, said he had expected trouble of some kind very soon.

Morrow was seen yesterday by the detective and closely questioned. He admitted that he was hiring men for a filibustering expedition, and said that he received $250 a month and expenses for this work.

He claims to have sent a number of men to the rendezvous at Portland, but this is not believed. It is thought the intention of the adventurers was to sail from San Francisco or some nearby port in a vessel chartered for the occasion The San Francisco police at first thought Morrow was running a swindling employment agency, but investigation leads them to believe that a conspiracy of the nature outlined actually exists. In spite of the exposure, Morrow is very cool, and said the federal authorities have no terrors for him. He had not committed any overt act, and they did nothing except watch him.

The Hand of Fate.

DOUAI, France, Aug. 5.—During the fetes in the mining district of Aniche to celebrate the jubilee of M. Vuillemin, manager of the Aniche Colliery company, an anarchist, named De Coux, in the crowd fired five revolver shots at M. Vuillemin while he was leaving the church. Three of them took effect, though the wounds inflicted were not serious. Directly afterward a tremendous explosion was heard, and De Coux's body was hurled several yards, while 10 of the bystanders were thrown to the floor injured by the explosion. De Coux had been carrying a bomb beneath his coat which prematurely exploded. De Coux was disemboweled and terribly mutilated and expired immediately.

Over the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 5.—Frank Butler and Timothy F. Sweeney went sailing on the upper river yesterday afternoon. Suddenly a thunderstorm came from the west and swept over the river with great fury. The first squall caught the sailboat off Grass island. In a twinkling it was capsized, and both men made desperate efforts to swim to the island. The swift current of the river drew them toward the American rapids, but still they fought for life They were finally hurled over the American falls.

Many Negroes Hurt.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Aug. 5.—The Location, a patch of some 100 odd company houses near No. 3 shaft, inhabited almost exclusively by negroes, was yesterday visited by a vengeance mob of 500 white miners from the city and given a taste of mob violence. A race war is going on between whites and colored persons. Many have been injured, but no one has been killed. The trouble grew out of the robbery of a white man named Barney Role by five negroes.

Struck by Lightning.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Aug. 5.—During an electric storm last night, a party of nine persons from Williamsport, who had been traveling in a four-horse wagon, took refuge under an oak tree, near this city. The tree was struck by lightning, and John Miller was killed outright. Jean Miller and Mrs. John Fay were severely burned, and their recovery is doubtful. The other men escaped with lesser injuries.

Quiet at Omaha.

OMAHA, Aug. 5.—Things were quiet in the city yesterday. The fire and police board Saturday night decided it was not necessary to maintain an army of police men at the police station to defend them from an attack of a mob. Accordingly the 75 special policemen that had been on duty for the preceding 30 hours were ordered to remove their stars and go home, prepared to answer a call at any time.

Murder or Suicide?

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Jennie Jones, aged 45 years, was drowned in the Delaware river, and Barney Hayes is under arrest on suspicion of having thrown her overboard. The woman had separated from her husband and was living with her parents, where Hayes boarded.

REMAINS A MYSTERY.

Alberta Stuart's Death Proves a Foser For the Boston Police.

Sister Maggie Cannot Render Much Aid.

Opinions on Murder and Suicide Theories Still Remain Divided.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Captain Wescott, Inspector Dugan and Officer Houghton, who are at work on the West End mystery, had a long interview with Miss Maggie Stuart, in the Myrtle-street house yesterday afternoon. They went all over the case with her, paying particular attention to matters which have come up since she left for Nova Scotia.

Inspector Dugan says that she simply repeated the story she has already told, and was positive that Bertie had no male acquaintances who would have been likely to entice her away.

She denied that she had punished her sister as severely as had been reported, and explained all about the financial affairs of the family, stating that the property left to Alberta was in the care of her brother, who Was Alberta's Guardian.

Miss Maggie showed the police that it would have been impossible for Alberta to have been on Green street Tuesday afternoon, and, in regard to the watermelon, said there was considerable of it left over after dinner, and, while she did not see Alberta eat any of it afterward, it would have been possible for her to have taken a slice just before leaving to post the letter.

Inspector Dugan said after the interview that the police were more in the dark than ever so far as the solution of the mystery was concerned, and that any theory he was about to form had been dispelled by Miss Maggie's story.

The police, however, learned a few facts which they propose to look up, but they have Small Hopes of Accomplishing Anything.

It is generally thought that one of the reasons the police have had so little success in solving the mystery is that the men at work on the case have been divided in their opinions as to whether the girl committed suicide or was murdered.

Inspector Dugan has stuck to the murder theory from the first, but the station 3 officers, while not wanting to go behind the medical examiner's report, have all along been of the opinion that Alberta committed suicide. This lack of harmony has shown itself again and again as the investigation has gone on, and has been the cause of considerable comment.

The motorman's story of having seen a white girl and mulatto on the West Boston bridge will be further investigated, as will also that of the woman who saw a strange couple on the Charlesbank late at night.

Concession to Workers.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 5.—The Weybosset mills have given notice that they will give the 7 per cent increase in wages decided on by the other Olneyville mills, beginning today. The Saxon is now the only Providence mill which has not granted an increase.

NEWMARKET, N. H., Aug. 5.—The Newmarket Manufacturing company has given notice that wages at its mills will be increased 10 per cent, beginning today.

Burned Beyond Recovery.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 5.—Mrs. Jane Carroll, aged 55, died at the hospital yesterday afternoon. Early yesterday morning a lamp exploded, setting fire to her night clothes. She was frightfully burned. She rushed into the yard and her cries awoke the neighbors, who cared for her to their best ability. When moved the flesh dropped from her arms and limbs. She was a widow and resided alone.

Bleeding Burglar Bolted.

LEBANON, N. H., Aug. 5.—A burglar entered the residence of Albert O. Shaw yesterday morning and had a large amount of silver packed into a bag when discovered. The burglar fired at Shaw, but missed him. Shaw then fired four times, one bullet smashing the dark lantern in the burglar's hands and wounding him, drawing a large amount of blood. The burglar escaped.

A Methodist Now.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 5.—Rev. J. H. Paradis, who resigned recently the pastorate of the French Protestant church, after an investigation of trouble in the society, yesterday left the Congregational denomination, and, with several members of his former congregation, joined the Central Methodist Episcopal church. He will start a new Methodist mission.

Gin Cuts a Figure.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 5.—Edward O. Collins, the wounded game warden, has a good chance of recovery unless inflammation should set in. It now appears that Charles Morris, who shot the warden, had a case of gin in his canoe and that may have been the cause of the shooting. A posse of officers are searching the woods for Morris.

Letters Gave Him Away.

HARTFORD, Aug. 5.—Frank Phillips, colored, was arrested here yesterday. He is wanted in Fredericksburg, Va., for forgery and stealing from a church, Sunday school and a cemetery company. He has been wanted since 1891. He was caught through letters found among his effects at his home in Virginia.

Ballard Takes McGuy's Place.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 5.—George Ballard, a weaver, has been appointed to succeed Richard McGuy as secretary of the National Federation of Textile Workers of America, and Herbert Littlewood is appointed organizer and statistician, a new office created in the federation.

Loss Estimated at $10,000.

DANVILLE, Vt., Aug. 5.—The Congregational church and Frye's livery stable were destroyed by fire. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The church was one of the oldest in the state, having been erected in 1817. The total loss is estimated at $10,000.

Coasting.

On September 15, at Waltham, in a coasting tournament wherein seven or eight of the leading bicycles were represented, "The Spalding" finished first, second and third. The greatest tribute to the coasting ability of "The Spalding" Bicycle was paid by Capt. Allen of Philadelphia. On the trip to Glen Summit he was the only one able to come down the mountain without a mishap, which feat in itself should clearly establish the superiority of "The Spalding" at coasting, when the extraordinary declivity of Glen Summit is considered.

MONATIQUOT RACE.

First Prizes to the Emma C., Rex, Arab and Fantasy.

Eighteen boats participated Saturday in the open race being very equally divided among the four classes.

The Emma C. was an easy winner of the first prize in the first class, but the result might have been different had the Beatrice not broken her rudder head and withdrawn. The Heroine and White Fawn had a hot contest for second place. The former crossed the line first but lost on time allowance.

The Swirl was not in it in the second class where the Rex won easily. The Gleaner was a good second, and the Eulalie took third prize.

The Kayoshk and Arab left their class away behind, and the little Arab won on time allowance. There was some misunderstanding as to the course in this class and protest were filed.

The Sphinx has not got over the defeat by the Wildfire and the prizes of the fourth went to the Fantasy and Sunbeam.

The summary follows, the prizes of $10, $5, and $2 being won by the first three in each class, except the fourth, if the protest are not allowed:

Other Races.

The race of the cruising Cape cat boats afforded more local interest than the club races.

It was sailed over the Q. Y. C. course for the second class with Vice Commodore W. H. Shaw as judge.

The wind at the start was light from the southwest, and at the signal the little fellows got away well bunched. They hung together for a time when the Myth began to draw away and took the lead which she retained until the finish, beating her nearest competitor, the Dorothy, by nearly six minutes.

The skipper of the Dotless was out for blood and meant to do or die, but misfortune was in store for him, for while doing his best he carried away part of his head gear and he fell rapidly behind. Capt. Newcomb did not withdraw, however, but kept on through the race although he finished last.

At the conclusion of the race a lunch was served by the skipper of the Restless, and while discussing crackers and cheese the race was talked over, and the chances are that another race will be sailed in the near future. The summary:

	Finished.
Myth, Capt. J. Warren Nightingale,	1-40-20
Dorothy, Capt. Frank F. Crane,	1-46-00
Scyller, Capt. George W. Holden,	1-47-30
Katherine, Capt. George W Newcomb,	1-47-50
Restless, Capt. E. W. Newcomb,	1-53-10

In the open race at Marblehead Saturday, he first prizes were won by the Ida J., Susie, Exit, Koorali, Evadne and Sally.

The Winona, In It, Banshee, and Union Mutual won legs in the Cohasset championship on Saturday.

The Dorchester yacht club gave its guests a six-hour sail on ladies' day Saturday. The Surf City took them to the Beverly races off Marblehead. On the return there was dancing at the club house.

The South Boston club will hold an open race Saturday, Aug. 31.

New Men on Top.

Hingham, 156; Dedham, 148.

It was a close score Saturday between the teams of the Dedham Sportsman's club and Hingham gun club, the latter winning by a score of 156 to 148. A return match will probably be held at Hingdam Aug. 17. A series of interesting events followed the match.

The Land Sale.

The sale of Mrs. Wood's land on Saturday was well attended and Auctioneer Johnson sold the eight lots as follows: Lot 61, to J. White Hayden at three cents per foot. Lot 32 to D. S. Baxter for 5 1-10 cents per foot. Lots 54, 70, 13, 46, 39 and 23 to J. S. Benson of Boston at an average of three cents per foot.

Mr. Benson has sold lot 13 to M. T. Sullivan of Quincy, and Mr. Hayden and Mr. Sullivan will build.

—The Leomister lodge of Odd Fellows will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a parade in which eight lodges will participate, indoor exercises, banquet, entertainment and hop.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas J. Rogers was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

John Healy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

E. Fred Heany of Randolph was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Arthur Baker of Randolph was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued two weeks.

Edward Dean was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Quincy and was fined $5.

Patrick H. Meany of Randolph was arraigned for non-support of his wife. Case continued until August 24.

James McSweeney of Braintree was arraigned for drunkenness and for assault upon Lewis E. Beverly at Mayflower Park on the night of July 31.

According to the evidence of the government, McSweeney visited the park and was intoxicated, and upon complaint of three girls that he was chasing them, Officer Beverley attempted to arrest him.

He objected to being arrested and made a determined resistance, during which Officer Beverley was kicked and severely bruised, having some of his ribs fractured. Assistance was rendered at the grove and he was finally arrested and locked up.

The testimony offered by the defendant and his witnesses was a general denial. They said that McSweeney was perfectly sober and that they saw no disturbance except what the employes of the grove made.

The court, however, decided that McSweeney was drunk, and that he committed the assault with which he was charged, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $5 for drunkenness and four months in the House of Correction for the assault. McSweeney appealed and was given until Tuesday morning to furnish bonds.

John Hancock Remains.

In preparing a foundation for the John Hancock monument in the old Granary burying ground Boston, on Saturday, the box with the remains of the distinguished son of Quincy was found, the copper plate being untarnished. It reads:

John Hancock, born Jan. 23, 1737, died Oct. 8, 1793. John George Washington Hancock, died Jan. 27, 1787, aged nine years.

New Principal Married.

Mr. Charles Edgar Finch, Jr., who has been elected principal of the Wollaston school, will bring a bride to this city. Cards announce his marriage on Wednesday, July 31, to Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Beatty of Meriden, Conn.

Look for the announcement next week of the lawn and musical social of the Washington Street Christian Endeavor, and plan to attend.

—Nearly 10,000 murders are annually committed in the United States. About 95 out of every 100 of them are committed by men.

"The only man who played great ball against us in the New York series was Burke," said one of the Bostons the other day, and now they have let him go.

Last Tuesday Selbach of the Washingtons failed to have a put-out in a game for the first time this season. He had at least one put-out in each of 70 straight games.

Predictions of the local ball cranks regarding the future of the game in this city seem to be that New Bedford will return next year to the independent system, says the New Bedford Mercury.

LASTED A WEEK.

Strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors Is Now a Thing of the Past.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The six days' strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors was declared off Saturday night.

Leader Schoenfeld, representing the United Garment Workers of America, and Secretary B. Wilkowski of the contractors' association, met by appointment the representatives of the contractors' association, and after an investigation of the books containing the names of the contractors who had yielded to the demands of the strikers, formally declared the strike over and acknowledged the victory of the United Garment Workers over the contractors. After a careful perusal of the books and the bonded articles of agreement, Secretary Wilkowski exclaimed: "We lay down our arms as did Napoleon at Waterloo."

He expressed a desire to meet the representatives of the Brotherhood of Tailors in secret conference Sunday for the purpose of ascertaining more fully the names of the contractors affiliated with the organization which he had represented who had furtively gone round to the headquarters and signed the articles of agreement.

Secretary Wilkowski called a special meeting of the contractors' association for this afternoon, to declare their acceptance of the terms demanded by the strikers and meekly submit to the requirements of the tailors. This action was brought about at a meeting of the contractors late in the afternoon.

The meeting between Leader Schoenfeld and Secretary Wilkowski, at the head of the opposition factions, was anything but friendly. They tried, but in vain, to assume an attitude of reconciliation, but it was evident after the introduction made by Thomas J. Bradley that both men were still defiant.

Powers Will Step In.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Anglo-Armenian association learns from Constantinople that the signers of the Berlin treaty have agreed to send a note to the porte announcing that, as Turkey is unable to protect the lives of her Christian subjects, the powers have decided to appoint a European high commissioner with vice-regal authority to administer Armenia in the name of the sultan.

Few Buildings Left.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Sprague, having a population of 3000, was almost destroyed by fire. A high wind was blowing at the time, and the fire swept over the town with resistless fury, destroying over $1,000,000 worth of property in two hours' time. The fire broke out in a livery stable. Very little if any merchandise was saved. Many of the citizens are homeless.

Spaniards Defeated.

KEY WEST, Aug. 5.—Advices received here from a trustworthy source in Cuba are that a great fight has occurred near Baracoa, in which Colonel Sandoval was wounded, and that the insurgents have burned Jiguani and Baracoa.

EAST MILTON HAPPY

The Extension of the Street Railway Opened Saturday.

If there were any happy people on the face of the earth last Saturday evening it was those of East Milton when the first electric car made its appearance into the village, and they gave vent to their pent up feelings by burning red fire, the explosion of fireworks and the booming of cannon.

The first car left Quincy at 7 o'clock, having on board President Graham, Superintendent Anderson of the Quarry railroad, J. Albert Simpson of the Milton selectmen, City Treasurer Clarence Burgin, Councilman Shackley and others, also the Granite City band.

Close behind this car came another in which was Superintendent Weeks, the Pilgrim fog horn and many passengers.

From the Centre to West Quincy it was a case of who could make the most noise, and the result was that all along the line people flocked to the doors to see the cars go by.

Arriving at West Quincy there was a large crowd of men and youngsters, all anxious for a ride, and they were told that they might ride on the foghorn car and they needed no second invitation, for in a moment the car was almost swamped, the men being just as bad as the boys.

The progress of the first car through Willard street was somewhat slow, as the pavers along the track lifted the wheels, preventing a good contact, and the electrical display which resulted was a beautiful one, and must have been a revelation to the citizens of Willard street as they watched the progress of the car with wonderment.

Several of the residents along the line had their houses illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

Upon the arrival of the cars at East Milton the band was stationed near the end of the line and gave a concert, while the cars were run back and forth over the line and everybody that desired had a free ride. It is unnecessary to say that there were many that availed themselves of the opportunity to take a ride.

There was also quite a display of fireworks but not so elaborate as intended on account of the short notice that was given of the opening.

Sunday, regular trips were run over the new line, and the riding was quite heavy.

A New Kiln.

Benjamin Johnson, the lumber dealer of this city, has just had a large kiln erected on Mill street, the building is 38x40 feet and two stories, with a flat roof. The building is a most substantial one and has a capacity of 200,000 feet of lumber, 30,000 of which can be placed in the kiln. The heat is furnished by a 40-horse power Cunningham boiler located in the cellar. The 3000 feet of iron pipe used for drying purposes is located beneath the floor, and is incased in air-tight compartments. Badger Bros. of West Quincy did the piping, and Mr. Patrick McGoey is the architect and builder. At the back of the building is the 40-foot chimney. The building has a very efficient fire service on both floors. Mr. Johnson's increasing business in finished lumber prompted him to erect this building, and he has now one of the best kilns in the state. The roof of the building is covered with H. W. John's fire-proof asbestos. Four ventilators at end of the building are for the passage of the dead air. A temperature of about 180 degrees Fahrenheit will be maintained in the kiln.

James Sumner Dead.

Mr. James Sumner, a prominent citizen of Milton died Sunday evening of heart failure after a long illness of Brights disease. He was graduated from the Harvard law school and fitted for the bar but upon the death of his father he took charge of his estate on Brush hill. He took the stump for Gen. Butler during his campaigns and in 1885 was the candidate of the Greenback labor party for governor. In 1894 he was the Populist candidate for attorney general. He was at one time active in the Knights of Labor. Mr. Sumner was about 60 years of age and leaves two unmarried daughters.

BALLAST FOR SPIDER CRABS.

A Difficult Problem Solved In Time of Flood at the New York Aquarium.

In one of the tanks at the New York aquarium there are eight spider crabs. The spider crab is the decorating crab grown up. The decorating crab plants upon its back little sprays and streamers of various marine plants, which it snips off with its pincher claws. It carries these first to its mouth, where it seems to keep a supply of waterproof glue, and thence to its back. It is supposed to do this for protection from its enemies, for, half buried in the mud and with these things rising from its back, it is practically invisible. It is possible also that the crab uses the sprigs for adornment, as it often selects growths of bright colors. In its larger growth, after it has come to be called a spider crab, it ceases to decorate itself, though sometimes the seeds of marine plants settle on its back and grow there, but it never loses the handy use of its pincher claws.

The largest of the spider crabs at the aquarium is about 3 inches in length. From side to side its legs spread about eight inches. The bottom of the spider crabs' tank is covered with gravel. The tank was cleaned the other day and all but about three inches of the water drawn off. When the refilling of the tank was begun, all the crabs gathered around the intake. Crabs and fishes in captivity usually do this, welcoming the fresh incoming water as a man in captivity might welcome an incoming current of fresh air. The flow of water through the intake pipes can be regulated at will. Here it was permitted to run in at its natural force, which was about that of water flowing from a hose. The flow was broken somewhat by the wire strainer over the opening of the intake, placed there to keep little fishes and crustaceans from getting into the pipes, but it was too strong for the spider crabs to face. They began to settle themselves down into the gravel and to pile gravel upon their backs, apparently to weight themselves down so that they could withstand it. On a sandy or muddy bottom they could have buried or partly buried themselves. Here the work was more difficult, but they were equal to it.

They would work their legs down into the gravel and then lift them, displacing stones in that manner, and with their pincher claws they would pick up stones. Sometimes a crab would pick up two gravel stones at once, one in each claw, and place them both on its back. It might tackle a stone so big as to require both claws in the handling of it and raise that and put it on its back. Some of the stones would roll off down by the crabs' legs, but they were not lost there, for they helped to build up around, and the crab would go ahead and put up others on its back.

When the tank was full and the inflow cut off, the crabs went walking about again as usual.—New York Sun.

GENERAL THOMAS.

He Might Have Been a Southern Soldier but For His Wife.

General William Mahone of Virginia sat in Chamberlin's, deeply interested in a well bound volume of substantial size. To a reporter who ventured to ask the title of the book the general courteously said.

"It is made up of 'Papers of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts' and contains critical sketches of some of the leading Federal and Confederate generals. I was at that moment engaged on the sketch devoted to General Thomas. It is a very fair and interesting account of his character and services.

"I knew Thomas personally, for he was born and reared in my section of West Virginia. He was a military man of excellent parts, rather slow to act, but never able to grasp the idea that he had been whipped. His bulldog tenacity was a strong characteristic.

'I know a good deal more than this book about Thomas' predilection for the southern cause. In passing through the state on his way from Texas to New York at the time that the legislature was deliberating on the question of secession, Thomas said, with emphasis, 'There is nothing for the south to do but to fight.' It was well understood that his sympathies were with the people of his native section.

"I was empowered by the governor of Virginia to offer him an important position created for him and tendered it with the full expectation that it would be accepted. He married a Miss Marcy of New York, and it is no doubt true that his wife's influence had much to do with keeping him on the Union side."—Washington Post.

The Storm Center.

The great lakes and the St. Lawrence valley have more storms per annum than any other portions of this country. This is due to the fact that storms originating west of this district move directly east, while many originating farther south move to the northeast.

AT THE BEACH.

Hotel Men at Houghs Neck Disappointed on Sunday.

Considering the favorable weather Sunday there was a small crowd at Houghs Neck, much smaller than on the past few Sundays.

The reason for this was doubtless due to the fact that there are so many other summer resorts where there is music and other attractions which are not allowed in Quincy. However, while a small crowd is not appreciated by the proprietors of the several booths the cottagers are not as a rule complaining, as they came to the shore for rest, which is hardly possible when there is a large crowd present, band concerts, etc.

The proprietors of the hotels and booths are inclined to give as a reason for the small crowd present, that the fare on the street railway is too much and to partially overcome this many of the proprietors have supplied themselves with 100-ride books which they retail to their customers at five cents a ride which reduces the expense somewhat. However those who did go down Sunday enjoyed themselves and went away satisfied with their day's outing and will come again.

At Houghs Neck Saturday Taylor's carpenters and Johnson's lumbermen met on the diamond and played a game of ball that was extremely interesting and was won by the Johnsons by a score of 34 to 17.

At the end of the first inning it seemed as though the visiting team would be defeated, but their heavy batting saved the day.

The features of the game were the playing of Foran of the Holy Cross college team at second base of the Houghs Neck team, which was fully equalled by Rodliff, second baseman for Johnson's team. The unparalelled double play of "Shiner" Kendrick, followed by a most disastrous error by the same player, he throwing the ball fully 20 feet over the head of the third baseman when there were two men on bases.

The playing of Captain Taylor and Jack Dolan were also very praiseworthy.

For the Johnson nine the principal and most noticeable features were the kicking of Capt. Johnson and third baseman Weston at every questionable decision, the pitching of Downey, who was presented with an elegant bouquet at the end of the third inning, the catching of Daly, and the heavy batting of Capt. Johnson, Desmond, Downey and Rodliffe.

First baseman, Gallagher of the Johnson team, while running after a fly ball attempting to jump a fence fully five feet high caught his toes on the top rail and went through the air fully fifteen feet before striking terra firma, although injuring one of his knees very badly, he pluckily played the game out.

An excellent supper was partaken of by the players at the expense of the defeated team. The score by the inning:

Innings,	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Johnsons,	7	0	6	6	0	11	0	4		—34
Taylors,	6	1	0	5	2	0	1	1		—16

In the evening the two teams met at Costello's bowling alleys where the Johnsons were defeated by the Taylors by a score of 2,000 to 1,947.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Enquiest and son Henry, of Worcester, have arrived at Houghs Neck for their annual vacation, and are stopping at the Riverside.

Fred Mitchell, the 6-year old son of Mr. John Mitchell of the Riverside, Houghs Neck, cut his hand severely on a piece of tin while bathing Saturday afternoon. Fortunately Dr. Fullerton, of Brockton, who is stopping at the beach, was quickly summoned and the flow of blood was stopped, three stitches taken and the little patient is reported as doing well.

A concert and social in aid of St. Frances' church will be given at given at the Casino, Aug. 20.

In the Churches.

Rev. Mr. Bryant conducted the services in the Congregational chapel, Sunday, in the absence of the pastor.

An unusual number of summer visitors were to be seen in the Quincy Point congregation Sunday morning. The pastor discussed the inspiration of Psa. VIII:3.

Rev. Mr. McGill of East Milton preached at the Calvary Baptist church, from John 20:27 "Be not faithless but believing." His words were well chosen and carried with them thoughts helpful to those of a doubting mind. Faith in Jesus Christ is what His church stands for. If it stands on any other foundation its work will tell for nothing in the great reckoning day. Believers glorified God because they let Him into their hearts and to shine through their lives. He urged men to have faith in God.

The pulpit at the Wollaston Baptist church was occupied on Sunday by Rev. Welcome E. Bates of Haverhill. Mr. Bates took his text from 1 Sam. 30:24, his direct subject being "not quantity but quality." Mr. Bates is an earnest speaker, and his eloquence was very impressive.

—It is now unlawful to employ any but American citizens on work in Pennsylvania. The law imposing this condition was passed at the instance of the labor organizations, and its expected effect is an increase of wages on account of the diminished number of men who can be hired.

The Porte's Promises.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 5.—The reply of the porte to the demand of the powers for reforms in Armenia is conciliatory, and on many points agrees with the powers' demands. It proposes to appoint Christian assessors to assist the Turkish provincial government and to admit a proportion of Christians among the minor officials, police and gens d'armes, and also promises to restrain the Kurds from violence. As it also declares that some of the powers' demands are unacceptable or impossible of execution, it is probable that the powers will not be satisfied with the reply.

Persian Bread Famine.

TEHERAN, Aug. 5. — The scarcity of bread and the closure of the bazaars to prevent disorders have led to serious rioting in Tabreez. The troops dispersed the rioters, 20 of whom were killed. The mob carried the corpses to the Russian consulate and demanded protection against the soldiers. The consul thereupon visited the governor, who promised a reduction in the price of bread. Nothing has yet been done in the matter, and the troops were still firing on the mob when this dispatch left.

Colored Youth Shot.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. — The Flagler tragedy of Friday was almost duplicated Saturday, when a young colored boy was shot and slightly injured by a servant of the Japanese legation, while stealing fruit in the yard in the rear of the legation. The negro population has called an indignation meeting to protest against the verdict of the coroner's jury in the Flagler case.

Accidentally Strangled.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Victor Malnati, a boy 15 years old, was exercising on a trapeze when a rope became coiled around his neck, and in endeavoring to extricate himself the boy was strangled.

THE BLUES.

Why do Women have the Blues more than Men?

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Are not women naturally as light-hearted, brave, and hopeful as men?

Yes; but woman's organism is different from man's.

Women in perfect or good health are rarely victims of this symptom.

Women nearly monopolize the blues, because their peculiar ailments promote them.

When the female organs fail to perform their functions properly, when the dreaded female complaints appear, there is shownervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, backache, headache, bearing-down pains, etc., causing the dreaded "let-me-alone" and "all-gone" feelings.

When the woman does not understand what the matter is, and her doctor can not or will not tell her, she grows morose and melancholy; that's the blues.

Mrs. Newton Cobb, of Manchester, O., says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all this trouble. I cannot praise it enough. I am pleased to tell every one that it cured me; and if it will cure me, why not others? I am sure my case was severe enough." It will.

Court Martialed.

The prisoner was young. His soft brown eyes
Few more than twenty summers had beheld.
His lips, the best of Cupid's handiwork,
As soon as seen all thoughts of guilt dispelled.
He stood before the judge severe
And answered in a sweet voice clear
That won the hearts of all to hear.

"Young man, you're here to answer to a charge
Of theft, your doom to be pronounced today,
But at the girl's request—the plaintiff here—
I ask the question, Have you anything to say?"
These last words caused a little stir.
The boy cast one fond glance at her,
Then sadly answered, "Guilty, sir."

Confessed! No person there was tranquil now.
"Three stolen kisses!" doth the judge announce.
"Three stolen kisses! On the guilty wretch
The plaintiff shall herself the fate pronounce."
Her cheek with pretty crimson burned,
And thus the lad his sentence learned:
"The stolen property must be returned."

VICTIMS OF HEATHENS.

Particulars of Butchery of Christians by Chinese in Ku-Cheng.

Death the Least Painful of Their Sufferings.

Chinese Government May Have Difficult Questions to Answer.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The massacre of missionaries near Ku-Cheng commenced early on Thursday at Wha-Shan, near Ku-Cheng. The houses were fired, and eight ladies, a man and a child were killed and several were wounded, two probably mortally.

Chinese troops have been dispatched to the scene. The British and American consuls will at once have an interview with the viceroy.

The Chinese are repeating their old tactics of cutting telegraph communications.

A two-column letter from Hankau, on the Syu-Chuen mission outrages, published by The Times this morning, declares that officials are at the bottom of all anti-foreign agitation, and that Chinese people themselves are quite friendly. The letter suggests that if the powers tried a little benevolent retaliation it would prove an infallible cure.

The Standard, in its editorial on the Ku-Cheng outrage, says: We must speak to China in a manner which cannot be misunderstood. Not only must the murderers be punished, but a stern example must be made of the officials whose neglect permits such outrages.

The Standard's special from Shanghai says that the news of the massacre was suppressed for three days by the Chinese officials. J. Courtney Hixson, the American consul at Fu-Chau, with several volunteers, went to the scene in a steam launch, and brought back the wounded Americans. Their experiences, the dispatch continues, were terrible, and death was the least painful of the sufferings of the butchered women. The indignation here is intense. A mass meeting will be convened. The mandarins will endeavor to throw all the blame upon the secret societies, but it is known that they were Encouraged by Responsible Officials.

All those who were killed were British. All the Americans escaped. There was no provocation for the outrage. The perpetrators were the Vegetarian society.

Rev. Mr. Stewart, wife and child were burned in their house. The Misses Yellow and Marchall, two sisters named Saunders, two sisters named Gordon and Stettie Newcombe were murdered with spears and swords. Miss Codrington was seriously wounded about the head, and the Stewarts' eldest child had a kneecap badly injured, while the youngest had an eye gouged out. Rev. Mr. Phillips, with two Americans, Dr. Gregory and Miss Hartford, were both wounded, but arrived safely at Fu-Chauh-Fu. The prefect of Cheng-Tu, who was a member of the committee of inquiry which examined into the former outrages upon missionaries in that region, is seriously implicated in the Cheng-Tu outrages.

About the Vegetarians.

The Times says of the above: Rev. Mr. Stewart resides at Ku-Cheng and superintends the work of the prefectures of Ku-Cheng and Ping-Nang. Rev. Mr. Stewart, writing under date of February, 1895, described how a sect known as Vegetarians, taking advantage of the war, sprang into vigorous life and committed numerous outrages, and became so formidable that the converts wanted him to organize and arm. He concludes his letter as follows:

I have just learned that 3000 of these have enlisted in the last six months. They are mostly of the lowest order, and, at the present time, the reins of government are practically in their hands.

The Times comments editorially on the massacre as follows: The Ku-Cheng outrages will justly form the subject of strong representations to China by England, and probably by America also. It is quite possible that the outrages are due to embittered feeling against foreigners, engendered by the calamities of the war, and that the mandarins believe a blow must be struck now or never to frighten foreigners against availing themselves of the concessions granted under the recent Chino-Japanese treaty.

Killed From Ambush.

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—Bad blood has existed for some time between Albert O'Neill and Holl Picou. Several days ago they quarreled about a young lady, and it was agreed that they should meet at Antioch church and settle the difficulty. Last night the two O'Neill boys came out of the church while the preaching was going on. They were fired upon by the Picou party, and both instantly killed.

All Is Quiet.

MARKET LAKE, Ida., Aug. 5.—A special telegram from the Bannock agency says that Indian Agent Teter wired General Coppinger from the reservation that all the Indians that had been absent from the Fort Hall reservation have returned, and that all is quiet.

Killed the One He Loved.

FRUITA, Colo., Aug. 5.—Miss Jennie Knox was shot and instantly killed by James Powell, a discarded lover. They had a terrible struggle, he tearing off most of her clothing. He then shot himself through the center of his forehead. Powell is not dead.

Many Killed and Wounded.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 5.—A man from Uskub, Traversedt, reports that a severe engagement has taken place with Macedonian insurgents near Strumitza, in which the Turks lost 500 killed and wounded, and the insurgents lost 100 wounded.

Condemned to Death.

GEORGETOWN, Tex., Aug. 5.—The jury in the case of Jay Owens, charged with incest and rape on his 13-year-old daughter, returned a verdict of guilty and passed the penalty of death. Owens is a prosperous farmer.

Two Were Drowned.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 4.—A sudden squall that came up yesterday afternoon capsized the sloop yacht Ella S of the Excelsior Boat club. A son of John Strand, and Arthur Hemmingway, 19 years old, were drowned.

Ready For Business.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Admiral Brown, commandant at the Norfolk navy yard, has notified the navy department that the new battleship Texas will be ready for commission Aug. 15.

A HARVEST SONG.

Behind the scythes a trodden path,
Bind, bind the sheaves.
Wide and wider grows the swath.
Either side the bright corn heaves
Billows of gold.

Trees a glory of bronze and red,
Bind, bind the sheaves.
Misty sunshine overhead.
Through the chequer of thinning leaves
The air is cold.

Breath of the coming frost is there,
Bind, bind the sheaves.
Vines that cling to the house grow bare.
Swallows leave their nests in the eaves
Empty and old.

Apple globes, crimson and white,
Bind, bind the sheaves.
Winnowed grain, sunnily bright
(Glittering gold that want relieves),
The wide bins hold.

Fill the flagon up to the brim,
Bind, bind the sheaves,
Until the foam runs over the rim.
(It mellowed long where the spider weaves
In dusk and mold.)

Fill and drink the cider clear,
Bind, bind the sheaves.
Bid farewell to the passing year,
Close the book with blotted leaves.
Their tale is told.
—Neith Boyce in Outing.

ADVENTURE WITH A MUMMY.

The Archæologist Lost His Treasure, but Escaped With His Life.

A French archæologist traveling among the Andes in search of knowledge and specimens had a great desire to explore some caves in the sides of the precipices. They were doubtless ancient tombs and would probably yield him a treasure. He selected a favorable spot, therefore, rigged a sort of chair or seat between two leather cords and engaged two Indians to let him down from the brow of the precipice. "A descent of 300 feet made in this way," he tells us, "is extraordinarily long."

However, he reached the cave in safety, and on forcing a passage into it was rewarded by finding two skulls and a mummy, "thoroughly dry," he says, "and pretty solid." He passed a string through the eyeholes of the skulls and attached them to his belt. Then he took the mummy in his arms and signaled to the Indians to draw him up. With his heels he defended himself against the jutting rocks, and in a few minutes was almost on an even with the top. The Indians knew nothing about his load. Just then the yellow skull of one of their ancestors appeared before their eyes, and the idiots gave a start of surprise. The Frenchman thought they must have let go the cord.

"It was the affair of a second," he writes. "What passes in the brain of a man at such an instant is indescribable. I did not drop a yard, but I experienced all the horror of a man in rapidly falling through space. My hands let go the mummy, and while, covered with a cold sweat, I was helped over the edge of the cliff by the Indians, the mummy bounded from rock to rock and landed in bits at the bottom of the chasm."

He overwhelmed the Indians with invective, but to no purpose. Such dead men, they assured him, if disturbed in their sepulcher, had the habit of kissing the Indians, who perished infallibly under their deadly breath. One of the two declared that his own father had died in that way.

The other assured the Frenchman that at the moment when the head of the mummy showed above the edge of the rocks it opened its mouth. If it had not luckily fallen into the abyss, it would have cursed them forever.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Origin of "Linger."

A correspondent sends the following derivation of the term "linger:" "Early in the forties there moved from Vermont to one of the then flourishing cotton manufacturing villages of New Hampshire a man with a large family of children, to keep one of the corporation boarding houses. He was a tall, lank dyspeptic. There was but one shoe store in the village; in the rear of the store was a room for making and repairing shoes. Here was a Frenchman, and a lover of mischief. One day the tavern keeper entered the shop and said: 'Hello! Are you a shoemaker?' 'Yes,' was the answer, 'and linger at it.' The Frenchman caught on, and in a day or two there was hung outside the building, with other store goods, probably the most uncouth, bunglingly made pair of shoes ever seen on the continent, labeled 'Lingers.' There they hung until every man, woman and child in the village had looked them over. From that day the members of the dyspeptic's family were known as 'lingers.' And the word was applied to everything as a superlative, to a fine yoke of oxen or a big fish."—Boston Jornal.

The Thoughtful Chauncey.

A good story is told on Chauncey Depew. He received a letter from a young married friend in Albany asking for a pass for his mother-in-law, who was coming to make him a visit, and closing with the delicate hint, "Don't forget to have the return coupon attached." Mr. Depew is nothing if not worldly wise and sympathetic, and in sending the pass he wrote, "I have not neglected the return coupon and have limited it to three days."—Minneapolis Journal.

Valley Forge's Lone Gravestone.

Only one grave, that of John Watterman of Rhode Island, marked with a rudely carved sandstone, has been identified of all who died at Valley Forge during that perilous winter of 1778. "J. W., 1778," are all the marks that are on the stone, but the records show whose grave it is. All the other graves have been plowed over for more than a century.—Richmond Dispatch.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12 Durgin & Merrill's Block.

THE DEFENDER AGAIN.

Easily Outsails the Vigilant In a Race of Thirty Miles.

Some Fine Work Shown In Beating to Windward.

New Boat Had the Better of the Contest All the Way Through.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 6.—The Defender and Vigilant sailed over a 37½-mile course yesterday, from Cottage City, Mass., to this port, the race being an event in the cruise of the New York Yacht club. The sea was smooth, and the wind varied in velocity from 10 to 15 miles an hour. For 20 miles, down to the Vineyard Sound lightship, it was a dead beat to windward, and the Defender beat the Vigilant by about 5m. 46s., both yachts carrying clubtopsails and baby-jibtopsails. On the stretch thence to Newport, with sheets eased a little, Defender gained enough to make her elapsed time from start to finish 9m. 9s. better than Vigilant. The Jubilee also started, but with working topsail only. Vigilant beat her 10m. 49s.

Just before the start the Jubilee hauled down her clubtopsail and set a working topsail, and, though she crossed the line first, she was soon overhauled by the other yachts. Then the race settled down to a contest between the Defender and the Vigilant.

The latter, with her windward position, was making the most of her 6s. lead at the start. The older boat made more of a fuss in the water than the new one, and to some spectators it looked as if she were going faster than the finkeeler, whose break forward and clean rake after gave the appearance of slow motion, but the Defender gained on the Vigilant from the very start.

The yachts went off without any sail on their outer jibstay, but on the first long board they made across Vineyard sound they both ran up baby-jibtopsails, the Vigilant being the first to set the pocket-handkerchief.

On this long tack the Defender showed just what she can do in beating to windward. She walked right through the Vigilant's lee, being held up closer to the wind, while the Vigilant's sails were allowed to get a bit fuller, in order to foot faster, but even under these circumstances the Defender did better work in pointing and footing.

It was 12:30 when the baby-jibtopsails were set, and at 12:40 the Defender went about from the long tack. The Vigilant did the same at 12:41. They came about to port at 12:48, and it was then seen that the Defender was a good three miles ahead.

The Vigilant was the first to go in stays. Beating up past Robinson's Holl toward Pasque island the Defender continued to increase her lead, and from there on it was only a question of how much the new boat would win by.

The tacking continued until the Sow and Pigs lightship was reached. The Defender at that point had gained 5m. on the beat of 20 miles.

On the Home Stretch.

Passing the lightship, the boats were enabled to lift their sheets, as they had a course W.N.W. to Brenton's Reef lightship. On this close reach the Defender gained all the more, even while the wind increased to about 15 miles an hour. When the racers got within two miles of the home-mark the breeze fell off somewhat, but the Defender went ahead just the same, and finally won by 9m. 9s. The Vigilant was ahead of the Jubilee by 10m. 49s.

Of the schooners, the Constellation beat the Ramona by 25m. 44s. The Emerald, which was the first boat home after the big sloops, was ahead of the Merlin by 25m. 28s., and the Ariel beat the Marguerite by 17m. 40s. The schooner Elsemarie was beaten by the Amorita. Among the sloops, the English built Queen Mab, known as a small Thistle, was 41m. 30s. ahead of the Hildegard.

The official time of the big sloops was as follows:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Defender	11.55.40	4.04 49	4.09.09
Vigilant	11.55.34	4.13.13	4.18.09
Jubilee	11.55.32	4.24.30	4.28.58

The special cups offered for winners from port to port during the cruise were won as follows: The Queen Mab corrals the cup offered by Secretary J. S. V. Oddie for single stickers winning the largest number of runs from port to port; the Defender will get the cup presented by the rear commodore to the boat that got in first a plurality of times, without regard to measurement allowance.

Murdered by a Neighbor.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Michael Kelly, a contractor, residing on Vaughn place, Dorchester, was killed last night by Jeremiah Donahue. Keily and Donahue had been neighbors for about two years, and never had any difficulty, although Mrs. Kelly and Donahue had frequent quarrels. Last evening the children of both men became involved in a quarrel, and one of the Kelly girls told her father that one of the Donahue boys had slapped her. Donahue claims that Kelly, after slapping some of his children, rushed up and clinched him. In the melee that followed, Kelly tried to hit Donahue with a screwdriver. The latter seized it and struck at Kelly, the sharp end entering the temple, close to the left ear. Kelly died in a few minutes. He was 41 years old, and bore a good name. His wife, however, had been in the house of correction for attempting to shoot a man. Donahue is 40 years old, and a carpenter by trade.

Justice Is Slow.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The murderers of Thomas Rotchford, a short time ago, are still at large, as is also the assassin of Vitti De Montia who was stabbed in North square a short time ago. There are other similar cases. Perhaps the Stuart case may go on the same list, thereby paving the way for another stone in the monument that is being slowly erected in honor of the efficiency of the Boston police.

Objections to Police Order.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The Boston Fruit and Produce exchange yesterday protested against the police order prohibiting dealers to use sidewalks and streets in front of their stores for the purpose of selling their stock. Resolutions were passed condemning the order.

Another Missing.

CONCORD, Mass., Aug. 6.—Last Thursday Edward Molloy went down town. He ordered groceries sent to the house, and up to the present time has not returned. He is supposed to have gone to Boston. His wife said that he had about $50 with him that morning. He was last employed by Judge Merwin as a gardener. Chief of Police Craig spent Sunday in Boston looking for him, but was unsuccessful. The reason for his disappearance is not known. Besides his wife, he left one small child behind.

Smoker Blown Up.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 6.—Yesterday afternoon little Henry Manning, 11 years of age, went down back of Northup & & Warden's grocery store and commenced to smoke cigarets. Henry heard footsteps approaching, and threw the cigaret into the bunghole of a naphtha barrel. The result was an explosion, and Henry was badly cut and bruised.

New Trial Wanted.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 6.—Messrs. Sieders and Chase, attorneys for James Lewis, convicted of the murder of Byron G. Coburn, are arguing for a new trial for their client, based upon the exceptions taken by the defense to Judge Bonney's charge to the jury, and on new evidence which tends to implicate Edward Graffam. The case is unfinished.

Child's Fatal Act.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 6.—A young child of Lawrence White went into a neighbor's house last evening, and, while unobserved by the people about, drank something out of a bottle supposed to contain toothache drops. The child died in less than 10 minutes. It is surmised that the bottle contained laudanum.

Visit Cut Short.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 6.—Secretary Herbert's visit at Gray Gables yesterday resolved itself into a mere call. It was understood that Mr. Herbert would spend a day or two with the president, but he left Gray Gables after spending only a few hours there.

PROVIDENCE, Aug 6.—Weavers at the Providence National and Saranac mills, Olneyville, state that by a readjustment of the measuring machines, together with the 7 per cent increase, their wages will amount to at least 20 per cent more hereafter.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 6.—Dr. Duhelm held an autopsy yesterday on the body of a 6-weeks-old infant of Joseph Aubie, who died suddenly while on the way from Montreal, and decided that death was due to poison mixed in soothing syrup.

Trouble Passed Over.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 6.—The Field-Thayer Manufacturing company has decided to submit the question of a reduction to the local board of conciliation. There will therefore be no reduction and trouble is over for the present.

Fog-Bound Port.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 6.—The fog in this vicinity during the past two days has been very heavy. Many yachts are overdue. All traffic in the harbor was suspended last night, and many collisions and minor accidents occurred.

ADVISED TO GET OUT.

Lives of Missionaries In China In Danger of Being Sacrificed.

American Mission at Sashi Has Been Destroyed.

Further Details of the Awful Massacre of Christians at Ku-Cheng.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The American mission at Sashi, near Han-Kow has been destroyed, and the missionaries are fugitives. The American consul has advised the missionaries in adjacent provinces to retire.

The Chinese magistrate at Ku-Cheng waited for the completion of the massacre before appearing upon the scene there. There are 1000 soldiers at Ku-Cheng. It is therefore absurd to say the authorities could not have stopped the massacre, which was evidently carefully and secretly organized.

The American mission at Sashi, near Han-Kow has been destroyed, and the missionaries are fugitives. The American consul has advised the missionaries in adjacent provinces to retire.

Some of the speakers at a meeting here yesterday declared that they have lost confidence in the diplomats at Pekin, United States Minister Denby and British Minister O'Connor being especially denounced.

The Americans desire a special commission under United States Consul Jernigan to inquire into the outrages in Sze-Chuen. The minister of Corea has also assented to this.

It is just learned that after the Ku-Cheng massacre the mob looted the buildings.

Work of Organized Band.

The correspondent of The Times at Shanghai says that the misssionaries killed at Ku-Cheng were murdered by an organized band of 80 of the Vegetarians.

The correspondent says that the ladies begged for their lives, promising to yield their property and valuables, but the leader of the band shouted out his orders to kill them outright. A corrected list of the victims is as follows: Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Miss Nellie Saunders, Miss Lena Irish, burned in the house; Miss Stettie Newcombe was speared and thrown down a precipice; Miss Marshall had her throat cut; Miss Gordon, speared in the head; Miss Topsy Saunders, speared in the brain; Master Herbert Stewart, skull fractured and brain exposed; Lena Stewart, died from shock.

The correspondent concludes: Four other Stewart children and Miss Codrington were seriously wounded.

A Call For Satisfaction.

The Standard demands that the murderers of the missionaries in China be visited with condign punishment, and that a stern example be made of the officials who virtually connived at the commission of the crime.

The paper says: If the emperor cannot or will not protect British residents, we must give him assistance of a kind he will not welcome.

The Chronicle trusts Great Britain and the United States will combine to teach the Chinese a lesson that will cause foreigners to be respected forever, but in view of the conditions existing in the country, the bodies sending missionaries there, especially women, incur the gravest responsibility. The whole question, The Chronicle adds, ought to be considered.

The Times says: The outrage must, of course, form the subject of strong representations to China from England, and probably from the United States also. It must not be passed over as a trifle. Immunity of the murderers would cause a standing menace to the lives and property of the whole European community in China.

Strike Not Ended.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The strike in the ranks of the garment workers of this city, Brooklyn, Brownsville and Newark is not yet over. The chasm which had been spanned on Saturday night at 3 Park row by the surrender of the contractors through Secretary Benjamin Witkowski is again open, and that official has not only denied but retracted his words when he exclaimed, upon being satisfied that 400 contractors had up to that time yielded to the demands of the strikers, that "he would lay down his arms, as did Napoleon at Waterloo."

A Matter of Politics.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Absolute denial is given by agricultural officials to the report from Germany that Chicago packers buy the most inferior quality of beef for tinning and packing purposes. The statement that American pork products taken into Germany must henceforth be stamped and microscopically examined is in line with all of the recent efforts of the German government to placate the agrarian element.

Short and Sweet.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6.—A conflagration here yesterday afternoon lasted less than an hour, but burned two large wharf boats and two steamers and caused a loss of over $100,000. The fire originated by boys striking a match near baled hay. Intense excitement existed because of the reckless reports about the loss of life. A fireman, Edward Bennett, was overcome by heat, but he is all right now.

Hearts Feel Good.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Commissioner of Indian Affairs Browning received the following telegram from Agent Teter at Pocatello, Ida.; "All Indians absent from reservation have returned; had big council; requested me to telegraph that their hearts felt good. Had not harmed a white man, and would start haying, leaving their grievances to the justice of the white man."

The Persian Riots.

TEHERAN, Aug. 6.—The price of bread has been reduced at Tabreez. The European colony is in perfect safety, as the riots are directed entirely against the governor, who is the Persian crown prince. When the mob attacked his palace, he ordered his body-guard to fire, and 15 or 20 persons were killed.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. NO SCHOOLHOUSES.

A Majority Voted Against the Brick Plans.

Another Order to Build of Brick Ruled Out of Order.

An Order to Build of Wood Not in Regular Form.

The City Council made progress backward at the meeting Monday evening in attempting to supply the need of new schoolhouses. At the second reading in July of the orders making an appropriation of $28,000 for brick and stone buildings at West Quincy and Norfolk Downs, two-thirds were favorable on roll call to the orders. Last night it was impossible to muster a majority. Attempts to introduce other orders for new schoolhouses were futile and at present there is no order for schoolhouses before the City Council.

Communications.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from Chief Engineer Williams stating that a new hose wagon was needed for the Central station, the one in use being shaky, and he would recommend a combination chemical and hose wagon. To Committee on Fire Department.

The City Auditor forwarded a communication asking if the Council would transfer $8 50 from unexpended balances of 1894 to pay bill for 150 nomination blanks from the city of Salem. An order making the transfer was passed.

The School Committee forwarded a communication approving of certain schoolhouse plans. Placed on file.

The Commissioner of Public Works gave his estimate for paving School street from Hancock street to Franklin street as $3000.

Councilman Dixon later introduced an order making the appropriation on a two year loan, which took one reading.

Several applications for licenses were received and referred.

A petition for State Aid was received from Thomas Kelley. Referred.

Mary A. Dexter petitioned for a rebate of $3.52, taxes paid in 1894. To Committee on Claims.

Councilman Spear presented a petition from the Houghs Neck Improvement Society for street lights from Quincy to the beach. Referred to Executive Department.

Councilman Spear presented a petition signed by A. F. Schenkelberger and others that the street railway be ordered to remove its tracks on Saville street at once. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Johnson presented a petition of John M. Dunn for pay for damages done his land by raising the grade of South street. Referred to Executive Department.

Councilman Dixon presented a petition for electric light on Independence avenue. Referred.

Report of Committee.

The Committee on Claims recommended that the claim of Mary Galvin for damages caused by change of grade on Quarry street be referred to the executive department for settlement. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance on communication of Auditor relative to bill for fence about the cemetery, recommended that it be referred to the executive department for settlement if legal. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance on communication of the Mayor, relative to the appropriation of $100 for the historical work, reported that as there seemed to be no definite plan as to what the work is to be, no legislation is necessary. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance on the order appropriating $2500 for the heating and ventilating of the Quincy school reported ought not to pass and recommended that the matter be referred to the School Committee.

Councilman Rinn asked why such a report was made by the committee.

Councilman Bryant said the committee did not consider that they could legally act without the approval of the school board and that the best way was to report as they did.

Councilman Rinn said this matter was very necessary and if not done now can not be until next year. The old master of the school sent the children home when it was cold but the present master would let the children freeze and go into another room himself to get warm. He hoped report would not be accepted.

Councilman Bryant. The committee thought this the quickest way to get at the matter. A matter of this kind should come from the school board in a communication submitting plans and stating the cost.

Councilman Rinn was surprised that he had not been requested to appear before the committee when he brought in the order.

Councilman Pinkham asked that the motion be divided but afterward withdrew the request and moved the report be laid on the table.

Councilman Bryant had no objection to laying the matter on the table but this matter had got to be brought before the School Committee.

Councilman Rice asked what progress would be made by laying the matter on the table.

Councilman Pinkham replied it would then be possible to bring it up at the next meeting and put it on its final passage.

Councilman Parker thought if any reference was to be made to the School Committee it should have been done months ago by the Committee on Public Building.

Councilman Rinn said as there seemed to be considerable work to do by somebody he would do it before the next meeting.

The report was then laid on the table.

Street Railway Hearing.

At 8 o'clock a public hearing was given on petitions for changes of street railway locations.

President Merrill of the Quincy street railway said the relocation to the centre of Copeland street between Water and Crescent streets was upon request of the people of Ward Four. If the street was to be paved by the city as intimated the location in the centre would be better. The relocation to the centre of Franklin street was desirable as on the side it was somewhat dangerous because of a high wall.

Ex-Councilman Shea had no objection to relocation on Copeland street if street was to be paved, but otherwise he was opposed, and so were others who drove on the street. Copeland street was now a fairly good street, but a street railway in centre would spoil it, as the pavers outside the rails would be working out and become dangerous.

President Graham for the Quincy and Boston said the changes on the Manet line were necessary to improve the line and better accommodate its patrons.

No one else wishing to be heard the hearing was closed and the matter recommitted to the Committee on Streets.

COUNCILMAN GRINDELL.

"If city has $4,000 to spend it would improve appearances more if put into sidewalks."

Schoolhouse Orders.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the schoolhouse orders were taken from the table, and the question came on the final passage of the order.

Councilman O'Brien asked that the specifications be read.

Councilman Nickerson thought it useless but had no objections.

The clerk read the specifications.

Councilman O'Brien inquired if fire escapes were provided for.

Councilman Bryant thought that a matter for the State Board to decide. He did not believe the Commissioner would turn a sod until an approval in writing was secured. He asked the Commissioner if that was not so, and Commissioner Eaton replied, it certainly was; he did not intend to be caught twice.

Councilman Johnson thought School Committee saw necessity of school houses and would approve most any plan, but they did not consider the expense and this Council should. He opposed the order because he was opposed to cheap brick buildings.

Councilman Shackley was not willing to make sacrifices that the advocates of brick were. Smaller rooms meant less air space for the children to breathe, and was injurious to their health.

Councilman Rice thought School Committee was not strenuous for brick, but they want schoolhouses.

Councilman Nickerson questioned if wood would not cost more than $24,000.

Councilman Shackley said Randlett & Howe's figures were $21,000 for wood and the heating system would cost $3,000.

Councilman Bryant had asked Councilman Shackley if he would erect the building for $24,000 and he would not guarantee to do it. He thought a carpenter should back up figures that he used.

Councilman Sprague would vote tonight for any building as he regarded them as necessities.

The $28,000 for a brick and stone schoolhouse at Norfolk Downs was put upon its final passage on roll call and defeated 10 to 11, a two-thirds vote being required. The vote:

YEAS,—Barker, Bigelow, Bryant, Geary, Lamb, Nickerson, Parker, Pinkham, Rinn and Sprague—10.

NAYS,—Dixon, Grindell, Hayden, Johnson, O'Brien, Puillips, Rice, Russell, Shackley, Sidelinger and Spear—11.

ABSENT,—Adams.

NOT VOTING,—President Bass.

A similar order for West Quincy then came up. Councilman Geary and Lamb favored.

Councilman O'Brien did not object to brick if it was an ornamental building. Moved to amend by increasing the appropriation to $35,000.

Councilman Bryant moved a further amendment, making the amount $65,000.

Both amendments were lost, also the order for $28,000 by the same vote, 10 to 1, but with some changes, viz:

WEST QUINCY FIRE.

The "Destroyed" Barn House on West Street Again in Flames.

The fire department was called out at 8.25 Monday night by an alarm from Box 43 to quench another incendiary fire in the old barn house on West street, making the fourth time this year that the torch has been applied to this building. A stream of water was soon thrown on to the building and the fire extinguished. The loss, if any, will not be over $25.

This building should be torn down and probably will be as soon as the insurance is adjusted.

NAYS,—Bryant, Dixon, Grindell, Hayden, Johnson, O'Brien, Phillips, Rice, Shackley, Sidelinger, and Spear—11.

ABSENT,—Adams.

Vacation.

Councilman Bryant had rule 1 of the Council, suspended and then moved that when the Council adjourn it be until the second Monday in September.

Councilmen Rinn and Sprague favored adjourning for one week.

COUNCILMAN SPRAGUE:

"Meet every week if necessary to transact the city business and let the vacation go."

The motion of Councilman Bryant was lost, and the motion of Councilman Rinn that when we adjourn it be for one week, prevailed; vote 12 to 7.

Fire Alarm Boxes.

Councilman Rinn offered an order for three fire alarm boxes at Atlantic as follows:—Squantum street, corner of Atlantic street; Squantum street, corner of Faxon road; Hancock street, near depot. The sum of $300 being appropriated from unexpended balances. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Schoolhouses Again.

Councilman Sprague offered an order appropriating $62,000 for two brick schoolhouses according to plans of Randlett & Howe.

Councilman Bryant raised the point of order that a similar order had already been rejected.

The clerk's records showed an order for $61,000 according to the same plans had been killed.

President Bass ruled it in order, however, as the amount was different.

Councilman Bryant disagreed and appealed from the decision of the chair.

Councilman Shackley thought a few changes in the order would make it all right, and suggested "wood" in place of "brick" and $50,000 in place of $62,000.

Councilman Bigelow would suspend rule to put order in good standing.

Councilman Rice argued that the amounts were the same as the order read: "so much thereof as may be necessary."

Councilman Pinkham thought the difference would be apparent between $40,000 and $60,000, and while it was not so apparent between $61,000 and $62,000 the claim should be sustained.

By a vote of 9 to 12 the Council refused to sustain the chair, and President Bass declared the order out of order.

Councilman Sprague persisted and offered an order appropriating $50,000 for buildings of wood according to the Randlett & Howe plans.

President Bass ruled this out of order, as plans for wood had not been approved by the School Committee.

Adams Street Order.

Councilman Rice moved to take the order appropriating $4000 for Adams street from the table, and it was so voted.

Councilman Bigelow moved the matter be indefinitely postponed.

Councilman Rice opposed and championed the order. Quincy should keep up with Milton and Boston in street improvements.

Councilman Bryant favored the order. Quincy would benefit by putting its main thoroughfares in good order. It would increase the travel to Houghs Neck and impressions received might cause people to locate here. Only a small piece of road required to be rebuilt. The locality was dangerous.

Councilman Sprague said the road was not only narrow but rough. Something should be done.

Councilman Grindell opposed.

Councilman Phillips was satisfied one point needed repair, but thought $4000 too much. He moved to make it $2000.

Councilman Rice did not think $2000 would thoroughly rebuilt the street.

Councilman O'Brien favored the order.

Councilman Johnson did not favor indefinite postponement; he was ready to go on record now. The residential portion of Adams street had been put in good repair. He advocated keeping in repair streets already rebuilt. Washington street needed another coat. The Commissioner had money enough to repair Adams street if he chose, but undoubtedly he would like a special appropriation to keep the favored few from West Quincy at work.

Voted not to indefinitely postpone.

The amendment reducing the amount was lost, also the order itself. The vote on roll call was 13 to 8 not the necessary two-thirds, viz:

YEAS,—Barker, Bryant, Dixon, Lamb, Nickerson, O'Brien, Parker, Pinkham, Rice, Rinn, Shackley, Spear and Sprague—13.

NAYS—Bigelow, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Johnson, Phillips, Russell, Sidelinger—8.

Victims of the Revolution.

Barthelemy Maurice gives the number of persons sent from the Conciergerie to the guillotine as 2,742. Of these 344 were women, 41 were infants, 102 were over 70 years of age, while one man, D. T. G. Dervilly, epicier, Rue Mouffetard, was 93 years of age. Taine suggests that the numbers given are understated, and it is more than probable that such records, at least during the Terror, were badly kept and are unreliable. For anything like a correct record of the total number of victims of the Jacobins we must consult Taine.

The error surely consists in underestimating greatly the number of persons destroyed, and the traditions of the Conciergerie as to the numbers butchered in the September massacres are doubtless untrustworthy. Of those butchered no full record was kept. Considering the Conciergerie as a storehouse for the guillotine and remembering how short a time the mass of the prisoners passed within its walls, it may be asked, How shall we find adequate recorders of the facts of the life in the prison?—Quarterly Review.

Mendelssohn's Contempt For Liszt.

"You know," said Liszt, "that Mendelssohn, who was the most jealous musician that ever lived, always had a dislike for me, and on one occasion, at a soiree at Dr. K.'s, he drew a picture of the devil on a blackboard, playing his G minor concerto with five hammers, in lieu of fingers, on each hand. The truth of the matter is that I once played his concerto in G minor from the manuscript, and as I found several of the passages rather simple and not broad enough, if I may use the term, I changed them to suit my own ideas. This of course annoyed Mendelssohn, who, unlike Schumann or Chopin, would never take a hint or advice from any one. Moreover, Mendelssohn, who, although a refined pianist, was not a virtuoso, never could play my compositions with any kind of effect, his technical skill being inadequate to the execution of intricate passages. So the only course open to him, he thought, was to vilify me as a musician. And of course whatever Mendelssohn did Leipsic did also."—Etude.

Charity of Speech.

Charity of speech is as divine a thing as charity of action. To judge no one harshly, to misconceive no man's motives, to believe things are as they seem to be until they are proved otherwise, to temper judgment with mercy—surely this is quite as good as to build up churches, establish asylums and found colleges. Unkind words do as much harm as unkind deeds. Many a heart has been wounded beyond cure, many a reputation has been stabbed to death by a few little words. There is a charity which consists in withholding words, in keeping back harsh judgments, in abstaining from speech, if to speak is to condemn. Such charity hears the tale of slander, but does not repeat it; listens in silence, but forbears comment; then locks the unpleasant secret up in the very depths of the heart. Silence can still rumor. It is speech that keeps a story alive and lends it vigor.—Selected.

Eloquent Rags.

"Eloquence is speaking out—out of the abundance of the heart," say the authors of "Guesses at Truth." An incident related by Dr. Barnardo, the English philanthropist who cares for friendless children, illustrates this characteristic of eloquence.

"I was standing," he said, "at my front door one bitter day in winter, when a little ragged chap came up to me and asked me for an order of admission. To test him I pretended to be rather rough with him.

"'How do I know,' I said, 'if what you tell me is true? Have you any friends to speak for you?'

"'Friends!" he shouted. 'No, I ain't got no friends, but if these 'ere rags'—and he waved his arm about as he spoke—'won't speak for me, nothin else will.'"

Mixed.

Her book lay on a rustic seat with his cane across it; his regiment badge had been transferred from its place on his breast to a spot as near Blanche's heart as possible; the corner of her handkerchief peeped out of his side pocket; the diamond ring worn on his little finger glistened on the third finger of her left hand; her King's Daughter's badge dangled from his watch chain; his penknife was in her hand and she was whittling a birch twig; her fan was in his hand and he was twirling it nervously; the lace of one of her tiny white shoes was tied man fashion; a feather of her boa was thrust into the band of his broad brim.—Private Letter of a Frenchwoman.

ANOTHER "CASTLE" SECRET.

Bloodstains In Proof of the Claim That Mrs. Connor Was Murdered.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Science aided Detectives Fitzpatrick and Norton, where other agencies had failed, and uncovered more startling evidence against H. H. Holmes and Pat Quinlan than has previously been found in the "castle."

There was found in the "castle" by the detectives and a medical expert yesterday a trail of blood leading from the doorway of the dining room of Mrs. Julia L. Connor to the sink in the same room, from there to the dark chamber, where she and Pearl formerly slept, and from there to the inside of the door opening into the bathroom, where the secret trapdoor was; on the baseboard of that room above the trapdoor and down on to the secret staircase to the false elevator shaft and thence on the basement.

Also from the debris in the dark chamber, where mother and child slept, there were taken some child's underwear stained with blood, a pair of brown diagonal trousers tained at the bottom with blood; the pocket of a woman's dress, bloodsoaked; a handkerchief, which had been used to wipe up blood with, and various clothes and parts of underclothing, soaked with blood.

These articles were examined microscopically at the time of their discovery, and the test made then and there as to the stains and blotches being human blood. With but one or two exceptions, the experts say they were all marked with human blood. A rope was found in the dark chamber and in its knots blood was discovered.

SHOT TO KILL.

Drunken Man Makes Victims of Hotel Proprietor and His Son.

VERSAILLES, Ky., Aug. 6.—W. N. Lane shot and killed James Rodenbaugh and mortally wounded H. C. Rodenbaugh, father of James, at the Hotel Woodford yesterday afternoon. Early yesterday morning Lane arrived from Lexington quite drunk, and applied at the Hotel Woodford for a room, in which to sleep off his drunk. He was given a good front room. Shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon Lane came down and kept up loud and abusive language.

James Rodenbaugh, aged 22, son of the proprietor and a cripple, came in with a revolver in his hand and told Lane to get out. Lane drew a pistol and sent a ball through the young man's neck, cutting the jugular vein. As James fell, he fired at Lane, but the ball barely grazed Lane's left breast. Lane then rushed up to the old man and sent a bullet through his mouth, into the base of his brain, and still another into his spine, as he fell by the dead body of his young son.

Lane was immediately jailed. He is the agent for a patent fence, with his office at Lexington. H. C. Rodenbaugh was a soldier in the federal army. He was postmaster at Nicholasville during Grant's administration.

Murderous Turks.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Advices dated Armenia, July 29, say: The condition of the Armenians is worse than ever. They regard Shakir Pasha as their worst enemy, and his appointment as contemptuous defiance of Europe's demand. Deliberate persecution, slaughter and pillage of the Armenians are pursued today with the same ruthless vigor and fiendish ingenuity as in former years. Arms are distributed among the Moslems in the frontier districts, and every day news arrives of fresh murders, wholesale imprisonment and pillage. If the sultan is courting a revolution, he will surely have his way. Unless the persecution is stopped, the country will be in such a blaze that nothing short of Russian occupation will extinguish it.

In Bitter Earnest.

LADD, Ills., Aug. 6.—Foreigners at Spring Valley, under the leadership of the Italians and negroes, who have concentrated their forces at Seatonville, are both organizing their men, and, as the towns are practically under mob law, a deadly conflict is soon anticipated. The non-English speaking miners at Spring Valley held a meeting yesterday and passed a resolution that no negroes, men, women or invalids, would be allowed to remain inside the city limits after 5 o'clock this afternoon. The negroes at Seatonville held a meeting and organized themselves for active service. As the police and sheriff are making no efforts to arrest the rioters, the spirit of lawlessness is on the increase.

Dr. Conaly's Third Term.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The board of trustees of the Catholic summer school of America yesterday re-elected Rev. Dr. Conaty of Worcester, Mass., president, with the following board of officers: First vice president, Rev. P. A. Halpin; second vice president, John Byrne; secretary, W. E. Mosher; treasurer, Rev. M. M. Sheedy. This is Dr. Conaty's third year as president.

War Bounty Decision.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Judge Brown of Newburg has handed down an important decision regarding the question of bounties. Under the United States statutes of 1863 and 1864 provision was made for the payment of $300, with interest, to every man that served during the civil war or sent a substitute in his place. Judge Brown declares the act to be unconstitutional.

National Ticket Ahead.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., Aug. 6.—The general election in progress throughout the Cherokee Nation for governor and members of the legislature was conducted very orderly. R. B. Ross is the nominee of the national party for governor, while S. Mayes heads the Dowing ticket. The national ticket will probably win.

Starting With Nothing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Archibald Coleman and C. H. Taylor started yesterday from the Capitol steps for a "tramp" around the world on a wager of $500 that they can make the trip without funds, earning their way as they proceed, within 14 months.

A Sensational Scene.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Theodore Durant was leaving the courtroom yesterday in the custody of the chief jailor, when a wild-looking man rushed toward Durant and tried to draw a pistol. The jailor threw the stranger off. It is believed he is insane.

European Competitors Distanced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The agricultural department announces that a manufacturer at Anniston, Ala., has secured the contract for equipping the city of Tokio with waterpipes. Manufacturers in many European countries competed in the bidding.

Coasting.

On September 15, at Waltham, in a coasting tournament wherein seven or eight of the leading bicycles were represented, "The Spalding" finished first, second and third. The greatest tribute to the coasting ability of "The Spalding" Bicycle was paid by Capt. Allen of Philadelphia. On the trip to Glen Summit he was the only one able to come down the mountain without a mishap, which feat in itself should clearly establish the superiority of "The Spalding" at coasting, when the extraordinary declivity of Glen Summit is considered.

The Boatman.

My God, take thou the helm!
My weakling hands
But drive the quivering craft
Toward darker lands.
The angry waves, the gath'ring night
Make faint and far seem the beacon light.
Take thou the helm.

My God, take thou the helm
And let me rest,
Safe from the lowering gale,
The breaker's crest!
Vain have I struggled. These aching eye.
Can find no rift in the darkened skies.
Take thou the helm.

My God, take thou the helm!
No hand but thine
Can guide life's boat to safety.
These arms of mine
Are wearied and gladly give up to thee.
Into calm waters, my God, lead me.
Take thou the helm.

How to Address a Letter.

A number of newspapers are discussing the impropriety of addressing letters to John Smith, Esq., instead of to Mr. John Smith. In London there is a cast iron rule to this effect. You are to address your tradesman as Mr. John Smith; the gentleman in your social set is to be addressed as John Smith, Esq. This distinction is invariably adopted by Americans who reside in Great Britain for any considerable length of time, and we note that it is being observed to a growing extent in this country.—Chicago Record.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Showers Have Benefited Vegetation Throughout New England.

But Little Haying Remains to Be Done.

Corn, Tobacco and Vines Have Suffered Somewhat From Cool Nights.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The New England weather bureau issues the following bulletin for the week ending Aug. 5:

The weather for the week has been favorable for most crops, except that the nights have been too cool for corn, tobacco and vines. It was too dry in Maine for pastures, and early potatoes were affected, but heavy showers have prevailed during the week throughout all sections, and crops have been benefited. Some damage has been done by the high winds and heavy rain, both by washing the ground and beating down corn and grain. Corn is unusually good in all sections, and potatoes promise very well. Peaches and pears will be plentiful, but other fruits are generally light. Pastures in all southern sections are unusually good for the time of year, and grass on all fields has started up quickly after the scythe; a good second crop will, in most sections, nearly make up for the first crop. Late seeded pieces are growing fast, and late forage crops are doing unusually well.

Grain Harvesting Begun.

Heavy showers with considerable rainfall occurred in central and northern Maine on the 30th, doing a great deal of good to all crops, but causing some damage by lightning in Oxford county. All crops, though delayed slightly by dry weather the first of the week, are now growing fast. Potatoes are rusting some in Kennebec county. Early potatoes are reported by several to be light and small. Corn is unusually large and fine. Grain is ripening fast, and harvesting is under way. There is a heavy growth of straw and the heads are filled well. The dry weather has affected pastures to considerable extent in central counties. Haying is generally completed, except on some meadows.

Grasshoppers In Coos County.

Haying is about completed in New Hampshire, except in Merrimac and Belknap counties. Grain is lodging badly in some sections, and oats continue to be cut green for fodder. In Coos county great damage has been done to grain by grasshoppers, our correspondent in that county stating that he has seen fields in which nothing but the stock and head was left. Except in this section, no reports have been received reporting damage by this pest. Corn has not progressed well, being slow to form ears. In Rockingham county considerable was blown flat by heavy showers. Pasturage appears to be in good condition over the entire state. Blackberries are ripening fast and promise abundance, though blueberries are scarce. Early varieties of apples are ready for market in some portions of the state. Potatoes are turning out well, but show signs of rust in some localities. Tomatoes are fruiting well, and excellent reports have been received concerning beans. Fall seeding has commenced in some of the southern counties.

Harvesting Delayed.

Cool and showery weather prevailed over the greater portion of Vermont during the week, thereby delaying the harvesting of hay and oats. Little haying, however, remains to be done. The crop is of excellent quality, though deficient in quantity. Some rye was harvested during the week, and barley is reported as nearly ready to cut. Corn over the entire state is spoken of highly, the farmers in Windsor county being very much elated over the prospects of the crop. The weather has been very favorable to pasturages during the week. Early potatoes are a light crop in some sections, while blight is reported to some extent in Windsor county. Reports from Chittenden county indicate that apples will be small, though pears are expected to be more abundant.

Fine Corn In Connecticut Valley.

Favorable weather for pastures and newly seeded pieces has prevailed in Massachusetts, but generally it has been too cool for the best growth of vines and other crops. Corn has grown well, and is very fine; one correspondent in Hampden county reports it the best and largest crop ever grown in the Connecticut valley. He reports that late set tobacco has not been doing well, on account of the cold nights. Hampshire county correspondents state, however, that tobacco has grown rapidly, and most of it needs topping. Grapes are rotting very badly in western counties, and pears and peaches are affected to some extent. The pear crop is good. Early potatoes are turning out well, and are very fine. At a recent meeting of the cranberry growers on the Cape it was found that the crop will be below the average. The frost of May 16 seriously damaged the fruit buds, and in some places insects have been very destructive. The high wind accompanying the shower on the 30th did considerable damage to corn in central and eastern districts. Some pieces were leveled to the ground. Blackberries will be plenty if it is hot enough to ripen them.

Hay All Housed.

The week in Rhode Island has been partially cloudy, with some showers. Haying progressed as rapidly as the conditions warranted, and is about all housed. Considerable oats have been cut for fodder. Potatoes are being sent to market. In some sections there are reports of blight, and the yield is not up to the average. All crops look fine.

Deluge at Hawleyville.

The high winds and heavy rains accompanying the showers have beat down corn and grain considerably, and tobacco stalks have been slightly injured. The growth of corn stalks is very rank, and they are easily broken over. At Hawleyville, during the shower on the 4th, 2½ inches of rain fell in 35 minutes. The cool nights have checked the growth of corn and tobacco slightly, but not enough to prevent an excellent crop of either. Most correspondents report corn unusually large and promising. Tobacco is uneven, but in Hartford county many fields have been topped, and the crop bids fair to be the best in three years. Early potatoes are plentiful and of good size; many growers report damage by scab. Oats are mostly harvested and a good crop is indicated. One correspondent in Hartford county states there is some trouble from yellows in nearly every peach orchard, but there will be a heavy crop of peaches. Grapes and pears promise well. Hornflies are reported thick in Litchfield county.

In the Concluding Game of Their Series at the Hub.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Constant attendants of the game in this city have yet to see a more brilliant fielding game than the home team played. Sensational stops and the double plays by Nash, Lowe, Tucker and Nichols were the cleanest fielding seen for some time. Up to the seventh inning Nichols pitched wonderful ball.

Recourse to the Law.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 6.—Papers were filed with the clerk of the supreme court yesterday directly in relation to Mayor Bemis, member of the present board, and fire commissioners and ex-officio chairman, as plaintiff in the proceedings, in the nature of a quo warranto, to test the authority under which the A. P. A. commission assumed to have been appointed. This will force a decision from the highest tribunal of the state on the mooted question. The attorney general also began quo warranto proceedings last night in the supreme court to force the Omaha commission to show by what authority it acts. This will also act as a test, and will gain a decision that would determine the dispute.

Counterfeiters Bagged.

The other members of the gang are Libby Smith, Sidney Smith and William S. Wagner.

Donald Cameron will be re-elected to the United State senate. He has deserted the ranks of all the trusted Republican leaders in the senate, and in direct and flagrant violation of his most sacred pledges he was instrumental in defeating the great Republican measure for the protection of federal elections."

Mrs. Gardner, Missing Christian Endeavorer, Located at Norwich.

Living Under the Name of Mrs. Dorothy Mansfield.

Ending of a Case Which Has Greatly Mystified New England Folks.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Mrs. E. T. Gardner, the missing Christian Endeavor delegate from Arcadia, Neb., has been found.

She is in Norwich, Conn., and for the past 10 days has been employed there as a domestic in the house of Edward R. La Pierre.

A dispatch from Norwich says that J. W. Landers, her husband's friend and his agent in this search, found her there last night.

She arrived in Norwich from Boston on July 16, and registered at the Connecticut Summer school as Dorothy Mansfield. She resided with Mrs. Harriet L. Smith of Williams street. At the close of the school she went to work for Mrs. La Pierre.

MRS. E. T. GARDNER.

Mr. Landers saw her and talked with her last night. She acknowledged that she was Mrs. Gardner, and said she has written her husband that she will not return home. She said that her husband accused her of being insane, but she does not think she is. She appears to be well and in full possession of her faculties. She says she will enter the Norwich Free academy for a course of study in the fall.

Mr. Gardner has been informed by telegraph that his wife has been found, and he is expected to arrive in Norwich by tomorrow night.

Detectives shadowed the La Pierre house all last night to prevent the escape of Mrs. Gardner.

Traced by a Trunk.

Since it became known that Mrs. Gardner was alive, contrary to the letter written by herself, claiming she was dead, reporters have been following up every possible clew which might lead to her discovery, and it was learned yesterday that she had resided with a Mrs. Marshall at Cambridge.

Mrs. Marshall was positive that Mrs. Dorothy Mansfield and Mrs. Gardner were one and the same person, as she recognized in Mrs. Gardner's photograph the same features as of the Mansfield woman, who remained with her a week. The Mansfield woman acted very strangely during the stay, and informed Mrs. Marshall that she came from west of Chicago, but just where, she kept to herself.

She also informed her hostess that she did not intend to return west, but she was going to take up her former vocation of teaching school somewhere in the east. Before leaving the Marshall domicile she said she intended to attend a summer school in Connecticut.

She brought on with her a valise, but this piece of evidence she forget to destroy, and it has helped to identify Mrs. Mansfield as Mrs. Gardner. All papers which she brought with her, and letters, were consumed by fire.

Previous to her departure she purchased a small trunk at a store in Harvard square. In this she stored all her belongings which went with her on her journey over the New York and New England road.

A reporter learned that a driver of an express team went to the Marshall residence for this trunk. To the reporter the driver said: "Yes, I went after the trunk and delivered it at the bagage room of the New York and New England road. It was on the morning of July 18 when I called at the house, but I did not see this Gardner woman. Upon a tag were directions to send the trunk to Norwood."

On July 20 there were two tin-covered trunks which were sent to Norwich, and the numbers were 2020 and 6213. This clew followed up led to the solution of the three weeks' mystery.

GOOD PRICES SECURED.

Windows From Which to View Knights Templar in Good Demand.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—In anticipation of the parade of the Knights Templar on Aug. 27 an active demand has thus early sprung up for windows along the route of march.

Many citizens who are so fortunate as to have the control of buildings from the windows of which a good view may be procured will be able to turn a pretty penny for their good fortune. Some of the proprietors of these colgns of vantage are holding them at prices which stock operators would regard as "stiff."

One man on Columbus avenue valued the use of his parlor on the day of the parade at $50, and he found a party ready and willing to pay his price. Second-floor chambers in the same vicinity are held at $25 for the day, and find ready takers. Single windows on the second floor are held at $10, and upon the third floor can be procured as low as $5.

There is not much demand, as yet, for single seats in windows, the search now being for suitable places for parties numbering from two or three to a dozen.

Chief Marshal S. C. Lawrence of the great parade has issued an order which gives an exceptionally clear idea of the extent of the procession; a large map has also been issued showing the locality of the formation of the parade.

It is more than two feet long and about 15 inches wide, and includes the territory bounded by Massachusetts avenue, Warren avenue, Shawmut avenue, Tremont street and the Common and the Charles river. The prominent buildings are in dead black, with their names showing clearly in black, while the divisions of parade are represented by little red dots, at the head of which is an arrow head indicating in what direction they move into line.

While it answers the purpose for which it is intended, it also will be of great value to strangers in finding streets and locating their headquarters. The souvenir book will prove to be one of the finest specimens of its kind issued in connection with any Knights Templar celebration.

In anticipation of the parade of the Knights Templar on Aug. 27 an active demand has thus early sprung up for windows along the route of march.

Labor's Voice.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—The convention of the state branch, American Federation of Labor, ended its work last evening. The next convention will be held at Worcester. It was claimed that child labor was on the increase, and a resolution was adopted calling on all unions of textile workers to have the children employed in the factories join in the Labor day parades, in order that the public may receive exact and comprehensive information as to the exact extent of child labor. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. D. Pierce, Worcester; first vice president, Miss Nellie Murphy, Boston; second vice president, W. L. Grady, Springfield; secretary, G. N. Hubbard, Brockton; treasurer, C. C. Spencer, Springfield.

Killed in an Argument.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 7.—Peter Turnbull and John Kelliher were discussing the A. P. A. question yesterday afternoon, and the argument grew heated. Something was said by Turnbull which angered Kelliher, and he made a rush for Turnbull, who was sitting on the window sill, and he was thrown headlong out of the window to the ground, three stories below. Turnbull struck on his head, breaking his neck. He died almost instantly. Kelliher was placed under arrest and will be arraigned for manslaughter.

Strike Is Over.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 7.—A few weeks ago the New York and New England freight handlers struck because one of their number was discharged. A gang of Italians from New York were substituted, but they gave poor satisfaction. Last night the greater number of the Italians and Swedes handling freight were discharged and their places filled by the old men.

Case to Be Made a Test One.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 7.—In the district court yesterday, Dr. Harry A. Bonyman of Everett was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 for his alleged failure to notify the Everett board of health of a case of diphtheria in that city. The case was tried to show the constitutionality of the recent amendment of the state statutes. The doctor appealed, and the case will now be made a test one.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 7.—Dr. B. C. Seaton, who fired two shots at John B. Quinn on a public street, on account of Quinn's alleged unwelcome attentions to the doctor's family, was arrested last evening. He pleaded not guilty of assault with intent to kill, waived examination, and was held in $10,000 for the county court.

No Trace of Morris.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 7.—Fish and Game Commissioner Wentworth of this city has received word that the two posses of officers sent out by the commissioners to capture Morris had met, and that no one had seen Morris or found any trace of him. The general impression is that he has gone over the line into New Brunswick. His capture is, therefore, not likely.

Young Jones' Bad Scrape.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 7.—The police of this city say that they have sufficient evidence to convict Benjamin D. Jones, the Brown university student who was arrested yesterday at Attleboro, Mass., charged with wholesale theft. Jones is 21 years old, and was in the sophomore class.

PLEA FOR ARMENIANS.

Relief Can Be Restored Only Through the European Powers.

Neither a Party Matter Nor Religious Affair.

Gladstone's Summing Up of Positive Evidence Against the Turks.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—An editorial in The Times this morning praises Mr. Gladston's prudence in his speech on the Armenian question. He did not say a word, the editorial continues, calculated to hamper Lord Salisbury's government. His impassioned rhetoric did not go beyond facts. If the speech assists, as it doubtless will, in bringing about the desired consummation, he will be rewarded for an effort unparalleled even as a mere physical achievement by a man of his age.

The town hall at Chester was packed with people yesterday to listen to the speech of Mr. Gladstone upon the Armenian question.

The audience arose with vociferous cheering when Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, Duke of Westminster, the bishop of Chester and the mayor of Chester entered the hall. The visitors were conducted to seats on the platform, and the cheering did not stop until the Duke of Westminster, the chairman of the meeting, arose to speak. The duke, after a few remarks, read a letter from the Marquis of Salisbury, notifying the duke that the sum of £1000, which had been subscribed for the relief of the Armenians, had been forwarded to the British ambassador at Constantinople, who had been given full discretion as to the manner in which the money was to be distributed.

After the usual preliminaries of such a meeting had been concluded, Mr Gladstone arose amid an outburst of enthusiastic applause, and, addressing the audience, said that the Armenian question was not a party matter or a religious affair. Continuing, the great statesman said that the present situation in Armenia resulted from intolerably bad government—perhaps the worst on the face of the earth. Mr. Gladstone then read a resolution to this effect:

The Remedy.

This meeting expresses its conviction that her majesty's government will have the cordial support of the entire nation, without distinction of party, in any measures it may adopt, in order to secure for the Armenians such reforms in the administration in the province as may provide effective guarantees for the safety of life, honor, religion and property, and that no reforms can be effected without the continuous control of the European powers.

Mr. Gladstone said that the resolution was a moderate one, and expressed not only his own sentiments, but those of their transatlantic brethren, who felt even more strongly than did those present that the dispassionate inquiry which was made after the massacre showed that the powers of language did not suffice to describe the state of affairs.

Credible American Testimony.

The inquiry, he continued, had verified all the sickening details, not only of European, but of American testimony, which was doubly entitled to credence, as America particularly had no interest in the Levant. This testimony, said Mr. Gladstone, summed up into four words, was "plunder, murder, rape, torture." But, added Mr. Gladstone, plunder and murder were the comparatively mild side of the ravisher and torturer.

"This is not the work of the dangerous classes," continued Mr. Gladstone, "but of the government of Constantinople and its agents, and there is not one of their doings for which the government is not responsible. The Kurds, troops, police and tax collectors entered into deadly competition as to which should prove the most adept in this Horrible, Infernal Work.

"But guiltier than they are the higher officials of the government. It is not true that the acts of the Turks were reprisals upon the Armenians for rebelling. On the contrary, the Turkish government disarmed the Armenians and then turned out upon them the barbarians and villains of the sultan's cavalry. If there were the slightest foundations for hope of better government, the Constantinople authorities would be eager to discover and punish the perpetrators of these outrages; but the government only met the allegations made against it with denial and falsehood—weapons familiar to the Turks.

"The treaty of 1878 bound the sultan to carry out reforms and gave England the power to redress wrongs. He has made three propositions that our demands be moderated, but we must not accept Turkish promises. We must not fear the word 'coercion.' It is a word which is heartily appreciated at Constantinople."

In conclusion, Mr. Gladstone said: "We are sensible as to what is due our honor. We must interpose to demand no more than what is just, but we must demand as much as is necessary, and demand that this be accomplished, whether it is met with resistance or not."

The resolution read by Mr. Gladstone was adopted.

Gold Cure Needed.

HAVANA, Aug. 7.—The officers of the Spanish men-of-war Sanchez Barcaiztequi and Maria Christina report that near the Colorado reefs they met a monstrous fish, 50 or more yards in length. The monster was followed by others of the same species of a smaller size. They claim the first fish was almost the size of the cruiser.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

AMONG THE resolves reported at the central labor meeting in Boston, Sunday by the municipal legislative committee was one requiring the "cutting, dressing and carving of stone for buildings within the confines of the city." This may be in the interests of Boston labor, but it is a very selfish view and protection with a vengence. Many of these same men would undoubtedly vote for free trade with the world and allow granite to be imported free, but are willing to discriminate against the suburban cities. How would it do for the suburban cities to vote not to buy any manufactured goods in Boston?

THE HOUGHS NECK Improvement Society is now at work along proper lines and its petitions will undoubtedly receive proper consideration. Sea street should be rebuilt, widened out and improved, and it should also be lighted, at least during the summer season. A lighted boulevard well kept and sprinkled would become a delightful evening drive. It would enhance the value of property and the city would get in return increased taxes.

IT IS evident now that appropriations for brick schoolhouses cannot be secured this year, as no order for brick can be introduced. If the demand was not so urgent for additional accommodations the matter might be postponed until the spring of 1896, but, the city cannot afford to wait and appropriations for wooden schoolhouses should be speedily passed and work begun.

A REDUCTION of $513,500 in the value of real estate in Waltham during the year is rather startling, although it did not increase the tax rate of that city. It must have been anticipated. Quincy does not anticipate a reduction and hopes it will not come, but it is a fact that real estate is not as active as it was.

Accident to Bicyclist.

John McAloon met with quite a serious bicycle accident Sunday evening. He was riding home on his wheel when he was run into at the corner of Willard and Rogers street. He was knocked off and kicked by the horse and rendered unconscious. His wheel was also quite badly smashed.

Ex-Policeman Dead.

Mr. John Bissett, formerly a member of the police force of Quincy, died at his home on Copeland street, Tuesday evening after a brief illness of quick consumption. He was 42 years of age and leaves a widow. Clan McGregor and Granite commandery, G. C., will attend the funeral on Thursday.

Visiting Granite Dealers.

A dispatch from Barre, Vt., says: The granite dealers are making big preparations for entertaining the Michigan marble and granite dealers on their visit here, Aug. 23 and 24. The programme includes a trip to the quarries and a banquet at Montpelier.

Two Presidents.

History repeats itself and once again Quincy furnishes two presidents from the same family. At the election of class officers at Chautauqua Rev. E. W. Virgin of West Quincy was elected president of the Class of 1887 and Edward H. Virgin president of the Class of 1894.

A Granite Syndicate?

It is reported at Barre, Vt., that a big syndicate is being formed with members in various parts of the country, to purchase all the large granite plants in that section.

—Sidney French, who died at Randolph on Monday, was an ex-Selectman, a trustee of the Stetson High school fund, and one of the corporators of the Randolph savings bank. He retired January 1 from the retail shoe business in which he had been engaged 23 years.

—Powow lodge of Amesbury is another lodge of Odd Fellows instituted fifty years ago this month. It will celebrate Aug. 29, with an oration, historical address and an entertainment.

—The Norfolk County commissioners decreed Tuesday that Hyde Park shall rebuild portions of Central Park avenue and Hyde Park avenue within one year.

YES, COME EARLIER!

Michigan Granite Dealers Should Make No Mistake.

Reasons Why Excursionists Should Come the Day Before.

Some of the Attractions of Quincy and Vicinity.

The Quincy correspondent of the Monumental News writes interestingly of the proposed visit of the Michigan granite dealers. He advances very good reasons why the excursionists should arrive Aug. 26, and the LEDGER reproduces the letter:

"The Quincy granite manufacturers are looking forward to the visit of the western dealers the latter part of this month, with an interest that foretells of a good time for the visitors.

"Up to the present time of writing the only drawback was the lack of information as to just how many would comprise the party; that fact being of the utmost importance, as hotel accommodations here, as well as in Boston, are already being taken up by the Masonic fraternity who are to entertain their visiting brethren the same week. Ordinarily, such a thing might well run along for a week or two previous to the visit, but President James Thompson of the Quincy Association wants no slip up on this matter, and it is due to this fact that several telegrams passed between him and Secretary F. F. Murdock of the Michigan Association the latter part of July.

"Up to this time the hotel Greenleaf, one of the favorite hostelries for visiting granite men, has been reserved and landlord Hayden is anxiously awaiting word as to the number he will have to provide for. Granite dealers, he says, will have the preference every time, and with all the pressing requests for rooms during Masonic week, he is holding back everything for the Michigan Association.

"There is one thing the Quincy manufacturers would like to have the Michigan dealers do, and that is to pay them a longer visit than that set down on the schedule. Quincy is but a suburb of Boston, only 15 minutes ride from the great hub of the east, and for that reason no better place could be selected than this city during the Masonic celebration in Boston.

"The Michigan dealers have arranged to arrive in Boston Tuesday evening, Aug. 27, and take the 6 P. M. train for Quincy. Aug. 27 is the day set for the big Masonic parade, and this in itself will be well worth the trip east.

"Now instead of remaining in Rutland, Vt., from Aug. 24 until the morning of the 27th, the Quincy manufacturers would like to have the dealers leave the pretty Green Mountain city one day earlier and arrive in Quincy the night of the 26th, so as to see the big parade in Boston the next day.

"They want to act the part of hosts on this occasion and from what the writer knows of the hospitality of the Quincy manufacturers, and the arrangements that the committee has made for this event especially, he can say that the dealers will miss a good thing if they don't cut one day off on their journey to Boston.

"I have admired, as have many others, the green hills and beautiful scenery of Rutland, have looked with wonder at the deep and extensive marble quarries and the large mills, have enjoyed the hospitality and that good fellowship of the Green Mountain boys and yet you may wonder, dealers of Michigan, why I should urge you to hasten onward toward Boston, to leave these pleasant scenes and good companions, and come to Quincy. It's for the same reason that a boy would rather play than work; that a fellow will take his best girl to a circus in preference to his sister, and that the average man likes Boston whiskey better than Vermont hard cider.

"Vermont scenery is superb, her hills are rich in marble; her cider has a regular applejack flavor, and the hospitality of the men of Rutland is not surpassed anywhere in the east, but with all these inducements to stay, Quincy offers the Michigan dealers greater ones, to come. Two days, why there's a whole week's solid enjoyment and sightseeing here. That Boston parade on the 27th should not be missed and other arrangements should be cut to meet this. Then here we are surrounded by the greatest sea shore resorts anywhere on the eastern coast, and they are just at their height now. What more impressing sight to a western man can there be, than a view of the great Atlantic ocean. We are right on its shore and here are the headquarters for the big steamers that can be chartered for a day's run along the coast. The Quincy manufacturers have the refusal of one for a week and this will be at the disposal of the visitors during their stay. This runs between Quincy and Nantasket beach, a 10-mile stretch of sandy shores with the wide ocean to the eastward.

"'Twas a Michigan man, too, who stood on the cliff at the upper end of the beach last summer, and gazed enraptured at the sight before him. 'Twas years and years before, since he had seen it as a little lad when he crossed its bosom to settle with his parents in the west.

Ah, he said, as tears of joy filled hi eyes, there is music in the lull of those waves, and it stretches way 'cross to Bonnie Scotland!

"A trip seaward is only one of the many attractions and outings that the manufacturers will offer to the dealers. Historic points of interest abound here as nowhere else in the east, and the first railroad in America; the home of the Adams family, that gave the country two presidents, though old sights to Quincyites, will not fail to impress a visitor to our hospitable city.

"And as for granite this is the place to see it. The first place in the country to put the stone into practical use, cannot but furnish interesting data for granite men. The improvements, all those inventions that have been made in the granite business, since the first railroad was built to haul the stone for the building of Bunker Hill monument can be here seen and appreciated as no where else. But all these things and a good many more are on the list of the committee, and it wouldn't do to give away any surprises that are in store.

"Individual manufacturers have also arranged a few private theatricals and the like, which promise beneficial knowledge as well as entertainment. Get here August 26th, good men and women of Michigan, and we promise you no end of fun.'"

Pushing to the Front.

The following letter, received by the local Y. M. C. A. last evening indicates that its work is attracting attention outside of our own city:

THE NEW CENTURY, } EDITORIAL ROOMS. }

Mr. O. C. Colton, Y. M. C. A., Quincy, Mass:

DEAR SIR:—I understand that your clay modeling class has developed an unusual degree of excellence. Would you care to have an exhibit of that work at the Centennial Exposition of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics association, in Boston, during October and November, 1895, as a part of the manual training exhibit. If you or your representative will call at this office when you are next in Boston, I think you would find that such an exhibit would be beneficial to the Y. M. C. A. generally, as well as to the cause of manual training. I should be pleased to hear from you concerning it.

Yours very truly,
WALTER CHURCH.

Secretary Colton also received a letter this morning from Ladd, Hunt & Co., publishers of the "Producer and Builder" of Boston, asking for an article explaining the industrial educational work of the Quincy Association.

NEGROES HAVE LEFT.

All Is Now Reported Quiet In Spring Valley and Vicinity.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Aug. 7.—The situation is very quiet in this place. The negroes are making no effort to come back. The reports about armed negroes coming from Peoria and Chicago to avenge Sunday's affair caused no unusual excitement here. They would not have only the Italian miners to deal with, but every white miner in the city as well, numbering in the neighborhood of 2000.

Word was sent in from Ladd and Toluca yesterday promising the whites all the assistance necessary in case of an invasion by blacks from other towns. In case of an invasion, 5000 white miners could be mustered together in this city in less than two hours. The whites of this city do not apprehend any danger in that direction. They do not express the least sorrow over the event of Sunday, and invite a free and impartial investigation.

They claimed to have endured the outrages of the blacks as long as they could, but they are severe in the criticisms of the sensational tales told in several dispatches to the morning dailies. A whole list of names have each day appeared as wounded and likely to die.

A reporter, who was on the ground and witnessed Sunday's battle from beginning to end, has succeeded in discovering but one negro shot, and the injury is only a flesh wound of no serious nature. About 10 or 12 were assailed with sticks or stones, but no attempts were made to kill. The prime object, as stated on the ground while the fighting was at its height, was to scare them into leaving and never come back again. Everything has gone along smoothly since the negroes were driven out.

Children Burned to Death.

BIG STONE GAP, Ga., Aug. 7.—Eli Hix went to his home while drunk, built a fire in the stove and fell asleep on the floor. The house caught fire from the stove, and the flames spread to a room occupied by Mrs. Hix and five children who were asleep. Four of the younger children were burned to death before the mother awoke. Mrs. Hix escaped with one child, but both were fatally injured. Hix was carried from the building, but not before he was fatally burned.

Important Franchise Granted.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 7.—An important concession for an industrial railway in the valley of Mexico has been granted. The charter is for 99 years. Either steam or electricity may be used. The new line will connect all the industrial establishments in this valley, and also put in connection various railways coming in here. The charter is considered by railway men one of the broadest and most liberal ever given.

In Fierce Storm's Path.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 7.—While Buffalo Bill's Wild West show was giving a performance yesterday, a terrific rain and wind storm struck the town. The dressing tent was blown to tatters, and many men were slightly injured. Half of the canvas-covered grandstand was blown down. Many women and children were trampled upon and badly hurt, but none will die.

The Chinese Outrages.

LONDON, Aug. 7. — Instructions have been sent to the British admiral on the China station for the protection of British interests. Halliday Macartney, the English secretary of the Chinese legation in London, has expressed China's regret at the massacre, and has declared that every effort will be made to bring the culprits to justice.

Killed In Central Park.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—E. F. C. Davis, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, was found dead last night in Central park. He was badly crushed about the head and body, and it is supposed that the spirited horse that he had been riding stumbled, threw Davis, and fell on him.

Mob Wanted Him.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 7.—The lynching of W. N. Lane, the murderer of the Rodenbaughs, which would have been accomplished last night at Versailles by citizens of the cities of Versailles, Nicholasville and Lexington, was thwarted by the secret removal of Lane to Lexington for safe keeping.

Using Up Gold Bullion.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Mint Director Preston says that it is the present purpose of the government to coin all of its stock of gold bullion. This amounts to nearly $60,000,000. There is said to be no special significance in the coinage of the gold bullion.

'Tis Human Blood.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Further examination of the room occupied by Mrs. Connor at Holmes' "castle" yesterday resulted in the finding of additional bloodstains upon the floor. A strong microscope was used upon the stains by an expert, who said they were undoubtedly human blood.

Three Seamen Drowned.

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—Three seamen of the steamship Bengorhead were drowned here while going ashore without leave.

Coasting.

On September 15, at Waltham, in a coasting tournament wherein seven or eight of the leading bicycles were represented, "The Spalding" finished first, second and third. The greatest tribute to the coasting ability of "The Spalding" Bicycle was paid by Capt. Allen of Philadelphia. On the trip to Glen Summit he was the only one able to come down the mountain without a mishap, which feat in itself should clearly establish the superiority of 'The Spalding" at coasting, when the extraordinary declivity of Glen Summit is considered.

BELLES OF NEWPORT.

OLIVE HARPER DESCRIBES SOME OF THEIR SMART COSTUMES.

Outing Gowns Worn by the Indefatigable Girls Who Go In For Athletics—Pictures of Loveliness Seen on the Promenades. Attractive Driving Dresses.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—If you want to see pretty dresses, with pretty women inside of them, you should go "down Newport way," and you will find them. There are special gowns for special needs, and all are perfect after their kind. Life is so active in Newport that one rather looks first to see the gowns worn by the indefatigable girls who go in for all the athletics.

The first one to be noticed was a yachting gown of cream white drilling, just such as is used for large sacks of flour. It was firm and solid and made a handsome dress. This particular one was made with a full skirt, with a 2 inch band of blue jeans around the bottom. There was a narrow line of blue soutache above it, which gave an added emphasis. The waist was a beltless sailor blouse of the same stuff, trimmed at the top with a band and braid and a narrow upright dimity ruffle. The jacket was as jaunty as it was pretty. It was of the same drilling, the wide revers and collar trimmed like the bottom of the skirt. The sleeves had the same finish. There was a little bow in front of the blouses which gave a proper shipshape to the whole suit.

Drilling comes in yellowish white, buff and cinnamon color. Plain bias stitched bands piped with white make refined and neat trimming. Some have bias madras plaid trimming. This is not too striking.

Several of the very prettiest tennis dresses are of drill in one or the other of the tones as to skirt and jacket. The waists to wear under are often of pink batiste laid in narrow folds with flat rows of yellow valenciennes lace. Sashes of soft silk to match the colors of the club are added to these.

Some very neat and stylish dresses are seen on the promenades. One in particular I noticed. The dress was of printed taffeta, of two tones of gray and blue, with dark blue figures to represent perforations. Around the bottom there were two bands of faille the color of the figures. And there was a ribbon belt of the same color. The sleeves were puffed, with the manches of faille. The waist was drawn to the left in surplice style. The collar was of deep navy blue silk, with a band of white satin ribbon laid flat upon it. There was a dainty pale blue Japanese crape fold inside the V collar. Every one was struck with the dainty taste of this gown.

There was a dressy carriage and walking gown of drab plaid taffeta, where the plaids were formed by two pale green lines, crossed by single lines of deep garnet, almost black. The waist was a gathered French shape, with dark garnet velvet ribbon drawn from under large shoulder knots to the waist, where it fastened under a double bow without ends. All the V shaped portion inside these bows was filled in with lace, and there were full caps over the puffed sleeves. The handsome wearer added a dark garnet hat with velvet bows and plumes, for she knew they were becoming. She wore long mousquetaire gloves, matching the delicate drab in her gown.

There was a plainer but no less pretty gown worn by a young lady whose good taste is proverbial. This was of pale gray silk warp henrietta, that most exquisite of stuffs, with all the strength of wool and all the richness of silk. This was folded in flat box plaits all around the skirt. The sash belt was of myrtle green velvet, and two ends were finished with a rich fringe of jet and silk. The plain French waist had a smooth fold down the front, while on each side were four lines of strong beads, some large and some small to match the fringe.

There was a soft stock collar of the green velvet, which set off the lovely wearer's blond beauty admirably, especially as the golden hair was surmounted by a myrtle green chip hat, trimmed with ribbon and a mass of translucent red currants. She carried an ivory surah sunshade as plain and dainty as her dress, and she rested the eyes after so much brilliant color as had filed past.

OLIVE HARPER

Full of Wonder.

Mrs. Paton, the Scotch missionary's wife, in one of her letters from the New Hebrides humorously describes the simple hearted astonishment of the natives at some of the wonderful things shown them by their new teachers:

Two rooms have been added to our island home, one a little study, which has to serve also as a drawing room. The Aniwans call this the Great House and are perfectly lost when they get inside, four rooms being quite too much for their comprehension. And although they saw them being built they ask in each room, with bewildered faces, whether they are north, south, east or west.

Sometimes we have to take them through the house several times in a day, and it is genuine fun to watch them—a perpetual play. Some of the scenes are truly dramatic. One fellow, the other day, got so fantastically excited when I set the sewing machine going that he performed a war dance in the middle of the floor, flung his arms all about and called lustily for his dead father.

A skeleton timepiece, under a glass shade, comes in for a large amount of interest. They will stand and watch the pendulum go for ever so long and ask all sorts of questions. "The path of the sun" was what they called it, after we had explained how the hands and figures indicated the sun's course in the heavens.

Yesterday I tried to explain that it was the earth and not the sun that was going round, but was promptly informed that I was a liar!

But Wales Did Not Die.

The dangerous illness of the Prince of Wales in December, 1871, was the cause of events—curious and amusing—which will ever find a place in the history of British journalism. The death of the prince seemed inevitable, for the doctors had begun to despair. One day the announcement went forth that his royal highness could not survive many hours, and accordingly every daily newspaper in the kingdom had its obituary of the prince "set," or put into type.

But the expected telegram announcing the death never came, and so at midnight, when the hour for going to press was close at hand, many a newspaper editor who had relied on his biographical sketch of the prince filling six or eight columns of his paper was compelled to fill up the blank columns with "standing" matter of all kinds, such as old advertisements and older news. The principal newspaper editors subsequently sent the prince, at his own request, "proofs" of the obituaries, and pasted, in a bulky scrapbook, they now form one of the strangest and most curious objects to be seen at Marlborough House.—Chambers' Journal.

Eggplant and Brains.

It is believed by many clever people that the eggplant contains a lot of brain food. I know a great many eat it for that reason, and the men who are especially fond of it are men of brains. I remember an excursion to Trenton on a certain occasion, for business purposes, with Edward Cooper as the leader of the expedition. We paused at a hotel for dinner. Eggplant sliced and fried was on the table. Mr. Cooper said he would have some, instead of soup. Then came fish, and he said he would stick to the eggplant. When the entree came on, we thought he might join us, but he asked for more eggplant. Then the roast was served, but he whispered to the waiter if he had a little more eggplant he would give him a half dollar. He refused the ice cream and cake and had another piece of eggplant and disposed of the last slice in the hotel as we finished our coffee. Mr. Cooper was elected mayor of New York the following month.—New York Press.

Dancing In the Cathedral of Seville.

A singular and attractive relic of the custom of dancing in churches is still practiced three times a year in the great cathedral of Seville—namely, on the feasts of the Immaculate Conception and of Corpus Christi, and on the last three days of the carnival. Ten choristers, dressed in the costume of pages of the time of Philip II, with plumed hats, dance a stately but most graceful measure for about half an hour within the iron screens in front of the high altar. They are dressed in blue and white for the Blessed Virgin and in red and white for Corpus Christi. The boys accompany the minuetlike movements with the clinking of castanets. During the measure a hymn arranged for three voices, with orchestral accompaniment, is sung in honor of the blessed sacrament.—"Curious Church Customs," William Andrews.

An Absentminded Preacher.

An odd circumstance happened once at Winchester. As Dr. Wilson was one Sunday morning going through the streets toward the cathedral he heard a woman cry: "Mackerel! All alive, all alive, O!" And on his arrival at the church he began the service as follows: "When the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive, alive, O!" These last words the doctor proclaimed aloud, in the true tone of the fishwoman, to the great surprise of the congregation. But the good doctor was so studious and absent that he knew not what he had done.—Household Words.

He Need Not Discuss It.

"Katie," sternly exclaimed the little girl's father at the breakfast table, "you are too noisy! I shall certainly have to punish you."

"Well, there ain't anybody holdin you, is there?" said Katie, with flashing eye and quivering lip.—Current Literature.

A Governor Named Bennington.

Bennington, Vt., is said to have been named from Benning Wentworth, the governor of New Hampshire, who, in 1784, gave the grant and charter for the town.—Detroit Tribune.

HOLIDAY TOMORROW

The Grocers Off for Outing and Everybody Celebrates.

The Quincy grocers are looking forward to tomorrow with great delight for on that day the butchers lay aside their frocks and the grocers hang up their baskets, fill their pockets full of store cigars and ginger ale and make merry.

This year as in years past they will go to North Scituate and will make the journey in four-horse drags which are expected to leave City Square about 8 30 A. M.

On the way down Chairman Nash and Superintendent Weeks will sound the warning of approach by taking turns at working the handle of the old Jubilee fog horn.

Ex-Senator Merrill will debate on "What I know about caring for infants," while Rogers will now and then offer his advice without being asked for it, and the B others Johnson will sit silently by taking it all in, or more properly speaking, getting points for future use when they get there themselves.

Lamb and Kemp will keep up an animated talk on base ball points, and Porter will be willing to wager his next week's salary that he can eat more steamed clams than Dyer or Deck Wadsworth, while one other gentleman will pass his time in trying to give himself a full hand at every deal.

There will of course be many other interesting features on the downward trip.

Upon arrival sleeves will be rolled up and the green diamond will be sought, when there will be a bitter fight.

After dinner there will be a fat men's race, bicycle races, and possibly a swimming match between Tom Pearce and D. Fitzgerald.

The LEDGER of Friday will have the result of the sports and other interesting features of the day.

The Boys.

THE COUNTRY BOY.

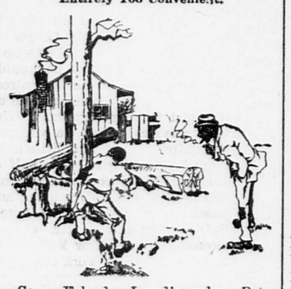

He comes to town, a-whistlin one o' them good ole tunes,
In a hick'ry shirt 'nd straw hat 'nd faded pantaloons.
He has a smile upon his face, a twinkle in his eye,
'Nd allus sez "How air ye?" when we see him goin by.
He comes drivin up our alley, the lines a-hangin down
'Nd raisin a racket bigger'n any one in town.
He brings us eggs 'nd butter 'nd garden truck 'nd sich
'Nd turns his horse with a "Gee!" er "Haw!"—I don't know which.
He stops there at the grocery 'nd leans agin the barrels
'Nd asks 'em what they're payin now fer rabbits 'nd fer squirrels.
He reads the bills 'at's posted 'nd hears us fellers gassin,
Maybe buys some groceries, 'nd he won't take no sassin.
We hear his "Git up!" 'nd the wagon rattlin crost the bridge
'Nd see the dust a-raisin when he's gone behind the ridge.

THE CITY BOY.

He comes out in the summer with his uncles er his aunts
In a b'iled shirt, standup collar, long tailed coat 'nd store made pants.
Comes to the crossin on the cars—dad brings him out from there.
He jes' shakes hands with all of us, 'nd sets down in a chair,
'Nd stares around at this 'nd that, 'nd never sez a thing
'Ceptin to ask where taters grows er why the robins sing.
He likes to play at hide 'nd seek 'nd help to do the chores,
Ride the horses to worter 'nd swing on the granary doors,
'Nd he's got sich funny idees o' how things orto be done,
But somehow we sort o' like him 'nd air lonesum when he's gone.

STRAINED RELATIONS.

Claim That Vigilant Has Been Unfairly Treated by Defender.

Centerboard Will Not Meet With Fin-Keel Again.

Willard's Action Creates a Sensation In the Yachting World.

NEWPORT, R. I. Aug. 7.—The surprise of the day here is a letter to the New York Yacht club regatta committee from E. A. Willard, who represents Commodore George J. Gould on the Vigilant, withdrawing the Vigilant for the races on Thursday and Saturday. The letter is as follows:

ON BOARD THE VIGILANT.
NEWPORT HARBOR.

To the Regatta Committee, New York Yacht Club:

DEAR SIRS—I hereby withdraw Vigilant's entries for the races on Thursday and Saturday. In doing so, I wish to add a few words of explanation.

As you are aware, Mr. Gould and I, as his representative, fitted out and repaired Vigilant for racing for no purpose in the world except to assist in developing the fastest American yacht, and thus add in the defense of the America's cup. To this end Mr. Gould has cheerfully gone to the greatest expense and I have taken much pains and spent much time. I cannot, however, consent to continue racing Vigilant unless the contests are to be conducted according to the rules of yachting.

I have now twice given way to Defender at the start of the race when Vigilant clearly had right of way, because I was unwilling to risk a collision which might leave America without a cup defender. However willing I may have been to waive my rights in the past, I am not willing to go on waiving them in difficulty, and even if I were, it is quite possible that a situation might be created in which a collision would be inevitable.

Mr. Gould's sole desire, as well as my own, is that the cup may be defended by the fastest American sloop, which might not be the case if Vigilant and Defender collided.

As you know, I have already protested Defender's action at the start July 22. In today's race Defender again violated the rules, and forced Vigilant out of position to which she was entitled. In both cases there would have been a collision if Vigilant had not given way. In each case the responsibility of avoiding an accident was cast upon me. It would not be fair either to the yacht or her owner to continue racing under those conditions.

Very respectfully yours,
E. A. WILLARD.

When Mr. Willard handed this letter to the members of the press last night, he remarked that the Vigilant was still at the disposal of the America's cup committee, to be used for any purpose they see fit.

How It Was Received.

Mr. Iselin was taken aback by the news that the Vigilant had decided to draw out, but he would make no answer to the letter. Mr. Kane, chairman of the regatta committee, also refused to speak on the subject, as did Mr. Grinnell, another member.

It is known, however, that as soon as the committee received Mr. Willard's letter all hands of them went over to see the writer of the unique missive and had a long talk with him. The result of the interview is not officially known, and probably will not be until the clouds of war settle, but the appearance of Mr. Willard, after it took place, was one that indicated a firmness of intention that could not be mistaken. That there is a strong feeling somewhere between the owners of the Defender and Vigilant is so evident that it can almost be stated for a fact.

Ex-Commodore Smith, chairman of the America's cup committee, was very much surprised at the action of Mr. Willard. He read the letter over carefully, and then said:

"I regret exceedingly that Mr. Willard has seen fit to take this action. I do not believe that the Defender people desire that anything but the fairest treatment should be given to the Vigilant. The America's cup committee are not acting in the capacity of a regatta committee. They are only to judge of the relative ability of the two boats which may compete, so that so far as a question of any unsportsmanlike action is concerned they have nothing to do with it. Their desire is to get the very best boat, and they leave the conduct of the trial races in the hands of the regatta committee."

A very prominent yachtsman, whose words may be safely taken as expressing the opinions of the New York Yacht club, said: "Mr. Willard's action was of the weakest possible character. If Ned Willard felt that he had a grievance he should have made another protest, and waited for the Action of the Regatta Committee.

His action, however, in withdrawing the Vigilant from the races is extremely exasperating and cannot be too strongly condemned. I am surprised that he should do such a thing after the commendable manner with which he has raced the Vigilant, and I cannot see how he has gained anything by pulling out at this time. The letter is a confession of weakness."

If any additional test had been needed to show that the fin-keel yacht Defender is a better all round boat in light weather than the centerboard Vigilant, it was furnished yesterday, when those yachts raced over a 21-mile equilateral triangular course, outside of this harbor, for a $200 cup, offered by J. R. Drexel. The course was one which gave the contestants every chance of showing what they could do.

They started out on a beat of seven miles to windward, then had a full reach of the same distance, and finally a run home before the wind for seven miles more. In the first two legs the Defender easily showed her superiority. On the run before the wind, when the Vigilant, with her centerboard hauled up and spinnaker set for half the distance, gained only 1m. 13s., when it was expected that the keel boat would sustain a loss of about 2m. in that sort of sailing.

The result of the day only confirmed the opinion that is universally held on the question of the comparative merits of the yachts, yet at a meeting of the America's cup committee, held on the flagship Sylvia yesterday afternoon, it was decided to hold formal trial races off Sandy Hook on Aug. 20 and 22, and "further races if they are seen to be necessary."

ERRATIC DECISIONS

Had Much to Do With the Bostons Dropping a Game to Brooklyn.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The Brooklyn team were the winners, after a desperate fight of nine innings. George W. Burnham was selected as the umpire, and his position was a dangerous one. The crowd was against him, and his erratic decisions made everybody wild. Tucker played the principal feature of the game. His coaching was only what a Tucker is capable of, and on four occasions he was ushered to the bench by Umpire Burnham, amid deafening yells. The cranks in the grandstand called upon Tucker to go back, but a threatening fine put Tommy on the bench. It may be safely said that the rocky exhibition of Burnham lost the game for Boston.

AGAINST MR. WILLARD.

Regatta Committee Denies Request to Disqualify Defender.

A Letter Containing a Few Words of Censure.

How the Matter Is Looked Upon by Some of the Yachtsmen.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—Letters from the regatta committee have been given out by C. O. Iselin. Commodore Kane, when asked about the letters, said he regretted not being in a position to give them to the press, because they are privileged communications. Mr. Iselin could give them out if he desired. Mr. Iselin was quite willing that the letters should be published. A similar letter was mailed last evening to E. A. Willard, who is now at Bristol, on the Vigilant. The letters speak for themselves:

FLAGSHIP SYLVIA, NEWPORT HARBOR, Aug. 7.

E. A. Willard, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—Referring to your protest of July 22d, asking that the Defender be disqualified for alleged violation of section 2, rule 16, of the racing rules, and referring to your subsequent request at the Vineyard for a postponement of a decision until the squadron returned to Newport, we now beg to say that, after mature consideration, the committee has reached the conclusion that they cannot sustain the protest.

Yours respectfully,
S. NICHOLSON KANE,
CHESTER GRISWOLD,
IRVING GRINNELL,
Regatta Committee.

Racing Rules Are Enforced.

The second letter reads:

FLAGSHIP SYLVIA, NEWPORT HARBOR, Aug. 7.

E. A. Willard, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—We beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday, wherein you notify us of Vigilant's withdrawal from the Thursday and Saturday races of this week, and that you cannot continue racing unless the contests are to be conducted according to the rules of yachting. Our committee regret your decision to retire from the races; we also regret your published statement that the racing rules are not being properly enforced, and, for this statement, we consider there is no warrant.

Yours respectfully,
S. NICHOLSON KANE,
CHESTER GRISWOLD,
IRVING GRINNELL,
Regatta Committee.

Yachtsmen's Comment.

In speaking of the matter, William H. Butler, of the steam yacht Forgetmenot, said: "The Vigilant was in the right and should have had her course and run into the Defender."

J. B. King, owner of the schooner Elsie Marie, thought the Vigilant should be allowed to race fairly and not be bothered all the time through the Defender's disregard of racing rules.

George Butler, of the steam yacht Forgetmenot, said that if Mr. Willard had not given way on two occasions, there would be no cup defender except the Vigilant to meet the Valkyrie.

W. E. Iselin thought that the Vigilant should not have been withdrawn, and that if the Defender was wrong, the regatta committee should rule her out.

Colonel Hester of the sloop yacht Wizard said: "I think the Vigilant should have had a show and should not be made to relinquish all her rights to the new boat."

J. S. Bearsford said: "If Captain Barr had not been ordered to keep off, there would certainly have been a collision."

Another Italian Shooting Affray.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—An Italian fruit dealer named Sgrio was shot by another fruit dealer named Spadero, in front of Spadero's store on North street yesterday morning. Sgrio will probably die. The shooting is supposed to have come about because Spadero discharged a boy who is said to be a relative of Sgrio. Sgrio walked down by Spadero's place yesterday, and in going by made a grimace at Spadero, and shrugged his shoulders in the true Italian manner. Spadero saw Sgrio had a knife, and, coming out with his revolver, shot three times, hitting his enemy each time. Spadero told the police that he shot in self-defense, but Sgrio says the knife seen by Spadero had been in his pocket, but had fallen out, and that he was just stooping over to pick it up.

Death of Father Hughes.

HARTFORD, Aug. 8.—Very Rev. Father James Hughes died at 8:30 o'clock last night from an attack of hemorrhage of the stomach. The deceased was 64 years of age. He was born in Longford county, Ireland, in October, 1830. He came to this country in 1844. He was educated at Fordham college, graduating in 1848. He came to Hartford, Nov. 10, 1854. He had been vicar general for years. Owing to the infirmities of age, he recently asked to be relieved from the duties of vicar general, and Father Mulcahy of Waterbury has been filling the duties of the office.

Doctor Charged With Murder.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Dr. J. W. Brown is under arrest on complaint for murder. One of his patients, the wife of Perley C. Farrell, died at 143 Worcester street, and it is alleged that Brown is responsible for her death. He has in the past been called upon to defend himself in court. In this particular instance he was neatly trapped. Being ushered into the room in which the dead body lay, and supposing that nobody except the husband was present, he conversed in such a way as to furnish strong evidence against himself, for there were three policemen concealed where all he said could be heard.

Writer of Popular Songs.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 8.—Dr. George F. Root, the well-known composer of national music, died suddenly at his summer cottage on Bailey's island. Dr. Root's 75th birthday and his golden wedding anniversary were to have been celebrated together on Aug 28. Prominent among Dr. Root's musical works were several cantatas. When the war came on he wrote the war songs, "The Battle Cry of Freedom" ("Yes, We'll Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys)," "Just Before the Battle, Mother," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and "The Vacant Chair."

Coming to Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Notifications still continue to come from the commanderies of Knights Templar in the west announcing their intention of attending the triennial conclave in this city. Among the latest ones to be received are those of Springfield, Ills.; St. Joseph, Mo.; Peoria, Ills., Dayton, O., and Terre Haute, Ind. An album, containing one or more cards, representing every commandery of Knights Templar which was constituted previous to the Washington conclave, will be on exhibition during the coming meeting at the headquarters of Joseph Warren commandery in Roxbury.

In Claude Duval Style.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.—Two little children of Mrs. Abbott were sent to the store yesterday to make some purchases, and while on the way were met by a 10-year-old boy who demanded their money. He drew a knife and threatened to use it if they did not comply with his request. The children gave the youthful highwayman the pocketbook, containing all the money, and ran home and reported the matter to their parents. The police have been notified and will probably arrest the young Claude Duval.

Has Two Escorts.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Gardner left for her Nebraska home yesterday afternoon, in company with Mr. Landers and City Missionary Swan. The presence of the latter is explained by the sudden, but absolute, refusal of Mrs. Gardner to go with Landers alone. This action is taken as a further indication of mental unsoundness on the part of the woman, who is still thought to be a victim of dementia, in spite of her vigorous assertions to the contrary.

Not Bank Note Paper.

DALTON, Mass., Aug. 8.—The report that the paper used by the Bradford counterfeiting gang was government banknote paper, bearing the watermark of Crane & Co. of this town, is an error. The government's banknote paper is not watermarked. The bond paper made for the commercial trade by Crane & Co. is watermarked, and Mr Crane says that the bond paper was probably used by the counterfeiters.

Parson Is President.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.—Newspaper men of Hampshire and Franklin counties met at Lake Pleasant yesterday and completed an organization as follows: President, H. C. Parson, Greenfield, Gazette; vice president, W. S. Carson, Greenfield, Boston Globe and Springfield Union; secretary and treasurer, George L. Munn, Easthampton, News; dean, Henry L. Geere, Northampton, Hampshire Gazette.

Enforcing the Law.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 8.—The police here issued orders that any woman found after 11 o'clock at night on the streets without an escort would be arrested. As a result of the order, 11 women were arrested Tuesday evening. In court yesterday those charged with street-walking were sentenced to 30 days in jail, while those charged with drunkenness were fined $5, together with the jail sentence.

Congressman Morse's Denial.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Elijah A. Morse denied yesterday that he belonged to the A. P. A. in the following telegram from him: "The story in this morning's Journal that I was addressing A. P. A. councils in different parts of the state is a silly fable. I don't belong to the A. P. A., and I would not be admitted to its councils. I haven't made a political speech for two months."

Unreciprocated Love.

CHICOPEE, Mass., Aug. 8.—Despondency, resulting from disappointment in love, was the cause of the suicide here of Miss Louise Lamoureux, a bright and attractive woman of 25 years. She was an orphan, and in letters that she left she said that she had for years contemplated suicide.

FUTURE OF THE SOUTH

Promises to Compare Favorably With the Northern Section.

Paying Crops of Fruit, Cotton and Grain.

Mills Going Up and a Consequent Demand For Labor at Good Prices.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8. — The Manufacturers' Record this week has the following interview with Hon. Hoke Smith in regard to the business outlook of the south, based on special investigations:

"I have never seen the south look so prosperous, especially Georgia. Hard times are rapidly becoming extinct, and I believe that the southern states are moving on to the most prosperous epoch in their history. Georgia farmers will make this year better corn crops and raise more wheat than ever before. It is safe to say that the food supply of that state, if properly distributed, will be sufficient for two years' consumption. The corn crop is in better condition than for years past, and will probably exceed every former production of the state. More fine hogs are being raised than for many years. The raising of all needed food supplies leaves cotton a surplus crop, and proves the diversified agricultural possibilities of that section.

"Cotton is sufficiently advanced to insure a good crop, and, while Texas is behind in proportional production, Georgia and the adjoining states will furnish an average yield. The crop will be produced at less than usual cost. Many southern farmers, because of enforced economy, are unable to borrow money on their crops, and on this account have made the present crop with less debts than heretofore."

Secretary Smith is enthusiastic over the signs of prosperity among the fruit growers of Georgia. "More peaches," he said, "have been raised and marketed than ever before in the history of the state. They are large and juicy. The magnitude of this industry can be appreciated from the fact that during the season one railway has been hauling from 60 to 90 carloads of peaches a day in refrigerator cars from Georgia to eastern points. These trains have been making even better time than the vestibule limited passenger trains. The watermelon crop in Georgia was a tremendous one, and in most parts of the state a profitable one. Grape growing is making rapid progress, and a number of Swiss settlers who purchased a few years ago some poor, red clay land have made remarkable success in growing grapes and making claret."

Secretary Smith says he noted many evidences of industrial progress, and believed that the industrial boom in the south, which was temporarily set back by the late panic, is on again. He says: "Cotton manufacturing was never more successful than it is today, and all the cotton belt mills are being erected and old mills are being enlarged. Much of this is being done by southern capital, although a number of New Englanders are making large investments in cotton manufactures in the south. In the iron district of Alabama a number of furnaces have recently gone into blast, and the workmen in that section are now fully employed and many of them at increased wages. All over the south the demand for labor is constantly increasing and at good prices.

"I look forward," said Secretary Smith, "to the south's future more firmly than ever before. Conditions were never better for a return of prosperity unexampled in the history of the section. If our people continue in their present conservative way, much of the flow of eastern capital, which has hither traveled elsewhere, will come to us. Unwise legislation might prevent this, but I do not believe such legislation possible. The place for a young man, an old man, a rich man, or a poor man, willing to work and anxious to improve his fortune, is in the south."

The Spring Valley Row.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Aug. 9.—Governor Altgeld has received word from Colonel Bayle at Spring Valley stating that one Italian was badly injured and may die, one negro was injured and will live. Several were bruised. Reports were generally exaggerated. No further trouble is feared unless the Italian dies. Some trouble may result then. No troops will be ordered out now.

From Little Trinidad.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Comte de La Boissierie, so-called grand chancellor of the principality of Trinidad, is in Washington, and yesterday wrote a formal request to Acting Secretary of State Adee for an audience, during which the claims of Baron Harden-Hickey as ruler over Trinidad might be presented.

THE REAL estate valuation of Quincy is larger than that of Waltham, and the personal estate more than that of Chelsea.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A beautiful day.

Quincy looks lonesome today.

The grocers were in luck for weather.

J. Munroe Perry is building a house on Arnold street.

The Quincy base ball team play at Ft. Warren Saturday.

It is probable that a new laundry will be started at Wollaston.

Mrs. Al. Williams of Wollaston is visiting at Lakeport, N. H.

The Wollaston ball team play at Ft. Warren on Labor Day.

Rain, yesterday, caused considerable damage in other cities, particularly north of Boston.

Miss Eva L. Maxim left yesterday for Yarmouth, Mass., for a month's visit among friends.

The Wollaston team desires a game with the Trimountains of Braintree, the Saturday before Labor Day.

Mr. O'Brien, the popular clerk at Souther's newspaper store, has gone into business with his brother.

Romeo Dunham, who was injured Tuesday by being knocked off his car by an ice wagon, is on duty again.

It was juvenile day at the District court and a number of young offenders were given a hearing before the State agent today.

The wires are all run and everything is ready to attach the electric alarm striker to the bell on the house of Hose 3 as soon as it arrives.

South street has become quite a resort for young people and every pleasant evening scores of young couples may be seen taking a promenade in that vicinity.

The Sons of Veterans of Brockton will have a field day on Labor day and one of the attractions will be a ball game between the Quincy and East Weymouth camps.

The Atlantic grocers have their holiday every Wednesday afternoon, and as they are not members of the Quincy Grocers' Associtaion their stores are not closed today.

Wednesday evening was Ward Three night on the steamer City of Quincy and the largest party of the season enjoyed the beautiful moonlight sail. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Granite City band.

The Quincy Reflector Lantern Co. is a new enterprise in which Quincy gentlemen are interested. When the reflector is in use it throws the light where needed; when not in use it enlarges the base. The lantern itself is the best on the market and altogether should become popular.

John Lyons of West street, West Quincy, had all the toes of one of his feet taken off about seven o'clock this morning by a freight train at South Braintree. The boy was employed in Woodsum's tack factory and was trying to steal a ride. He was taken to the Quincy hospital.

—A new front with a tower will be built to the Methodist church at Mattapan. A pastor's study and ladies' parlor will be added, and extensive improvements made.

—T. W. French, a life-long resident of Weymouth, died Wednesday night, aged 73 years. Years ago he was in the shoe business, but has lately been connected with the Oriental Oil company.

—The Norfolk County commissioners have ordered Taunton street in Wrentham to be widened at an expense to the county of $2,104, the town to pay the balance.

—Mrs. Hannah Belcher of Randolph, a lady 81 years of age, fell down stairs Wednesday and lived but a few minutes. She was the widow of Charles Belcher.

LATEST!

DEPOT ON FIRE.

A Poor Alarm Given at 1.35 This Afternoon.

Ward Six had Petitioned for a New Depot.

The alarm at 1.35 was so jumbled that many thought it was a cross of the wires, but it was for one of the liveliest fires of the year, and came near causing a loss of life.

It was the Atlantic depot and originated on the roof, probably from sparks and the upper story is completely gutted, and the furniture of Alden Packard totally destroyed. The lower story is damaged by water only.

Mr. Packard, who is a night watchman employed at the Consolidated Manufacturing Co., was asleep at the time and was aroused and saved with difficulty.

At 2 o'clock the fire was under control but the recall came over half an hour later.

GROCERS' DAY.

The Business Houses Closed and Proprietors Off for Outing.

Had the flags been put at half mast when the Quincy business men left town this morning, the celebration would have been complete, for the city is dead today. The grocers own the town or else business men in other branches are in league with them, for with very few exceptions all the stores of Quincy, whether in the Centre or the outlying wards, are closed for the day.

Few realized that our business men were such hustlers and that they would be missed so, but those who saw them off this morning were easily convinced that they were a jovial crowd, and conceded that they would stir things up.

In the party were about forty gentlemen who were comfortably accommodated on two of Crane's six horse drags. They carried bugles, horns, flags and all "the fixins" for an enjoyable outing. The Pilgrim fog horn was on the front seat with the driver and Senator Merrill. The Senator would have transferred it to the other drag, because it reminded him of the baby last night, but the other would not remove so pleasant a reminder.

Six grays were attached to one drag and six bays to the other and the fine turnouts together with the noise of bugle and horn attracted much attention en route to Scituate, where they are enjoying the day.

It was about 8.30 when they left Quincy and soon the streets looked deserted, but the stay-at-homes have enjoyed the discomfiture of the forgetful and the stranger.

The 9.30 express from Boston brought a drummer for men's hats to town. The carriage driver at the depot was on the make and started out with him to do the stores in his line. In conversation he told him it was Grocers' day, but the drummer did not suppose that Jones was a grocer, and wondered if he was in trouble when he saw the drawn curtains. But one of these signs was conspicuous:

NOTICE.
This Store will be CLOSED
Thursday, Aug. 8, 1895,
GROCERS' DAY.

Everywhere the curtains were drawn but he thought he would go to South and West Quincy and East Milton, and we have not heard with what success. He probably left town as soon as possible.

The Houghs Neck man who came up for a hair cut and shave, swears he will let his beard grow.

Just before noon a lady was rushing about bewildered after something for dinner, four out-of-town friends having dropped in unexpectedly, and caught her without any meat in the house.

The grocers will have much to be responsible for tomorrow. The LEDGER will report their outing.

—The Standard may be an expert on the game of checkers, but it should place the board right at the start: double corner at the right.

FIREBUGS CAUGHT.

Two Arlington Youths Suspected of Having Set at Least Eight Fires.

ARLINGTON, Mass., Aug. 8.—Two firebugs were captured yesterday. They made certain confessions to Deputy Fire Marshal Shaw and the chief of police. The firebugs are two boys, both about 14 years of age, and their parents reside in Arlington. They are John McCaffrey and James M. Mead. While they have thus far only admitted setting one fire, the operatives connected with the fire marshal's office are satisfied that they have set at least eight others, and expect that before many hours the boys will confess to that effect.

Silverites Routed.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Aug. 8.—One of the most notable state conventions in this territory of the Iowa Democracy closed in this city last evening after a long and hot discussion over the silver question. The final rollcall on the resolutions showed the white metal crowd defeated by a vote of 651½ to 420½. A mighty shout, mingled with groans, hisses and anathemas, followed the announcement of the result. A large number of free-silver delegates immediately left the hall, not waiting for nominations. The state ticket was then nominated as follows: For governor, Judge W. I. Babb; lieutenant governor, S. L. Bestow; superintendent public instruction, Lyman B. Parshall; railroad commissioner, Colonel George James; supreme judge, Thomas G. Harper.

The Wreck of the Masonic.

HALIFAX, Aug. 8.—The officers and crew of the steamer Masonic, wrecked at Miquelon, July 31, arrived here yesterday from St. Pierre. The Masonic was a new ship and bound from Swansea to Miramichi, N. B., in ballast. After nine days out, at midnight, without a moment's warning, during a dense fog, she crashed onto the rocks. The crew effected a landing by rigging a line and block with an endless fall between the steamer and the rocks, in a basket. The wreck was pretty well broken up by Aug. 2.

Bad For Spaniards.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—A Times dispatch from Havana gives the details of the fight near Bayamo on July 12, in which General Santocildes was killed. It says: The Cubans counted 378 dead and wounded Spaniards on the field. The Cuban loss was 14 killed and 78 wounded. The Cubans captured 425 rifles, 10 cases of ammunition, $16,000 in cash and the baggage and pack animals of the Spaniards. Over 20,000 insurgents are under arms now in the province of Santiago de Cuba alone.

Columbia's Worth Appreciated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The navy department is informed that the French government has shown its appreciation of the fine capabilities of the fleet cruiser Columbia by ordering the immediate construction of two vessels as nearly a duplicate of the famous American flyer as they can be made in the absence of our exact plans. They are to be known as "croiseurs corsaires," or pirate cruisers.

Tempest Is Subsiding.

OMAHA, Aug. 8.—Judge Hopewell yesterday dismissed the 10 members of the city council who defied the laws and the orders of the court on last Friday, after thoroughly convincing them of the fact that they had acted without a precedent, and were really in open contempt of court. He administered a severe rebuke to them. The case of the constitutionality of the new commission is still being argued.

A Gratifying Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—United States Minister Denby reports to the state department that amid the degradations and decapitations which were so common of Chinese military officers during the recent war, in every case in which a returned American student is mentioned in an imperial decree he is commended and awarded honors for bravery.

Trip Abroad Postponed.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Aug. 8.—Julius Bergoff was arrested here yesterday at the instance of Charles Mattlag & Son, provision dealers, New York. He was caught just as he was about to board a steamer for Hamburg. The order upon which he was arrested was issued by Judge Lippincott, and the amount involved is said to be in the vicinity of $20,000.

Via Key West.

KEY WEST, Aug. 8.—Reliable advices from Cuba are to the effect that the insurgents have blown up with dynamite the railroad bridges near Sancti Spiritus. It is also reported that Conde Lersundi (or Sersundi) has joined the insurgents.

Nobody Hurt.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Steamer Priscilla of the Fall River line was struck by lightning at her dock yesterday. The bolt hit the maintopmast and shattered it. There were over 2000 passengers on the boat, but no one was badly scared.

Strike Threatened.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 8.—The Providence Fire Extinguisher company employs about 1000 hand, and yesterday they demanded that their wages be increased 2 per cent. Unless a concession is made a strike will occur.

Well Known to Travelers.

INTERVALE, N. H., Aug. 8.—Samuel D. Thompson, one of the oldest hotel men in New Hampshire, died in North Conway yesterday of consumption. He was connected with many of the great hotels of the country.

No New Testimony.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 8.—The hearing on the charges of mismanagement and cruelty at the city farm was continued yesterday. Ten witnesses were examined, but the testimony brought out nothing new.

The Turnbull Murder.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 8.—John Kelleher was arraigned in the police court yesterday, charged with the murder of Peter Turnbull. His case was continued one week, and he was remanded without bail.

Mills May Close.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 8.—Twenty automatic knitters in the Contoocook mills struck yesterday for a restoration of wages paid in 1892. It is feared that this action may necessitate the closing of the mills.

A Boom For Concord.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 8.—The Boston and Maine Railroad company is to build two large passenger car buildings and repair shops here, which will give employment to about 200 men.

Again on the Briny Deep.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 8.—Schooner E. Arcularis, which went ashore on Hurricane ledge, was floated yesterday. She was apparently but little damaged.

THE BIRTHPLACES.

The Houses and Rooms Where Presidents Adams Were Born.

So many errors have been made in relation to the location of the rooms in the old President Adams houses in which the two Presidents were born, that the following letter from our respected townsman, Mr. Isaac Hull Adams, should be of more than local interest:

QUINCY, July 30th, 1895.

William G. Spear Esq., Librarian Quincy Historcial Society, Quincy, Mass:

DEAR SIR: John Adams, my grandfather, was born in the smaller house and in the front chamber nearest the street (not in the lower room) over the common parlor.

John Quincy Adams was born in the larger house in the east front chamber nearest the smaller house.

I was born in the same chamber in the smaller house in which John Adams came into the world and have often been told this by my father and mother.

Yours respectfully,
[Signed] ISAAC HULL ADAMS.

NOTE.—The smaller house is the most northerly of the two and is located at the right hand in all pictures taken (front view) of the old houses.

Large Block of Granite.

The largest piece of granite in the area of its surface ever gotten out in Concord, N. H., is now being finished up in the No. 3 shed of the New England Granite Works, says the Herald. It is to be, when completed, 16 feet, 9 inches long, by 12 feet, 7 inches in width and 1 foot thick. The original dimensions of the stone were much greater in the rough, when it weighed nearly 40 tons and could not be lifted by any derrick in the city. When completed it will contain 212 cubic feet. It is to be the roof stone of the magnificent Henrich tomb, to be erected in Washington D. C., and which will be ready to ship entire by the latter part of August. The tomb is to cost between $30,000 and $40,000.

New Magazines.

The Overland Monthly for August will satisfy the demand of summer readers for light literature with an outdoors flavor, and yet has articles that are of permanent value. Of the latter, "What Indiana Has Done for California," by J. A. Woodson, is notable. The bicycle is treated historically by H. Ansot. It is quite suitable that a Frenchman should treat this subject, because France has done very much in the various inventions that have made the modern machine. Professor Ansot writes enthusiastically and interestingly of this popular theme. In sketches, poems, stories, reviews, editorials, and all the usual departments, the number is up to its usual standard, and an able exponent of the West Coast.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12 Durgin & Merrill's Block.

GOLF AT WOLLASTON.

Grounds All Ready and Club Will be Formed At Once.

Wollaston is to have a golf club. One of the best grounds for golf that can anywhere be found is at Bellevue, within a mile of Wollaston, and within five minutes walk of Norfolk Downs station. The right to use the grounds has been secured; the holes, tees and flags set, and golfers who have played on the links are enthusiastic over the location. The club will be formed at once, that all the time possible may be used this season.

The grounds, flags and holes will come to the club without cost, so that the club will need only a dollar each from members, thus deterring no one who wishes to play this manly game from joining in the healthy and exhilarating sport.

The preliminary work is in charge of Mr. Wendell G. Corthell, Mr. William Fenton, Jr., Mr. Everett L. Litchfield, Miss Sherman and Miss Marion Shermon.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Going and Coming of the Summer Cottagers.

The season of 1895 at Houghs Neck is rapidly drawing to a close and inside of three weeks those families who have children of school age will be turning their faces homeward. From now out, however, the resident will make the most of the good weather and will enjoy themselves to the utmost. For some reason there does not seem to be many gatherings of a social nature here, the residents for the most part being content to remain within their own domicles, but then Houghs Neck is what might be called a residential summer resort.

Dr. W. W. Fullerton of Brockton is at Houghs Neck for the month of August.

William George of Roslindale and family are in a cottage on Charles street.

Mrs. Moyhan and family are in the Hillstrom cottage street.

George Chapman and family of Ponkapong are at their cottage on the sea front.

Rev. Mr. Teele and family of Milton are in the Unquity cottage on Manet avenue.

William Lexter of Station 10, Boston, with his family are in the Blieler cottage on Manet avenue.

Mr. Wyberg and family of Roxbury are in the A. W. cottage on Sea street.

It was fine here after the rain Wednesday, as there was not a particle of dust and the streets were hard.

A concert and social for the benefit of St. Frances' church will be held at the Casino, Tuesday evening, August 20.

Mr. C. Briggs and family are at the Pleasant View cottage on Centre road.

Mr. French and family of Quincy are in the Park cottage.

Mr. Rich and family of Brookline are at their cottage on Manet avenue.

Mrs. Wheeler and family, Mrs. Mayforth and family, of Springeld, and Hon. Edward Carney are at the Eventide.

Mr. Butterfield and family of Arlington are in the Bell cottage.

The drinking fountain was connected with city water Wednesday.

Mrs. H. C. Bentley and family are in the Curtis cottage at Rock Island.

H. W. Briggs and family are in the Reed cottage on Centre road.

Mrs. Lash and family are in the Loretta on Bell street.

The St. John cadets of Worcester, who are camping here this week, are having a glorious time.

Mrs. Lowden and family of Somerville are in the Chisleburst cottage.

The first ball of Hose 5 will be held at the Casino next Wednesday evening.

Mr. Tower and family are in the Virnie cottage on Sea street.

E. W. Guy and family of Brockton are in the Lookout cottage on Manet avenue.

Nothing as yet has been done toward the annual illumination and it will probably not be held until early in September.

Mr. Keefe and family of Roxbury are in the Linden cottage.

The family of Mrs. Walter M. Lowney are in the Scott cottage on Rock Island road.

Thomas Connelly and family of Roslindale are in the Harvey cottage on Bay View avenue.

J. M. Lewis and family are in the Everbreeze cottage on Manet avenue.

Fred Bryant and family of Sharon are in the Magnolia on Bay View avenue.

J. H. Turrell and family of Boston are in the Turrell cottage.

J. W. Sawtell and family of Waltham are in the Collins cottage.

AT GAY LONG BRANCH

THE ROUND OF FASHIONABLE DIVERSIONS AT THE FAMOUS RESORT.

Dressing, Driving, Dancing and Bathing the Chief Amusements—The Quieter Charms of Atlantic Highlands—Where Girls Catch Crabs and Devil Them.

[Special Correspondence.]

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 6.—The season is now at its height. The great hotels are crowded, and the big drive which is the pride and glory of Long Branch is thronged with as many smart private equipages as may pass each other with safety. Driving, dancing and bathing are the sum total of Long Branch's amusement, and the height of the season means when there is the greatest number here to enjoy them.

The Jersey beaches are favorite resorts for New Yorkers, who can run to and fro daily, and who feel that if they tire of things they can at any moment reach the city in a few hours. They present a union of coast and verdure unsurpassed, and the presence of city conveniences in cottages, hotels and even shopping quarters leaves little to be missed. And then the contiguity of a host of other popular resorts—Asbury Park, Seabright, Elberon, Ocean Grove, Atlantic Highlands and Normandie-by-the-Sea—is a great attraction to the society loving New Yorkers.

Amusements succeed each other at the various points thick and fast. When it is not horse racing at the Branch, it is a bicycle race at Asbury, a tennis tournament at Seabright or a formal dance to a charming band at the Highlands, and all through distinctly separate quarters with a varied scheme of amusement as easily reached as may be different quarters of New York itself.

One is sure also to meet a host of interesting people. Actors, authors, musicians, artists, who cannot sever communication with the city through the holidays, swarm the Jersey coast. You meet them with the mask thrown off all a-pleasuring, from the leading man who has been the winter idol of the matinee girl to the poet, painter or singer who has been hitherto a faroff beloved mystery.

To enjoy Long Branch one must drive a great deal. The private vehicles are very fine, and those who have not their own and cannot afford to hire a good one regularly will lose the principal opportunity for display and rendezvous. The bicycle is in vogue, but it will not replace for the summer girl the lounging carriage seat, where charming frocks and pretty poses disclose her at her best in a way the bicycle never can. Morning and afternoon the drive skirting the ocean presents a moving panorama of luxury and display not elsewhere surpassed, and if you cannot be a member of this daily and much lorgnetted show you are a lost cipher at Long Branch.

At Atlantic Highlands.

Atlantic Highlands, close by, is different. There you can enjoy the best there is without a fortune. Cottage rent is not exorbitant. You can get from June to October a pretty, coolly furnished 10 to 12 room cottage, surrounded by a wide honeysuckled veranda, for $500. Unless for specially planned functions, people do not dress much. The highlands, which are simply a succession of thick leaved, lifting woods, slope down to the lower bay, which, being still water, makes an encouraging place for young swimmers to learn. Those who want surf bathing drive or take the eight minutes' train journey to Highland beach, where they can get all the buffeting they want.

The bathing costumes are all quiet, and as there is no smooth beach the all day lounging in startling attire of both men and women is a thing unknown There is no parade ground either for walking or driving. Long Branch is a duplication of city life during the season. One can't go out there on foot or in carriage unless prepared to be critically focused.

Atlantic Highlands folk turn out from their cottages, nestling in verdure, dressed as they might in the New England rural center, and take long walks to the Navesink Highlands, to Locust Point, ramble idly through the woods, sit on the several piers running out into the bay, drive to the Branch as informal outsiders, not on exhibition, to Seabright, Normandie-by-the-Sea or any other resort they may care to enjoy without the trouble of dressing for it.

Cottage life is the principal one. There are several hotels and boarding houses, at the latter of which one may put up comfortably for about $12 a week in a good sized room and with a good, liberal table. Hotel rates are $4 a day. The old Methodist church has this season been converted into an amusement casino. Here a capital mixed band plays every afternoon and in the evening a string orchestra. On Saturday evenings the subscription dances of the cottagers are gay and exclusive. There is plenty of pretty dressing in quiet, good taste, but the absence of diamonds or an enormous variety of French ball gowns won't make a nice, interesting girl any the less a belle.

Crabbing at Locust Point is a glorious, popular pastime. A walk of a mile and a half through a green country takes one there from the Highlands. The banks of the Shrewsbury river are here decked with houseboats, and from the host of the wayside inn rowboats, crab bait and nets can all be rented for a song. Along the banks the crabs are as thick as possible, and through the clear water on a warm day when the tide begins to flow you can see the deliciously eatable gentlemen making for the bait a good deal faster than you can draw them in. Atlantic Highlands develops many good shellfish cooks, for nearly every girl who catches a basket of crabs at Locust Point is anxious to devil them herself for supper.

Attractive Prospects For the Approaching Annual Meet of the American Canoeists.

[Special Correspondence.]

ALBANY, Aug. 6.—The American Canoe association is soon again to assemble its members on the picturesque shores of Lake Champlain, and already many canoes and canoeists have passed through this city northward bound for the annual meet, which takes place at Bluff Point from Aug. 9 to Aug. 23.

The association is an international organization, having over 2,500 members and comprising four sectional divisions —the northern, including all of Canada; the eastern, all of New England; the Atlantic, the basins of the middle Atlantic rivers, with their seaboard, and the central, the balance of the United States. Any amateur canoeist over 18 years of age is eligible to membership and invited to join.

The association, with its constantly growing numbers and widening influence, affords increasing fraternal benefit and moral force. It promotes the interests of canoists, especially in the direction of paddling and sailing for pleasure, and also by holding meetings for camping and racing, aiding the formation of new canoe clubs and giving facilities for obtaining information through its librarian and official organs as to routes, etc., for cruising purposes and in regard to canoe and sail designing.

The annual general association meet and also the division meets bring together members from all parts of North America in friendly intercourse and competition, forming a source of great pleasure and enjoyment. The association provides a code of rules for the supervision of paddling and sailing races, and through its influence keeps its branch of sport free from the slightest taint of professionalism.

The pioneers in American canoeing were Messrs. Bishop, Alden and Longworth, who formed the association on Lake George in 1880. Since that date the growth has been very large. Annual meets have been held as follows: 1881-2, Lorna island, Lake George; 1883, Stony lake, Ontario; 1884-5 6, Grindstone island, Thousand islands, St. Lawrence river; 1887, Ben Arrow point, Lake Champlain; 1888, Long island, Lake George; 1889, Stone island, Thousand islands, St. Lawrence river; 1890, Jessup's neck, Peconic bay, Long Island; 1891-2, Wellsboro point, Lake Champlain; 1893, Brophy's point, Thousand islands, St. Lawrence river; 1894, Croton point, Hudson river.

This year the association goes for the fourth time to Lake Champlain. The location is about three miles south of the Plattsburg, at the northern end of the lake. The camp ground is close by the celebrated Hotel Champlain, at Bluff Point, and the mess pavilion will be supplied from that hotel. The grounds consist of 450 acres of beautiful park and woodland, and the surroundings are very picturesque. The largest United States military post in the east is close by, with its social attractions, dress parade, music, guard mount, drills, etc. An Sable chasm, one of nature's marvels, is within easy driving distance. The visiting canoeists will share in all of these attractions, and the meet promises to be one of the most interesting and important in the history of the association.

But there are other attractions to Lake Champlain besides the scenery and the prospect of a good time and delightful paddling. In that lake and in the innumerable streams and lakes in the adjacent Adirondack region superb angling waters are found. As a distinctive angling water Lake Champlain is at the very apex. Over its whole area of 120 by 12 miles the lake is dotted by many beautiful islands, the largest and most picturesque of which are South Hero, North Hero and Isle-la-Motte, which constitute the Grand Isle county of Vermont. No fishing resort on the continent boasts a purer air, freer breeze, more salubrious climate or better facilities for recreation of every description.

The canoe meet will be attended by the usual events of sailing and paddling races, and the prizes will be of the unique kind that are always given at the meets.

The commodore of the association this year is Mr. Walter C. Witherbee, one of the most expert yachtsmen on Lake Champlain. The secretary-treasurer is Charles E. Cragg. Both of these officers live in Port Henry, on the lake. Mr. Cragg is one of the noted singers of the camp. FREDERIC G. MATHER.

Coasting.

On September 15, at Waltham, in a coasting tournament wherein seven or eight of the leading bicycles were represented, "The Spalding" finished first, second and third. The greatest tribute to the coasting ability of "The Spalding" Bicycle was paid by Capt. Allen of Philadelphia. On the trip to Glen Summit he was the only one able to come down the mountain without a mishap, which feat in itself should clearly establish the superiority of "The Spalding" at coasting, when the extraordinary declivity of Glen Summit is considered.

A SWEET YOUNG FACE.

Along the noisy city ways
And in this rattling city car,
On this the dreariest of days,
Perplexed with business fret and jar,

When suddenly a young, sweet face
Looked on my petulance and pain
And lent it something of its grace
And charmed it into peace again.

The day was just as bleak without,
My neighbors just as cold within,
And truth was just as full of doubt,
The world was just as full of sin.

But in the light of that young smile
The world grew pure, the heart grew warm,
And sunshine gleamed a little while
Across the darkness of the storm.

I did not care to seek her name,
I only said, "God bless thy life,
Thy sweet young grace be still the same,
Or happy maid or happy wife."

American and British Missions Attacked by Vegetarians.

Chinese Troops Can Render but Little Aid.

Further Details of the Recent Attack on the Missions at Ku-Cheng.

CANTON, Aug 8.—The British and American missions at Fath-Shan were attacked yesterday afternoon by a large and infuriated mob.

The hospitals were demolished.

Some of the missionaries fled to Shamen, while others remained.

A Chinese gunboat has been dispatched to quell the riots.

It is reported that all the missions at Kwang-Tung will soon be destroyed and the missionaries driven to the treaty ports.

The Vegetarians are 12,000 strong and well-armed and organized, and able to withstand the Chinese troops.

THE KU-CHENG MASSACRE

Described by Dr. Gregory, an American Missionary at That Place.

Dr. Gregory, an American missionary, who escaped from Ku-Cheng, gives the following account of the massacre there: At 12:30 p. m., Thursday, Aug. 1, a native Christian rushed into my study, saying that several of the foreign ladies at Hwsang, a mountain resort about 12 miles from the city of Ku-Cheng, had been killed that morning, and that two houses had been burned. Fifteen minutes later a note from Mr. Phillips confirmed this. He wrote that five ladies were dead, the Stewarts were missing, and four persons were seriously wounded. He expressed the hope that I was then on my way to Hwasang.

I immediately went into the Yamen, where hundreds of excited natives had already gathered, and requested the district magistrate, Wong, to send some soldiers at once to Hwasang to protect those still living. In half an hour the magistrate went to Hwasang under an escort of about 60 soldiers.

At 3 p. m. I left Ku-Cheng under an escort of 13 soldiers, arriving at Hwasang at 8 p. m., to find that nine adults, all British subjects, had been murdered, and that all those still alive at Hwasang—eight only—had been more or less injured, excepting Mr. Phillips, who had arrived only two or three days before and was lodging at a native house some distance from the English cottages.

I was delayed in leaving Ku-Cheng, owing to the fact that the coolies refused to carry chairs. On my arrival I went to work to make the injured as comfortable as possible.

Miss Codrington received a sword cut extending from the angle of her mouth, diagonally, outward and downward seven inches long, completely dividing the lower lip and exposing the interior maxillary bone; one cut on the crown, three inches in length and quite down to the inner table of the skull; one cut across the nose, beneath the right eye, five inches long, and another, three inches long, on the right side of the neck. The last two were skin wounds only. There were also two contusions on the right arm and a deep punctured wound on the outside of the right thigh. Her condition is serious.

Miss Mabel C. Hartford, of the Methodist mission, the only American residing in Hwasang at the time, was living in a small native house some 20 rods from the English cottages. She was attacked by one of the assassins armed with a trident. She received a slight cut in the lobe of the ear; was thrown to the ground, beaten about the lower extremities and the body. While the murderer was engaged in this attack a servant grappled with the assailant, and during the struggle Miss Hartford escaped.

Miss Hellis remained hidden until all was over. Her nervous system sustained a serious injury.

Mildred Stewart, aged 12 years, received a wound on the outside of the right knee-joint, six inches long, exposing the joint, and two punctured wounds, one on the left leg and one on the left foot. Her condition is serious.

Baby Stewart, 13 months old, has a severe injury to the right eye, a small penetrating wound in the frontal region, which enters the cranial cavity, and several severe bruises on the head and body. The injuries will probably prove fatal. All the wounds apparently were made by the swords and spears.

Of those killed outright, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Nellie Saunders, and Lena Pellow, an Irish nurse, were almost wholly incinerated in the burned house. In all probability they were murdered before the house was burned. Kathleen Stewart saw Nellie Saunders lying unconscious on the nursery floor.

Hessie Newcomb was cut on the left cheek and left hand, probably with a spear, and then was thrown over a steep embankment, where we recovered the body.

Miss Marshall's throat was frightfully cut, and there was a deep sword wound in the left wrist.

I failed to find any serious wound on the body of Miss Stewart. I am inclined to think she died from shock.

Miss Gordon received a deep spear wound in the face, another in the side of the neck and one on the right side of the head.

Topsy Saunders' death was caused by a spear wound on the right side of the head, the weapon entering the brain. The last three bodies were lying in one heap.

This frightful massacre was done by the members of the secret society known as the Vegetarians, who have been causing much trouble alike to Christians and heathens in and around Ku-Cheng city.

From various reports of those who saw the attack, I believe that about 80 men were engaged. They were armed with spears and swords, and seemed strongly organized under one leader. The attack came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, not one of the victims having the slightest intimation of the intention to assault them. Thirty minutes from the time the onslaught commenced not a single Vegetarian was to be seen near the grounds of the massacre.

When the question is raised as to the cause of the terrible massacre, one need have little doubt that the Vegetarians were the active participants, and that the local and provincial authorities were directly implicated in the crime seems certain, for the society has been strong around Ku-Cheng for two years, and increasing.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 7.—Pittsburg sent Ehret to the bench before the third inning was over, hitting him for seven hits and as many runs, when Kissinger was substituted. Before the side was retired, four more runs were scored, making a total of 11 for the inning. Foreman, the boy wonder, did not exert himself, but the visitors could do nothing with him, and in the seventh inning he quit, to give Hewitt a trial.

Strike Is Ended.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Meyer Schoenfeld, who has successfully engineered the strike between the contractors and the tailors, was the recipient of many expressions of congratulation last night as he made the announcement that the strike was practically over, save for the stubbornness of a few contractors. The small contractors, having shown an inclination from the start to keep the fight up with the tailors, will be boycotted before the end of the week, as their former employes are finding employment in other shops.

The Railroad Rate War.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The eastern passenger men are in trouble over the discovery that the Chicago market is stocked up with return portions of round-trip tickets from the east. The scalpers have about all they want of the tickets. The Baltimore and Ohio helped things along a trifle yesterday by announcing an excursion from Chicago to points on the Atlantic seaboard for one fare for the round trip. No other road has met the rate as yet, and it is not certain that any of them will do so.

Secretary Carlisle May Now Be Promoted to the Supreme Bench.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 9.—Howell E. Jackson died at 2 p. m. yesterday at his residence at West Meade, aged 63. He was affected with a complication of diseases which it was impossible to fight off. Nevertheless, he did not take to his bed until eight days ago. After that his family and friends realized that the end was near.

Howell Edmunds Jackson was born in Paris, Tenn., April 8, 1832, so that he was in his 63d year at the time of his death. Justice Jackson was a classical scholar, graduating from the West Tennessee college in 1848. He studied law two years at the University of Virginia and in Jackson under his kinsmen, Judges A. W. O. Totten and Milton Brown; graduated from the Lebanon law school in 1856, in which year he located in Jackson and engaged in the practice of his profession; removed to Memphis in 1859, where he continued the practice of law, served on the supreme bench by appointment on two occasions, and was once a prominent candidate for supreme judge before the nominating convention; relocated in Jackson in 1876; was elected to the state house of representatives in 1880 on the state credit platform; was elected to the United States senate as a Democrat in 1881, and served till April 12, 1886; was appointed United States circuit judge by President Cleveland and nominated for associate justice by President Harrison, was confirmed by the senate Feb. 18, 1893, and entered upon the duties of the office March 4, 1893.

JUSTICE JACKSON.

When Justice Jackson was so seriously sick this spring that he was not expected to recover, the name of his successor was considerably speculated on. The idea was suggested by some that the president would again name Messrs. Peckham or Hornblower of New York, while the selection of a man from the west fell to Don Dickinson. Postmaster General Wilson was strongly spoken of as among the possibilities, while the majority of opinion was that Secretary Carlisle could have the place if he wanted it. Mr. Carlisle would be especially eligible, as he would be appointed from the same district that the death of Justice Jackson has made vacant.

The last time Judge Jackson was in Washington was on the occasion of the rehearing of the income tax cases last May. He had been absent from the city and from the bench since the preceding fall, when, soon after the convening of the October term of the court, he had been compelled to go south on account of his rapidly declining health. During his absence there had been contradictory reports as to his physical condition.

Mr. Jackson had the reputation in Washington, and especially around the supreme court, of being very sensitive concerning any discussion of his health in the public press, and he referred to the subject very sparingly in his own conversations. The other members of the court were therefore poorly advised as to his condition. This state of affairs is said to have been the reason for the equivocal character of the announcement of the decision to grant a rehearing in the income tax cases, which of necessity Depended Upon Mr. Jackson's Presence.

He was in Washington on the occasion of the rehearing, for several days, and gave his attention assiduously to the income tax cases. He sat through the argument, which continued for three days, took part in the consultation of the court, and when the day arrived for the announcement of the decision, not only listened patiently to the opinions of most of the other members of the court, but delivered a vigorous opinion of his own in support of the validity of the law. This occurred on May 20, and was his last public appearance. He returned to his home in Tennessee late in May.

When Judge Jackson was last in Washington it was evident to all who came in contact with him that life was slowly but surely ebbing away, and that the effort he made in performing his duties in the income tax emergency was made at the expense of his vitality.

As senator and justice of the supreme court, Mr. Jackson had resided in Washington about eight years. His associates here were confined largely to his colleagues on the bench and in the senate chamber. By them he was universally esteemed as a man of high moral worth and rich intellectual attainments, as was evinced in nothing so much as in his appointment to the supreme court bench by President Harrison and his confirmation by a Republican senate.

Judge Jackson was twice married, the first time to Miss Sophia Malloy, daughter of David B. Malloy, a banker of Memphis, who died in 1878. Of this union were born four children, as follows: Henry, Mary, William H. and Howell Jackson.

In 1876 Judge Jackson married Miss Mary E. Harding, daughter of General William Harding. Of this union three children survive: The Misses Elizabeth and Louise Jackson, and Harding A. Jackson. With the exception of Miss Elizabeth and William H., Jr., who are now in Europe, the children were at the bedside when the sufferer passed away.

Left Her Home.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 9.—Miss Mattie Hayward, who two weeks ago attempted to commit suicide by taking paris green and carbolic acid, because she found that she was not married to Paul Ludwig, as she supposed, has disappeared from her home.

BURIED IN RUINS.

Thirteen Men Believed to Have Been Killed at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The northeast corner of West Broadway and Third street was the scene of a fatal building collapse yesterday, but the extent of the disaster cannot be positively determined until the ruins have been completely overhauled and the loss of life learned.

It was the middle section of an eight-story unfinished structure that collapsed, and down with the falling floors and roof were carried a number of workmen, some of whom were crushed to death.

John Burke, one of the buried workmen, was carried out dead. Close beside him was found Charles Smith, an electrician. He died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Policemen and firemen were summoned to dig out the imprisoned workmen. They took out seven men from the ruins. These men were all badly hurt, but they are expected to recover.

Eleven workmen who were employed in the building are missing. If these men were killed in the ruins the total number of dead will be 18. Peterson is known to have met his death in the ruins, although his body could not be seen.

There are different theories regarding the cause of the disaster. One is that the floors were overweighted with material. Another is that an upright girder in the center of the structure was defective.

Spain Evades Payment.

MADRID, Aug. 9.—Prime Minister Canovas del Castillo has replied to the protest against the payment of the Mora claim until the sanction of the cortes shall have been obtained, and has decided to suspend the decision of the government to pay the claim in three installments, and afterward to try to induce the United States to recognize Spanish claims for damages in Florida to property of subjects of Spain during the civil war.

Lunatic Killed by Lunatic.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 9.—W. N. Hurst, a lunatic, killed a fellow lunatic, Stephen DeLong, in the Eastern lunatic asylum. The two violent lunatics were placed in separate beds in the same room. An attendant at daybreak found DeLong, dead, on the floor, with his head crushed, and Hurst holding a piece of carpet, in which was wrapped a brick. Hurst got the brick from the wall behind his bed.

Piazza Gave Way.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 9.—Several people were injured by the collapse of a piazza floor at the Sea View hotel, Rye Beach, last night. A social party and entertainment was being held by the guests of the hotel, at which a large number were present. About 100 persons were on the piazza when it gave way. The distance was only eight feet, but a number received a bad shaking up.

Admitted His Guilt.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9.—Charles Jenkins under arrest for complicity in the destruction of the wholesale stationery warehouse of Boyd, Gillies & Co., made a startling confession yesterday, during the progress of the preliminary inquiry into the case at the police court, asserting that he was employed to burn the building by interested parties.

Apathy Condemned.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9.—Great anger is felt here at the omission to send British troops from Hong Kong to escort the consul to Ku-Cheng. The ministers in Pekin fail to realize the gravity of the situation. It is highly advisable that British troops go to Fu-Chau. The viceroy has not sufficient force, except on paper, to make arrests.

Mortally Wounded Two Girls.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Phillipo Giampaba, a shoemaker, aged 25, stabbed and probably mortally wounded Katie Weil, aged 18, and Rosie Weil, aged 27. Katie had lived with the Italian, but left him some months ago when a child was born. She had him arrested for annoying her, and the stabbing was the result of his rage.

Set Nightgown Afire.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 9.—Hannah Hurley, living on Center street, was sleeping with her daughter last night and rose to light a lamp. She dropped the match, and the flame caught fire to her nightgown, and she was burned to a crisp. She was about 78 years old and a widow.

Decision Not Reached.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 9.—The final session in the poor farm investigation was held last night. Superintendent Savage, Overseer Hubbard and others denied the charges of cruelty, lack of proper food, etc. A decision will be given by the committee in a few days.

Railway Depot Burned.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 9.—The Atlantic depot on the New York and New Haven railroad was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Alden Packard, a night watchman, who lives over the depot, was asleep at the time, and narrowly escaped with his life.

Defeat For Almontine.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9. — Pittsburg Wilkes defeated Almontine in three straight heats in a trotting race here yesterday. It was a match race for $1500 a side. Pittsburg Wilkes has a record of 2:16¼, and Almontine of 2:19¾.

Spadero a Murderer.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Giuseppe Sgrio, who was shot Wednesday morning by Frank Spadero on North street, died at the Massachusetts general hospital at about midnight. Spadero will now be arraigned on a charge of murder.

WAS "CUT AND DRIED"

Hwasang Massacre Not the Result of a Sudden Outburst of Fury.

Vegetarians Declared Their Intentions Beforehand.

Prompt Action Necessary to Prevent a Series of Further Riots.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A special from Foo-Chow to The World says: The evidence already obtained shows that the massacre at Hwasang was planned at least a week beforehand.

The foreign consuls have the names of the leaders in it and some of the participants. An official of Foo-Chow sent 210 soldiers into that section on July 24, to prevent the Vegetarians from murdering the Chinese.

The Vegetarians thought the missionaries had caused the troops to be sent, and decided to kill them. They began immediately to gather at a certain designated place. In passing through the villages on their way to the rendezvous the Vegetarians publicly declared their intention to destroy the churches and to kill the Christians.

The local officials knew of this, but they did nothing to protect or even to warn the foreigners. The night before the massacre, a native pastor in the city of Ku-Cheng heard the Vegetarians were going to kill the foreigners on the morrow. He wrote a letter of warning to Mr. Stewart at Hwasang, but delayed sending it until daylight. The messenger arrived half an hour too late. Dr. Gregory was in the city of Ku-Cheng at the time, but he was not notified. The foreigners had no suspicion of the intended slaughter.

Story of One of the Victims.

The statement of Miss Mabel C. H. Hartford, the only American at Hwasang at the time of the massacre, is as follows: "Aug. 1, at 7:30 a. m., I heard shouts. They were the yells of servants, who rushed in shouting to me to get up, for the Vegetarians were coming, tearing down the houses on the hill belonging to the English mission.

"A few minutes later a teacher came to my door and told me to run. I put on my clothes and rushed to the door. I was met by a man with a trident spear, who yelled: 'Here is a foreign woman.' He pointed the spear at my chest. I twisted it to one side, and it just grazed my ear and head. He threw me to the ground and beat me with the wooden end of the spear. A servant came and wrenched the spear away, and I ran along the road. All this time the yells went on, and two houses were burning to the ground.

"After a while the yells stopped. I went home to find Miss Codrington much cut about the head and beaten all over; Mildred Stewart, 12 years of age, the knee cut, and bleeding very hard; Herbert Stewart, 5 years of age, cut on the head, and almost dead; Baby Stewart, with one eye black and swollen; the second Stewart girl, Kathleen, 11 years of age, with the second boy, Evan, 8 years of age, were beaten and pierced with a spear, but not seriously injured.

"Mr. Phillips of the English mission, who lived some distance away, escaped all injuries, only arriving in time to see the bodies of the dead and hear the Vegetarians say: 'We have killed all the foreigners.'

The Dead.

"Mr. Phillips went to the ruins and found nine bodies, five not burned and four burned so as not to be recognizable —R. J. Stewart and his wife, a nurse from Ireland called Lena, Nellie Saunders and Topsy Saunders of Australia, Hessie Newcombe of Ireland, Elsie Marshall and Lucy Stewart of England, and Annie Gordon of Australia. The first four were burned beyond recognition.

"Topsy ran out of the house and was killed outside. Hessie was thrown down the embankment, with her head nearly severed from her shoulders. Hannah Gordon's head was also nearly cut off. Herbert died on Aug. 2.

"Uong, the Ku-Cheng magistrate, came to Hwasang Friday afternoon, Aug. 2, with 100 soldiers. He viewed the bodies, saw the injured, inquired the names of all the places of the injured and made out an account. He did what he could to help us to get off to Sulkow.

Another Mission Gone.

A mob has just looted the American mission chapel at Inghok, 50 miles from Foo-Chow. Unless prompt, effective action is taken, there is danger of great riots in other places.

The Chinese soldiers sent to Ku-Cheng to protect foreigners' property plundered the Stewart residence. No American gunboat has come here. The situation is critical.

An official, on his way to this city from Ku-Cheng, was killed yesterday. The anxiety is increasing. There is no American protection.

Garment Workers' Officers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—At the convention of the National Trades' Assembly of Garment Workers the following officers were elected: Master workman, M. C. Seegers, St. Louis; worthy foreman, W. A. Schneider, Chicago; recording and financial secretary, E. D. Labine, Syracuse; treasurer, Frank Arminger, Baltimore. The next annual assembly will be held in Boston.

All Quiet.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Aug. 9.—The troubles in this city for the present is at an end. All shaft whistles blew for work last evening, and the settlement arrived at gives general satisfaction. In all likelihood Manager Dalzell will bring in the exiled negroes and set them to work. The mayor says he will protect them.

Reports Greatly Exaggerated.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Aug. 9.—Governor Altgeld finds the reports concerning the trouble at Spring Valley greatly exaggerated, and says that there is nothing in the situation, as it now appears, to justify calling out troops or any state interference in the matter.

The minstrel show at the Monatiquot house Thursday evening attracted a large number.

Joseph York of Wollaston, was reelected Grand Instructor of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows on Thursday, at a salary of $1,000.

The LEDGER will print tomorrow several interviews as to whether the new schoolhouses should be built of brick, stone or wood.

A Weymouth man who heard the Pilgrim fog horn last evening as the grocers wended their way through that town said that was a long-winded cus.

The town of Franklin, in this county, has twice as many acres of taxable land as Quincy, yet the valuation of this city is about ten times that of Franklin.

Mr. Thomas F. Hogan an esteemed young man of this city was married on Monday last to Miss Jennie Toner of Westerly, R. I. Mr. and Mrs. Hogan will reside in West Quincy.

The funeral of John Bisset was held Thursday afternoon from his late residence on Copeland street and was very largely attended. No services were held at the house, but Clan McGregor escorted the body to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where services according to their ritual were held.

What some of the firemen would like to know is how one round from box 51 closely followed by a recall came to be pulled in Thursday. Perhaps Engineer Sparrow, who was sent to box 61 to sound the recall for the depot fire, might explain how it was done.

An important meeting of the Democratic City committee will be held this evening at Wilson's hall. Mr. Walter B. Wilson, the present chairman of committee will probably send in a letter of resignation, as he intends making his residence in the State of Maine. Many candidates for the chairmanship are in the field, but it is impossible at this time to pick his successor.

"In union there is strength," which must be true of a whist club in Whitman, judging from the avoirdupois of the twelve lady members. At an excursion to Houghs Neck recently, six of them turned the scales at 1,000 pounds, and it was estimated that two of the party who refused to be weighed would weigh at least 450 pounds. —Brockton Enterprise.

Generous Bequests.

The Sailors' Snug Harbor in this city, which is excellently managed, is often receiving generous bequests. The will of Benjamin P. Cheney, late of Dover, the pioneer expressman, a millionaire, was filed at Dedham this week. By it many public bequests were made; among the number the Sailors' Snug Harbor is left $2,000.

Bass at Ponkapoag.

A beauty of a black bass was caught last week in Ponkapoag pond by Mr. J. H. Bowles of Milton. It weighed five hours after it was caught, a little over five pounds, and it is said to be one of the largest ever caught in the pond. Mr. Bowles, after experimenting with different kinds of bait with little success, adopted a combination of shrimp and worm on a single hook. The "meat" caught the fancy of the bass, and after a struggle of ten minutes it was safely landed on the float near the edge of the pond.—Brockton Enterprise.

The Tax Rate.

The tax rate of this year, $16.80, is a reduction of eighty cents from that of 1894, but $1 more than in the third term of Mayor Fairbanks in 1893, and the highest with the exception of last year since Quincy became a city.

Town vs. City.

The comparison of city and town rates is still in favor of the city, if we take the average for the seven city years and compare with the last seven of the old town, as will be seen:

TOWN. Year.	Rate.	CITY. Year.	Rate.
1882,	$16.00	1889,	$10.80
1883,	15.00	1890,	13.60

Total,	$106.50	Total,	$104.20
Average,	$15.21	Average,	$14.88

Tax Rates in Cities.

Not one-half of the Massachusetts cities have reported their tax rates this year, so no comparison can be made at this time. A few are given below:

	1895.	1894.
Lynn,	17.20	17.20
Waltham,	16 00	16.30
Holyoke,	16 80	15.00
Gloucester,	16 40	16.80
Chicopee,	13 18	13.18
Haverhill,	16 70	17.80
Chelsea,	17 00	16 40
Newburyport,	16 50	15.70
Woburn,	17 80	18.30
Lowell,	18.00	17.40
Quincy,	16 80	17.60

It will be observed that in the eleven given, five are smaller than Quincy and five as high or higher.

Town Rates.

But few towns, particularly in this neighborhood have reported their tax rates. Some are given:

	1895.	1894.

THE DEPOT FIRE.

Fire Department Criticised for Being Too Efficient.

The alarm from Box 64 did not come in very correct Thursday noon, as Box 62 was pulled at the same time, but the indicator at the Central station gave the right number and the department were soon on the way to what proved a stubborn fire in that antiquated building known as the Atlantic depot. The Central station apparatus made a remarkably quick run, reaching the scene of the fire just ahead of Hose 2; too quick the Atlantic people say.

When they arrived the upper part of the building was a roaring furnace, and the smoke was so thick in that vicinity as to become almost stifling.

The Combination Chemical, which was first on the scene, laid a line of hose from the hydrant on Hancock street, as did also Hose 2. Two lines were also run from the hydrant near the depot and a fifth line came from the steamer on Old Colony street. A sill cock stream at the depot did good service before the department arrived.

With all these streams the building was surrounded and the water pressure was excellent.

It was the oft expressed wish of the bystanders to let her burn but the department heeded them not but put out the fire.

The upper part of the building was occupied by Alden Packard, a night watchman at the Consolidated Manufacturing Co.'s works.

Mr. Packard was at home alone at the time but was asleep and he had some difficulty in getting out and it was impossible to save any of his furniture which was practically ruined. The damage to the lower part of the building was by water.

Mayor Hodges was an interesting spectator to the fire.

As the men were making up some one said Box 51 had sounded and there was a hustle for a few moments throwing on rolls of hose and away they started.

That alarm proved to have been caused by a cross of some nature and the additional run was had for nothing.

The loss on the depot is estimated at $300 and on the contents at $200.

A Shock to Quincy Point.

Word was received in Quincy this morning of the death in Bradford, N. H., on Thursday, of Mrs. Belle Gillis, wife of Mr. William Henry Dean of this city. The body will arrive in Quincy, Saturday, and the funeral will be held from her late residence 172 Washington street, Sunday.

Old But Enterprising.

The anniversary number of the Salem Daily Gazette issued last week was as interesting as it was enterprising. It was the 127th anniversary of the establishment of the Weekly Gazette, and a fac-simile of the first page of the first number is certainly ancient and a curiosity. There were scenes of a century ago and considerable historical matter.

IN A BAD TANGLE.

Haverhill Man Has Two Wives Who Are Causing Him Much Trouble.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 9.—Tuesday Amos J. Lafoe published a notice in a local paper to the effect that his wife, Mary, had left his bed and board, and, in consequence, he would pay no bills of her contracting.

Yesterday Julia A. H. Lafoe, living in the western part of the city, appeared and declared that Amos Lafoe is her husband, and that he had never been divorced.

Lafoe admits the truth of the statement, and says his first wife knew of his second marriage, but promised to make no trouble for him.

He left Julia in 1890, after having a troublesome married career of 10 years, and a year later he married Mary Fisher. He has lived in this city all the time, and some of the time near his first wife.

The second wife was a New Hampshire girl, and they were married in that state. He had lived peaceably with her until the present time, but of late trouble had ensued. He did not like the female friends of his wife, and wanted her to keep away from them. This she refused to do, and she left him. Lafoe will claim ignorance of the law, but Mrs. Lafoe No. 1 will push the case.

Grand Welcome Assured.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—When the Christian Endeavorers came to Boston in July they saw on every hand evidence that they were welcome. Even so will the Knights Templar be welcomed with equal cordiality, and with equal profusion will the colors of Masonry be displayed. The blue, white and red, together with the gold and purple, and black and white, will meet the eye on every hand. The Knights will doubtless be glad that they came. Boston's hospitality can be shown at any time, and no less sincere will be her greeting to the Sir Knights than to the Endeavorers. On every hand is already being planned the method of silently expressing welcome in glowing colors in bunting by day and electricity by night.

Three Killed.

PLYMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 9.—The "Cannon Ball," in charge of Conductor Bennett, collided with a special freight, which had started from Concord, head-on, at what is known as the "fill," Plymouth. Engineer Stevens and Fireman Merrill of the "Cannon Ball" and Fireman Glines of the freight jumped to the right, and were caught under the locomotive and killed. Engineer Moses of Concord and Pilot Coburn of the freight jumped to the left, and escaped with a severe shaking up and other slight injuries. Arthur Austin, a brakeman on the freight, was badly injured. It is the general opinion that the wreck was caused by the negligence of the freight train crew.

An Undesirable Pauper.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 9.—The selectmen of the town of Lincoln are taking novel measures to relieve the town of the expense of supporting Hannah Adamson, a pauper. Hannah is 64 years old, and several years ago was married to Ira Harris of this city. Subsequently, it is claimed, Harris found that she had a husband living at Naugatuck, Conn. Yesterday the selectmen of Lincoln placed before the district attorney evidence of the woman's alleged bigamy, and the matter will be carried before the grand jury.

An Easy Victory.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—The Defender defeated the Jubilee over the 21-mile triangular course off Brenton's Point by 9m. 19s. yesterday. The breeze was light, hence the race was stopped after the course had been once covered, as was the case in Tuesday's events. The Defender seemed able to do whatever she pleased with the Jubilee, although the Boston boat was in excellent trim. The schooner race, which was started just before that of the sloops, was won by the Emerald.

Money In Whales.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 9.—The will of the late Francis W. Lawrence was filed yesterday. The New London memorial hospital receives $5000 and St. James Episcopal church $7000. Three nieces are left $40,000 each, and the rest of the estate goes to his surviving brother, Sebastian D. Lawrence of this city. Mr. Lawrence was a millionaire, the greater part of his wealth having been accumulated in the whaling industry.

Odd Fellows' Election.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The state grand lodge of Odd Fellows elected the following officers: A. S. Estey, grand master; W. S. Nevins, Salem, deputy grand master; John Corkhill, Pittsfield, grand warden; J. U. Perkins, Chelsea, grand secretary; J. L. Clarke, West Newton, grand treasurer; A. S. Pinkerton, Worcester, grand representative. The officers' reports showed the lodge to be in a flourishing condition.

Citizens to the Rescue.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The repair shops of the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn railroad at East Boston were burned last evening. In the shops was a large quantity of dynamite, to be used for blasting purposes. This was taken out by citizens before the fire department arrived. The total loss is $75,000.

Tracey Re-elected President.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9. — The seventh annual convention of the Cigar Makers' union of New England came to a close yesterday afternoon. Thomas F. Tracey of Boston was re-elected president; L. W. Weeks of Lowell, vice president, and E. E. Brunell of Hartford, secretary.

Frank Mitterlholzer, a Milford (Conn.) baker, was accidentally shot by Eugene Parthenay, a companion, yesterday. Parthenay was bound over to await the result of his companion's injuries.

Conrad Wahrenberg's saloon at New Britain, Conn., was entered by burglars. They emptied the money drawer and stole liquor and cigars. The watchdog was found asleep in the saloon in the morning.

State Referee Loomis of Hartford has resigned from the Connecticut state board of mediation and arbitration, to which he was appointed a month ago by Governor Coffin, leaving the board with but one member.

STORIES OF BLACKBURN.

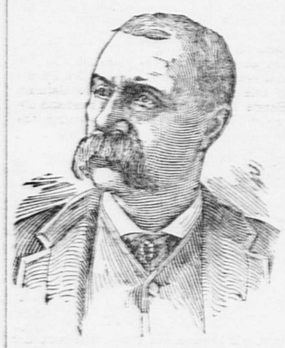

Kentucky's Free Silver Advocate Is Popular With All Who Know Him.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Joseph C. S. Blackburn of Kentucky, now officially known as senator, ever since boyhood days called captain, and always known to his admirers and intimates as Joe, has been doing things all his life that have made folks talk. Just at present his course upon the silver question is particularly provocative of comment and conversation. Some there are who indorse his course enthusiastically, and some there are who decry it with emphasis. But now, as always, everybody who knows him likes him, and a dispatch concerning his latest speech is rarely read without provoking the recital of some story about him.

He is a genuine Kentuckian in everything implied by that term, but it cannot be said that he has never found anything more to his liking than the sometimes dull if eminently dignified job of being a senator. He is not a student of books. He studies men closely, however, and he gets most of his views and opinions from talks with his fellows rather than from perusal of ponderous tomes. Once when he was rallied upon his lack of studiousness he said he carried his working library in his hat, and that he was taught to do without books when but a young practitioner by old Joe Baird, a leading criminal lawyer in northern Kentucky, some decades ago. Blackburn had gained some repute as a pleader and had been compared on one or two instances to this veteran, Baird. One day the young man visited the old one, who, though not a college graduate, was noted for his shrewd sense and was a jury pleader who could not easily be matched. Blackburn found Baird's office almost void of furniture and containing but two books—a copy of the statutes of 1842 and one of the criminal code. "Where do you keep your library?" inquired the visitor. The old man jerked his thumb in the direction of the two old books. "Don't ever buy books, Joe," he said. "They'll only bother you."

Like all real Kentuckians, Blackburn loves a horse, and all his constituents know it. It was probably the knowledge of this characteristic that led the authorities of a race track, not a thousand miles from Louisville, a few years ago, to select Blackburn as one of the judges, the late Senator Beck being the other. Of course it is improper for judges to bet on the horses in a race they are judging, but the two senators laid a wager all the same, the stakes being $10, and straightway forgot they were to make a decision at the close of the contest. Now, it so happened that the horses they were backing ran very close all the way around the track, and neither of the backers was able to tell which was in the lead when the half mile post was reached.

HON. J. C. S. BLACKBURN.

As they came around the bend to the home stretch, however, Beck's horse pushed his nose ahead, and Beck began excitedly yelling that he had won. Blackburn was quieter, but he, too, got excited, and before the wire was reached the two men were animatedly discussing the question as to which horse would pass under first. At the moment of passing neither was looking at the horses, and for the life of them they could not tell how to decide the race. "What shall we do, Joe?" questioned Beck anxiously. "Don't worry, Jim," said Blackburn. "I guess it wasn't very close, and if we just keep quiet things will adjust themselves." It turned out that way, luckily for the reputation of the senators. The attendants put up the figures, and Blackburn saved the reputation of himself and Beck by simply nodding cordially to the jockeys as they came up. Senator Beck used to like to tell this story, and at the windup he used to add that he never sat in a judge's stand after that, being quite satisfied thenceforth with the accommodations furnished by the grand stand.

Senator Blackburn has another quality not entirely unknown among Kentuckians, and that is the fondness for polysyllables which, combined with the ability to utter them glibly, results in what is known as the "gift of gab." In his young days he was sometimes accused of being grandiloquent, but as he usually won his cases he was not generally criticised, excepting by his opponents. One of these, who was beaten in this instance, by the way, was once moved to say in speaking of Blackburn: "If you or I wanted to state that two and two make four, we'd be just fools enough to blurt it out in so many words, but if Blackburn wanted to make that statement he would say: 'If by that particular arithmetical operation known as addition we desired to arrive at the sum of two integers added to two integers, we should find—and I assert this boldly, sir, and quite without fear of successful contradiction—we, I repeat, would find by that particular rule of arithmetic, properly applied—and, sir, I hold myself personally responsible for the assertion I am about to make—that the sum of two given integers added to two other given integers would be four.'"

CHARLES APPLEBEE.

Old Batting Order Helped Boston Take Two Games From Brooklyn.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Boston put its best foot forward and won two games from Brooklyn in brilliant style. It was an auspicious reopening for the old batting order, and worked well. Lowe, Bannon, Duffy, McCarthy and Tucker did brilliant work. For the Brooklyns, Corcoran, Tom Daly and Shindle played excellently, and the outfield took almost everything that came its way. The catchers on both sides left nothing to be desired.

GROCERS' OUTING.

Reported to Have Been a Very Tame Affair.

The story of the outing of the Quincy grocers' outing in Thursday's LEDGER left the party starting on their journey to North Scituate in two of Crane's six-horse drags with the sound of the bugle and the blowing of the Pilgrim fog horn in the hands of an expert.

On the way down a census taken showed those in the party to be as follows: Joseph Johnson, Robert Johnson, Charles Brooks, Osborne Rogers, John F. Merrill, A. G. Durgin, George E. Wilson, Capt. N. P. Doane, A. F. McLeod, William Callahan, George Prout, Joseph Prout, Frank Brewer, John W. Nash, Thomas J. Lamb, Lester M. Pratt, Mr. Smith (bugler), Herbert F. Doble, B. F. Dyer, F. S. Patch, E. F. Porter, D. E. Wadsworth, Fred Tirrell, Arthur Dobie, George Ames, Warren S. Parker, J. S. Blagdon, B. J. Weeks, George Richards, Benjamin Johnson, Jr., Mr. Spooner, John Curtis, James Thomas, Howard Rogers.

Upon the manly breast of each was a neat ribbon badge, and by far the larger part of the party had cigars fixed firmly between their teeth.

Some of the party also carried mackintoshes, but nothing was said as to whether they were to be used to keep the wet out or the wet in.

Thus was the start made. Fortunately or unfortunately, which depends upon how you look at it, the LEDGER man was not among the party, but from top of Presidents' hill, armed with the famous detective glasses of Henry Faxon, a very good view of the gathering at Scituate could be had. A long distance telephone also came in handy, but owing to atmospheric disturbances much of the interesting conversation was lost.

It was near noon when the party arrived hungry as bears, and they welcomed with delight the announcement of dinner and such appetites as they had. They ate everything and it was all the landlord could do to supply their wants.

The menu was a tempting one and started in with "Shallow soup" followed by "boiled leg of nothing," "fricassee doormat," "wind pudding" and many other courses too numerous to mention.

Dinner over then came the annual game of ball, the two nine being captained by Bob Johnson and William Callahan.

Councilman Lamb was selected as umpire and armed with a horse pistol in each hand and a bottle of ice water in his pocket he gave decisions with rapidity and regardless as to whether they were in accordance with the rules laid down in the book or not.

In another corner there appeared to be another kind of a game and from a distance it looked like that game where the more you put down, the less you take up.

Osborne Rogers stood silently by watching the sports. He was evidently sick, for he said nothing and when he says nothing it is pretty good evidence that he is not well.

Joe Johnson was really the only sporting man on the beach, as he was becomingly attired in nicely creased ducks and an outing shirt.

Lester Pratt was taken with a musical turn and he sat on a neighboring rock singing (?) to himself. People nearby heard something go by with a swishing whizz and one native tenderly asked who was dead.

In a shady nook in one corner there was a tub to which it was noticed nearly everybody made frequent trips and took copious, long drinks. There was a sign on the tub which was finally made out to read: "Fizz—good for that tired feeling."

Weeks was observed to be hard at work shoveling wind, and inquiry got the reply that he was trying to raise money enough to jack it up a little. How well he succeeded will perhaps never be known.

The telephone service had now become quite poor and the conversation seemed to be somewhat mixed but through the racket these exclamations could be heard; "raise you one," "foul out," "three cards," "go it Bob" "call you," "slide Prout, slide," "full house," "what's that, velvet?" There were also many other remarks of like nature.

The game of ball resulted in a victory for Johnson's nine by a score of 12 to 11. The result of the other games will never be known.

There was to have been a fat man's running race, and Charlie Brooks had issued a challenge to the crowd, but after seeing him run bases no one could be found who would enter the contest.

But why say more, everybody had a good time and arrived back in Quincy shortly after 9 o'clock, safe and sound and happy, but a little tired.

John Herman Loud, Associate of the Royal College of Music, who has recently returned from Europe, gave a grand organ recital at the Union church of South Weymouth last Tuesday evening.

The recital was given at the request of Mr. Loud's friends who were anxious to hear him play since his study abroad.

Mr. Loud was ably assisted during the evening by Helen Allen Hunt, contralto soloist, who is well known to Braintree audiences.

The entire affair was a complete success, and was up to the brightest hopes of Mr. Loud's friends.

MILTON.

East Milton people have not all become accustomed to the way of the electric cars yet, for Thursday as the car was about to start for Quincy a lady rushed out and asked the conductor if he would not wait a few moments while she changed her dress.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKay have returned home from a trip to New York and Coney Island.

Rev. Mr. Teele is taking an outing at Houghs Neck.

East Milton people are very much pleased with the electric road.

As two of the grocers at East Milton refused to close Thursday, T. L. Pearce kept his store open, although he gave his employes a holiday.

Services at the Episcopal church will be resumed early next month.

A NOBLE LIFE

SPENT FOR AND WITH SUFFERING WOMEN.

A Life's Work Perpetuated through a Faithful Daughter, and Records of Priceless Value.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

What a vast amount of misery and suffering has been prevented by the clear-headed foresight of one noble woman!

She had struggled, labored, and sacrificed for the welfare of her sex.

The eyes of the women of the world were upon her.

As she recalled the past, and tried to penetrate the future, a smile of supreme satisfaction passed over her honest face as she remembered that her life's work would be perpetuated.

The room in which she sat contained hundreds of volumes of records; and, turning to her daughter, she said,—

"My daughter, this room, as you well know, contains the records of my life's work, in which for many years you have so diligently assisted me.

"By earnest application you have compassed my methods; and it is a happiness to think that when I leave, the glorious work will, through you, go on.

"The mission is a noble one. Do as I have done: never permit a woman's appeal to go unheeded.

"These records tell of every case ever submitted to me; and it is my wish that the facts they contain shall in time prove a much-needed education to the women of the world."

Thus did Lydia E. Pinkham hand over to her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Pinkham, what may be termed the salvation of her sex; and that wonderful remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which all druggists consider as standard as flour, goes on redeeming hundreds of women from the fearful consequences of female diseases.

A Father's Song.

Welcome, O bright little sprite! I can see
Nothing in life half as winsome as thee,
Nothing that opens my heart half as wide
As thy cunning, soft coo, O my prince and my pride!
I linger in love o'er thy bonny young face,
And there in its tenderful trust I can trace
The loveliest looks of my bride, and I see
In thy moments rebellious reminders of me.

Yes, a sweet little, neat little cherub art thou,
Save when thou art fractious and kick up a row,
And then thou art such a true image of me
That no longer a charm in thy visage I see.

But when thou art lying serene in my arms
Like a pure, peerless sunflash returneth thy charms,
And I kiss and caress thee with fatherly joy
For looking so much like thy mother, my boy.

Oh, live to be all I would have thee to live,
And give to me all I would have thee to give—
A name that is stainless, a heart that is brave,
A hand that is lavish to succor and save,
A soul scorning everything lawless and low,
And these, O my boy, thou wilt give me, I know.

May God in his love be thy leader through life
And shield thee and save thee through all of its strife.
May every benison he can bestow
Caress thee, my idol, and bless thee below
And make of thy years one perennial bliss,
And I seal my fond prayer with a fatherly kiss.

SWALLOWED BY SEAS.

Steamer Catterthun Struck a Rock and Sixty Souls Perished.

Ship Prince Oscar and Unknown Craft Sunk.

Entire Crew of the Latter Believed to Have Gone to the Bottom.

SYDNEY, Aug. 9.—British steamer Catterthun, bound from Sydney for Hong Kong, ran on the Seal rocks, which lie between Sydney and Brisbane, and became a total wreck. Some of the passengers and crew were saved, but 60 persons were drowned, of which number 46 were Chinese.

The vessel struck at 2 o'clock in the morning. It was soon seen that there was no possible chance to save the vessel, and orders were given to abandon ship. All hands took to the small boats and laid their course for the mainland. One of the boats reached Forster, but the others have not been heard from, and it is feared that they have been lost. There were a large number of Australian and English passengers on the steamer.

A tug which has returned from the scene of the wreck of the British steamer Catterthun saw nothing of the remainder of the passengers and crew of the steamship. Second Officer Langfar, who had the watch on deck at the time of the disaster, states that the night was very dark. Suddenly the steamer experienced a terrific shock, and foundered a few minutes afterward. The Chinese made a rush for the boats, but only one boatload reached the shore. The missing passengers include three ladies.

The Catterthun belonged to the Eastern and Australian Steamship company of London. Her length was 302ft.; beam, 35ft. 5in.; depth of hold, 23ft. 7in. She was schooner rigged, of 2179 gross and 1406 net tons burthen. The officers of the Catterthun were English and the crew were Chinese.

COLLIDED AT MIDNIGHT.

The Prince Oscar and an Unknown Vessel Sunk In Ten Minutes.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—The British ship Prince Oscar, Captain Henderson, collided in midocean on July 13 with an unknown sailing vessel. Both ships sank in less than 10 minutes. Six members of the crew of the Prince Oscar and all on board the unknown vessel were lost. The survivors, 17 in number, were rescued by the ship Dharwar, after having been confined in an open boat, with neither food nor water, for three days. They were transferred to the British steamship Capac, from Pisaqua, and brought to this port last night.

The disaster occurred shortly after midnight in lat. 9.30 S., long. 28.20 W. The Prince Oscar, which was bound from Shields, which port she left May 27 for Iquique, laden with coal, and was going at a clipping galt on the port tack before a brisk wind, with all canvas set. It is estimated by the crew that she was making about 6¼ knots an hour, when suddenly there loomed up, directly under her bows, a four-masted vessel.

The mate asserts that the stranger had no lights burning, and after she was sighted it was impossible to alter the course of the Prince Oscar. The iron hull of the latter struck the unknown full amidships, knocking her on her beam ends, and crashing through the woodwork until her bow was more than half buried. The stranger went over almost on her beam ends, as the Prince Oscar backed away from the rebound.

As the crew of the Prince Oscar stood peering through the darkness, they saw the stranger partially right herself and then she rapidly began to sink. They listened in vain for some signs of life, but not a cry for help nor a word of command came from the stricken vessel. In less than five minutes from the time she was struck the stranger heeled over and plunged stern first into the depths below.

Captain Henderson of the Prince Oscar, who was below in his birth, rushed on deck just in time to discover that his ship was also sinking. The pumps were then manned, but, in less time than it takes to tell it, it was discovered that there was no hope from that source. Lifeboats were ordered cut adrift, and the men were told to jump and swim for their lives. They all went overboard, and, with the exception of two unfortunates, reached the small boats.

Captain Henderson, who was the last man to leave the ship, went over in his night garments and swam fully two miles before he was picked up. Both boats hovered about the scene of the wreck until daylight came, in an effort to rescue the two missing members of the Prince Oscar's crew. They found no one, however, and nothing to indicate the name, home or destination of their companions in misfortune.

Finally, they left the scene and headed they knew not exactly where. Twenty-four hours later a heavy sea struck the boat commanded by Mate Lynch and capsized it. Her occupants, eight in number, were thrown into the sea, and the already overcrowded craft which Captain Henderson commanded put quickly to the rescue. They were successful in getting four of the men aboard. The rest were drowned.

There were now 17 men in the small lifeboat, with nothing to eat, nothing to drink, and barely room to stretch their weary limbs. The sun was broiling hot, and their hunger and thirst were almost unbearable. Toward evening of the second day one of the crew discovered a small cask of fish oil stowed away in the little boat. This was dealt out to the survivors in small doses, and they used it to moisten their parched lips and tongues. Most of the men were partially naked, having had no time to secure any clothes before leaving their vessel.

For three days and nights they floated thus on the bosom of the South Atlantic, and just as they were about to abandon hope they sighted the ship Dharwar, from London, bound to Melbourne. They succeeded in attracting the attention of those on board and were soon upon her decks. They were accorded every attention, and furnished with food, drink and clothes, and four days later, in lat. 16.38 S., long. 37.30 W., were put aboard the Capac, bound for this port. All of the survivors still bear evidences of the sufferings they endured while aboard the small boat.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 11. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christ, the great physician.—Mark ii, 1-17. (A missionary topic.)

Christ's compassion upon and sympathy for mankind were manifested in the fact that in using His miraculous powers He almost universally did it in such a way as to relieve some suffering of humanity. He could have proved His divinity by working miracles in other ways, but He chose to do it in this way, with one or two exceptions. Christ's healing of the body was not, however, His special life mission. This was to heal the soul. Mankind was stricken down with the terrible incurable disease of sin, and Christ came into the world particularly to be the physician of the soul "to call sinners to repentance." The topical reference presents Christ as the physician of both soul and body, but it is the former alone that we are to consider.

1. Christ is an infallible physician. The friends of one sick with palsy bring him to Christ. He first pronounces his sins forgiven, and when the scribes in their hearts charged Him with blasphemy He cured him of his palsy to prove His ability to forgive sins. Christ is able to cure all cases of sin. He never lost a case. He is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto Him. No one need despair. The most sinful may be cleansed. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they may be white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they may be as wool." Christ is God, and therefore has the power to forgive sin, and can forgive in all cases.

2. Christ heals the soul through faith. It is by our faith in Him that we are forgiven and saved. When Jesus saw the faith of the friends of the man stricken with palsy, He said, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." They believed in Christ to such an extent that they went to great trouble in order to bring their friend to Him. The success of any physician depends largely upon the faith of the patient in him. We must trust implicitly our physicians if they are able to benefit us. In curing the soul faith is an absolute necessity. "We are saved by grace through faith." Faith is the only remedy for a sin sick soul. Have we faith in Christ?

3. Christ came to heal the sick. Christ came to save not the righteous, but sinners. This includes all men. All are spiritually and morally sick. All have sinned—Jew and Gentiles, Greek and barbarian, Christian and heathen. Christ is the only physician of the soul, and therefore we should do all in our power to make Him known to all who know Him not.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xv, 26; Ps. xxxii, 1, 2; xli, 4; ciii, 1-5; Isa. i, 4-6, 18; liii, 1-5; Jer. xvii, 14; Hos. xiv, 4-7; Math. ix, 10-12; xviii, 8-11; John i, 29; iii, 17, 18; xii, 47, 48; Acts xxii, 16; II Cor. v, 21; I Pet. ii, 24, 25; I John i, 9.

The Study of the Bible.

I find one of the best ways to study the Scriptures is to study topically. Merely reading the Bible is no use at all without we study it thoroughly and hunt it through for some great truth. I have carried this Bible with me a good many years. It is worth more to me than all the Bibles in this place, and I will tell you why—because I have so many passages marked in it, and, if I am called upon to speak at any time, I am ready. I have these little words in the margin, and they are a sermon to me. Whether I speak about faith, hope, charity, assurance or any subject whatever, it all comes back to me. Every child of God ought to be like a soldier and always hold himself in readiness, but we can't be ready if we don't study the Bible.—D. L. Moody in "How to Study the Bible."

Better Than the Old World.

General Booth, who recently made a tour in this country, expresses his views of America and Americans as follows:

"There is not the same vulgarity here one finds in Europe. The people are better educated. They are a nation of professors of religion, a nation of members of churches. There is an astonishing number of people who publicly profess religion, but whether there is more religion here than in Europe I very much question. When one considers the vast importation of the foreign element, the moral condition of the country is very remarkable. I do not think America is quite as godless as the old world is."

The Lutheran Church.

The Lutheran church in this country has 26 theological seminaries, with 1,033 students and 90 professors; 35 colleges, with 5,162 students and 297 professors; 27 academies and 13 female seminaries, with 5,427 students and 301 teachers; 85 orphans' homes, with 1,742 orphan children; 44 English church papers, 49 German and 40 in several other languages.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

The information committee brings the convention spirit into every prayer meeting.

Two thousand four hundred and eighty-two societies are now enrolled in the British section.

There are 12,500 Endeavorers in Oregon.

A South Australian Junior society supplies its pastor's study table with a bunch of flowers every week.

The young people of the Christian churches of Indiana are building a Christian Endeavor cottage at Bethany park, which is the annual meeting place of their denomination. Nearly $800 have already been raised.

As Nevada is called the Silver State, and as the sage bush is her best known product, the Endeavorers have adopted silver and sage green as state colors.

The society among the apprentices of the United States naval training station at Newport, whose members were transferred to service on the training ship Essex, has reorganized with 27 members.

WENT FAST AGROUND.

Defender Struck Goat Island Spit While on a Practice Spin.

Not Thought to Have Been Greatly Damaged.

Anticipated Race With the Jubilee Has Been Declared Off.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 10.—The Defender went out for a spin yesterday afternoon, and, as she was returning to the harbor, ran aground hard and fast on the spit which runs out from Goat island. The tide was on the ebb, and after several trials it became apparent that the sloop could not be freed before high tide.

The run yesterday was taken merely for the purpose of keeping the boat in tune, and she tacked up and down the harbor for several hours, maneuvering with her sails and practicing her crew. After her run she was making for the harbor, but when off Goat island those aboard felt a slight heave of the hull, followed by a cessation of motion, and they knew the sloop had grounded on the spit which runs out from the island.

The tide was ebbing fast, and when, after futile attempts to free the sloop, it became apparent that the crew must wait for the next tide, they busied themselves in laying plans for floating their boat. These were put into effect soon after 8 o'clock last evening, when the tide was Well on Toward the Flood.

The men were sent out on the boom to try to "cant" the sloop off. Their combined weight so far aft was what was needed, and the plan worked excellently. At 8:30 the Defender floated clear of the spit and at once proceeded up the harbor to her anchorage. It is thought the sloop is uninjured, as she grounded easily and the tide did not leave her high enough to cause any strain. Her bottom will, however, be examined by a diver.

At 6 o'clock last night all hopes of a race between the Jubilee and Defender were crushed by the unexpected departure of the Jubilee for Boston. The question of the race was the chief subject for anxiety among yachtsmen yesterday, and the matter was seriously considered by all interested. At one time it was announced, on what seemed good authority, that the race would take place. This was shown to be incorrect, however, by the departure of the Boston boat, which was the only answer vouchsafed to the many queries concerning the situation.

Neither the captain of the Defender nor the Jubilee would say a word about the matter, and perhaps their silence was taken for consent to the proposition to race again. At any rate, a race was generally expected today, and the knowledge that it will not take place has caused much disappointment among the citizens and many of the yachtsmen of Newport.

The Defender will remain here till Sunday night, when she will sail for New York.

Templars' Book.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—A most beautiful souvenir will be produced for the coming conclave of Knights Templar. It will be official, and has been prepared by the triennial committee on publication. Its pages contain not only important matter immediately connected with the events of the approaching conclave, but in addition valuable papers are presented written expressly for it by some of the best informed members of the order. Portraits of distinguished Knights Templar, half-tone cuts of buildings identified with the growth of Masonry in this state, illustrations of monuments and points of historic interest in and about Boston, are given in great profusion, together with much other matter calculated to render the volume of special benefit to visiting Sir Knights, as well as one worthy of being preserved as a durable memorial of the triennial conclave of Knights Templar of 1895.

Town Robbed.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 10.—The town of Newton, N. H., has new developments on the famous forged bond case. The $10,000 worth of 10-year bonds paid by the town in 1885 and placed in the town safe by the then chairman of the board of selectmen, Almon F. Drake, has been stolen. One of the present board of selectmen called upon Mr. Drake and asked him if he knew where the cancelled bonds were. Thinking he could at once place his hand upon them, he went to the town office and found that they were missing, and diligent search failed to find them. The town will probably be called to produce $30,000 worth of cancelled bonds at the October term of court in the suit brought by Johnson of Haverhill to recover on a No. 8 $500 alleged forged bond.

Killed a Playmate.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 10.—Edgar Parker, 8 years old, and Mayland Nash, 12 years old, in company with several other boys, started out yesterday to shoot birds. Nash had a 32-caliber revolver and was fooling with it, when it was accidentally discharged. The ball entered Parker's left side and passed through his heart, killing him almost instantly. Nash threw his revolver away and ran into the woods, where he was found several hours afterward in an exhausted condition. He will not be arrested. The Parker boy was a great favorite.

Stuart Girl Was Murdered.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—Judge Forsaith of the municipal court, in his finding upon the inquest in the case of Alberta Stuart, says that he finds that the girl came to her death July 26, 24 or 25 from asphyxia by drowning, and that he is of the opinion that a severe assault had been committed upon the girl, and that she was immersed while alive. The evidence does not disclose by whom the act of violence was committed. He does not find it on the evidence to be a case of suicide.

Crops Eaten.

ROYALTON, Vt., Aug. 10.—Farmers on the hills in this town and other Windsor county towns are suffering from the depredations of grasshoppers. In many instances pasturage is injured so as to materially reduce the yield of milk, and other stock is suffering. In some instances fields of grain are injured severely and have been plowed under and the crops given up for this year.

Festive Knights of Pythias.

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., Aug. 10.—The special train to convey the Knights of Pythias of Lewiston and Portland and other points, after the Pythian day concert and Evergreen park at midnight, was detained all night for lack of telegraphic orders, the wires having come down. The knights made things lively during the night, and had a pig race all over town early in the morning.

Loss of $175,000.

WARREN, Mass., Aug. 10.—The foundry of the Knowles steam pump works, together with a large wooden pattern house, were destroyed by fire last evening. The fire caught from flasks set afire from uncooled castings. This fire throws out of work about 150 men. The total loss will amount to about $175,000. This is the third time this foundry has been burned.

Nearly 700 Out.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 10.—The strike of the 46 doffers and backboys at the Boston Manufacturing company mills is creating considerable excitement here. OLNEY THE FAVORITE

In the Consideration of an Appointee to the Supreme Court.

Question of Residence Only Stands In the Way.

Wilson, Carlisle, Dickinson and Others Are Also Spoken Of.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—There are many persons, whose relations with the president are of the closest character, who believe that Mr. Cleveland's first choice as a successor to the late Justice Jackson would be Secretary of State Olney.

SECRETARY OF STATE OLNEY.

It is known that he places implicit confidence in the soundness of Mr. Olney's opinion on all important legal questions which come before him, and that he fully appreciates the great assistance Mr. Olney has rendered him in the disposition of the great questions that have arisen during the last two years.

Whether Mr. Olney's residence in Massachusetts will render him unavailable is not known, but it is the opinion of many well-informed persons here that but for this objection Mr. Olney would surely be the man.

Next to him Rufus Peckham is thought by many to be the most likely to receive the nomination. The question of confirmation would not be raised, it is said, as it was in the cases of Wheeler, Peckham and Hornblower.

Other Names Mentioned.

When the serious sickness of Justice Jackson was announced last spring, gossip mentioned the name of Mr. Bissell, then in the cabinet, as the probable successor. The same suggestion is heard at the present time. As is usual when an important place is to be filled, the name of Secretary Carlisle is mentioned, but the general opinion is that should Mr. Cleveland go to his cabinet for an appointee he is more likely to consider Mr. Wilson or Mr. Olney. The name of Representative Josiah Patterson of Tennessee will probably be called to the attention of the President, as he comes from the state of the late justice and is known as a most loyal friend of Mr. Cleveland. The names of Don Dickinson and Solicitor General Holmes Conrad are also mentioned.

It is the general understanding that no appointment will be made until after the meeting of congress, as the place is one of too much importance and dignity for a recess appointee to go on the bench and take the chances of subsequent rejection by the senate.

There has been no case in the recent history of the country where an appointment has been made to the supreme bench during a congressional recess. It is suggested that the selection is most likely to be made from the east, and probably from New York, as Mr. Cleveland made the last appointment, that of Justice White, from the south, after the senate had rejected the names of Hornblower and Peckham, both of New York.

An Estimate of Tammany.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Times this morning publishes an editorial on the split in the New York police force, in which it says: It is greatly to be feared that Colonel Grant's action will stir all the old forces of corruption and misgovernment to renewed efforts. It is too probable that the mischief done by indiscreet observations cannot be undone. Tammany will strain every nerve at the autumn elections, and will, perhaps, succeed, as it has succeeded after previous disasters. Its success would be a public calamity.

Hughes Had Been Made Domestic Prelate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Information received at the papal legation of the sudden death of Rev. James Hughes, of Hartford, had a pathetic interest to the officials there. The deceased clergyman passed away ignorant of the fact that, in consideration of his long and faithful services, the pope had appointed him domestic prelate to the household of the pope, with the title of monsognor.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE TAX rate of Quincy last year was a record breaker, the highest in the history of Quincy, and no one expected an increase this year. The reduction was inevitable but is none the less welcome. The maturing debt was $11,279 less, and accounts for a reduction of 66 cents, of the total of 80. The aggregate of the State and county tax is also less this year. The levy for current city expenses is the same as in 1894, and would have been less but for an increase in appropriations, as the income was larger, including $5,000 from the Willard bondsmen and a big increase in water revenue. The item for interest in 1895 is $3,114 46 larger than in 1894, yet those who recall the argument at the last election that the debt had been reduced, and who have in mind that the rate of interest is lower cannot see the necessity for the increase. The income from polls is slightly smaller, and the amount for overlayings some larger. The total levy is only $5,000 less, although $11,000 less debt is being paid off.

Quincy's tax rate of $16.80 compares very favorably with other cities of the State. The average rate is probably below that of the cities generally, being but $14.88 for seven years of the city, and but $15.05 for the past fourteen years. The rates for the past two years are considerably in excess of the first five of the city, as the following comparison shows:

1889, Mayor Porter,	$10.80
1890, Mayor Porter,	$13.60
1891, Mayor Fairbanks,	$13.60
1892, Mayor Fairbanks,	$16.00
1893, Mayor Fairbanks,	$15.80
1894, Mayor Hodges,	$17.60
1895, Mayor Hodges,	$16 80

The gain in valuation this year is large, considering the dull times and the fact that some cities report a loss. It is hoped that circumstances warranted the increase.

Strang-Locke.

There was a pretty wedding on Pond street, Braintree, Wednesday noon, when Miss Martha W. Locke was married to Mr. Louis E. Strang of Boston.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Locke, and was performed by Rev. A. H. Ross of the South Congregational church.

The house was prettily arranged with ferns, palms, and vines, and together with the handsome gowns of the bride and her maids, it was one of the happiest affairs of the summer.

The bride was gowned in white silk with a chiffon bodice and carried white roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Marion E. Strang, sister of the groom, and Miss Agnes Locke, sister of the bride. They wore white dotted Swiss muslin with pink trimmings, and carried pink Marechal Neil roses. Mr. Frank Bemis of Boston was groomsman.

After Mr. Ross had completed the marriage there was a reception of friends and relatives and a wedding breakfast.

The bride and her maids were assisted in receiving by Miss Nellie Dyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Strang left for a short wedding trip and will live at 32 Falmouth street, Boston; at home in November.

Mr. Strang is assistant city editor of the Boston Journal.

OUR VALUATION.

Assessors' Figures of 1895 Compared with Past Years.

The Largest Gain in Atlantic, the Smallest Ward of the City.

Ward One, the Centre, Pays More Than Any Other Two Wards.

The valuation of the city, both the total, real and personal, is compared in the summary below for the past thirteen years and is supplemented by comments:

Year.	Real Estate.	Personal Property.	Total Valuation.
1883,	$6,071,660	$1,665,278	$7,736,937
1884,	6,332,795	1,765 691	8,098,486
1885,	6,604,975	1,884,490	8 489,465
1886,	6,887,890	1,631,266	8,819,066
1887,	7,434,350	1,950,370	9,384,720
1888,	7,825,250	1,632,710	9,757,960
1889,	9,736,625	2,582,620	12,319,045
1890,	10,458,200	3,209,210	13,677,410
1891,	11,157,925	3,268,905	14,426,830
1892,	12,272,575	3,291 845	15,564,420
1893,	13,605,675	3,032,695	16,638,070
1894,	14,088,175	2,729,280	16,817,455
1895,	14,5'0,825	2,735,030	17,325,855

It will be observed that the valuation has very nearly doubled since Quincy became a city in 1888. The average increase in seven years has been over one million a year, and the real estate has jumped from $7,825,250 to $14,590,825, The personal estate is not valued as high as it was five years ago, and is only one million larger than in 1883.

Comparison by Wards.

Every ward of the city except the Quincy Point ward shows an increase in valuation, and there the loss is small. Every ward gains in real estate. The Centre, Wollaston and Atlantic gain in personal estate, and Quincy Point, and South and West Quincy lose. Ward One continues to pay more in taxes than any other two wards and one third of the total. The little ward of Atlantic, the smallest in population, made the largest gain in total and real estate and also stands second in increase of personal. The Wollaston ward stands second in total and real estate gain and third in increase of personal. Ward One made the largest gain in personal estate, about one half of the personal estate in the city being in the Centre. Below are the figures for seven years:

WARD ONE.

Year.	Real Estate.	Personal Property.	Total Valuation.

—The government assay office at Helena, Montana, is receiving a great deal of gold from the mines of the Northwest, and lately cast a brick eleven and one-half inches long by five and one-half inches wide and three and one-half inches deep. The weight was 1,437 ounces, or nearly 120 pounds troy, and the value, at $20 per ounce, was $28,740.

Coasting.

On September 15, at Waltham, in a coasting tournament wherein seven or eight of the leading bicycles were represented, "The Spalding" finished first, second and third. The greatest tribute to the coasting ability of "The Spalding" Bicycle was paid by Capt. Allen of Philadelphia. On the trip to Glen Summit he was the only one able to come down the mountain without a mishap, which feat in itself should clearly establish the superiority of "The Spalding" at coasting, when the extraordinary declivity of Glen Summit is considered.

MIDSUMMER BALL.

The New Volunteer Hose Company at Houghs Neck to Celebrate.

The arrangements for celebrating the birth of the baby of the Quincy fire department which has been christened "Hose 5," have been completed and a general good time is expected. It is to consist of a promenade concert and ball, to be held in the Casino hall at Houghs Neck, next Wednesday evening, August 14. Even the lady residents of the beach have interested themselves in behalf of the new company, they having collected quite a good sum of money, which has been expended for a handsome silk banner which is now being appropriately lettered and will be presented during the evening. Capt. Taylor and the boys are straining every nerve to make their first annual midsummer dance a success. It is understood that a delegation from the Roxbury and Brockton Veteran associations will be present. Electrics will leave the beach "after the ball is over," so that all who attend need not worry as to how they will get home. Should any money be made it is to be expended in making their small quarters more comfortable and cosey for the coming winter, and it should be here stated that the company is composed of members who live at the Neck the year round, and being volunteers, serving without pay from the city, it is hoped that all who can will purchase a ticket, thus helping to "push a good thing along."

—The semi-annual report of the Odd Fellows lodges of Massachusetts show a membership of 49,490, a net gain of nearly 1000 in six months.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

A FEW OPINIONS.

Should Schoolhouses be Brick, Wood or Stone.

Each Has Advocates Among Our Prominent Citizens.

As Will be Seen by the Following Brief Interviews.

The DAILY LEDGER has sought a few brief opinions on the material which should enter into the proposed new schoolhouses upon which the City Council is still at sea. Brick, stone and wood all have advocates as will be seen:

Rupert F. Claflin was decidedly in favor of brick. On economic grounds brick in the long run is the cheaper expenditure. It is warmer in winter and cooler in summer; repairs will be much less with the passage of time; it is simply the up-to-date schoolhouse for large municipalities. The continued prosperity of Quincy is so well assured that we do not find it necessary to make temporary makeshifts which I would regard the construction of a wooden building as being. While school expenses are necessarily enormous, they give us the best returns for any public investment made. We should supply all the wisdom which we posses to get the best results.

Ex-Councilman Lester M. Pratt was in favor of wooden buildings and always had been. They were handsomer, cheaper and just as good in the end. He did not know as fire when once started did any more damage to a wooden building than in brick, and then it cost a great deal more to repair a brick building than one of wood. He would not object to a brick building like the Lincoln, which he considered a model school building. If we can build of brick like the Lincoln for the same amount of money and get the same accommodation, that might be better still, yet his preference was for wood.

Herbert F. Doble did not favor brick altogether, although it might be more economical in the end. He was in favor of erecting a school building of stone. Here we are in the midst of granite and we should have a building to represent our industry, and it certainly makes a handsome building. If we did not have granite so handy nothing else would do. He did not see why they could not combine granite with the brick. Wood would be much cheaper, but as I said before, let us have some building to represent our industry.

Ex-Senator John F. Merrill did not think that he was well enough posted. Ultimately all buildings should be built of brick. If the city cannot afford to build brick buildings and the difference is too great we should have wooden buildings in the outskirts. Other places have wooden buildings that look very well and he did not see why Quincy could not have them. It would do no harm to build these buildings of wood and enough would be saved in interest to ultimately build of brick.

Ex-Councilman Thaddeus H. Newcomb had advocated brick school houses when in the City Council, and would now for the centre of the city, but it was different where one or two new buildings were required each year, and the city should curtail on expenditures. Wood would be more economical, more beautiful and more appropriate in the residential sections which now need school houses.

Rev. A. F. Roche favored brick by all means. He thought it added greatly to the dignity of the city to have substantial building. It was cheaper in the end, no painting or repairs were required and it is certainly more durable. He believed all public buildings should be of brick. Many cities put up brick and stone buildings and do not insure them. The risk from external fire is less in brick than wood. Then grounds about brick building can be better adorned. All public buildings should be of brick. Although his first choice would be of stone as the money would be kept at home and circulated here. Stone can be made as dry as brick by leaving a hollow space between the external and interior walls. He believed that there was a too narrow policy pursued in city affairs. The reason other cities go ahead is because they take pride in having their city adorned with handsome buildings, and streets, and sidewalks, street lights and police.

Ex-Councilman William T. Shea said of the two kinds of buildings brick or wood, he certainly favored brick. In the first place it was more modern, more substantial and in the end more economical. If you are going to put up a permanent building it was poor economy to put up a poor one. If you ask me my preference for a building I should say build it of granite. We ought to have a building of granite as strangers visiting our city are surprised at not seeing more buildings of granite, for which Quincy is noted all over the world. Ward Four needs a new school building very much, and while I am not familiar with the wants of Norfolk Downs I presume that they are just as badly off and need a school building as much as we do in Ward Four.

—If the story is true that Rodman Wanamaker, son of the ex-postmaster general, paid $20,000 for a dinner for 22 persons in Paris last week, he is neither a typical American nor a typical Wanamaker.—Somerville Citizen.

QUINCY BREVITIES

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

William C. Wales' clerk is at Camp Idlewild for a two weeks' vacation.

Auctioneer Johnson advertises a large sale of pictures for this afternoon and evening.

The Columbus band gave a open-air concert at Braintree, Friday night, that was listened to by a large crowd.

Ernest Bizzozero and Batista Monti have dissolved copartnership, and the former will continue the business.

Mr. Eben Tirrell and brother Henry of Weymouth both over eighty years old are building a boat house at Quincy Point.

The old barn house on West street which has been on fire several times is being torn down and no more alarms need be expected for a fire in that building.

Mr. Gustavus M. Pratt of Weymouth has the contract for building the car house of the Quincy and Boston street railway and also the one for the Weymouth and Braintree company at Weymouth.

N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad officials were in town Friday looking over the depot at Atlantic. They also looked at a site near where the tower house now is, among the possibilities is a new depot to be located in that section.

The Quincy Yacht club's promenade concert by Baldwin's Boston Cadet band on next Friday evening, a notice of which appears in an advertising column, adds another to the list of excellent entertainments which the Club has given this season.

Today the yachts Beatrice, Swirl and Gleaner will enter the open races at Winthrop. The Gleaner and Swirl will have a hot battle for the Rosemore cup offered by H. P. Morrisey of Boston. The Gleaner has been hauled up this week and her bottom gone over. She was smooth as a mirror last night. Next week these boats will probably enter the four days' open racing at Beverly.

WOOD ALL RIGHT.

The School Committee Approve Plans for Wooden Buildings.

The School Committee don't mean that the responsibility shall rest upon them, because of the failure of the city to provide the necessary school buildings.

At a special meeting held last evening it was voted: That the plans of Randlett & Howe for a wooden school building be formally approved.

Voted also that the plans of Bacon & Wright for a wooden school building be formally approved.

There were present Messrs. Hallowell, Record, Page, Gurney, Burns and Crane.

Squantum Ladies' Day.

The Squantum Yacht club is observing its annual ladies' day celebration today. The programme consists of a sail around the harbor at 2 o'clock, promenade concert at the club house during the afternoon by the Granite City band, a collation upon the return from the sail. In the evening the Granite City band will give a concert in front of the club house and there will also be an impromptu entertainment and dancing.

Shed and Quarry.

Granite business is picking up. There is no doubt of it, as nearly all of the sheds about South Quincy are putting on more men and the merry click of the hammer is now heard on every side.

Thomas & Miller are putting on extra men.

The Craig & Richards Granite Co. have a very handsome display of cut monuments in their yards of granite and marble.

The monument to the late John Q. McDonnell was shipped recently. It is a very handsome affair and a credit to this well known firm.

During the month of July the number of pounds of granite shipped from Quincy Adams was 5,197,840 and the amount shipped from the West Quincy depot was 15,232,226. This is a very large increase over the previous month and the corresponding month last year, all of which goes to show that while appearances would indicate, perhaps, that the granite business was dull, it is in fact on the increase.

Among the contemplated plans for entertaining the visiting granite men is a trip down the harbor in the City of Quincy, a banquet and a tour about the granite sections of our city.

Fuller, Foley & Co., one of West Quincy's thriving granite firms, have our thanks for a handsome polished paper weight made from a sleeper used in the construction of the first railroad in America.

W. B. WILSON RESIGNS.

The Democratic City Committee Must Elect New Chairman.

The meeting of the Democratic city committee was held in the Wilson house last evening at eight o'clock. In the absence of the chairman, the meeting was called to order by William H. Warner, vice-chairman.

The records of the previous meetings were read and approved, and the letter of resignation of Mr. W. B. Wilson as chairman was received. The resignation was accepted, and the matter of a new chairman will be held in abeyance until Friday evening, Aug. 23, at 8 o'clock. The place of meeting has not been decided on, but will be stated in the call.

The executive committee, the three officers of the city committee and the chairmen of the ward committees, were charged with the revision of the rules and by-laws to conform to recent legislation. The meeting adjourned at 8.25 o'clock.

Quincy Knights to Entertain.

It is not generally known that during the Knights Templar conclave in Boston that South Shore Commandery, with many Quincy members, will have guests for two days. On the day of the big parade the stores of Quincy will close as early as possible, before noon. This, with the visitation of the Western granite men and their ladies, will make things lively here during that week.

—Dexter F. Clark, civil engineer, has been at work surveying the highway from Wilbur's brook at the West Corners, to the Randolph and Quincy line, a distance of 9000 feet, and making a plan for the Massachusetts highway commission, so that they may know just what Randolph desires in an improved highway. This plan, made by Engineer Clark, is a splendid piece of work, and is highly commended by the Selectmen of Randolph.—Register.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Shows Business to Be in a Generally Satisfactory Condition.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business continues unusually active for midsummer, and though there is perceptible relaxation, there are no signs of reaction. The one change of great importance which the past week has brought is eminently helpful—the amicable settlement between coal miners and employers in western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. It is said that about 100,000 men will have their wages increased after Oct. 1 by this adjustment, and while the enlargement of purchasing power is of consequence, it seems even more important that a chronic cause of controversy has been removed by the new agreement as to company stores.

There is no important change in crop prospects, and at this time no news is eminently good news.

Speculation has been more successful in cotton than in any other product during the past week, and has lifted the price ⅝ cent. Some injury has evidently been sustained from excessive rains, and the government report commands a little more attention.

Wheat has declined a fraction, with very scanty transactions, the extremely small western receipts influencing the market for the present more than the restricted exports.

Corn tends to lower prices with more encouraging prospects, and the expectation of a heavy corn crop affects prices of provisions, as might be expected.

The industries continue to make progress, and higher prices for iron and steel products prove the supply has not yet outrun the demand.

The anthracite coal market is completely demoralized, and prices have again yielded a little to about the lowest ever known.

Sales of wool are not as much inflated by speculation as they were during the first half of July, but they still considerably exceed the actual consumption in the manufacture, amounting in the three chief markets to 6,259,300 pounds, against 9,271,700 pounds for the corresponding week in 1892. Prices are very firm.

Some staple cotton goods have again advanced in price, and the market is unusually strong for the season.

Failures for the week were 225 in the United States, against 264 last year, and 43 in Canada, against 54 last year.

Sea Captain Murdered.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10.—Captain Sproule, of the British steamship Capac, who landed the survivors of the Prince Oscar disaster, tells a story concerning the alleged murder of Captain Steger, of the American bark Edward Kidder, by four unknown seamen, near a South American port. The supposed murderers belonged on an American bark, the William W. Crapo, which they afterward stole and made their escape, and, it is believed, perished in a fire which destroyed the ship, near Rio de Janeiro. The Kidder put in at Topmast, a small port on the western coast of Peru, on the night of June 28. There were a few other foreign and coastwise vessels in the harbor at the time, the crews of most of which had gone ashore. It was while there that Captain Steger was murdered.

Four Against One.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 10.—T. D. Marshall, state senator-elect, and two companions, shot and killed R. T. Dinkins of this city at Brandon yesterday. Marshall and three friends, H. H. Coleman, R. P. Fox and W. P. Vollens, drove to Brandon in a hack and met Dinkins at the depot. As he turned a corner of the building they opened fire on him, and shot him 15 times. Dinkins was unarmed, but grabbed Marshall's pistol from him as he fired the first shot. Two weeks ago Dinkins, it is said, spread a report that Marshall had attempted an infamous crime while he and Marshall had roomed together. Marshall and his companions were arrested.

Keeping Promises.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Notices have been sent out by the Morgan-Belmont syndicate to those who participated in the government bond issue that they will refund in currency another installment, amounting to 84.4046 per cent, or $84,404.60 on every $100,000 gold advanced for handling that portion of the loan distributed in this country. A payment of 40 per cent was made some time ago, making the total payments to date about 75 per cent, or three-fourths of the whole. The total amount advanced for the American portion of the loan was about $82,500,000 and the amount of the money returned yesterday a little over $11,000,000.

Probably Ill-Fated Ship.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—It is believed that the vessel which, with the British ship Prince Oscar, was sunk in collision off the coast of Brazil, is the British ship Holt Hill. The Holt Hill sailed from San Francisco for Queenstown April 23. On July 9, four days before the collision, she was spoken about 442 miles south of the scene of the disaster. With a fair wind she would have been on the 18th in about the position indicated. The Holt Hill was a four-masted steel ship of 2269 tons register.

Cowhide For Editors.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 10.—Ethel Carter, an aeronaut, yesterday invaded the office of The Free Lance, a weekly paper, armed with a cowhide whip, and assaulted the proprietor, William Orr, and Assistant Editor Donelan. Miss Carter used the whip with such force that she finally broke it. The Free Lance charged that she failed to make an advertised balloon ascension because she was half intoxicated.

Still on Bad Terms.

ROME, Aug. 10.—Princess Colonna, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Mackay, attempted to visit her two boys in Italy. Prince and Princess Colonna have recently had a great deal of trouble, and the prince refused to allow her to see her children. The matter may be taken to the courts.

All Quiet at Spring Valley.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Aug. 10.—The negro miners who had been driven out of town by the Italians returned yesterday and nearly all went to work. They are guarded by armed deputies, but everything is peaceful and no further outbreak is feared.

Arraigned For Forgery.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Lady Gunning, who was recently arrested here on charges of forgery, was yesterday brought up on remand in the Bow street police court and committed for trial.

Visitor—Do your neighbors take a Sunday paper?

Fair Suburban Householder—When they get up before we do.—St. James Budget.

A Literary Lesson.

When you get a bright idea
For a story or a rhyme,
Don't just set it by to simmer
In your think tank for a time.

You imagine when it strikes you
That to you alone belong
All the seeds of each new fancy;
But, my friend, that's where you're wrong.

For you'll wake up some fine morning
To see some one make a hit
With the very self same story
Or the rhymes you might have writ.

Oh, this age is one of hustle!
Bright ideas are all about.
It's no matter who first gets 'em
If you're first to give 'em out.

'Tisn't all—with seeds—to sow 'em.
You have got to grind and bake
If you wouldn't have your neighbors
Just monopolize the cake.
—Boston Globe.

To My Doctor In Bed.

With much regret I hear it said
That you, dear doctor, are in bed,
Quite invalided.
For you the uninviting fare—
The broth, the gruel made with care,
The milk—is needed.
I mourn, yet grimly chuckle, too,
When I think that not I, but you,
Should be a fixture;
Not I, but you, must sadly sip
With utterly unwilling lip
Some awful mixture;
Not I, but you, must now obey
What dictatorial doctors say,
So interfering!
—London Punch.

Holmes' Death Trap.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Workmen in the Holmes castle revealed a strange construction yesterday, which carries more terrible suggestions of the conspirator's work. In the closet room in the second floor, where Holmes used to sleep, there is a gas pipe running over the floor. Where the pipe met the wall it turned down into the floor and beneath the boards is a cutoff. The pipe runs directly to the window of the room where it is believed Mrs. O'Connor was murdered. Sitting in the room Holmes could turn on the current with ease and fill the dark sleeping apartment with deadly gas, asphyxiating the occupants. The cutoff was a secret. It was reached simply by lifting a board in the closet.

Big Increase In Wages.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Wis., Aug. 10.—The Pennsylvania Iron Mining company has announced a 10 to 25 per cent increase in wages. The Aaron company has also raised the wages in the same ratio.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—It is stated here that the pope has written to Emperor William, requesting him to take the Catholic missions in China under his protection.

JAPAN'S PRETENSIONS

Might Draw the United States Into War In Certain Contingencies.

Navy Department Neutral In Chinese Troubles.

Americans at Shanghai Beg Leave to Differ With Minister Denby.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—In the event of a war between Russia and Japan, the United States may find itself an unwilling party unless the Japanese retreat from a position which they assumed toward the United States during the last war with China.

It is not generally known that just before the declaration of the armistice which preceded the signature of the treaty of peace an issue had grown up between the United States and Japan that threatened to lead to actual hostilities between the two countries, and that a hostile clash was perhaps only averted by the conclusion of the Chinese war.

This issue arose through the assertion by the Japanese authorities of the right to search American vessels. They insisted that they had a right to search an American vessel, and, if they chose, to take from her any Chinese or any enemy they might find, even though they were but passengers. Minister Dun very promptly denied the existence of any such right on the part of a combatant, and a hot correspondence ensued.

The Japanese insisted on their right, and even when Mr. Dun reminded them that the United States had gone to war with Great Britain on just this issue, and had forced the abandonment of any claim to such a right, they refused to abate their pretensions one jot, though the minister intimated that the first assertion of such a right would be regarded by the United States as an unfriendly act.

The Chinese Troubles.

Consul General Jernigan has taken a great deal of interest in the recent Chinese troubles, and has sent several dispatches to the state department giving information and making suggestions for protection.

It is the impression among some officials that the consuls, without being fully aware of the situation, have asked for troops from the warships where it would be impracticable for vessels to go. The state department has not called upon the navy for any ship or force to land and proceed into the interior.

Minister Denby has authority to call upon Admiral Carpenter for United States forces, and under his instructions the admiral is bound to furnish them. Both state and navy departments believe that the United States representatives on the ground, clothed with ample powers, are better able to act for the best than those here in Washington.

Acting Secretary McAdoo said yesterday that he could give Admiral Carpenter no instructions, and especially as Minister Denby had not asked that anything be done. As to the suggestion that the admiral should send a force in boats, he said that the minister and admiral were better able to know whether such a course was wise. It might be a sacrifice of men to send them several hundred miles into the interior.

The British government had more cause for making a demonstration than the United States government, and yet no English force had been sent to the scene of the trouble. Mr. McAdoo said that an order from him to Admiral Carpenter might wholly interfere with plans or operations the commander had in view or under way.

Americans at Shanghai have sent a cable dispatch to President Cleveland protesting against United States Minister Denby's action in consenting that the British consul should represent America in the Sze-Chuen inquiry. They recommended a reconstruction of the commission by sending an American official of adequate rank and the exclusion of implicated Chinese officials. They also recommend that a marine escort accompany the commission.

Quite Exclusive.

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y., Aug. 10.—A syndicate, composed of wealthy New Yorkers, have purchased about 230 acres of land at this place and intend to have a country club, casino and hotel. The club which is to be formed will charge an initiation fee of $250 and the annual dues will be $150. A dock will be built, which will cost about $40,000. Members of the club can purchase plots of land, but no outsider will be sold any property.

Pelican's Odd Action.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 10.—The British warship Pelican forced a party of Newfoundland fishermen to leave a fishing harbor on the French shore because the French wanted it. The Newfoundlanders had to abandon the fishery altogether. They will claim indemnity from the imperial government. British subjects here are very indignant, though such backdowns on England's part are of yearly occurrence.

Six Involved by Failure.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—It is current report in hardware trade that six concerns in this line, five of which are in New York and the New England states, and one in Chicago, are involved in the series of failures precipitated by the failure of the Woodrough & Hanchett company of Chicago on Aug. 8, through using each other's paper.

Electrics Collided.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 10.—Two heavy electric cars collided yesterday afternoon and 10 persons were badly injured. The accident was caused by the failure of the motorman to throw a switch. There were at least a dozen persons slightly injured.

Going on the Stage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Zella Nicolaus, who is suing George Gould for $40,000, is to make her debut as a burlesque actress in "The White Crook," performing a singing specialty, which will be introduced for her.

Out of Court.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The action for slander brought by Mrs. Jacoby against Countess Cowley was settled yesterday. Mrs. Jacoby, it appears, did not write the letters which formed the basis of the suit.

At Their Old Tricks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 10.—Advices from Tarsus, Asia Minor, say that a mob attacked the American mission school at that place, maltreating several of the students and threatening the missionaries.

MADE A RALLY.

Boston Pulled a Game From Washington In the Last Inning.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The erratic Senators played championship ball against the home team, and were defeated in the ninth inning. For eight innings the contest was a tie and in the ninth inning the Washingtons touched up Nichols for a couple of hits, putting them in the lead. In the last half of the ninth inning Schelbeck's error gave Lowe a life, and this seemingly affected Mercer, as Long and Duffy followed with singles, and Nash's fly to center, with no one out, ended the game.

FIGHTING IN ECUADOR.

Government Troops Routed by Patriots in a Hard-Fought Battle.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—A dispatch from Panama says in regard to Tuesday's battle at San Miguel, Ecuador: General Sarasti's vanguard of over 600 troops attacked the advanced guard of the patriotic army, commanded by General Vernaza.

After 13 hours of continuous hard fighting, General Sarasti's troops were routed and fled toward Riobamba, demoralized, and leaving 40 prisoners. The patriot army lost Colonel Castille, who was killed. Majors Roca and Monteverde were wounded. General Sarasti's vanguard was led by General Fierro.

General Eloy Alfaro has arrived at Guamote, and is now facing General Sarasti' army. It is expected that a decisive battle will occur at once. Ecuador is having a national festival over General Vernaza's victory.

Favor Asked of Peru.

LIMA, Aug 10.—It is reported that Chili urges Peru to declare the province of Tarapaca free of all mortgage liens which date previous to the war of 1879. The province of Tarapaca is the extreme southern portion of Peru, which was conquered by Chili in its war with Bolivia and Peru. The seaport between Iquique and Pisagua, which was ceded by Chili to Bolivia in the treaty of peace between those two countries, is in this province, and Chili's request to Peru, noted above, probably has to do with the settlement of questions growing out of the war.

Business Must Be Booming.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Times' financial article this morning remarks that the great increase of British exports to America for the last six months is indicated by the board of trade returns, amounting to £5,326,673 over 1894, while the imports have decreased £2,900,179 for the same period. The expansion of exports continues for almost all class of goods, and shows an increase for all, the chief exception being alpaca and silk yarns.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

HIS RECORD IS BAD.

Maurice Moriarity Gave His Mother-in-Law a Fatal Beating.

Took Her Daughter's Part In a Family Row.

Body of Aged Woman Was Fairly Covered With Bad Bruises.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 12. — Two more murders were added Saturday night to the long list of crimes committed in this city of late. Mrs. Mary Donovan, about 55 years old, was terribly kicked and beaten by her son-in-law, Maurice Moriarity, about 11 o'clock, at her residence, and died from the effects soon after.

The details of the Donovan murder show the ..ad to have been most brutal. After her death physicians examined her body and found the following injuries: Fracture of the right tibs, near the ankle joint; a similar fracture of the fibula, near the same place; an abrasion one inch in length on the right leg; another two inches long on the left leg; the left hand and arm covered with bruises, one bruise being three and one-half by two inches; a bad abrasion of the chin, running diagonally, as if inflicted by a club, and a series of bruises over the left temple.

When Medical Examiner Crane arrived he found that the woman's right side was completely paralyzed. Both eyes were closed, and she was unconscious. She aroused long enough to say that Moriarity had beaten her. Moriarity is 50 years old, and a local bruiser

With a Long Police Record.

Last Wednesday he and his wife were released from custody, after being locked up for a breach of the peace. After his release he drove his wife from the house, threatening her with an ax.

Mrs. Donovan, who had been taking her daughter's part, remained in the house, and was seen there Friday morning.

The assault is supposed to have taken place that afternoon. Early Saturday evening the neighbors were attracted to the house by groans, and they notified the police, who found Moriarity and the woman, the man being half drunk. When he became sober he made a general denial of the charge of assault.

While living with his first wife, seven years ago, Moriarity eloped and was missing for some time. Finally he was found working as a fireman on the New York and Boston boat. Eventually he returned to Waterbury and married the present Mrs. Moriarity.

Another Tragedy.

Patrick Mooney, a saloon keeper, was fatally shot by Edward Payne about midnight near the Prospect town line. Mooney was on his way home, accompanied by Payne. A quarrel arose, and Payne drew a revolver and fired almost point-blank into Mooney's body. Payne fled, but was arrested at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Mooney cannot live.

Christians' Great Offerings.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 12.—At Dr. A. B. Simpson's Christian alliance meeting yesterday $55,000 was pledged for missionary work, and by tomorrow it is expected that enough more will have been raised to swell the grand total to $75,000. Nearly 8000 people attended the morning meeting, and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed. In five minutes 40 watches were give by people in the audience, besides other jewelry. The largest individual offering was by Rev. J. H. Holden of Texas, who donated real estate in California valued at $10,000.

Pilot Saw No Lights.

THE WEIRS, N. H., Aug. 12.—The steamer Gypsy was run into and sunk by the steamer Mineola late Saturday night. All those on board were rescued by the Mineola. The accident occurred on Long bay, near Lakeport. The pilot of the Mineola claims that there were no lights showing on the Gypsy, and, as the night was very dark, he did not see the other vessel until too late to avoid a collision.

Found on the Tracks.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 12.—Ex-Postmaster English was awakened yesterday by cries for help. He proceeded to the railroad near by, where he found a man lying with fatal injuries, but whether from a train or from murderous hands it is not known, though the police incline to the latter belief. The man was taken to the hospital, where he died soon afterward.

Track Walking Is Dangerous.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 12.—Martin O'Day and his wife of this city were run over by a train late Saturday night. O'Day will die, but his wife will probably recover. They were walking alongside the track when the train caught the woman's dress and drew her under the wheels, and her husband, in attempting to rescue her, was also drawn under the train.

Advised to Fight.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 12.—At a mass meeting of Armenians in this city last night, revolutionary speeches were cheered to the echo, and the 800 men present were worked up to a high pitch of excitement when they were told to take the religion of God in one hand and the sword in the other and fight for freedom of their country.

Charged With a Serious Offense.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Louisa Lanzillo, an Italian, 25 years old, was arrested last night on a warrant charging her with attempting to poison her husband, Generosa Lanzillo, on June 22 last. Strangled Herself.

Manslaughter Charged.

PLYMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 12. — Leslie Tyler and David Colburn, the conductor and pilot of the freight train which was in collision with the "Cannon-ball" express near here Thursday, when three men were killed, have been arrested for manslaughter and held in $3000 bail.

Trolley Off the Track.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—An inward bound Crescent Beach electric car on the Lynn and Boston street railway, loaded with people, jumped a switch and crashed into an electric light pole in the Charlestown district Saturday evening. The car was badly wrecked and several persons were injured.

Foul Play Suspected.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 12.—George Bannon of New Bedford, Mass., who has been staying in this city for a week or more, died at the hospital last night, as the result of a broken back. Bannon's roommate, Frank Hart, has been arrested for an assault upon him.

At Old Wages.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Boston Manufacturing company will open its big mill, and all strikers who wish to return will be taken back. The company states that no concessions will be made, and if forced to engage new help will do so.

Not Expected to Recover.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 12. — Martin C. Doonan and Patrick Dolan were driving up Douglas avenue when their horse became frightened and ran away. The wagon struck a pole and was overturned. Both men were probably fatally injured.

GOTHAM'S DRY SUNDAY

But Few Dealers Take Advantage of the "Soft Drink" Law.

Steve Brodie Inaugurated Charitable Scheme.

Did Not Work Smoothly So Far as His Barroom Is Concerned.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The police were just as vigilant yesterday as on preceding Sundays, and fewer saloons opened their doors to even their oldest customers. The excise arrests yesterday were 121, against 110 last Sunday.

Few liquor dealers took advantage of the privilege of keeping their places open, which has lately been decreed to be legal, provided liquors and beers are not given away or sold. The most notable instance in this direction was that of Steve Brodie, who had no end of trouble in carrying on a charitable enterprise within the doors of his saloon on the Bowery, the doors of which he threw wide open early in the morning.

It has been the practice of Brodie to occasionally give away soft drinks to the poor in the neighborhood of the Bowery, and yesterday he decided to dispense buttermilk and lemonade free to whomsoever might wish to accept his bounty. To such as desired to do so, there was a small contribution box placed on the bar, announcing on its face that the proceeds would be given to a certain free ice fund.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the doors of Brodie's place were swung wide open. Brodie had provided 240 gallons of cold buttermilk and 200 gallons of lemonade. Brodie himself directed operations, while two assistants helped him in his work of charity.

The liquors behind the bar were effectually concealed with heavy canvas, which had been hung over them. The proprietor invited all to come and partake of his bounty, at the same time telling the big crowd which gathered that they might make a small contribution to the ice fund if they chose to do so. Quite a sum of money had been collected in this way when Patrolman Rosenberg made an appearance and told the charity to cease its operations, as it was in violation of law.

Vindicated by the Court.

Brodie said that he was performing a work of charity, and, therefore, should not be arrested. But the policeman lugged him off to the police station and thence he was taken to the Tombs police court, where he was promptly discharged by Magistrate Cornell, who told him to continue his good work. The offense with which Brodie was charged was that of violating the Sabbath law.

After his discharge from custody, Brodie went back to his place, and the dispensing of drinks of buttermilk and lemonade went merrily on. But the good work was not destined to progress long, for Patrolman Thorne took Brodie into custody again for violating the Sabbath law, and led him away to the station house amid the groans of the large crowd which had collected. At the station house Brodie again protested against interference with him in his work of charity.

"I have," said he, to the acting captain "made $100,000 from those poor people on the Bowery, which I have kept, and it is only fair that I should give them some small return for it." The captain declined to hold him, and Brodie returned to his charity in triumph.

But disappointment was to come to the Bowery philanthropist once more and this time in the person of Acting Inspector Cortright and five assistants. They swooped down on the saloon and its inmates without warning. One of the men, so Brodie says, went behind the bar, tore part of the canvas down, and took a drink from a bottle on one of the shelves. "Yes, it's whisky," the officer said, after tasting it. Brodie said that the officer had gotten hold of the brandy instead of whisky bottle, but it made no difference in the general result.

Some Arrests.

The police then told everybody to get out, and, according to Brodie, forbade a boy who was about to drop a penny in the poor box and threatened him with arrest. At one end of the bar stood an habitue of the Bowery who had just taken a drink from the buttermilk tank. Cortright ordered his arrest on the charge of disorderly conduct, and he was taken away. The prisoner's name is Michael J. Hare. At the same time John Noonan, one of Brodie's bartenders, was in the rear room of the saloon, talking with a man. Although Brodie swears that no liquor passed between Noonan and the other, Noonan was accused by one of the acting inspector's men with having sold a glass of whisky, and he was arrested for violating the excise law.

Brodie promptly bailed both prisoners out. But the fight was too hot, and Brodie was forced to close his place early in the afternoon. He was not, however, to be deprived of the pleasure he enjoyed in giving of his abundance, and he applied to the Bowery mission, just opposite. Authorities of the mission accepted their neighbor's offer, and 150 gallons of buttermilk and lemonade were carried across the street and given to the thirsty under the mission's roof. The portion remaining was dispensed at the evening service.

The prisoners, Hare and Noonan, will be arraigned in the Tombs police court today, and it is likely that the cases may prove interesting. Sergeant Woodward of the Mulberry street station said that the arrest of Brodie after his discharge from the court was not justifiable, and that the prisoner was not held. He would not comment on the case, in which the acting inspector and his men had taken the initiative.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

WE HAVE had left at our office a bottle of "distilled water," from the City Ice Co. of Brockton, for us to test. The water is put up in glass bottles holding one gallon each, and looks very clean and nice, and when taken from the ice chest, it is a very refreshing drink. We should decide it to be an excellent water for table use, as it is found by State Assayer Sharples to be free from all substances that are likely to be injurious to health.

LADIES' DAY.

Saturday was observed in a fitting manner by the Squantum Yacht club as ladies' day, and a more perfect day could not have been had. The wind was fresh from the the west, the sky bright and clear and the lady friends of the yachtsmen were out in full force becomingly attired in light yachting costumes which made a very pretty effect.

The observances of the day commenced shortly after 2 o'clock and at that hour the wharf and float in front of the club house was thronged with ladies waiting to be put aboard the yachts that were riding at anchor in the bay.

Capt. W. J. Croucher, chairman of the house committee, was busy at the club house extending a warm welcome to the fast arriving guests, while on the float the genial secretary, Capt. J. E. Drew, was skipping about looking to it that the ladies were placed safely aboard the boats without wetting their delicate feet, and it goes without saying that he performed his duty to perfection and proved himself to be the right man in the right place.

About 2.30 the start for a sail about the bay was made and a very pretty sight they made and a beautiful sail it was, and one that was thoroughly enjoyed. The return was made to the club house about 5 o'clock, at which time an abundance of ice cream, cake and lemonade was served in the upper room by the house committee.

The festivities of the day came to a close in the evening with a concert by the City band of Quincy.

The club members have every reason to congratulate themselves on the success of the day, and it is safe to say that in the future these annual events will be looked forward to with pleasure by those fortunate enough to be present Sat rday.

Death of an Estimable Lady.

Although not unexpected the death of Mrs. Mary E. B., wife of Mr. John R. Graham, early Saturday evening, came like a shock to those that were cognizant of her illness. Mrs. Graham had been ill at her home on Washington street for some months and while all that was possible was done to relieve her of pain by her loving husband it was with the knowledge that the time with which she would be with her family was short; yet where there was life there was hope and they tenderly watched and cared for her to the last.

Mrs. Graham was the daughter of Mr. James T. Penniman and has always resided in Quincy, where she had a large circle of friends, for to know her was to love her.

She was affiliated with many charitable enterprises and while she gave freely from her abundance the world knew it not, and in her death her husband loses a faithful helpmate and her children a loving mother. She was 44 years of age and leaves besides her husband eleven children, six sons and five daughters. Funeral services will be held from her late residence Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Granite Business.

A writer to the Granite Cutters' Journal from this city says:

"The granite business in Quincy continues fairly good. Most of our men are employed at present, but there is nothing in the shape of a rush and no demand for men from outside. The much-talked-of thirty-six monuments for the state of Illinois are being cut by the Mitchell Granite Company of South Quincy. A number of monuments like the above would seem to imply a very large amount of work for granite cutters; but most of the work is rock-faced with margin lines, and I incline to think that upon this job the quarryman is fully as much in evidence as the stonecutter. However, although the work upon these monuments is not very elaborate, it will be well executed, and the massive blocks of granite when set up ought to be a good advertisement for the product of the everlasting hills of Quincy."

A Free Fight.

Saturday night a crowd of toughs came out from Boston on the late train somewhat the worse for liquor. They got off at Quincy Adams and when they reached the corner of Water and Quincy streets three of the men, William Tibbetts, Edward Rapson and a Mr. Tingley got into a free fight. During the melee Tibbetts got knocked down and while in that position he was kicked and punched, it is alleged by Tingley, in such a manner as to disfigure his face quite badly.

Officer Nicol was soon on the scene and placed Tibbetts under arrest, and then securing warrants for the other two, arrested them Sunday. All three appeared before Judge Humphrey in the district court this morning.

Trap Shooting.

There was some pretty good shooting at the Wollaston Trap club shoot on Saturday afternoon. D. P. Lincoln and C. L. Prescott divided the honors with 20 birds each.

Sunday at Houghs Neck.

Sunday was quite a busy day at Houghs Neck, as one of the largest crowds of the season was present and the hotels did a good business. The crowd as a whole was an orderly one, yet there is a certain element in all crowds that take delight in making some one else miserable or in destroying or injuring property, and this element Sunday amused themselves while in bathing by climbing into the yachts riding at anchor and injuring them. All that is needed is to arrest a number of these fellows, and bring them into court and impose a fine.

In the Churches.

At the Calvary Baptist church, Mr. B. Farquhar preached from Acts 4:12. "Neither is there Salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Very earnestly were these words given and the text in two parts. 1st, That Christ is God's approved Saviour. 2d, Without Christ there is no salvation. In the council of eternity Jesus was chosen as the one to redeem a lost world. The angel said to his mother, "Thou shalt call His name Jesus; He shall save his people from their sins." Apostles all down through ages declared Him as the Saviour of mankind. He has redeemed us from the curse of the law by His blood shed on Calvary. Without Him, three things stand in the way, a broken law, a guilty sinner, a God of justice. God looks on the sinner and forgives him for Jesus' sake. There is no salvation in any other.

Prof. Harry Rowe of Colby University, preached at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Putnam preached at the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday.

Preaching on Boston Common.

Unitarian popular religious services were held on the Common, as usual, yesterday afternoon, commencing at five o'clock.

The preachers were Rev. F. B. Mott of the Third Religious Society, Dorchester Lower Mills, and Rev. E. C. Butler of the First Unitarian church, Quincy. Their discourses were marked by the same informality, says the Boston Herald, which has been a feature of these services from the first.

Mr. Mott, the first speaker, said that the desire to be more than we are is inborn in every human being, and it was in the word of God to teach men to be more and better than they are. He used the character of the Missouri river for an illustration of the development of Christianity, saying that, just as that great stream was pure at its source, and after depositing the mud gathered in its course just before flowing into the gulf of Mexico, became pure again, so Christianity, which was purity itself in its origin, would become pure once more in the hearts of men after the pollution of active wordly life. The beauty of Christianity had its flow from the life of Jesus Christ, who had shown that the love of God could shine out of the love of man. The thing, said he, that we are striving for is seen, therefore, in the divine humanity of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The address of Mr. Butler was a practical talk on the superiority of heavenly things over the goods of the earth, no better proof of which could be given than that furnished in the life and acts of the Saviour. He did not wish to be understood as decrying the laying up of necessary treasures on earth, and he gave several illustrations to show his appreciation of money earned by honest labor. But he knew of dozens of men in this city who were worth their millions and who, were they to drop out of life, would not be missed, for their places would be filled by better men who do not lay up their money where moths and rust corrode and thieves break in and steal.

He knew of another rich man in Boston who disposed of his wealth by the thousands for the welfare of the poor of the human race. The word said: "Lay it up in heaven." So, the preacher concluded, he would say to his hearers, "not only lay up your treasures on earth, where moths and rust do corrode, but also lay it up in heaven, where there are no moths, nor rust, nor thieves."

A Hard Blow.

About 7.45 Sunday night a gang of drunken toughs attempted to enter the back door of the Monatiquot house at North Weymouth. Mr. Taber, the proprietor, put them out but they persisted upon entering, when Mr. Taber picked up a tonic bottle and in defending himself he struck one of the men named John Coffee of Needham upon the head, cutting a deep gash. Dr. Drake of Weymouth was called and took fourteen stitches in the cut, after which the injured man was taken away by his friends. Dr. Gilbert was also summoned but when he arrived the man had gone.

Some Late Moon Theories.

Have you seen the latest scientific treatise on the probable cause of the moon's rugged surface? It is a well known fact that every mile of lunar surface compares very favorably with the most mountainous portions of Switzerland, being a succession of high pinnacles, deep holes and seemingly bottomless chasms.

The best existing maps of the moon's surface show 182,856 of these crater-like holes and over 100,000 mountain peaks, or projections, which compare favorably with what we know to be mountain peaks. Not longer since than last summer the astronomers gave it as their opinion that these craterlike holes and mountain peaks had been caused by a prodigious shower of aerolites, or meteorites. That theory has been recently knocked out by a noted European astronomer, M. Verde, who gives it as his opinion that the moon was originally a vast aggregation of miniature planets which have amalgamated, or coalesced, into one. According to his theory, the openings and projections are the interstices which were left when the separate fragments came together to form the ball which all now recognize as the Queen of Night. He says that in all probability there are several holes which reach entirely through the lunar world. —St. Louis Republic.

The Changed Rubies.

There seems no end to the curious stories about jewels lost and stolen. One of the latest is that of Mrs. A., who recently took a pair of large ruby solitaires to be reset at ——'s, where they had been purchased. The morning after the maid brought her the card of the firm, saying a gentleman wished to see her, and on going down to the drawing room she found one of the clerks, who told her that the stones, which were apparently of great value, were in reality false and worthless. Very much agitated over the intelligence, Mrs. A. asserted that the jewels had never left her possession since their purchase, and claimed that the fraud must have been perpetrated before she received them. This of course the firm denied, but the feeling on the subject became very bitter on both sides, and detectives were employed by both to ferret out the mystery. When a former butler of Mrs. A. was proved to be a discharged clerk of the well known jewelers, the inference was obvious, although no proof against the man has been found, and the jewels have never been recovered.—Boston Gazette.

Our Small Devotees.

My first evening, or night in fact, in Ponta Delgado—as well as many thereafter—was spent in the society of the most affectionately demonstrative, untiringly attentive of the inhabitants of the Azores, the very merriest, happiest of creatures, who enjoys life with a zest that is seldom equaled, who hails with delight each newcomer to the isles, and welcomes them with the most flattering warmth. We had a lively time together. A more energetic, aggressive, industrious creature I never met. Infinitesimally small, yet marvelously active, he is, I believe, the one and only native Azorean who can boast of that so common American quality, extreme nervous energy. Not even the most energetic, tireless Chicagoan, in his grand rush after the mighty dollars, could be more indefatigable, more alert and alive to anything and everything, or rather to any one and every one, than this selfsame ubiquitous Azorean flea.—St. Paul Dispatch.

"Collar" Is Old English.

Justices in New York are ignorantly fastidious in matters of English. When Mr. O'Hara, a policeman, said, "We collared him," Justice Taintor replied: "You 'arrested' him, and you ought to be ashamed for not saying so at once. Such language as you used is not fit language to use to a magistrate in a public courtroom." But Mr. O'Hara did not employ slang. The verb "collar" has long been used transitively, meaning to "seize or take hold of a person by the collar; more loosely, to capture." The verb was thus employed early in the seventeenth century. Steele, in The Guardian, No. 84, wrote, "If you advised him not to collar any man." Other instances are: Gentleman's Magazine, 1762, "His lordship collared the footman who threw it," and Marryat's sentence in "Peter Simple," "He was collared by two French soldiers."—Boston Journal.

The Pacific Slope Style of Poker.

"The terror of a one card draw is unknown to San Francisco devotees of the game immortalized by General Schenck," said Mr. William R. Brewster of that city at the Hotel Page.

"The reason is that out on the slope we do not play sequences, or 'straights,' at all, and flushes only before the draw. A flush, therefore, is of no account except when held 'pat.'

"This, to my mind, is a better system than the eastern method, for it gives the man who holds the best pair the natural advantage that belongs to him. It is needless to say that those abominations known as 'big' and 'little dogs,' that go with the game in Kentucky, are absolutely unknown in California."—Washington Post.

His Enjoyment Marred.

"My enjoyment of the 5 cent cigar," said the man of moderate means, "is sometimes marred by the breaking away of the wrapper. The fine, smooth Sumatra leaf is cut in strips that are rather narrow. They wrap without much lap, and as the cigar burns the wrapper sometimes creeps out. As I have before remarked, it is now quite possible to get a good cigar for 5 cents, but there isn't much fun smoking it unless it will stay together."—New York Sun.

Tobacco.

Tobacco is grown in 42 states and territories, but nearly half the crop comes from Kentucky, Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

OPEN TO COUDERT.

Will Sit on Supreme Bench if He Chooses to Accept the Honor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The World says: It can be announced as a fact that Frederick R. Coudert can be the successor of Justice Howell E. Jackson on the United States supreme court bench if he will accept the honor.

FREDERIC R. COUDERT

A more or less formal tender of the place has already been made to him, and a cablegram from him in Europe announcing his decision is now being awaited. Mr. Coudert has been abroad for some time, and is now understood to be in Paris.

Gentlemanly Sluggers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—Corbett and Fitzsimmons have both left the city. Corbett went to Scranton. During the time which elapsed between their meeting at Green's hotel Saturday night, and Fitzsimmons' departure, they kept out of the way of each other. Fitzsimmons, after the fight, denied that Corbett had tweaked his nose, but admitted that he tried to do so, and that Corbett actually spat in his face. He and his friend explain his failure to resent the insult with a blow by saying that Fitzsimmons could not afford to jeopardize his chances in the coming fight in that way, as nearly all the men in the place at the time were friends of Corbett, and that Fitzsimmons would have stood no show whatever. The Corbett party, on the other hand, contend that Fitzsimmons showed the white feather.

Successful Filibusterers.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 12.—Seven seamen of the American steamer James Woodall, under suspicion of being a Cuban filibusterer, which sailed from Baltimore July 10, have returned to Baltimore. One of the seamen said: "The Woodall landed 153 men and a large quantity of dynamite, rifles, revolvers and ammunition near Havana, which were taken aboard off Florida. The steamer burned hard coal, making it impossible for Spanish man-of-war to see her smoke at any distance. The 153 men seemed to be Cuban officers and gentlemen of refinement and education."

Murderous Indians.

TUCSON, A. T., Aug. 12.—Word has been received here that at Sunrise a gang of nearly 100 Yauquik Indians attacked the Santa Rosa hacienda of Don Juan de Bojuruques, near Guaymas, Mex. They killed him and robbed the place of everything available. A few days previous another band surprised a troop of federal soldiers, and killed six and Captain Lopez, who was in command. Besides filling the country with widows and orphans, they have destroyed property aggregating in value $7,000,000.

A Judicial Compromise.

OMAHA, Aug. 12.—In the Omaha police commission controversy the district court holds that the old board is legally in possession until further legal proceedings may show it is not properly in power. The court, however, refuses to make permanent the injunction restraining the A. P. A. police commission from exercising its functions. The decision is in the nature of a compromise, and it remains for the A. P. A. board to go to the supreme court to have the case decided on its merits.

A Desperate Battle.

ASHTABULA, O., Aug. 12.—Three stonecutters named Eastlick, Smith and Meinhart, boarded a box-car at Erie to come to Ashtabula. At a water tank three tramps entered the car. When the train got under way again, two of the tramps drew revolvers and asked the men to hand over what money they had. Smith had a revolver and showed fight. In an instant a battle between the six men was in progress. Eastlick, Smith and one of the tramps received serious bullet wounds.

Masso Is President.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Cuban insurrectionists have formed a republic at Camaquey and have elected General Masso president thereof, and have designated Camequey as the temporary capital of the republic. This news is received in letters from Cuba to General Quesada, the Cuban leader, who is now in this city.

Battle With Moonshiners.

WINSTED, N. C., Aug. 12.—News reached here yesterday of a big revenue raid in Surr county, in which the officers and moonshiners had a fierce battle. Four of the latter were arrested. None of the parties are thought to be fatally injured.

Re-enforcements For De Campos.

MADRID, Aug. 12.—The Spanish ministry has decided to call out 12,000 additional men of the 1894 class of conscript to act as re-enforcements for De Campos in Cuba. These troops will embark for Cuba on Aug. 18.

Slow Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—Today was the beginning of the fourth week of the trial of Durant for the murder of Blanche Lamont, and the only proceedings have been the selection of nine jurymen to try the case.

New Fruit Line In Operation.

COLON, Aug. 12.—Advices from Port Limon, Costa Rica, report the arrival there of the steamer City of Kingston. She is the pioneer of the new line of fruit steamers which is to be run from New York.

Work Appreciated.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Bank of England has ordered portraits of President Cleveland and Postmaster General Wilson to be hung in the bank, in recognition of their work against free silver.

No Proof of Guilt.

SOFIA, Aug. 12.—Naoum Tufektchief, who was arrested on the charge of having been one of the murderers of ex-Premier Stambuloff, has been released from custody.

The Brook's Lament.

I'm aweary of the taffy that the poets fling at me
'Bout my ripplin an a-babblin as I seek the distant sea,
For if their foot stepped in me, curses deep they'd launch;
I'd no longer be a brooklet, but a dirty little branch.

I am always singin merry through the daisy bloomin fields,
An my bosom sweet reflection of the dancin sunbeams yields,
But when they chance to see me 'neath the heat of blist'rin sun
My muddy creepin waters puts their dreamin on the run.

My wavelets, always boundin over pebble studded sand,
In the market of the poet are always in demand,
But with my tadpoles circlin an a-sinkin in the mud
You'd think I needed flushin from a thorough cleansin flood.

—E. N. Wood.

Feline Amenities.

"Are you going to the Browns' dance?"

"No. I haven't been asked."

"Oh, I suppose it's quite a young people's dance, you know!"—Punch.

Jeremiah and John Lynch, brothers, were drowned in the Seekonk river, Providence. John, who could not swim, walked into deep water, and, as he felt himself sinking, called for help. Jeremiah promptly rushed to him, but the younger boy grasped him tightly around the body, and they sank together.

A Hint to England.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Standard discusses the proposed double turrets on American men-of-war, and offers as an objection the risk of the entire structure being disabled, thus silencing all four guns. The Standard considers it doubtful whether there are not certain drawbacks about the device which are sufficient to counter-balance the advantages.

Carlisle Repudiated.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 12.—The Democratic convention of Jefferson county (exclusive of Louisville) refused to declare for sound money. A resolution reaffirming the Chicago platform of 1892 and the state platform and endorsing Cleveland and Carlisle was tabled by a vote of 45 to 16.

Homeward Bound.

SOFIA, Aug. 12.—Prince Ferdinand, who has been sojourning at Carlsbad, will arrive tomorrow. The government has invited the residents to show their loyalty by giving their ruler a hearty reception.

Trouble In the Menagerie.

"You look as if you needed a hair cut," said the elephant, nosing about the lion's cage.

CREDULOUS CHINAMEN

Readily Accept False Stories Concerning Missionary Workers.

The Probable Cause of the Recent Massacre.

Words of Praise for the Devotion Exhibited by Miss Hartford.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Miss Clara M. Cushman of Dedham, for seven years a missionary at Pekin, in an interview with a Standard reporter, asserts a belief that the latest massacres may be o. > of the results of the recent war between China and Japan. Ku-Cheng is many hundred miles from the central government at Pekin, and it is probable that the people had only rumors of the trouble, and so got all sorts of stories, some of which may have started the trouble.

"The uninformed Chinese," Miss Cushman continued, "believe that the foreign missionaries cut out the eyes and hearts of the natives to use as medicine. They are quick to accept any story they hear, so that the foreigners there can never tell when a mob will come upon them."

Miss Cushman thus deseribes Ku-Cheng: "Ku-Cheng is quite a distance from Foo-Chow, up the Min river. It is a walled city of about 20 000 inhabitants, and has the reputation of being a very neat and clean city. Miss Hartford has as an assistant, Miss Wilmina H. Rouse of Minnesota, who was probably not in the massacre, as her name is not mentioned.

"The missionary society of the M. E. church has two other missionaries at Ku-Cheng, Rev. H. C. Wilcox, presiding elder of Ku-Cheng district, and Dr. J. J. Gregory, in charge of Wiley hospital. The only building owned by the Methodist is a chapel valued at $2500, in which the average attendance at Sunday worship last year was 250. Their homes, schools and hospital are in hired houses, which fact may have saved both buildings and inmates from the fate of the English missionaries and their buildings."

Miss Hartford's Self-Sacrifice.

Miss Cushman, being in a position to speak of Miss Hartford, who so narrowly escaped death at the hands of the Vegetarians, through personal acquaintance, says of her: "Miss Hartford was sent to Ku-Cheng in 1887 by the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. She was at that time a very popular teacher in the public schools of Dover, N. H. She has no father, mother, brother or sister living, but is entirely devoted to her work.

"Although the five-year term for which she went has expired, she has steadily refused to accept the vacation, with privilege of visiting America, saying that she preferred to stay in China with the work and finally die there. But because of ill-health and need of rest she had almost made up her mind to take the needed vacation when the troubles came on. Mrs. Alderman of Hyde Park, the corresponding secretary of the New England branch of the society, has written to her, advising her to take this opportunity, while the country is settling down again, to come to America.

"Miss Hartford is in charge of the Ku-Cheng district of the Foo-Chow woman's conference. Her report to the last annual conference showed in the Ku-Cheng district one boarding school, with an enrollment of 44; 14 day schools, with an enrollment of 200 scholars, and one Bible training school, with an enrollment of 20. Miss Althea M. Todd of this city is now under appointment to join Miss Hartford at Ku-Cheng, and was expected to leave in about a month.

Troubles Anticipated.

"That trouble has long been brewing seems proven by part of a letter received by Mrs. Alderman from Miss Hartford. It is dated at Foo-Chow, May 2, and says: I was obliged to close the women's and girls' schools April 9, on account of fears of local insurrections. The English mission closed their schools two weeks earlier, but I had hoped matters might clear up, and so held on. At last I found I could not stand out alone any longer. Everyone thought the schools ought to be closed, so I yielded. Then I was sick, so when Dr. Gregory urged me to come to Foo-Chow and have a rest, I came."

Miss Cushman thinks the criticisms made of United States Minister Denby are unjust, as, during her residence in Pekin, he had been very careful to protect the missionaries' rights; was on friendly terms with them all, and they esteemed him highly.

A Political Straw.

LIMA, O., Aug. 13.—The Democrats of Allen county in convention refused to adopt a gold standard and the silver men claim that 7 of the 10 delegates to the state convention who were chosen are in favor of free coinage. This is the home of Senator Brice, and the action of the convention is therefore regarded as significant.

Thirty-Six Prostrations.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 12.—The intense heat was severe on the state militia during the review by Governor McCorkle. The thermometer reached 108°. There were 28 prostrations in the First regiment and eight in the Second, and all serious enough to be sent to the hospital.

Many Firemen Hurt.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 12.—One of the most destructive fires that has ever visited Newark in many years occurred yesterday afternoon in the extensive works of the Central Stamping company. The total loss is estimated at $500,000. Several firemen were injured.

Boiler Went Up.

MONTICELLO, Fla., Aug. 12.—A boiler at Brooks Bros.' gin house at Drifton exploded, instantly killing three men and badly injuring four others, all colored. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Manager Joseph Quinn of the St. Louis Baseball club has resigned, and L. M. Phelan of St. Louis has been appointed in his place.

When such teams as the New Yorks, Brooklyns and Philadelphias appear in the second division, something must be out of gear.

Pitcher Gayle shut out the Terre Haute team with but a single hit on the 8th inst., and his team—Detroit—defeated its opponents 4 to 0.

The Bostons will need all the games they can get this week, as they have a hard week before them at Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The Wages of Sin.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—George W. Loehmer, for several years bookkeeper at the city workhouse, was arrested yesterday on the charge of embezzlement of city money. At 7 o'clock last evening he was found dead in a cell at the police station under c.rcumstances which indicate suicide. On June 1 it was discovered that Loehmer had been embezzling funds entrusted to him. The shortage amounted to about $6000. He was permitted to retain his position until his friends made good the shortage, and was then dismissed. Since then an expert investigation of the books showed a further shortage of about $4000. Loehmer abandoned a wife and two children soon after his crime was discovered.

Picking Flaws.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—A letter to The Times, signed "Vice Admiral," discusses the performance of the United States cruiser Columbia in her speed trial across the Atlantic. The writer says: "We have no man-of-war that could equal the Columbia's speed. The Blenheim ought to do so, but it is very doubtful whether she would be able to." The writer asks "whether we alone among the nations are to stand still in this respect."

Further Proof of Guilt.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—More bones, said by physicians to be human, have been found in the Holmes "castle" at Englewood. A stove was dismantled, and between the firecla y and the outside iron were found charred bones, several hooks and eyes, a hat-pin and several pieces of jet beads. The stove is the one in which was found other incriminating evidence.

—If Boston was enlarged so that her business men lived within the borders of the city, there would be no trouble about governing the city. But hundreds of her rich men insist on keeping up a separate town government over the section known as Brookline, which is actually a part of Boston, and then they run up to the legislature to prevent the "foreign vote," from overtaxing their Boston realty. They evade the responsibility of citizenship in order to escape taxation, and then declaim against the mischievous intentions of "the lower classes."—Hartford Times.

There were delegates from only eight bodies of the order, all under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and New York. There was then only 500 knights in the country. In a few weeks in Boston there will be held the 26th conclave of the Templars; now one of the most flourishing of Masonic orders, having 39 grand encampments and 972 subordinate commanderies with a total membership of over 100,000 spread through every state and territory in the country.

DIME BANK INSOLVENT.

Willimantic Institution Placed In the Hands of Receivers.

Important Matters Allowed to Remain Unrecorded.

Testimony Shows Shiftless Methods Employed In Dealing With Finances.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Aug. 13.—Judge Shumway, of the superior court, yesterday denied the petition of the directors of the Dime Savings bank for permission to continue the operations of the institution, and appointed John M. Hall of New Haven and George E. Stiles of this city as receivers to wind up the affairs of the bank.

E. B. Summer, attorney for the directors, made a vigorous fight to show the bank solvent, and asked the court to enjoin the present officers from the transaction of any business until they could call in the passbooks and ascertain the actual liabilities of the bank.

During the hearing Judge Shumway ordered the book containing the records of meetings of the corporators and directors to be produced in court. Upon examination it was discovered that there were no records of either body since 1891.

Lax Methods.

Treasurer Holmes testified that there were very few indorsements of interest on the notes held by the bank, and that many depositors' accounts had not been touched since 1883. There is no record of the vote of the directors ordering the 16 per cent scale.

John A. McDonald, against whom the unexecuted and unrecorded mortgage is held, claims that the $6000 note accompanying it has been reduced by payments of $2000, but there are no indorsements on the note and he holds no receipts.

Judge Shumway found the bank insolvent, and appointed the receivers, fixing bonds at $30,000 each and a limit of four months for filing claims.

An Open Letter.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—Senator Hoar makes public a letter sent to T. C. Evans of Boston in reply to two letters sent him by Mr. Evans, in which Mr. Evans takes exceptions to certain statements alleged to have been made by Senator Hoar. The letters of Mr. Evans say that the course the senator is pursuing tends to the breaking up of the Republican party. The particular statement to which Mr. Evans takes exceptions to is this: "I want to see something in our Protestant churches like the father confessor in the Catholic." Senator Hoar says he never said, thought, or declared what Mr. Evans imputes to him. He says he never anywhere expressed the idea that there should be a confessional, or that there was any need of a father confessor, or that he wanted to see something in the Protestant church like the father confessor in the Catholic.

Grand Stands Going Up.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—The 35,000 Knights Templar, with their handsome uniforms, on foot and mounted on richly caparisoned and spirited horses, promise to surpass in splendor and in the beauty ar accuracy of their evolutions any spectacle, military or civil, which has yet been witnessed in the streets of Boston. Every one will be anxious to secure points of vantage from which to view the procession, and many private individuals are contemplating the erection of grand stands. In addition to private enterprises, the grand encampment will erect six stands, with a total seating capacity of 7600. Work on some of these has already begun, and all will be finished and ready for inspection by the department of buildings by Aug. 24.

Alleged Crime of Two Doctors.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—All that is mortal of sweet-faced and even-tempered Lillian Ray, who was but 15 years of age, was consigned to her last resting place today. Her sad death, caused by malpractice, has created gloom in and about her home at East Boston. Lillian Ray died Sunday in the City hospital, but not before she made a confession implicating Drs. G. L. Lang and F. D. Hager. She also said that Henry Reardon, 28 years of age, was her betrayer. Both Drs. Lang and Hager were arraigned in the municipal court yesterday afternoon. They asked for a continuance until Aug. 23, which was granted, and each was held in $5000 for his appearance.

Backboys Still Out.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 13.—The strike at the Boston Manufacturing company's mills here is practically ended, as the doffers voluntarily returned to work yesterday afternoon under the same conditions that existed prior to their strike. The ring spinners are also at work, and 40 out of the 48 mule spinners are working. The mule spinners are doing the work of the backboys, who refuse to return unless an advance of wages is granted.

Ten Thousand Attended.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 13.—Ten thousand French-Canadians met yesterday at Crescent park in an annual reunion. There was a banquet at 6 o'clock, at which Mr. Melville-Deschenes and Rev. Father Gaboury of Salem, Mass., spoke.

Hearing Unfinished.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 13.—The famous Stain and Cromwell case was again reviewed yesterday, when a hearing on a petition for a pardon of the two men was held before the governor and council. Judge Crosby of Dexter, in behalf of the petitioners, closed his case at 9:30 last night. Attorney General E. A. Powers of Houlton appeared in behalf of the state today against the granting of the pardons.

Drowned In a Reservoir.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—Charles Wolf and Miss Maggie Gerrity were drowned while boating on Haynes reservoir. The circumstances connected with the affair are somewhat mysterious. A brother-in-law of the girl, who was in a boat some distance off, saw Wolf plunge into the water. He pulled as rapidly as possible toward them, but could find no trace of either.

Against Monometallism.

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 13.—United States Senator Gallinger is out in a letter in which he says: "I am utterly opposed to the further coinage of silver dollars by this country as long as the other great nations of the world refuse to join us in the matter. I believe that free silver coinage by this country would speedily drive out of circulation the $631,000,000 now in use in the United States, thus contracting the currency to that extent. I also believe that it would inevitably result in silver monometallism, the dire effects of which no language of mine can adequately portray."

Left to Subordinates.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 13.—President Cleveland was yesterday shown a cable from Tien-Tsin, wherein the American residents there appeal to the United States for assistance. The president would only say that the matter of protecting the Americans in China was in the hands of the state department and it would undoubtedly receive attention without delay.

HIGH EXCHANGE RATE

Has Caused a Heavy Drain on the Treasury's Supply of Gold.

Withdrawal of $1,650,000 In One Day at New York.

The Treasury In Fair Condition Outside of the Decline In Gold.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The drain upon the gold reserve of the treasury seemed to have begun in earnest yesterday, when the officials were advised of the withdrawal of $1,650,000 from the sub-treasury at New York for export.

Yesterday's withdrawals were the largest on any one day since the contract with the Belmont-Morgan syndicate went into effect last February. They reduce the gold in the treasury to $101,302,368, or a loss of more than $6,000,000 from the highest point reached after the syndicate made its final payments last month.

Department officials are loth to discuss the effect on the treasury of renewed gold shipments, or to express an opinion as to their probable extent, or when the shipments will cease, or whether the bond syndicate will feel bound to release the gold.

With exchange at $4.90¼, an exceedingly high figure, the opinion is generally expressed that gold exports to the extent of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 are likely to occur before Oct. 1. The only thing that is likely to reduce the rate of exchange is heavy shipment of American cereals.

Aside from the decline in the gold reserve, the treasury situation is regarded as encouraging, as the receipts are gradually approximating to the expenditures. The excess of expenditures over receipts for the past two years amounted to $107,000,000, and for the month and a third which has elapsed of the current fiscal year, $15,000,000. But the receipts are increasing, and officials express the hope that by Jan. 1 next they will equal the expenditures, or nearly so.

Officials Won't Talk.

Mr. Curtis, the acting secretary, said he had nothing to say in regard to the matter. He had no specific information, and could not say whether the syndicate would allow the $100,000,000 to be encroached upon or not. None of the other officials would talk in the absence of Secretary Carlisle.

This heavy withdrawal has given rise to a report that another bond issue is impending, but there is now no one in Washington who can speak authoritatively on the subject, or who has information not shared by the public. The best public opinion is that the syndicate will not allow the reserve to be encroached upon until after Oct. 1, when, as generally understood, their obligation ceases.

But even in the event of still further withdrawals, it is believed that both Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle would see the reserve reach a point below that it has yet touched before they would take any steps to recoup it by another sale of bonds or purchase of gold.

Worked an Old Game.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—E. S. Johnson and wife of Zoar Station were brought here last night and lodged in jail on the charge of fraudulently using the mails. Mrs. Johnson, who is as black as coal, and lived in a shanty, advertised in a matrimonial paper for a husband, saying that she was possessed of a fortune. Several correspondents offered to marry her, when she told them she could not get hold of her money, and asked for a loan. It is said she received money from many of her distant admirers. Her husband was implicated in the swindle.

More About Trinidad.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The archives of the state department have been searched to see if there was anything in the claim put forth that the United States, as the conqueror of the Confederate states, had any claim to the island of Trinidad, over which there is now a dispute. Nothing of the kind could be found. There is little doubt that the island belongs to Brazil.

Thought Wife Was Dead.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—The dead body of August Schiessler, aged 60 years, was yesterday found hanging to a tree. Schiessler had quarreled with his wife Saturday evening and struck her with a blunt instrument. Thinking her dead, he committed suicide. Mrs. Schiessler is still unconscious and may die.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE BROCKTON ENTERPRISE, an excellent daily, is giving its readers more local news than ever. The proprietors have recently purchased new typesetting machines, and are giving the city of Brockton a paper that any publisher might feel proud of.

THE GLOBE does well in urging both great political parties to stand by New England. The country has no greater man than Thomas B. Reed and the Democratic party of Massachusetts no more popular than Wm. E. Russell. "Stand by New England" is a good motto.

THE NORWOOD Advertiser comes out strong for F. A. Foles of that town for senator to represent the second Norfolk district—Mr. Foles is one of Norwood's ablest business men and the Advertiser has a right to feel a pride in putting forth its candidate.

The Universalist choir will go on a hay ride Aug. 16. All members are requested to be present. Information can be had of the chorister.

The social event of the season at Houghs Neck will be the grand ball Wednesday evening of Hose 5 and the presentation to that company of a handsome silk banner.

Remember the lawn social at the Quincy Point church this evening. With the Junior Endeavorers to sell home made candies, and Mr. Faxon behind the ice cream enterprise, and an active social committee—you cannot fail to have a good time. An admission of ten cents will be charged to the grounds, and this will include the entertainment in the church vestry. In case of stormy weather, the social will be deferred until tomorrow evening.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Sewerage Commissioners Appointed.

Two Wooden School Buildings Wanted This Time.

Lively Tilt Between Councilman Bryant and Chairman Crane.

It was but a short session held by the City Council Monday evening, as there was but little to do, yet the new business transacted was quite important. Councilmen Bigelow, Nickerson, Spear and Russell were absent.

Sewerage Commission.

A communication was received from Mayor Hodges announcing the appointment of the following board of sewerage commissioners: Herbert T. Whitman, for one year; William T. Shea, for two years; and Paul R. Blackmur, for three years.

A communication was received from the School committee approving plans for wooden buildings.

Report of Committee.

The committee on State Aid reported $4 per month to Hannah S. Brown and Mary L. Alden. Report accepted and adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Sept. 9, on the petition of A. F. Shenkelberger and others to remove street railway tracks on Saville street. Accepted.

New Business.

Councilman O'Brien offered an order requesting the Commissioner of Public Works to furnish an estimate of cost to pave Copeland street from Brewer's corner to Willard street.

Councilman O'Brien offered an order appropriating $400 for rebuilding bridge and walls of brook on Willard street near the Callahan and White estates. To executive department.

Councilman Rice offered an order appropriating $2000 for widening and rebuilding Adams street between Whitwell street and Furnace brook. To Committee on Streets.

Schoolhouses.

Councilman Sprague offered an order appropriating $35,000 for a brick schoolhouse according to the plans of Ranlett & Howe to be located at West Quincy.

Councilman Bryant inquired why the amount was so large.

Councilman Sprague replied that one of the reasons other orders had failed was because the sum mentioned was too small to build a substantial building.

Councilman Rice moved to amend the order so as to read $60,000 and for two wooden buildings.

Councilman Sprague thought we ought to try and get but one building this year.

Councilman Rice believed that wood was better for Quincy. A building is needed as badly at Norfolk Downs as West Quincy.

COUNCILMAN JOHNSON.

"I do not understand this change of front or why any member should say where a school building is most needed."

Councilman Johnson favored amendment. He did not understand this change of front or why anyone should say where a school building is needed the most.

At this point President Bass said there was no record that the school committee had approved plans of Randlett & Howe for brick buildings and the order could not be entertained in its original form.

Chairman Crane said a communication had been sent to the Council approving plans of Randlett & Howe for a brick building as he had written it himself.

Councilman Shackley hoped amendment would prevail.

Councilman Parker hoped amendment would not prevail. He thought it better to put up one building this year and let the following Council, which he hoped would do better than this one, put up another.

The amendment was then adopted by a vote of 9 to 8. The order was then referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Heating the Quincy School.

Councilman Rinn said he was not quite ready to report plans for heating and ventilating the Quincy school.

Councilman Bryant desired to ask Chairman Crane how many school days were lost last year at the Quincy school on account of cold weather.

COUNCILMAN PARKER.

"It is better to put up one building this year and let the following council put up another."

Chairman Crane replied that he did not think it was closed at all.

Councilman Bryant then wanted to know of the chairman of the School Board if Quincy school was not as well heated as the old Wollaston school and school at Quincy Point.

Chairman Crane declined to answer.

This ruffled Councilman Bryant who accused the Chairman of the School Board as being boyish. He objected to his refusing to answer any questions for the council. The question could be placed in the question book and he would have to answer it anyway.

Chairman Crane in reply said he would inform the manly gentleman in his boyish way that he considered the matter of heating in the province of the Commissioner of Public Works and he could not see why he should answer questions that did not properly come before him. He was not an expert on heating and ventilating.

Continuing Chairman Crane, in response to another question, said, he thought the Quincy, Washington and Adams buildings would all be condemned by the State Board of Health, also that the Quincy school was closed several times two years ago on account of cold weather.

Adjourned at 8.20.

Two Big Spectacles in One.

"Black America" Absorbs the London-Chicago Fire Exhibition, and both are now given on the Huntington avenue circus grounds. The fire entertainment includes nightly large set pieces, portraits of famous men, lakes of running fire, volcanic eruptions, and in fact everything which pertains to a successful and colossal fireworks exhibition. In itself this would be sufficient to attract large audiences, but, together with "Black America," it is no exaggeration to say nothing on so grand or extensive a scale has ever before been offered the amusement patrons of Boston and vicinity.

Cambridge.

The total gain in polls is 603. The total valuation of real and personal property is $80,850,260.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB.

A Light Breeze Causes an Uninteresting Race.

The third regatta of the Quincy Yacht club Monday afternoon was not as much of a success as the previous races for the reason that the breeze which plays an important part in races was very light.

What there was came from the southeast and the boats moved at a snails pace and only two boats finished within the time limit of three and one-half hours, the Swirl and Sphinx.

It was 3.20 when the two boats in the first class, Beatrice and Gleaner got away. The Beatrice crossed first and held the lead all the way to Hull, at one time having a lead of nearly a mile and they were in this position three miles away at the expiration of the time limit.

In the second class the Swirl crossed first closely followed by the Opechee, Rooster and Kayoshk.

On the beat to windward the Swirl crawled up and rounded Jackknife buoy first. On the run to Sheep island the Rooster did some good work and passed the Opechee. On the drift to the starting line the Rooster and Kayoshk were neck and neck. After crossing the line a little breeze sprang up and some lively tacking was done by the skippers and the Rooster rounded Jackknife first with the Swirl at her heels.

When near the Weymouth shore the Adams boys lost their centreboard rope and were obliged to beach their boat.

The Swirl then had things her own way and finished out the race winning the championship in her class. The Kayoshk and Opechee withdrew after crossing the line the first time.

In the third class the Sphinx crossed first but as she was on the line when the gun sounded she was obliged to come about and cross over again this getting a handicap of three minutes.

She soon gained her lost ground and passed the Sunbeam and In It and took the lead which she held throughout the race.

The In It withdrew during the race in order to get back to Hull before dark and the Sunbeam did not finish until one minute after the time limit had expired.

The judges were C. Eaton Pierce, John Cavanagh and Eben F. Sheppard.

The summary:

FIRST CLASS.
Beatrice, John Cavanagh,	did not finish.
Gleaner, F. O. Wellington,	did not finish.

—Monumental work in granite being a good deal of a luxury, or, in other words, something that can be easily postponed, has suffered more during the depression than other branches of our trade, but now that business is resuming in nearly all branches of industry, it is to be expected that the monumental business will assume an activity that will gladden the minds of both granite cutters and contractors alike.—Granite Cutters' Journal.

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.
This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.
Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.
Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.
On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.
Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.
A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

It's been our good fortune to note, after years of untiring study and observation, that what the people want today in Carpetings, is something that is serviceable, attractive, and not expensive in price. We are in touch with the leading Carpet mills in the country, and to intending Carpet buyers we say with pleasure: "You will do well to inspect our new and complete line of All Wool Tapestries and Brussells Carpets, ranging in price from 45 to 85 cents per yard, with the assurance that right in your midst is one of the finest and best assortments of medium priced Carpets, ever offered to a buying public."

Annual Catholic Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Quincy parish will be held tomorrow at Lovell's grove, and with a fair day one of the best of times is anticipated. The sports will commence at 12 o'clock and continue all the afternoon. The principal attractions will be the hurling match and the ball game, the former at 2 o'clock and the latter at 3 o'clock. This game will be between the Quincys and West Quincys and will settle the championship of Quincy. The five-mile handicap bicycle race will probably draw a large field and as worthy prizes are to be given some good riding may be looked for.

Dancing will be in order from 9 to 6 o'clock in the pavilion, under the direction of Mr. Adam Vogel.

Population and Marriage.

It is pleasant to learn from the treasury department that the American people are increasing and multiplying, irrespective of accessions through immigration.

As the addition to our population in 1891-92 was but 623,084 through immigration the total increase of 1,428,000, is clearly accounted for by excess of births over deaths.

In the year just closed, 1894-95, there has been an increase of 1,478,000, only 276,136 coming from immigration, so that the excess of births over deaths was 1,202,000, or 1.76 per cent of the population at the beginning of the year.

It is gratifying to contrast this situation with the melancholy one in France, where the deaths of late have been actually in excess of the births.—Boston Globe

Best Little Purgativ

I ever used," writes one lady, in regard to Hood's Pills. "They are so mild and do their work without any griping. I recommend them to all suffering from costiveness. They will certainly bring your habits regular. We use no other cathartic." Hood's Pills are rapidly increasing in favor. 25c.

Mrs. William Henry Dean.

From a lovely child Mrs. Dean developed into a lovely woman, not only physically but in mind and disposition as well, for she was amiable, lovable and thoughtful of others, always willing to be helpful and full of kindness toward the old and young. From her earliest school days she was a marked favorite with those with whom she came into contact, and her true worth as a devoted daughter and friend cemented the bonds of affection which her charming personality and joyous nature inspired.

As she grew into womanhood and entered the social life about her the prestige of her beauty and charm made her a recognized centre of attraction, not only in her native town and its environs, but in many others which she entered as a visitor. Her presence lent interest to all social gatherings, for she was loved and admired, not only among the young people of her own age, but she attracted the elderly and middle aged also. She was a bright and beautiful presence in the lives of many to whom she was merely an acquaintance, for despite the praise and commendation showered upon her from all sides she remained simple, direct and unaffected.

Such popularity in the social world frequently means an interesting home life. Mrs. Dean, on the contrary, was even more attractive in her domestic relations than in any other. Always an affectionate and efficient daughter, she stood in readiness to smooth over the hard places and straighten both with her quick brain and untiring activity the knotty problems which are constantly recuring in all households. Self was forgotten in the effort to minister to the comfort and convenience of those about her.

As the only child of appreciative and adoring parents her nature still remained unspoiled and untainted by the canker of conceit. She early discovered a liking and talent for drawing and painting, in the cultivation and development of which she spent many happy hours. Many of her friends retain mementoes of her handiwork in dainty sketches and even in more ambitious pictures, for her generous spirit rejoiced in the ability to give pleasure to others.

In the church at Bradford, N. H., she was for many years a member of the choir and frequently gave her time and ability by taking part in the management and rendering of entertainments for the benefit of charitable organizations.

When her engagement to Mr. Dean was announced no one could doubt that it was inspired by sincere affection, for her face was like a glow of sunshine throughout its duration, and the large and merry gathering at the wedding ceremony served to bespeak the universal liking she everywhere inspired.

It is more like a dream than reality that the fair girl who stood so short a time ago before the altar looking out fearlessly and brightly toward a long, glad life with one whom she dearly loved should be taken from him in the bloom and freshness of youth, with all the happy anticipations of the future but partly fulfilled.

The few years of unclouded companionship with such a wife serves only to make her loss more deeply felt, while only that father or that mother who has lost a beloved child can realize the anguish of her parents, whose whole delight and pleasure was centred in their daughter.

To the young people in Quincy who knew her intimately, as well as those who knew her simply as a pleasant acquaintance, her death is a shock and grief, leaving a gap that will not easily be filled.

Vacation Time

Is at hand and is gladly welcomed by all, especially those whose duties in life have caused them to greatly run down their system to meet the requirements, physical and mental, forced upon them. With these and others it is important, whether at home, at the seashore or in the country, that some thought be given to diet, and as further assistance to Nature, a good building-up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla had best be resorted to. If the digestion is poor, liver deranged and frequent headaches seem to be the rule, Hood's will change all this and enable everyone to return to their home and business in a refreshed state of mind and bodily health.

PARLIAMENT OPENED.

Ex-Speaker Crisp an Interested Spectator of the Proceedings.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The 14th parliament of Queen Victoria was opened yesterday with the customary ceremonies. Mr. Mowbray, in moving the re-election of Speaker Gully, said he rejoiced that Mr. Gully would be re-elected without a dissenting voice. Mr. Gully was formally re-elected without opposition. Charles F. Crisp, ex-speaker of congress, was an interested spectator.

Mr. Crisp, in conversation with a reporter, after the house of commons had adjourned, said: "Before the house met Mr. Gully showed me the paintings representing former speakers of the house of commons. Mr. Gully also showed me the statues of great statesmen of the past. I took a great delight in studying the portraits."

Forced to Settle.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13.—Five life insurance companies brought to a close the famous case of Dr. G. W. Fraker, when they paid over to his heirs $55,051.79, the amount of policies held by the doctor when he was drowned at Excelsior Springs in 1894. Yesterday was the day set by the court of the final settlement of the claims, and the insurance companies not being able to prove, as they have maintained they could, that the doctor is still alive, were compelled to pay over the amount stated.

The Cuban Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 13. — The Times this morning publishes a dispatch from Havana which says that insurgents are increasing in the province of Matanzas. The force of 1860 officers and men from Havana, who have been drawn for active service, causes the impression that the situation is more grave. The recent Madrid appointments, giving all the posts in Cuba to Spaniards, is criticised as proof that Spain is determined not to allow Cubans any share in administration.

Claim of A. P. A's.

OMAHA, Aug. 13.—It now looks as if a conflict is inevitable between the Omaha police force and the A. P. A. faction, which claims authority under a recent law to appoint a new police force. Indications were that a compromise was probable, but the efforts to persuade the A. P. A. to submit the controversy to the supreme court were of no avail. The A. P. A.'s are appointing their force, and claim that they will take possession of the city property by force tomorrow.

Honors Rejected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A special to The World from Tokio, Japan, says: There is a cabinet crisis. Count Ito, the prime minister, was created a marquis without his knowledge. Feeling himself placed in a false position, he refuses promotion while certain of his colleagues remain unhonored. He has left the capitol, and will not return until the question is settled. Count Yamagata, the war minister, declines the title of marquis for similar reasons.

Simple Ceremonies.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 13.—The remains of Justice Jackson were laid at rest in a private family cemetery, six miles west of this city, yesterday. The ceremonies at the grave were simple. Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer were the only members of the supreme court present, but a large number of prominent men were among the attendants.

Halstead's One Error.

LONDON, Aug. 13. — The Times says: We have received a copy of Murat Halstead's "White Dollar." He desires to maintain a double standard with a varying ration; a plan which has been tried by all countries in the past, and found to produce serious inconveniences. Apart from this error, his views are sensible and sound.

Defends Civil Service.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Aug. 13.—S. B. Evans, Cleveland's postmaster here in his first term, and who was appointed by Cleveland consul to Nicaragua, is out in an open letter to the president, scoring the federal officeholders for their undignified activity in the late state convention, bringing the civil service into contempt.

Strike in Prospect.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 13.—Miners on Loup creek are being urged to strike. Operators say that the vein at Loup creek is much thicker than that on New river, and at present prices both men and employers make more money in the former field than in the latter. It is probable that a strike will be ordered.

Looking Her Over.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 13.—The U. S. cruiser Columbia stands high and dry in the new drydock here, and this morning Messrs. Selfridge, Bowles and Farmer, who were appointed to determine the nature and cause of the damage the vessel sustained in Southampton, begun a careful survey.

Newsam to Be Extradited.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—An order was yesterday signed by the state department for the extradition of Arthur Newsam, a British subject, charged with forgery and embezzlement in the island of Trinidad.

To Punish Revolters.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 13.—An expedition of 400 men has started for Mombas to punish the revolting tribes near there. Admiral Rawson and General Matthews are accompanying the expedition.

The End of It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The tailors' strike is a complete triumph for the strikers. There are only 200 strikers now out of employment, but they will find work in 48 hours.

Chief of Police Arrested.

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—M. Uurukoff, chief of police of Sofia, was taken into custody on suspicion of having been concerned in the murder of ex-Premier Stambuloff.

Sticks to the Reds.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Billy Hoy, the old right fielder of the Reds, signed a new contract yesterday, and will continue to play with Cincinnati.

A Record Breaker.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—In the 20-mile bicycle race here, Burney Bird, of St. Paul, broke the world's record, making the distance in 54:17.

Welcomed Home.

SOFIA, Aug. 13.—Prince Ferdinand has arrived here and received an enthusiastic official reception and was cheered by the public.

Rebels Defeated.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13. — The Japanese army of South Formosa decisively defeated the rebels after severe fighting.

Mapleson's Ruse.

When Mapleson was on a tour in Dublin, Miles. Salla and Anna de Belocca were in the company. On arriving at the hotel both ladies chose the best suit of rooms in it, each saying, "These will do for me." "I shall have them," said Salla. "I am prima donna." "There are two prima donnas," returned Belocca, "myself and Patti." This began a furious quarrel. Mapleson went to the hotel keeper and ascertained that there were some other rooms nearly as good. He enjoined the man to declare that they were for Lady Spencer, wife of the viceroy, and stand to the statement. He then called him up and said loudly: "Both these ladies must have equally good rooms. Where are the others?" "The only others as large are reserved for the Countess Spencer," returned the hotel keeper. "But we could see them?" exclaimed both singers at once. "Oh, yes," said the man, leading the way. Belocca instantly flew up stairs past him into the suit, and locking the door in their faces shouted through the keyhole that Lady Spencer must get on as best she could, leaving Mapleson to congratulate himself on the effect of his strategem.

America's Frostless Belt.

What is supposed to be the only frostless belt in the United States lies between the city of Los Angeles and the Pacific ocean. It traverses the foothills of the Cahuenga range and has an elevation of between 200 and 400 feet. In breadth it is perhaps three miles. The waters of the Pacific are visible from it, and the proximity of the ocean has of course something to do with banishing frosts. During the winter season this tract produces tomatoes, peas, beans and other tender vegetables, and here the lemon flourishes, a tree that is peculiarly susceptible to cold. Tropical trees may also be cultivated with success, and in connection with this fact it is interesting to know that a part of the favorite territory has been acquired by Los Angeles for park purposes, and it is only a question of time when the city will have the unique distinction of possessing the only tropical park in the United States. Strange to say, only the midway region of the Cahuenga range is free from frost, the lower part of the valley being occasionally visited.—New York Post.

O'Connell's Legal Wit.

O'Connell once defended a man of the name of John Connor on a charge of murder in Cork, and the principal witness for the crown was a policeman who found the prisoner's hat, which he left behind him in his flight from the scene of his guilt. After traveling backward and forward, as was his habit in cross examination, from the all important question as to the identity of the hat he thus continued, "Now, then, you swear that the hat in my hands is the hat you found—in every particular the same?" Witness—"I do." O'Connell—"And inside the hat was written the prisoner's name" (looking into the hat and spelling the name very slowly), "'J-o-h-n C-o-n-n-o-r?'" Witness — "Yes." O'Connell (holding up the hat in triumph to judge and jury)—"My lord and gentlemen of the jury, there is no name in the hat at all." This made a sensation, and ultimately the prisoner was acquitted.

Freshest News.

Mr. Jospeh Willard, for a long time clerk of the superior court of Massachusetts, in Boston, relates in his "Half a Century With Judges and Lawyers" many good anecdotes.

Colonel Edward G. Parker, who was rather pedantic, wrote a life of Mr. Choate. He was relating an incident which happened in the third century before Christ, about the time of the death of Ptolemy III, and he appealed to John S. Holmes, who stood by.

"Didn't he die about that time, John?"

"Who's that that's dead?" asked Holmes.

"Ptolemy III," said Parker.

"What! What!" said Holmes, stretching out his hands. "You don't say he's dead?"

Art Critics.

Some genuine "vooes populi" overheard at the academy are given in The National Observer. The writer "came upon a couple of old men entranced with the realism of Mr. Joy's 'Bayswater Bus.' 'That's what I call a picture,' cried one of the patriarchs. 'You can read the advertisements so plain.'

"But the best remark of all was made by a comely dame anent Mr. Sydney P. Hall's 'Viva voce In the Old Schools, Oxford.' 'Which of them is Viva Voce?' she inquired of her cavalier, who replied evasively, 'I suppose the one bending over the table.'"

Why We Eat Soup First.

It has been remarked that the habit of beginning dinner with soup doubtless grew out of the fact that aliment in this readily digested form soon enters the blood and rapidly refreshes the hungry man. In two or three minutes after taking a plate of good warm consomme the feeling of weariness disappears, and the temper is apt to be greatly improved. The custom of taking a glass of sherry before dinner is spoken of by Sir Henry Thompson as a "gastronomical and physiological blunder."

A Noiseless, Patient Spider.

A noiseless, patient spider
I marked where on a little promontory it stood isolated,
Marked how to explore the vacant vast surrounding
It launched forth filament, filament, filament out of itself,
Ever unreeling them, ever tirelessly speeding them.

And you, O my soul, where you stand,
Surrounded, detached, in measureless oceans of space,
Ceaselessly musing, venturing, throwing, seeking the spheres to connect them,
Till the bridge you will need be formed, till the ductile anchor hold,
Till the gossamer thread you fling catch some where, O my soul!

Turkish and Russian Soldiers.

The Turkish army is perhaps the only one in the world which has invariably behaved better in the field than the peace conditions of both nation and army led critics to anticipate. The Russian army, so far as the war of 1877-8 is concerned, belongs undoubtedly to the category of armies which have not fulfilled expectations.

The average Turkish soldier is physically, morally and intellectually superior to the average Russian soldier, for three reasons—first, because he is a total abstainer; secondly, because he is religious—that is, intellectually religious, whereas the Russian is ignorantly religious, i. e., superstitious; thirdly, because elementary education is better in Turkey than in Russia. These plain facts should be borne in mind when the next campaign becomes imminent.—"The Defense of Plevna," by W. V Herbert.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Poor Prospect For Second Grass Yield In Northern States.

Springs and Wells Low and Pastures Dry.

Central and Southern States Favored With Frequent Rains.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—The New England weather bureau issues the following bulletin for the week ending Aug. 12:

A sharp drought has prevailed in most northern districts during the week, and feed is getting short in pastures, and there is poor prospect at present for a second grass crop. In the south very growing conditions have prevailed, and such crops as corn and tobacco have advanced very rapidly. Tobacco is very good, and cutting will be well under way this week. Potatoes are blighting badly and rotting some in the south. In the north late potatoes have been affected by lack of rainfall, but there are few reports of blight or decay. Fruit promises well in the south, but poorly in the north. All field and garden crops are generally excellent throughout New England.

Pastures Very Dry.

A few local showers have occurred in Maine, and a good rain came in central sections on the 12th, but in most places much more is needed for pastures and later crops. Springs and wells are very low, and pastures are drying badly. Late potatoes have been affected by the dry weather, and one correspondent in Androscoggin county reports that they will be very light. One in Kennebec county also says: "I never saw potato vines go down quicker in my life. They seem to scorch or blight all at once; in a week they have turned and died down with the tubers half grown." This blight has not been reported from other sections and may not be general. Corn is excellent. Grain is ripening fast, and generally the weather is favorable for harvesting. All kinds of grain promise a good yield; oats are very heavy, with no report of rust. The reports of apples indicate a very light crop of the winter variety.

Good Outlook For Winter Feed.

Feed in pastures is poor, and the grass in fields is starting slowly in northern New Hampshire, where there has been a lack of rainfall during the week. In more southern districts, although springs and wells are very low, feed continues good, and a fair second crop is promised. Haying is mostly finished, with few correspondents reporting a full crop, but nearly all saying better than expected. There will be a good crop of grain and corn fodder, so the outlook for plenty of winter feed is good. Corn seems to be affected by cool nights to considerable extent, although it is good. Potatoes show well, with no rust reported. One correspondent in Derry reports potatoes rotting badly in places. Blackberries are very thick, except in Cheshire county.

Heavy Showers In Vermont.

Frequent and, in places, very heavy showers have prevailed in Vermont during the week. At Northfield about two inches of rain fell during Sunday (11th) and Sunday night. Streams are well filled and fields and pastures have been greatly benefited. In southern counties especially there are indications of a good second crop of grass. The first crop is mostly in, and the general report is a light crop, some farmers in Windsor county reporting the lightest crop ever cut. Oats have been lodged badly, and the late sown are rusting. A good crop is assured. Potatoes are promising well, with no report of blight or rust.

Sunshine and Warmth.

Plenty of sunshine, with the high temperature, have advanced crops very much in Massachusetts, and have allowed late haymakers to finish up and the grain harvest to go on rapidly. Potatoes still promise well, though the reports of blight are general, and one correspondent in central Worcester county reports some complaint of their rotting. If the hot weather continues they are almost sure to rot on all low ground. Rowen is being cut in places and is very good—better than for years—in Franklin county. Tomatoes ripen slowly. Quinces hang on well. Beans and late peas are very fine. Root crops promise a good yield. Pumpkins are late in places, but are setting well. A large pear crop will be harvested, but apples continue in poor prospect in most orchards. The tobacco harvest is well under way in Hampshire county, and the crop is reported in excellent condition. In Hampden county the late set tobacco is growing fast and has mostly caught up. The early set is ripe, and a great deal will be cut the coming week.

Haying Mostly Done.

Potatoes are reported to be very good in Rhode Island, with little indication of rot yet. Berries are scarce. Apples are reported average in Providence county. The haying is mostly done, with a light crop, but with good prospects of a second crop on new fields. The week has given plenty of rain and sunshine and very growing conditions.

A Favorable Report.

Steady hot weather, with just enough rain in most places, have kept crops growing fast in Connecticut. The showers are locally very heavy, with considerable wind and heavy downpours of rain washing newly plowed pieces and damaging late sowed turnips, but not to a serious extent. Oats are mostly harvested, and are a good crop. Tobacco is mostly topped, and a very few have begun cutting. The conditions have been very favorable for this crop, and it is generally looking very well. It is uneven in places from ravages of cut worms and the effects of the wind and hailstorms, but it does not prove to be hurt so much by hail as was at first supposed. Potatoes are blighting everywhere to a greater or less extent, and there are several reports of rot. Onions are reported extra good at Greenfield Hill, Fairfield county, and a few growers have commenced to pull them. A late report for last week from Milford, New Haven county, states that onion seed will be light. Peaches will be heavy. Apples generally promise well in this state. Some have begun to cut rowen, with a good crop in prospect. Pastures are generally good.

Common Sense Argument.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—An editorial in The Times this morning says: It is needless to discuss the missionary controversy. The Chinese attacks are anti-foreign, and not anti-missionary, and if they are allowed to succeed in their manifest purpose, the whole policy of opening up China will be defeated. If the Pekin government is impotent to control the provincial authorities, we must deal with the latter directly.

HANLEY'S BAD RECORD

May Result In His Receiving a Twenty-Five Years' Sentence.

Lynn Crook Now Under Arrest In Boston.

Police Expect to Fasten Another Batch of Crimes Upon Him.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 14.—Patrick, alias "Corkey" Hanley, the most notorious criminal that ever hailed from Lynn, is again in the toils of the law. He was arrested yesterday afternoon in Boston by Inspectors Rowe and Wells of the Lynn police on the charge of breaking and entering. Monday night the shoe factory of G. W. Herrick & Co., Ingalls street, was broken into and a number of pairs of fine women's shoes taken. From evidence the police were able to find they came to the conclusion that "Corkey" was the instigator, if not the prime mover, in the break, and so they started out to find him.

They learned he had gone to Boston, and to that city the officers journeyed, thinking that they would be able to locate him in an effort to sell some of the shoes. They did meet him, and under his arm were several pairs of the shoes, which he claims to have bought.

But the detectives did not capture "Corkey" without a struggle. Although they caught sight of him quite a distance off, and were stealthily approaching, he saw them and started to run, but they were too quick, and with handcuffs on his wrists he was brought to this city.

In the searching room of the Lynn police station nothing was found on him but a knife and a ticket showing that he had paid his railroad fare on the train from Boston to Swampscott, and that the trip was made Monday. The instant this was removed from his pocket he made a grab for it, and obtaining possession of the piece of paper, thrust it into his mouth and began but the officers were too quick for him He was grabbed by the throat and compelled to give up the telltale piece of evidence that he had paid his fare to Swampscott on the day the burglary was committed. He had previously vigorously denied that he had been to Swampscott for a long time.

There are few men in the country of his age who have a worse record than "Corkey." For years before his sentence to Concord for a term of five years (this was when Concord was a state prison) he was a menace to the peace of the community and was engaged in numerous little breaks. At last he was arrested on a charge of sufficient magnitude to send him to prison, and he was sentenced to Concord. Shortly after his release he returned home to Lynn, and then began a series of breaks into private houses and shops. This was in 1889. Hanley was convicted of the burglaries and sentenced to Charlestown for five years.

During his incarceration at that institution he was engaged in a number of attempts to escape. He it was that in some manner procured a revolver and flourished it when the last big attempt at a jail delivery was made. Several times his cell was searched and Dangerous Weapons Found In It.

After his term in the prison had expired, he arose in a Salvation Army meeting in Boston, stating that he had been saved, and then made a number of serious charges against the officials of the Charlestown institution. Cruelty, starving of prisoners, excessive punishment and a few other charges were made. The prison commissioners held a hearing, and at that time decided that there was no foundation to the charges, although they created considerable excitement at the time.

Hanley then returned to Lynn, and has been here ever since. Not only do the police believe that he commi ed the Herrick burglary, but three others within a few days, and they claim that they have sufficient evidence to convict him of all four crimes. They also think that it was Hanley who was at the head of the gang that a few months ago flooded Lynn vicinity with counterfeit quarter and half dollars.

He has twice been in state prison, and if he is convicted of this charge it makes him liable to be declared an habitual criminal and receive a sentence of 25 years.

Arrested at End of Wedding Trip.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—Henry J. Reardon was arrested at the Park square station, yesterday, on his return from his wedding trip, and in the municipal court he was held in $5000 on a complaint for being accessory before the fact in a criminal malpractice case. While the brother of the bride took her aside for a moment at the station, the arrest was quietly made. When the grave nature of the charge against her husband was made known to Mrs. Reardon—charges which seem to indicate utter heartlessness on the part of the prisoner—she was overcome, having heard up to that time no suggestion that her husband had been unfaithful.

Rhody's Red Men.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 14.—The grand council of Red Men of Rhode Island at its annual session elected the following officers: Sachem, Alfred Mowry, Providence; senior sagamore, H. A. Dean, Providence; junior sagamore, Benjamin Maynard, Pawtucket; prophet, J. H. Barney, Newport; chief of records, W. R. Brown, Valley Falls; keeper of wampum, C. C. Phillips, Providence.

Was Convicted of Murder.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 14.—In the case of James Lewis, convicted of the murder of Byron G. Coburn, at Gorham, the court says that the charge of the judge to the jury on the trial of this case was not adequate on some of the questions arising upon evidence and was prejudicial to respondent. On this ground alone the verdict is set aside and a new trial granted.

Too Close Together.

HARTFORD, Aug. 14.—A regular trolley car on the Windsor line ran into a special last evening and several persons were injured. The rear car was close behind the first, and when the special stopped to let off a passenger, the regular plunged into it with terrific force. The front of the rear car was crushed in, and people in front were pinned to their seats.

Salvationists in Camp.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 14.—The second day of the Salvation Army meeting here was in charge of Staff-Captain and Mrs. Marshall of Boston. A supplication meeting was held in the morning, and a "heart-cleansing" service followed. Last night a big meeting, styled "A Call From Hell," was conducted by Brigadier Brewer of Boston.

Still Arguing.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 14.—The Stain and Cromwell pardon case occupied the greater part of yesterday and last evening. Judge Crosby called several witnesses to the stand, who testified in behalf of the prisoners, and Attorney General Powers spoke in behalf of the government. The hearing will probably end tonight.

An unknown man was found dead on the Boston and Albany tracks near Springfield, Mass.

Children Filled With Shot.

IOWA CITY, Aug. 14.—John Smith and his brother, Dr. George Smith, attempted to prevent Sheriff Jones from arresting the latter at Frank Pierce's, near here. John Smith discharged a shotgun at the sheriff's head. The officer's face was scorched, but the load struck five children playing across the street. All were more or less seriously injured. It is feared that two may not live.

Bid Already Fixed.

BAY VIEW, Mich., Aug. 14. — Judge Woods has refused to grant an appeal in the Whisky trust case, and so Receiver McNulta will stand on the postoffice steps in Chicago and dispose at public sale the 17 distilleries and the company's office building at Peoria. The up-set bid price is $9,800,000 for the lot, and the organization committee will be the purchaser at that figure.

A Fatal Well.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Workmen engaged in clearing away the debris in the cellar of the recently collapsed Ireland building uncovered an old-fashioned well last evening. It was located directly under the central pillar, the undermining of which precipitated the disaster. The well was but 18 inches beneath the stone base on which the central pillar rested.

Held at Quarantine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Health Officer Doty last evening discovered symptoms of yellow fever in the sickness of one of the saloon passengers detained at quarantine on the arrival of the steamer Seneca. The man had been in Cuba for some months. The remaining 24 detained passengers will be held on Hoffman island to await the development of the case.

Unkind Criticism.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Truth, commenting on the Vigilant's protest against the Defender, says: From the report it appears that the latter has scarcely been handled in the most sportsmanlike manner. The moral is that the cup will be retained by hook or by crook, whatever the Valkyrie III may be able to do.

FIVE ARRESTS MADE.

A Move Toward Securing Justice For the Ku-Cheng Massacre.

A Commission of Inquiry Appointed to Investigate.

The Chinese Government In a State of Helpless Confusion.

CHE-FOO, Aug. 14.—Five of the participants in the Ku-Cheng outrages have been arrested and will be tried forthwith.

An official telegram announces that the Pekin government, at the suggestion of the British minister, N. R. O'Connor, has issued a peremptory edict, calling upon the governors of all the provinces in the empire to prevent the people from being misled by idle rumors calculated to excite anti-mission disorders.

Mr. Mansfield, the acting British consul at Foo-Chow; Mr. Allen, the British vice consul at Padoga island; Colonel J. C. Hixson, the United States consul at Foo-Chow; Messrs. Banister and Gregory and one of the lieutenants of the United States cruiser Detroit, will start from Foo-Chow for Ku-Cheng, the scene of the recent massacres, as soon as possible, in order to make a complete inquiry into the matter. The consular party will be escorted by a detachment of 100 Chinese braves, the viceroy having refused to allow an escort of foreign soldiers or marines to accompany them.

The Chinese government is in a state of helpless confusion, and is incapable of any decisive action or of exercising any effective authority. The results will probably prove serious, unless the foreign powers take precautions.

White Men to Blame.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—A report sent to the war department by Captain J. T. Van Orsdale of the Seventh Infantry, late acting agent at the Fort Hall Indian reservation, on the subject of the trouble with the Bannock Indians, has been forwarded to the secretary of the interior. The report says that there is no wanton slaughter of game by Indians, while it is a notorious fact that hundreds of animals are killed by white men for nothing more than heads and horns. The Indians can hardly be expected to submit to the killing of their people while engaged in an occupation which they think they have a right to follow.

Safe For Sound Money.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Ex-Representative Gresham, who represented the Galveston district of Texas in the last congress, expresses the opinion that Texas might be counted on as safe for sound money. "The state is properly a sound money state, and I am sure it will be carried for sound money. The state is prosperous, and growing more so, and the silver agitation is dying out."

Carlisle Ought to Know.

DULUTH, Aug. 14.—In an interview with Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle, concerning remarks which credit him with having presidential aspirations, he said: "It seems to me as if a man's word should go for something, but it does not sometimes with some people. I have denied that I have any presidential aspirations, and it is hardly necessary to deny it again."

BRUSSELS, Aug. 14.—The international parliamentary conference on peace arbitration was opened here yesterday. Representatives of 14 different countries were present. EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

BOSTON now expects to carry mail to and from suburban offices by pneumatic tubes. This will be rapid transit indeed, and then it might give a vacation to some of the carriers that do not know Exchange place from Congress square.

TO TALK for a moment about this candidate for governor or that candidate, is useless this year. Massachusetts does not often have a governor that is a misfit and she never had one that filled the place with more honor to himself more dignity or manly independence than Frederic T. Greenhalge. He has never failed to stand up squarely upon all questions and the Republican party will be slow in considering any other candidate this year. His courage in sticking to what he believed to be for the best interest of the commonwealth has endeared him to thinking men in both parties.

Funeral of Mrs. Graham.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. B. Graham, was held Tuesday afternoon from her late residence on Washington street, many of her relatives and friends as well as those of Mr. Graham's being present to testify by their presence, their appreciation of her, who had gone before.

Women in the Masonic Orders.

The Chicago Legal News of July 20, says:—"Truly the Masonic world moves." The wife of T. W. Parvin, the daughter of a past grand commander, and the daughter-in-law of Most Worshipful Bro. T. S. Parvin of Iowa, past grand master, past high priest, and an active member of the Southern Supreme Council, 33d and last degree, is a 14th degree mason, Lodge of Perfection, and was worshipful master of Martha Washington lodge of master masons in Mexico. Brother T. S. Marvin was himself knighted in Apollo Commandery, No. 1, of Chicago, Jan. 10, 1855. He never expected then to live to see the day when his son and son's wife would meet in the same master mason's lodge, and the son's wife would be the worshipful master.

The Grand Dieta, Symbolico of Mexico, did by its legislation of 1890, authorize the making of women master masons, and under that law some five of its constituent grand lodges did make women masons. In a few years later that law was repealed, and they do not now make masons of women, but those previously made are recognized and visit lodges and grand lodges.

A TALK WITH VEST

In Which the Missouri Senator Expresses His Views on Silver.

CARLSBAD, Aug. 14.—"The silver question will never be dropped in America until free coinage is passed," said Senator George G. Vest of Missouri here yesterday, replying to questions put to him concerning the Missouri, Mississippi and Iowa conventions. "The people in the east," he continued, "believe it will be dropped as business revives, but the overwhelming sentiment in all the west and south is in favor of free coinage. I believe it will surely be passed in time. What the result of its passage will be I am unable to predict.

"The whole of the money power of the east and the banks everywhere will undoubtedly make it as difficult as possible, and try to furnish a striking object lessen. Easternerners say we in the west and south do not understand the question. But there never was a subject more fully discussed or more carefully studied. There is not a farmer in my constituency who is not fully prepared to discuss intelligently all the bearings of the question, and the same state of affairs exists throughout the southwest."

Senator Vest was then asked to explain the action of Kentucky and Iowa, if the feeling was so universal. In reply he said: "I cannot express an opinion regarding Iowa until I know how the convention was constituted. If it was similar to that of Kentucky, composed of state officials and officeholders, it is no criterion of public sentiment. They would naturally coincide with Cleveland and Carlisle."

Gold Reserve Is Safe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—A telegram was received at the treasury department from New York stating that $900,000 in gold has been withdrawn for export to Europe. This was followed in a few minutes by another stating that the Morgan syndicate had deposited in gold in exchange for legal tenders $1,946,000, which left the gold reserve at the close of yesterday's business-$101,183,715. The syndicate's action is taken here as conclusive evidence that it proposes to keep the reserve above the $100,000,000 point.

Wholesale Massacre.

SOFIA, Aug. 14.—According to news received from a Turkish official source, 500 Bulgarians, led by three reserve officers, attacked the Mohammedan village of Dospat, across the Turkish frontier, before dawn. The Bulgarians then set the village on fire and slaughtered the inhabitants indiscriminately as they rushed from the houses. It is stated that several hundred were killed. The Ottoman commissioner has delivered a protest to the Bulgarian government.

Lawyers Chose Officers.

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Over 200 commercial lawyers were present at the opening of the convention of commercial lawyers. The following were chosen permanent officers: Chairman, W. C. Sprague, Detroit; vice presidents, one from each state; secretaries, G. S. Hull of Buffalo and J. M. Wolfson of New Orleans.

Help Wanted.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Captain Crossman, of the steamer Allianca, says that the Panama canal authorities are advertising for skilled mechanics to work on the canal. He says there is money enough to keep 10,000 men working for two years. The recent labor troubles on the isthmus have all been settled.

"Out of Politics."

OLD FORGE, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Hon. Charles E. Remick, a follower of Senator Hill, came here for recreation, and during his stay here met General Harrison. He said: "General, if Cleveland and you are the nominees in 1896, I will vote for you." "I am out of politics," was General Harrison's response.

Almost Reached Four Score.

CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Emeline Roach, widow of the late John Roach, the great shipbuilder, died yesterday at her summer home in Westchester county, N. Y. She had been in delicate health for several years. She was 78 years old.

Declared a Fraud.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—A fraud order has been issued by the postoffice department against the European Specialty company of Bridgeport, Conn., and against J. W. Adams, its proprietor, because of misleading advertising.

Bank Suspends.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 14.—The Bank of Shelby failed to open its doors yesterday. The liabilities are stated to be $107,000, and the assets $137,000, of which only $56 is cash on hand. The amount due depositors is about $95,000.

Looms Deserted.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—The 136 weavers on silk upholstery goods employed by Hoyle, Hasson & Kay went out on strike yesterday, owing to an announcement of a 10 per cent reduction in their wages.

Finis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The strike of the tailors was formally declared off last night. Forty contractors remain to submit to the demands of the workers.

Engagement.

The friends of Mr. Jesse G. Swift in this city, and of Wollaston in particular, where he was born and resided for many years, will be pleased to learn of his engagement to Miss Emily W. Cobb, an estimable lady of New York.

Mr. Swift is in the wholesale paper business with his brother, Mr. M. A. Swift. His father moved to Wollaston about thirty years ago, when that beautiful and attractive village had very few houses. About five years since the family moved to Dorchester, where they now reside. Jesse became a member of the First Corps of Cadets of Boston, and when dressed in the beautiful uniform of that corps made deep impression in the eyes of Miss Cobb.

NEW COMMISSIONERS

A Brief Sketch of the Gentlemen who Compose the New Board.

Some people are pleased with the personal of the Sewerage Commissioners and some are not; however, a brief sketch of the three gentlemen will not be out of place at this time.

HERBERT T. WHITMAN.

This gentleman who has been appointed by Mayor Hodges for one year is well known throughout the city as a practical civil engineer, and during his residence in Quincy has been active in town and city affairs. He was born in Pembroke, Mass., Dec. 19, 1848. His business of surveying and constructing engineering he learned with Luther Briggs, of Boston and before coming to Quincy in 1873 he resided in Revere. He has served the town of Quincy as Road Commissioner and was elected a member of the first city council from Ward Five.

In February, 1892, he was appointed by Mayor Fairbanks as Water Commissioner for three years, but before the expiration of his term of office he resigned, but upon request he finished out his term. He has been active in the establishment of a sewerage system in Quincy and the proposed plan was made under his directions.

WILLIAM T. SHEA,

the two year member was born in Quincy in 1858. He was educ ted in the Quincy schools, leaving which, he learned the granite cutting trade and is now a member of the granite firm of W. Shea & Son. He was a member of the city council from Ward Four in 1889 and 1890 and during these two years served on the Committee on Streets.

He is also manager of the Quincy Paving and Edgestone Co. He is a member of St. Mary's Catholic Total Abstinence Society, the C. T. A. U, of Massachusetts, St. Francis Court of Foresters and Knights of Columbus.

PAUL R. BLACKMUR.

The three year member of the board was born in Chelsea, July 25, 1836, and is a son of Horace and Bessie Blackmur.

He was educated in Quincy's schools and Adams Academy. His father died when he was an infant, and when he was five years old his mother married the late John L. Eldridge, the well-known criminal lawyer of the County. He studied law in Mr. Eldridge's office, and, when 18 years of age, entered the Boston University School of Law. After graduating he had charge of his step-father's office at Quincy for several years. In January, 1890, he was admitted to the Suffolk County Bar. Dec. 9, 1802, he was married to Frances Billings Wood, daughter of Wm. A. and Lydia W. Wood of Hyde Park. In 1891 he was the Democratic candidate for one of the Commissioners of Insolvency for Norfolk County, and in 1893 his party's candidate for school committee man at large for Quincy. Feb. 1, 1894, Mayor Hodges appointed him city solicitor of Quincy, and reappointed him in 1895, which office he now holds.

About Advertising.

John Wanamaker expends what to most people would be a comfortable fortune every year in advertising. But mark the returns he receives on his investment in this direction. According to a recently published statement, the profits of his great mercantile establishment in Philadelphia last year were $4,000,000. Printer's ink has contributed very much toward building up the mammoth business of this shrewd merchant and continues to be an important factor in it still. Wanamaker's success is an object lesson which every tradesman ought to heed and profit by. There is always money and profit in a judicious and continuous use of the advertising columns of the press. The merchant who fails to recognize this fact is blind to his own interests and, unwittingly benefits his competitors in trade at his own expense.—Fall River Daily Globe.

—A three hundred pound Kansas farmer is charged with kissing a neighbor's wife in a "loud, boisterous, felonious, malicious and unseemly manner, against the peace and dignity of the State of Kansas!" The Salem Gazette thinks that fellow was a monumental blunderer in osculation. The idea of breaking up a whole state as large as Kansas in this way is ridiculous.

MARRIED.

PITTS—COMEAU—In Neponset, Aug 13, by Rev. Fr. T. J. Murphy, Mr. Alexander Pitts of Wollaston to Miss Jennie Comeau of Neponset.

BORN.

CRANE—In Quincy, August 13, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Elm street.

DIED.

CHRISTIANSEN—In East Milton, Aug. 13, Lillie E. B., daughter of Mr. Carl M. and Mrs. Caroline Christiansen, aged 1 year.

A Bad Accident.

There was quite a serious accident at North Weymouth Tuesday night. Edmund G. Hayden of Quincy and an unknown man were trying the speed of their horses and were taking up the whole of the street. As they were going up Grave's hill they met three bicyclists, who tried to get out of the way of the horses.

One of the bicycle riders escaped by riding into the gutter and another by running into a barb wire fence. The third man, David J. Littlewood of South Quincy, was not so fortunate and before he could get out of the way one of the teams passed over him. His wheel was badly smashed and he was badly cut about the head.

After the accident one of the teams did not stop, but Mr. Hayden came back to see what damage had been done. The injured man was attended by Dr. Drake.

Misleading Dates.

Some time since the LEDGER called attention to several of the stones in the old Hancock cemetery upon which the dates had been changed, the figure 9 being made to look like a figure 2. In a recent history of the Corps Hill cemetery, Boston, the author speaks of stones in that cemetery and others in the suburbs which had been changed the same way, and says the work was doubtless a case of vandalism.

This probably explains how the Hayward and Marsh stones in the Hancock cemetery are misleading.

Cards and Chips as Evangelists.

The Rev. Sharrard Beatty of the Cincinnati Rescue Mission has adopted a unique method of placing religious appeals in the hands of gamblers. The Rev. Mr. Beatty was once a devotee of the poker table. He has a lot of cards, the back of which resemble the regulation playing cards. As a companion to these he carries a pocketful of chips resembling those used in a poker game. On entering a saloon the Rev. Mr. Beatty will pull out a bunch of cards, begin shuffling them in a manner that shows expertness in handling, and when he has the eyes of all those in the saloon upon him he asks:—"Gentlemen will you take a hand with me?"

He then begins to deal the cards around, one to each person. When they turn the face of the card toward them, instead of finding spots they behold these words:—"Boycott the devil; he doesn't pay living wages. The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

On the chips which the Rev. Mr. Beatty gives out with these cards is printed:—"Seek ye the Lord. Life is short; death is sure; sin is the cause; Christ's the cure."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—The Salem Gazette says: "Several of the Puritans rode to Nantasket, Sunday, over the road the entire distance, about 40 miles. They left Salem at 8.20 A. M. and reached Nantasket at 12 20 P. M. The roads, except in Boston, were fine, and the view from Milton hill was worth the entire trip. In coming back the boys took the steamer to Boston and from there took the Nahant steamer, riding home from that place on their wheels after a most delightful trip."

Think of This. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only true blood purifier preeminently in the public eye today. It cures disease when all others fail, because it makes pure blood.

Hood's Pills cure jaundice, billiousness sick headache, constipation and all liver ills.

—Herman Webster Mudgett, the Chicago murderer, who is known all the country over under the aliases of H. H. Holmes, Howard, Lyman, Pratt, etc, was born at Gilmanton Corner, N. H, and is a son of Levi H. Mudgett, a much respected citizen of about 70 years, who still resides in that village. Herman was a very polite boy when young, but terribly fond of money; and would get it when an opportunity offered. This strong desire will probably bring him to the gallows.

—The Metropolitan Park Commissioners decided Aug. 2d, to add Crescent Beach to the system, and this move will secure the entire beach front, from Orient Heights to the Point of Pines, to the people. The acquisition of these marine breathing-places is a wise and beneficent step, viewed from all standpoints. The general plan of the Commissioners is comprehensive, and, when rounded fully, will embrace in its folds the popular freedom of the woods and the sea.—Salem Gazette.

—The death of Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court of the United States makes a vacancy on the Bench, to be filled by the President. When he was appointed by President Harrison, on the death of Justice Lamar, the act was criticised because he was a Democrat and a State Rights man. But his reputation for honesty and integrity outweighed these considerations in the mind of the President. His successor will be a Democrat, as a matter of course, and the political complexion of the Court will not be changed. He sustained the income tax, so the new appointee will not make it possible to reopen that question. He may come from New York, though some member of the Cabinet is not unlikely to receive the honor.—Lynn Item.

—Electric cars have been prohibited on the road from Berlin to Charlottenburg. They would have passed by the Imperial Technical Institute, and experiments showed that the current for the railroad strongly affected all the apparatus in the building, so as to make delicate scientific observations and experiments impossible.

There are two orders of Pius, one established by the fourth, the other by the ninth pope of that name.

CURRENT COMMENT.

There is no longer any blue Monday in New York. It is blue Sunday and crimson Monday now.—Boston Globe.

All this talk about our lack of a national anthem is absurd. Have we not "Casey at the Bat" and "Sweet Marie?"—Albany Argus.

The Chicago Inter Ocean has a leading editorial on the subject, "After Oct. 1, What?" In this part of the country, Oct. 2.—Syracuse Post.

It is believed that there are 2,000 illicit stills in the country, but we are tempted to wonder how the internal revenue officials got the list.—Cincinnati Tribune.

"Farming is the safest pursuit in which a man can engage," says the Louisville Courier Journal. This is what the men who don't farm always say.—Philadelphia Press.

Since that Cincinnati judge announced that only a fool gave all his wages to his wife, there has been a rise in contempt of court ideas among the ladies.—Philadelphia Times.

Russell Sage has discovered his second sight and will probably insist on charging Mr. Laidlaw a good stiff price for the privilege of shutting off his view of that exploding bomb.—Washington Post.

Under a new law passed by the New York legislature and signed by Governor Morton chiropodists will have to have a diploma to practice in that state. Hereafter they will have to "toe the mark," and the Pedic society will foot the bill.—Chicago Times-Herald.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

In Paris, gray, beige, white and black alpacas are everywhere worn.

Pretty outing suits of blue imperial serge have Eton jackets with tabbed fronts and large bishop sleeves.

Black alpaca and black mohair skirts are immensely popular this year, these elegantly cut and hung and lined in color matching that of the blouse bodice.

Flounces appear on many smartly made gowns brought from Europe, and it is said that when trimmed skirts again prevail flounces will provide the leading garniture.

The new dresden challies are of French manufacture, and they show many of the beautiful designs popular in dresden ribbons and silks and the small patterned chine satins of last winter.

On account of the widely prevailing fashion of wearing full elbow sleeves with dressy afternoon costumes, thousands of dozens of mousquetaire lengths in gloves have been sold this season.

The new color combinations of the opalescent or chameleon silks are exceedingly artistic and beautiful. Many of these popular silks are combined with mohair veiling or soft wool crepon with charming results.

Among the more serviceable of the summer costumes are those of silver colored mohair, the skirts full but absolutely plain. The short skirted coats are rounded in front. At the back a very frilly appearance is given by means of flutes of the mohair well stiffened.—New York Post.

RIVAL CITIES.

If the people of Denver, Chicago and other cities do not wish to be looted, why do they send toughs to the city council?—Dallas News.

Chicago has a railroad called the "All Hog." Visitors who have patronized the street cars feel sure they have ridden on it.—Kansas City Journal.

Among the many suggestions for the mooted change of name for New York it seems strange that no Gothamite has suggested "The Chicago of the East."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New York gazes complacently at the array of names in Chicago's new directory, realizing the oft demonstrated fact that in Chicago a name in a directory doesn't necessarily represent a living resident.—New York Press.

A Chicago alderman wants the council meetings opened with prayer, and it suggests the thought, What has a Chicago alderman to pray for? Everything in sight has been taken, and such a thing as repentance is unknown to them.—Davenport Leader.

New York points with pride to the fact that 13 families in that city pay taxes on $500,000 worth of diamonds, while the whole of Chicago returns for taxation only $2,000 in diamonds. Chicago is neglecting the diamond as a census multiple.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

OUR GIRLS.

When an old woman sees a new woman, she exclaims, "For pity sakes!"—Galveston News.

The new woman has more rustle, while the old woman had more bustle.—Salt Lake Tribune.

If women's sleeves get much bigger than they are now, it won't be necessary for them to wear anything else.—Somerville Journal.

Happily Miss Anthony does not advise the women of Kansas to let the biscuit burn if they are not given the ballot. Miss Anthony is firm, but she is no brute.—Detroit Tribune.

What will the new woman do on discovering that the husband whom she has raised to social position and on whom she has lavished every luxury is determined to go on the stage?—Washington Star.

And now the English woman is discussing the propriety of conferring knighthood and other distinctions of title on women, since they are at last permitted to enter unopposed into the pursuits formerly monopolized by men. The new woman is not disposed to stand any nonsense—she wants it all.—Boston Herald.

TIMELY TOPICS.

These days the man who has ice to melt is richer than he who has money to burn.—Seymour Democrat.

The man who insists on consulting a thermometer in hot weather deserves no sympathy.—Mail and Express.

A correspondent wants to know "whether soda water is a better drink than ice water in summer?" Well, we should wink!—Chicago Dispatch.

The summer is on the wane and the news comes a little late, but it is nevertheless gratifying to know that the annual snake is milking the annual cow again, this year in Kansas and in Connecticut.—Boston Herald.

BEAUTIFUL NOVA SCOTIA.
EVANGELINE'S LAND

THE IDEAL PLACE FOR

YOUR VACATION.

Longfellow didn't begin to tell the beauties of Evangeline's land—he couldn't. In its climate, scenery, and romantic history—in its boating, bathing, fishing and cycling—in its healthfulness and restfulness it is—well, it's perfect. And then the hotel rates—just half our New England prices. And the sail from Boston,

17 HOURS AT SEA.

What a delightful taste of salt that gives you! You leave Boston at 12 o'clock, noon, on the staunch steel Steamer "Boston" or "Yarmouth," the finest and fastest steamers that leave Boston—and you reach Yarmouth early next morning in time for all Railroad connections. These boats sail Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The round trip is but $9.00—but to be sure of staterooms book ahead.

TELL-TALE FACES.

PINCHED AND CAREWORN,

As Worn by Many American Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

The "tell-tale face" is worn by many American women, and is a symptom of symptoms, a signal of distress.

While women do all in their power to hide their condition, the practised eye soon detects the trouble.

When pains and aches are felt in every part of the body, when faintness, dizziness, and that bearing-down feeling prevail, when loss of sleep and appetite are reducing flesh daily, when the society of friends is irksome, and the hopeless "blues" predominate, then the face is pinched, haggard, and careworn, and prompt relief is necessary, or a beautiful life will be sacrificed.

An American woman, Lydia E. Pinkham, a student of women and their diseases, twenty years ago succeeded in producing an absolute cure for all diseases of women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands to-day as it did then, pre-eminent.

Mrs. H. Wampler, of Barabo, Wis., whose letter we were permitted to publish last year, writes that she hopes Mrs. Pinkham will continue to use her name, as the publication in newspapers of the account of her own wonderful cure and relief from years of misery has been the means of influencing many suffering women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and become well like herself. Mrs. Wampler feels, and rightly, too, that in this way she is doing a great good.

The Dumb Child.

She is my only girl.
I asked for her, as some most precious thing,
For all unfinished was love's jeweled ring
Till set with this soft pearl.
The shadow time brought forth I could not see.
How pure, how perfect seemed the gift to me!

Oh, many a soft old tune
I used to sing unto that deadened ear
And suffered not the slightest footstep near,
Lest she might wake too soon,
And hushed her brothers' laughter as she lay.
Ah, needless care! I might have let them play.

'Twas long ere I believed
That this one daughter might not speak to me,
Waited and watched, God knows how patiently,
How willingly deceived.
Vain love was long the untiring nurse of faith
And tender hope until it starved to death.

Oh, if she could but hear
For one short hour till I her tongue might teach
To call me mother in the broken speech
That thrills the mother's ear!
Alas, those sealed lips never may be stirred
To the sweet music of that holy word.

My heart it sorely tries
To see her kneel with such a rev'rent air
Beside her brothers at their evening prayer,
Or lift those earnest eyes
To watch our lips, as though our words she knew,
Then move her own, as she were speaking too.

I've watched her looking up
To the bright wonder of a sunset sky
With such a depth of meaning in her eye
That I could almost hope
The struggling soul would burst its binding cords
And the long pent up soul flow forth in words.

The song of bird and bee,
The chorus of the breezes, streams and groves,
All the grand music to which nature moves
Are wasted melody
To her, the world of sound a tameless void,
While even silence hath its charm destroyed.

Her face is very fair;
Her blue eyes beautiful; of finest mold
The soft white brow, o'er which in waves of gold
Ripples her shining hair.
Alas, this lovely temple closed must be,
For He who made it keeps the master key.

Wills He the mind within
Should from earth's babel clamor be kept free,
E'en that His still small voice and step might be Heard in its inner shrine
Through that deep hush of soul with clearer thrill?
Then should I grieve? O murmuring heart, be still!

She seems to have a sense
Of quiet gladness in her noiseless play.
She hath a pleasant smile, a gentle way,
Whose voiceless eloquence
Touches all hearts, though I had once the fear
That even her father would not care for her.

Thank God it is not so.
And when his boys are playing merrily
She comes and lays her head upon his knee.
Oh, at such times I know
By his full eye and tones subdued and mild
How his heart yearns over his silent child.

Not of all gifts bereft
Even now. How could I say she did not speak!
What real language lights her eye and cheek
And renders thanks to Him who left
Unto her soul yet open avenues
For joy to enter and for love to use!

And God in love doth give
To her defect a beauty of its own,
And we a deeper tenderness have known
Through that for which we grieve.
Yet shall the seal be melted from her ear—
Yes, and my voice shall fill it, but not here.

When that new sense is given,
What rapture will its first experience be
That never woke to meaner melody
Than the rich songs of heaven!
To hear the full toned anthem swelling round
While angels teach the ecstasy of sound!

—John H. Warland.

Consul Bounced.

MONTEVIDEO, Aug. 14.—Uruguay has revoked the appointment of N. B. Borden as its consular representative for the district of Florida, in consequence of his alleged betrayal of his official trust in the case of Spain, Borden siding with the insurgents.

Died From Sunstroke.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—Peter Petersen, one of the survivors of the Prince Oscar disaster, who, together with 15 other sailors, was brought to this port, died yesterday from the effect of a sunstroke received on Sunday.

Track Record Lowered.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 14.—Charles E. Tudor broke the Carthage track mile record, flying start. His time was 2:07 2-5. The track record for one mile was held by Walter Sanger of Milwaukee, who made it in 2:12.

CUBANS SEE VICTORY.

General Maceo Says Spain Must Eventually Yield to Demands.

Regiments Going From Oklahoma to Cuba.

Increased Worriment Exhibited by the War Officials at Madrid.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Secretary Quesada of the Cuban revolutionary party yesterday received a letter from Major General Antonio Maceo, containing very encouraging news of the revolution. The letter gives directions and advice in regard to the most effectual method of aiding the soldiers in the field, and this portion Mr. Quesada refused to make public. The letter says:

"The revolution is most powerful in Santiago de Cuba and in Camaguey. Every battle so far has been a triumph for the liberators of this country. The Spanish soldiers are panic stricken, and surrender to their besiegers, who spare their lives. I think that we shall soon oblige the Spanish government to give up the islands to the Cubans, who wish to be free, and who are striving to throw off this yoke which oppresses and ruins them.

MAJOR GENERAL ANTONIO MACEO.

"The five representatives of the western department have left for Camaguey in order to establish the government of the republic. The representatives are Dr. Joaquin Castillo Duany, Rafael W. Portuodo, Rafael Mudelfy, Pedro Auguilera Kindelan and Mariana Sanchez Vaillauth. They will institute a government composed of a president and three secretaries—those of war, interior and foreign relations.

"It is possible that the president will be General Bartolemeo Masso. I will send you soon El Cubano Libre, a newspaper which will be published in this department, giving our official news of the military operations of the army of the past and of the progress of the revolution.

"We congratulate ourselves on the election of Thomas Estrada Palma and Manuel Sanguily as representatives of our sacred cause in the United States. Give the people of that generous country our regards, and assure them that Cuba has never doubted their sympathy. I am yours, with the highest consideration."

Spaniards Lose by Sickness.

From other letters received at the headquarters it is learned that General Gomez is meeting with success at every side. He is receiving re-enforcements daily.

The city of Puerto Principe is in a state of panic. The Spanish troops do not dare to leave the town, and will hardly venture into the suburbs. Matters have reached such a pass that the troops will not execute orders, and General Campos has been obliged to order the erection of stone markers along the lines of march, so that he may be sure that the troops actually go to the places where they are sent.

Of the Spanish soldiers who are ordered into the interior, more than half return to the city suffering from fever or wounded. Puerto Principe is turned into a hospital. More than 400 Spanish troops are now being cared for, and the deaths from yellow fever average from 8 to 10 a day.

At Santiago the situation is even worse. The hospital, churches, hospital encampments and other places of refuge are crowded. More than 1500 regular troops are receiving treatment for sickness or wounds. The deaths here are nearly 40 daily.

Many of the regulars are in sympathy with the rebellion. At the sugar plantation, El Sugerano, 50 men, natives of Galicia, Spain, joined the insurgents' forces, taking with them their arms and ammunition.

Beside these, a number of young Cubans who have heretofore shown no interest in the struggle or have been active in the Spanish cause, have formed a company and taken the insurrectionist side. They are so near Puerto Principe that their advance guard is plainly visible from the church spires.

Regiments to Join Insurgents.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 14.—A report comes from Guthrie that a regiment is being raised in Oklahoma to join the insurgents in Cuba. The territory is filled with adventurers, who will join anything which promises excitement and novelty, while hundreds of unfortunate fellows there would seize upon this or any other job which promised them good living and fair wages. Circulars calling for men have been distributed all over southern Kansas and Oklahoma, especially in border towns. The headquarters for recruiting at Guthrie, it is said, is a branch of a smaller station at Galveston.

Mobilization Continues.

MADRID, Aug. 14.—The mobilization of the members of the reserve who have been called out for service in Cuba continues throughout the country. Though much dissatisfaction is expressed at being ordered away from Spain, the mobilization is going on without incident. The mutineers at Gerona, Taffalla and Mataro have been punished by having the time of their service in Cuba extended.

War Officials Alert.

MADRID, Aug. 14.—The Gazette publishes an order calling 10,000 men into active service in September to fill vacancies due to the Cuban war.

American Assassinated.

CHAMPOTAN, Mex., Aug. 14.—Thomas B. White, an American civil engineer, was assassinated near here while passing along a traveled highway. The shot was fired from ambush by an unknown person.

WALLOPED BY ORIOLES.

Bostons Started on Fresh Tour by Sustaining Two Defeats.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—The Bostons were twice beaten by the Baltimores, the scores being 8 to 3 and 13 to 4. One of the biggest crowds of the season—nearly 10,000 people—turned out to see the battle of the giants, and were given all the baseball they wanted for their money. The visitors were defeated because they were outplayed at all points by Hanlon's boys, never for a moment being seriously in either game.

Decidedly Suspicious.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Campbell Hall, a negro boy, living with Rose and William Hammond, also colored, died here under circumstances so suspicious that the coroner decided upon an inquest which resulted in the holding of the Hammonds for the grand jury. The evidence showed that the boy died virtually of brutal treatment, and that his life was insured in favor of Rose Hammond in the sum of $80. The Hall boy's brother, who also lived with the Hammonds, and who was insured in the woman's interest for $200, died there about two months ago, and they have another boy now living with them who is also insured for Mrs. Hammond's benefit.

UNSAFE TOWN SAFE.

Combination Has Not Been Changed For at Least Three Years.

Nine Ex-Officials Had Access to Town Books.

Some Further Startling Developments in the Newton Bond Case.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 15.—There are more remarkable developments in the famous Newton (N. H.) bond case. It is now reported that the town books covering the years 1875 and 1876, when the bonds were issued, are missing from the town safe, and this new development, taken with the disapearance of the canceled $10,000 worth of bonds, cannot but embarrass the town officials in the present suit brought by N. K. Johnson of Haverhill to recover on a $500 forged bond.

It is reported, on good authority, that a conference was held Saturday night in an open field, which lasted until the small hours of Sunday morning, between two parties who are greatly interested in the case.

Henry Nichols, chairman of the board of selectmen, was seen last night, and when asked in regard to the missing bonds, and what steps had been taken to recover them, stated that no move in this direction had been made and none was contemplated.

He further stated that within 10 days he had been over the town books for the period that covered the issue of the bonds, and that they could prove that the

from the sale of bonds; that they had only paid interest on that amount; that they had paid that amount of bonds, and did not intend to pay any more. Mr. Nichols seemed to feel confident that the town would win in the present suit.

The statement made by Mr. Wilder and Mr. Peaslee that their names on the bonds in dispute were forged and the town refusing to pay on that ground has led the citizens to call on the authorities to commence action against the former.

That forged bonds against the town should be known to be in existence for six months and no move made to apprehend the forger seems very strange, and some of the citizens are beginning to think that the case will go by default, as did the famous Peck case.

It is now stated that the combination on the town safe had not been changed for three years, and that no less than nine ex-town officials have access to the books.

A relative of one of the suspected parties claims that he is mildly insane, and is loth to believe all the stories that are going the rounds.

Shot by a Lunatic.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 15. — Andrew Byrne was shot by Daniel Fenton, a lunatic, on Broadway last evening. Fenton has been confined in the asylum at Middletown. He escaped from the keepers about 6 o'clock last night and wandered about town. In his ramblings he met Byrne, and without a moment's warning fired five shots at him from a revolver. A bullet hit Byrne in the right arm, making a painful flesh wound. Fenton was captured after considerable difficulty and placed in a padded cell.

Hanley Not Insane.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 15.—Handcuffed to two officers, Patrick J. Hanley was taken to Salem jail, where he will await the action of the grand jury on the charge of breaking and entering against him. Hanley raved during all the hours he was confined in the Lynn police station. At times tears would course down his cheeks, and he would give vent to terrible cries. City Physician Little, with another physician, decided that he was shamming, and not insane.

Vanderbilt's Villa Opened.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—"The Breakers," built by Cornelius Vanderbilt, was formally opened last night with a dinner, followed by a ball, which was the most elaborate social function ever given here. Only 30 invitations were issued to the dinner, and the cards to the ball were limited strictly to 150. The decorations were of a most elaborate description. The cotillion was led by Lispenard Stewart and Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt.

Hamilton Takes Another Wife.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—A mild sensation was created in social circles last night when it was announced that Schuyler Hamilton, Jr., had been married in Baltimore to Miss Jane Mercer, a former maid of Mrs. A. L. Mason. Hamilton, who is quite wealthy. He figured prominently in a duel in New York a few years ago. Hamilton's first wife obtained a divorce from him last September.

Unknown Assailant Cut Fazio.

BOSTON, Aug. 15. — About 11:20 last night Antonio Fazio of 98 Fourth street was stabbed in the right hip in the hallway of his own house by an unknown man who had concealed himself in the hall and lay in wait for him. The would-be assassin was not sure of him, however, and Fazio escaped a mortal wound. Fazio's assailant escaped and is still at large.

Not Students.

HANOVER, N. H., Aug. 15.—Harry K. Balch and George Day, who have been known as the Dartmouth swindlers, are not Dartmouth students, as reported, nor are they connected with the college. Balch lived in Hanover and Day is thought to be the son of a shoe manufacturer, who disowned him.

"General" Fitzgerald Insane.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 15.—Michael D. Fitzgerald, who led the commonweal force from Boston to Washington during the exciting Coxey times, was yesterday declared insane by City Physician Little and was taken to Danvers asylum. Fitzgerald has once before been an inmate of an asylum.

President Will Be Invited.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—There is a chance that President Cleveland may be present in Boston during the conclave of the Knights Templar. It is certain that an invitation will be sent to him, and it is thought that there is a good chance of his accepting it. The matter of the invitation has been quietly talked over by the committee, and about all that now remains to settle is the form of the invitation, which will be decided upon by the mayor and Alderman Presho. Most of the members of the committee feel that it would be fitting for them to visit Gray Gables in a body and personally extend the invitation to the president.

The Salvationists.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 15.—At yesterday's meeting of the Salvation Army at the campground the subject for the morning session was "How to Pray." Captain Erricks of New York made an interesting address at the meeting in the afternoon, and was followed by Captain Heffelman of the Boston Rescue house.

A Disappointment.

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 15.—Five hundred members of the D. B. Hill club of New York, with their families and friends, came to Roton Point on their annual picnic yesterday. It was expected that Senator Hill would meet them here, but the senator sent a telegram stating that it was impossible for him to be present.

Threatened With Death.

SANFORD, Me., Aug. 15.—Henry Taylor was assaulted by two unknown men near his home last night. Taylor fired three shots from a revolver, but none took effect. Taylor, who has been fighting the liquor dealers in court, says anonymous writers have threatened to kill him several times unless he left the liquor dealers alone.

Committed Burglaries and Had a Cave.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 15.—Two boys from Costigan are awaiting trial in the United States district court at Bath on a charge of burglary in Costigan and vicinity. The boys had been reading dime novels, and had fitted up a cave in the woods, where they hid their booty.

Pile of Stolen Gold.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 15.—Several hundreds of dollars' worth of bullion and scrap gold, recently recovered by police at a loan office here, proved to have been stolen from a Providence manufacturer, whose name is not given. Robert Byrnes is under arrest for the crime.

Taken Out Dead.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Harrington, aged 68, were walking along a narrow path on the river brink at East Brookfield, when both slipped into the water. Mr. Harrington got out and pulled his wife out, but she was dead.

Nobody Interfered.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 15. — Max Egelka and Simon Gausman, two Hebrews, were assaulted and beaten into insensibility by two unknown men yesterday afternoon. The Hebrews were crossing Washington street when they were set upon, apparently without provocation.

OLD WARS RECALLED

In a Plea For Justice Toward Men Now Fighting In Cuba.

To the Spaniards Alone Belongs the Blame.

Justice, Patriotism and Humanity Demand the Nation's Capitulation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15. — A prominent member of the Cuban party in New York city has received a copy of El Quijote (Madrid) containing the objectionable article which the Spanish government tried to suppress. It was written by Senor Margall, one of Spain's foremost Republican politicians, who was one of the presidents of the Spanish republic before Martinez Campos placed Alfonso XII on the throne, thereby again re-establishing a monarchical form of government.

The article caused a sensation among Cubans in New York. This is a translation of it by The World:

We should work to re-establish the principles of justice. No nation has the right to occupy territories populated by other people unless with their consent. If a nation occupies them by force, those conquered can at any time fight them until they drive them from their soil.

There is no possible limitation. Nothing can limit the right to freedom and independence. Whenever this principle was applied to our life, did we Spaniards understand so? For centuries we fought for our independence, and the limitation of centuries made no difference.

Let us be just to those who are now fighting in Cuba. We should have given them long ago the autonomy to which they have an undisputed right. We should have untied them to the metropolis by the ties of common interests only, national and international. We would have thus prevented not only the present war, but also that of 1868. How much blood and how much treasure we should have saved by this conduct.

If there is now war in Cuba it is all our fault. It is our duty to mend our error and stop it. The war of 1868 lasted 10 years, and we could only stop it by a treaty. We then allowed the Cubans the rights and liberties enjoyed by Puerto Rico—the treaty by which we will have to end the present war if we are not beaten by Cuba.

Seventeen years ago we gave them liberty. Let us make them now the owners and arbiters of their destinies. Let us allow them to govern themselves politically and economically; and in order that they may be grateful for our generosity, let us help them to their autonomy

Without Disturbance or Bloodshed.

The feeling of patriotism is invoked against this conduct. Above the feeling of patriotism stands that of humanity, and, above all, the feeling of justice. Cuba is the graveyard of our young men. In these deplorable wars our soldiers die there by the thousands; some on account of the climate, and others by the lead and steel of the enemy. The greater part of them go there by force, and fight for a cause with which they are not in sympathy.

Is it even human not to try to find the means of saving the lives of these men? It is irritating to hear one day and another that it is necessary to send to Cuba regiments and recruits in order to finish with the rebels, and uphold and establish the national sovereignty.

It is easy to stay at home and send others to die, and it is easy, too, not to know anything about the war, but by reading descriptions of the battles by our firesides in winter and under the shade of the trees in summer.

The national sovereignty! Is it that the nation in order to be sovereign must absorb the life of the groups that make it up? Is it that sovereignty must carry along with it the slavery of the colonies? Its sovereignty limited to the national interests, it must be circumscribed to the life of relations to the colonists.

National pride is also invoked to continue the war, as if it were dishonorable to a nation to grant what is just. Would the honor of the nation suffer less by continuing the war and losing in the end? Was it more honorable for us to have to ratify Mexico by the peace of Cordodo, the plan of Iguala, and to sign in Peru the shameful capitulation of Avaeucho?

The war will increase our already desperate economic situation. It is only three months since the war was begun, and already it has cost $7,000,000 in the last budget made up before the war.

After Gorman's Scalp.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Aug. 15. — The Republican state convention is in session here today. Friends of Lowndes claim that he will be nominated for the governorship on the first ballot. It is proposed to make a personal arraignment of the alleged influence exerted by Senator Gorman in shaping the recent nomination of Hurst for governor on the Democratic ticket.

A Convict's Windfall.

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—Damase La Framboise, a penitentiary convict, has become heir to $25,000, which has been left to him by a former sweetheart in Holyoke, Mass. La Framboise has served five years of a term of 15 for robbery. He has appointed his wife administratrix, who has employed lawyers to revendicate the money. A pardon will be applied for.

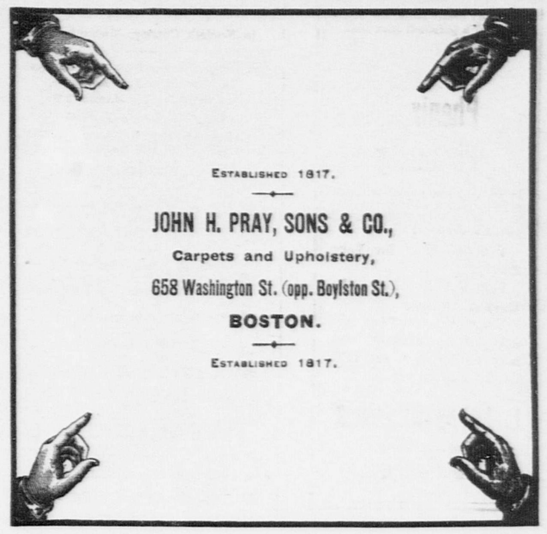

Not For Sale.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The statement from Newport that the government was contemplating selling a portion of the Fort Adams military reservation for residences is unfounded, although the government is not disposed to prevent the use of the property by the public when it does not interfere with government works.

Black vs. Watson.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—The congressional convention of the Tenth congressional district renominated J. C. C. Black for congress by acclamation. The platform was a compromise on the financial question. Tom Watson has already been renominated by the Third party.

Death of an Old Resident.

Dr. Charles S. French, one of Quincy's well known and respected citizens, passed away Wednesday afternoon at his residence on Hancock street. Some five years ago Mr. French had a shock and has had one or two slight shocks since.

For some time past he has been gradually failing although he has been able to be about. Some ten days ago he took to his bed and since that time his decline has been more rapid, until death claimed him Wednesday.

Dr. French was in his 80th year. He was born in Chesterville, Me., where he received his early education. From there he went to Lowell where he practised dentistry for several years.

About forty years ago he came to Quincy where he has since resided. He established himself here in the dentistry business which he carried on up to a few years ago, when failing health obliged him to retire from business.

He leaves a widow, a son, and two daughters by his first wife: Josiah V. French of Medford, Mrs. Charles H. Porter and Miss Dora French of Quincy; and two daughters by his second wife: Mrs. A. W. Whitney of Milford and Mrs. P. B. Swift of Athol.

HOSE 5, Q. F. D., BALL.

The First Annual of the New Fire Company.

A Silk Banner Presented by the Ladies.

The Affair a Crowning Success—The Speeches.

When the residents of Houghs Neck become interested in anything they enthuse over it. Thus it was with its new fire company. They have waited for it for years, and now that they have got it they cannot do enough for the volunteer company.

Although the company was organized only a few weeks ago the ladies immediately became interested and decided that the proper thing to do would be to present a banner.

With this in view the beach was canvassed for funds, which immediately came rolling in like the tide. The banner was made and the company, which was cognizant of what was going on, decided to hold its first annual ball, which was held Wednesday evening at the Casino and was a complete success in every way, for the attendance was unusually large and brought out the fact that a larger hall will be needed for the second annual.

From 8 to 9 o'clock Gardner's orchestra gave a promenade concert, and it was while this was in progress that the people began to arrive, and at 9 o'clock when the grand march took place it seemed as though everybody at the beach was present. The younger portion certainly, was as well as many from Quincy centre.

Among the guests present were: Chief Engineer Williams, Assistant Engineers Mahoney and White, and representatives of the Veteran Fire Associations of Brockton, Hyde Park, Holbrook, Dedham and Roxbury. There were also present representatives of the several fire companies of Quincy.

The hall was very prettily decorated with flags and bunting and in conspicuous places were the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, representing the numbers of the several Hose companies of the city.

The grand march was a very pretty affair. It was led by Captain and Mrs. Taylor who were followed by over fifty couples while as many more, who did not participate were seated about the hall watching the gay scene.

It was the intention of the ladies to present the banner immediately after the march, but the express was late and it was after 10 o'clock before this interesting event took place.

It was during a brief lull between dances that the officers of the company were called together and Mrs. Grace J. Fitts stepped forward and presented the banner, saying:

"Officers and members of Hose 5. We have met here tonight for an object for which we have never met before at this beach. We have had a few improvements here during the past few years, but nothing more in favor than our fire company. We are pleased to know we have men here that have volunteered to form a fire company to protect our property in time of need. We fully appreciate the sacrifices you will be called upon to make for us by giving us your time, perhaps endanger your lives to protect our property, and possibly our lives. We sincerely hope that the City of Quincy will appreciate your success and extend to you the privileges given to the home companies. I now have the honor and pleasure, as the representative of the ladies of Houghs Neck, to present you, in memory of us, this banner, hoping that all the undertakings of Hose No. 5 will meet with complete success."

A round of applause greeted the remarks of Mrs. Fitts, and Capt. Taylor, who received the banner, was none the less loudly applauded when he said:

"In the name of my brother officers and fellow firemen, which like myself have listened to your eloquent remarks, beg to tender to the ladies you represent, and yourself personally, the collective thanks or the superb gift with which you have honored us. I am not familiar with the set phrase of words usual on such occasions as this. Excuse me, therefore, if I respond in fireman fashion, briefly and plainly. We accept the gift with pride and pleasure, and we desire you to offer our grateful thanks to the generous donors. If they have honored us beyond our need, we at least can strive to merit in the future the prize, vouchsafe to us in advance of our deservings. Whether we shall succeed in squaring accounts remains to be seen, but we will endeavorso to do. Again I thank you heartily, and wish you health and prosperity.

The banner is a very handsome affair and is meant to occupy a place in the house or hall of the new company.

The face is of red silk and the back of blue silk, there is gold fringe on the sides and bottom.

This interesting event over, dancing was again resumed and continued without interruption until 2 o'clock, save for a brief intermission, during which the ladies served supper in the upper hall.

The floor was in charge of W. H. Taylor, with J. P. Sullivan as assistant and these aids: C. G. Batson, A. H. Taber, J. F. Cullen, H. Kelley, J. Milton, J. W. O'Neil, W. Gifford, B. Macomber.

The reception committee consisted of J. W. Alexander, M. Lynch, H. P. Tracy, J. F. Cullen and H. Peirce, and the committee of arrangements were the entire company.

Lawn Party.

The young people connected with the Washington street Congregational church gave a lawn party Tuesday evening. The grounds adjacent to the church, including the lawn of Mrs. J. F. O. Wilkins, were handsomely illuminated and made very attractive. Ice cream, cake, candies and coffee were dispensed during the evening, and a very entertaining program of song and music was given in the vestry of the church.

Rev. Mr. Youtz and wife gave several charming vocal selections, and Miss Eleanor Chute and Masters Winifred Ferguson and Alfred Brown contributed fine solos and readings. Mr. Herbert Hayden presided at the piano in his usual acceptable manner. The party lasted until 10 o'clock and a neat little sum of money was earned for the benefit of the church. Mr. Henry H. Faxon, with his customary liberality, contributed the ice cream.

A Mother's Report

"Hood's Sarsaparilla, is an excellent medicine. I have taken it for catarrh and impure blood and it has given me a good appetite and strength. My husband has also taken it and he is now in good health. When he feels a little run down he gets a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before it is gone he is all right and is able to work all the time. I give it to my baby occasionally, and we have never had to have a doctor attend her." MRS. E. K. WARREN, Greenfield, N. H., Box 34.

FAIRFIELD'S BIG FIRE.

Three Lumber Mills Gone and Many Men Thrown Out of Work.

FAIRFIELD, Me., Aug. 15.—The chief industry of Fairfield was badly crippled and over 200 men were thrown out of employment by the burning of the large lumber mills here yesterday. The direct loss is $80,000.

Fire broke out in the boiler room of the mill owned by C. A. & C. M. Phillips, one of the largest in the state. The flames spread to the piles of lumber in the yard before an effective stream could be directed on them. Sparks and live cinders ignited the mill of S. A. Nye & Co. and the mill of N. Totman & Sons. The entire town was threatened at one time, and assistance was summoned from Waterville. The flames were finally checked, after much hard work, at the Totman mill, but not before a large portion of the structure and considerable lumber had been destroyed.

Yesterday's fire was the third that has destroyed mills on the same sites. Although the water power at this point is the best on the Kennebec river, it is thought the mills will not be rebuilt. The fire is a heavy blow to the town, as nearly 1000 people depended on the mills for their living.

From McKinley to Reed.

TOPEKA, Aug. 15.—A big Reed boom has developed in Kansas, friends of Governor Morrill, who were supposed to be solid for McKinley, having suddenly changed to Reed. Governor Morrill is now visiting some of the New York watering places. It is believed here that a quiet meeting has been arranged by the private secretary of the governor to meet Mr. Reed in some place in New York state. Governor Morrill and Mr. Reed have been the closest of friends since boyhood, and the first certificate given to Reed to teach school in Maine was issued and signed by E. N. Morrill.

An Elopement Fever.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 15.—Authorities here were yesterday informed of two very similar departures by government officials. Mr. Walker, postmaster at Bee, eloped with Mrs. Stover, wife of a near neighbor. He left a wife and five children. Mrs. Stover is the mother of eight children. She took a 7-months-old baby with her. In the other case, Albert J. Saulsbury, postmaster at Clay Court House, eloped with Mrs. Gross, each leaving several small children.

Standard Unduly Worried.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Standard says the gold syndicate assumes a bold face, but that alone will not prevent gold exports from America, and the autumn exports of produce do not promise to be anything like so heavy as to allow the syndicate to liquidate its debts here and at the same time turn the gold current inward. Therefore the American railroad market is stifled by apprehension.

No Use For K. of L.

RICHMOND, Aug. 15.—The trade and labor council of this city have adopted resolutions condemning the Knights of Labor, saying that "Said order is only kept alive for the purpose of waging warfare upon bonafide labor organizations and of obstructing their progress," and declaring sympathy with and confidence in the Independent Order of Knights of Labor.

Firebug Frustrated.

COVINGTON, Ky., Aug. 15.—William Gildehaus, a clothing dealer, was forced to assign yesterday by the sensational discovery by the police of a plan to burn his building. All his policies of insurance were canceled, and he assigned to D. A. Glenn. He offers a reward for the arrest and conviction of the incendiary.

Murderer Surrenders.

COMO, Colo., Aug. 15.—Bill Gibson, who shot and killed Marshal Shea at Victoria, and his brother Patrick, whom he freed from custody, surrendered yesterday on condition that they should not be taken to Victoria, where, they said, they would be hanged without a hearing. Sheriff Wilson took them to Denver.

"Almost" Caught Them.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Two postal inspectors almost cornered two of the notorious postoffice thieves who recently escaped from jail in New York. The men cannot be captured without a battle, and no attempt to corral them will be made without the aid of a posse.

Burned Alive.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—An oil stove exploded yesterday at the home of Mrs. Alexander Teachant, who, to save her life from destruction, seized the stove and threw it out of the door. Her clothing caught fire and her flesh was burned to a crisp in many places.

Lucky Newspaper Man.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—E. E. Levia, business manager of the Louisiana Journal and Agriculturalist, has been informed that he is one of the heirs to a large estate in England, of which his share will amount to about $800,000.

Reserve Not Invaded.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The bond syndicate deposited $1,658,000 in gold in exchange for legal tenders at New York yesterday. Later $1,150,000 in gold was withdrawn for export to Europe. This left the gold reserve at the close of business $102,431,061.

World Against China.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 15.—The Novosti recommends that Russia, France and Germany act jointly with Great Britain and the United States to obtain satisfaction for the Chinese outrages on missionaries.

Chance of Winning.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Ginn began his effort at the Cleveland driving park yesterday to break the 24-hour bicycle record. He started at noon. It is thought that his chances for smashing a record are excellent.

Ten-Mile Record Broken.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—At the Manhattan Beach cycling events yesterday, the 10-mile bicycle record was smashed by Fred Titus, he knocking the record down to 20:58 4-5, a cut of 40 4-5s.

Fell Into the Harbor.

KIEL, Aug. 15.—Nine workmen employed in the Germania dockyards fell into the harbor from a landing stage and were drowned before assistance could reach them.

A Washington Lynching.

ELLENSBURG, Wash., Aug. 15.—Samuel Vinson and his son, Charles, were lynched yesterday for the murder during a drunken row of Mike Keplepp, a saloon keeper.

Tide Ran Backward.

Curious Phenomenon Was Noticed in the Harbor Near Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 13. Yesterday morning, when the tide was running out of the harbor, near the lower bridge, suddenly the current ceased and then commenced running in, and continued until the water had risen three inches.

Then it commenced running out again and continued until low water. As this strange phenomenon occurred in the center of the channel, and when the current was swollen by rains from up stream, it was something remarkable.

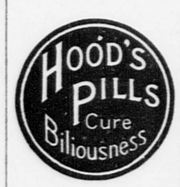

Harbor Master McNeil has noticed similar phenomena during the past six weeks, but has no explanation to offer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

MILTON.

Milton was visited Wednesday by one of the largest fires that it has had for some time. It was shortly before noon when workmen employed on the farm of J. Henry Breck, on Centre street, discovered that one of the large barns was on fire.

An alarm was immediately sounded and the fire department soon responded, but the nearest water was some distant away, and the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to save the building, and the department had all it could do to save the adjoining buildings, and in this they were aided by steamer 16 of Boston.

In the barn at the time were the horses, farm wagons, and farm machinery, and several tons of hay, all of which was consumed.

The loss will not be far from $15,000 which was fully insured. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

Wooden Schoolhouses.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The school committee asked architects to compete in preparing plans for a nine-room schoolhouse, telling them it must be similar to the Lincoln schoolhouse and not to cost much more. Also to submit estimate for the same in brick, wood and stone.

They were given a stated time to prepare the plans. When the time expired the committee examined the plans and among the lot was Randlett & Howe's plan. What was done with it that night? They were passed over as they did not comply with the requirements of the committee. Then in two weeks from that date either Messrs. Randlett or Howe, came to Quincy with a nice plan and got introduced to all, or most of the councilmen, and explains to them what they could do with their plan.

Now I do not think it was doing justice to the other architects who spent their time trying to get a plan for the city of Quincy if one architect is to have more than one chance; and another thing, when architects compete for plans they are not supposed to mark their plans with their name. And they were told (at least some were) not to do it.

Now, why those favors. Councilman Rice said Monday night, August 5th, he opposed the order because he was opposed to cheap schoolhouses. I want to take this opportunity to inform Councilman Rice that when the "Diamond E" plan was prepared, it was not the intention of the architects to have a cheap schoolhouse; neither does it look cheap, except that the party who got the plan up had only eight days to prepare it; so with their other work they could not elaborate much in that time.

And further, when I figured the building, I did not figure to build a cheap schoolhouse. But of course, I supposed if the "Diamond E" plan was accepted, the plan and specifications would be perfected and submitted to builders to figure.

There has been lots of talk in the Council about building wooden schoolhouses, but I do hope the city of Quincy will not build wooden schoolhouses, when they can build of brick, costing a very little more.

At last Monday night's meeting an order was adopted to build two wooden schoolhouses to cost $30,000 apiece. Now I hope this Council will not spend the city's money building wooden schoolhouses, when they can have a good brick building for that sum. And we will be pleased to have it; and one of the plans the school board approved can be built for that money in brick.

We want brick, not because it costs the most, or that we are better than some other parts of Quincy, but because we want to save the city money.

So in closing I beg of you give us a brick schoolhouse and at once. I would say: Quincy, awake from your slumbers, and get on the line of progression, and stay there.

Thanking you for so much of your space, I am, yours very respectfully,

IN CLASSIC CULPEPER

PEDESTRIAN BEADLE EXPLORES A PICTURESQUE AND HISTORIC REGION.

A Long and Lonesome Tramp From Spottsylvania—Rugged Charms of Piedmont Virginia—The First Battle of the Wilderness—Scene of Stonewall Jackson's Death.

[Special Correspondence.]

GUINEA STATION, Va., Aug. 6.—Having crossed Spottsylvania, the champion battle county of America, in three directions, I was still not satisfied with my battlefield studies, for my "locality," as Fowler calls the bump, is so poor that I can form but a miserable conception of any place I have not seen. As to writing about a place I have not seen on all sides—well, I am wretchedly dependent on facts and inferior to the silkworm in that I cannot spin "good stuff" out of my own insides.

So I decided to start at Meade's winter quarters of 1864 and follow Grant's movements mile by mile from Culpeper to Cold Harbor, and down to date I have been richly repaid, for the view alone of the first named place and county is well worth the journey. "Old Culpeper," by the way, is and long has been classic ground to the people of my native section, and the name was common in our mouths early in the forties, for it was the birthplace of the first really great man developed in the middle section of the Wabash valley—Colonel Richard W. Thompson. How many long winter evenings in the sessions of the old time courts did he enliven with stories of old Culpeper, and how much he did to create the general belief in antebellum times that all the chivalry and personal honor and high toned hospitality of all ages reached their perfect flower in Piedmont Virginia!

A Picturesque Scene.

And truly the county is beautiful. Having toiled up the slope eastward of the "cotehaouse," as they call the county seat in Virginia, I paused on the summit and could scarcely repress a shout on feeling that delightful swelling of the chest which often comes with the first view of a grand prospect.

From this point nearly the whole county can be seen, and the mountains to the west show here and there in blue sections, which are only distinguished from the feather edged clouds by their regular and unchanging outlines. It was such a wonderful contrast to the sandy flats and muddy stream, concealed in dense forests, the barren old field and obstructed views of the region I had lately traversed. The soil also of Culpeper is far more fertile than that of Spottsylvania, and the growth everywhere gives a pleasing impression of abundance. There are very few old fields grown up with pines, few bare wastes of rock and sand, and thus the county in fertility, healthfulness and inspiring scenery fully justifies the encomiums we heard so long ago.

HOUSE IN WHICH STONEWALL JACKSON DIED.

A Race of Vigorous Men.

It is also a region where they raise men. All middle Virginia down to tide water is notably healthful, but the Piedmont region—in fact, all the eastern slope of the Alleghany mountains from New York to middle Alabama—seems peculiarly favorable for the white race. There are more tall, fair haired and blue eyed people in a strip of, say, 75 miles wide and reaching as far south as Tuscaloosa than in any other part of America, and out of this region and the adjacent sections of the interior valley came those pioneers, vigorous both in mind and body, who gave character to so many of the young commonwealths of the west.

From the east ridge of Culpeper some 16 miles down to Germanna ford (it is Germanna bridge now) the road is an almost continuous down grade and runs for the most part between handsome farms. The few villages look smart and new, like those of the northwest, and the region generally bears an air of thrift and prosperity. On that part of it sometimes called the peninsula, lying between the Rapidan and the north fork of the Rappahannock, the Army of the Potomac had its truly pleasant winter quarters. Much to my surprise, a tract of four miles or so on each side of the Rapidan is now an unbroken wilderness of pines, though the most fertile land is in that region, and in 1864 it was nearly all in a high state of cultivation.

There one may trudge on hour after hour in the solemn shade of tall, straight pines a foot or more in thickness, which, in many places, actually mingle their tops over the road and everywhere exclude the sun's rays. Not only is the slope to the Rapidan great, but the stream itself has a deep channel, and as it roars over its rocky bottoms the sound, as it is partly echoed and partly deadened by the overhanging pines, is like that soothing dr-r-e-e-e of the Colorado rivers which flow through deep canyons lined with mountain growths—a sound which is warranted to cure any nervous trouble that can be cured at all.

Prospective Gold Mines.

In nine miles' walk through this forest I saw but two dwellings. To the question why the common answer is, "Oh, the people who owned it would not work themselves, and their niggers all went off after the war, and so it has been turned out." Later, however, I found out that all this tract of "mulatto," as the Virginians call dark red land, belongs to a northern company which bought it with intent to work it for gold. The project hung fire in some way, but the company still keeps the land idle and still insists that it will start its great system of ditches and sluices for washing "next year." A few residents on the border of the forest are already washing for gold in their own land and making wages, they say. I am tolerably familiar with hydraulic mining in the far west, and yet the idea of their having such mines in Virginia is as startling to me as a proposition to mine the sands of New Jersey. I really must look into this matter.

Five miles south of Germanna bridge the great pine forest gives way to the little oasis around the Wilderness store, and not far north of there the Confederates "struck Grant," as they put it. And now, having come in by this route, I understand why they struck him there and how it was they struck him so cruelly hard. He did not intend to fight there. So much would be self evident even if he had not said it. And the view of the Federal generals was that Lee would await the onset farther back, and that Grant would therefore have abundant room to arrange his whole force on a line generally parallel to and defending that road by which he entered the Wilderness. By what seems the result of a series of accidents, however, some sections of the Confederate army were close up on the narrow but still practicable roads which crossed Grant's main road, and as one of them has written it, "Grant was caught in the act of moving his men into place."

First Battle of the Wilderness.

Of course they attacked—they had a way of doing that—and so the first battle of the Wilderness began. It would take weeks of toilsome walking, of crawling over old breastworks, through dense brush and tangled vines, to follow the lines and get a comprehensive mind picture of the fight. It would require days of study with maps and the most careful reading of reports to get at the plan, if plan there was, for as nearly as a nonmilitary mind can make out from the history there was one day when each division or corps commander fought on his own system. After seeing the roads across which these six or seven detached battles were going on simultaneously one is not at all surprised to read that both Lee and Grant reported the results of the day as "very unsatisfactory." Yet all this field has been surveyed and mapped out, and he who cares may study the maps and mutual contradictions of the generals and the wholesale contradiction of all of them by the war historians.

A narrow gauge railway from Fredericksburg to Orange Court House crosses the Wilderness in a direction southwest by west, and every mile or so the timber cutters have made practicable roads across it from north to south, so the veteran can easily reach that section of the field where he fought. Having traversed all the eastern part on previous trips, I took that road leading down along the extreme western edge of the line of battles as far as the Sedgwick monument and the bloody angle.

The Mattapony.

In the western part of the county numerous rivulets draining little ponds and swamps run together and form the four streams—Mat, Ta, Po and Ny—which unite in Caroline county and form the Mattapony river. In many parts of the Wilderness, however, one might come within a rod of one of these streams and never suspect its vicinity, and in some places he would only discover one by falling into it. The dark and yellow water, with its sluggish current and overhanging brush and shadow which makes the noonday seem like twilight, reminds me powerfully of some of those queer wild rivers I have seen in the remote west, overshadowed by black rocks or pines, to which Indians, Frenchmen and Spaniards gave such suggestive names as River of Shades, River of Souls (Las Animas), Purgatory and Water of Suffering.

The northern two of these, the Ny on the north and the Po on the south, inclose in a horseshoe shaped tract a sandy flat of perhaps ten miles in diameter, in the center of which stands Spottsylvania Court House, a hamlet of some 800 people, which apparently prides itself on looking exactly as it did 40 years ago, except for the marks of a few cannon shot on some old brick houses. I will not go so far as to say that these are renewed from time to time, like that ink spot on the famous door which Luther made by throwing his inkstand at the devil, but they look remarkably fresh. After the terrific slaughter of May 12 Grant moved off eastward into Caroline, and Lee marched down through this village and southward to again confront the Federals at the North Anna crossing. I had, however, followed their route long enough to weary me, and so I climbed upon a farmer's market cart and rode up here for a day's rest and still more for a daily paper, as the tramp of a week in the Wilderness is like a voyage across the Atlantic for dearth of news.

Where Stonewall Jackson Died.

This was an important station during the latter part of the war and boasts of one interesting sight. A mile or more to the north is the house in which Stonewall Jackson died. It is a rather poor excuse for a house, and the room they show with some pride is even plainer than the average southern "spare bedroom," but it is a place of renown and pious pilgrimage to the people, and in many a house may be seen a conventional picture of the scene at the hero's deathbed. This and a companion picture, "The Death of General Lee," are great household adornments in every part of the south, and next to them come pictures of famous charges made by Confederate troops and alleged portraits of Jeb Stuart and Turner Ashby in all the pomp of cavalry uniform, with drawn sword flashing in the sun and mounted on such horses as I at least never saw in the real army.

Art's Use.

Art's use—what is it but to touch the springs
Of nature? But to hold a torch up for Humanity in life's large corridor,
To guide the feet of peasants and of kings?
What is it but to carry union through
Thoughts alien to thoughts kindred and to merge
The lines of color that should not diverge
And give the sun a window to shine through?
What is it but to make the world have heed
For what its dull eyes else would hardly scan?
To draw in a stark light a shameless deed
And show the fashion of a kingly man?
To cherish honor and to smite all shame,
To lend hearts voices and give thoughts a name?

—Gilbert Parker.

Explosives and Motive Power.

According to the opinion of Superintendent Barker of the arms factory at Sparkbrook, England, and a prominent expert in that line, the possibilities of the industrial use of high explosives for generating motive power are a fit subject of study. Of the gunpowder engine he thinks only slightly, as such an explosive merely develops in combustion about 280 volumes of permanent gases, while the solid residues are very considerable, soon clogging any machine. Nevertheless one pound of gunpowder is capable of developing 170,280 foot pounds of energy. The new smokeless powders are capable of developing still higher energy and are also more under control, while giving off nearly 1,000 volumes of permanent gases and leaving no solid residue. Though the temperatures developed by all these propellants are high, he thinks it very possible to overcome this difficulty in the same way as it is done with gas engines, or even by making use of the energy of the water so employed when converted into steam. As English "cordite" develops 1,250 calories per gram the possibilities of its employment in some form of "powder gas" engine is remarked upon as not without attractiveness to engineers of a speculative turn. The temperature of gunpowder on explosion is about 4,000 degrees F., and that of the smokeless powder is believed to be considerably higher, though this has not yet been fully determined.—New York Sun.

RIVAL POLICE BOARDS

Agreed to Submit Their Grievances to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Long Threatened Bloodshed Is Thus Averted.

Things Looked Squally Until a Temporary Truce Was Agreed Upon.

OMAHA, Aug. 15.—Two police boards in two different parts of city hall assumed to be in power yesterday morning. It is difficult to see how bloodshed could have been averted if the programs made out by the rival boards were adhered to. These contemplated separate police forces arresting one another for impersonating officers.

All probability of resort to arms is now, however, very remote, but for two hours yesterday morning it looked very much as though a serious collision was inevitable.

The sidewalks and streets surrounding the city hall were crowded with people, and the interior of the building was crowded with sheriffs and officers. The A. P. A. commission convened at 10 a. m. in this city amid considerable excitement. The members were encouraged with cheers from 200 A. P. A's present. They were expected to at once put a rival police force on the streets of the city, attempt to oust Chief of Police White and storm the city jail. This was the schedule as given out by the A. P. A's pretending to be on the inside.

The situation was intensified by the report from Kansas City that the A. P. A. counsels had 500,000 armed men ready to send to Omaha to maintain the A. P. A. commission. At the same time the old committee was in the mayor's office ready to issue orders and repel any force necessary

To Maintain Its Position.

After a conference the A. P. A. committee concluded to confer with the old board before resorting to arms. The conference was the result of a letter which Mayor Bemis sent to the A. P. A. board Tuesday night, asking the members to meet the old board and endeavor to reach a peaceable settlement of the controversy. The members of the new board declared that they had decided to meet Mayor Bemis and his colleagues, and the mayor replied that they were ready.

The two boards remained closeted for an hour or more. When the door was opened, it was announced that an agreement had been reached. Mayor Bemis then sent a telegram signed by himself as chairman of the old board, and by W. J. Broatch as chairman of the new board, to Governor Holcomb and A. S. Churchill, attorney general:

If the supreme court will meet at an early date, all the members of the two boards of fire and police commissioners will unite in a request for an early hearing. Can you get the court to fix a short date? Answer.

This telegram was sent to each of the justices of the supreme court:

All parties agree to submit police matters to supreme court, if an early hearing can be had.

Signed by Both Boards.

This was also signed by the chairman of each board. They wanted it understood that neither board had made any concessions. Each side stood as it had before, and in that respect there was no change in the situation. They had simply agreed that the best interests of all concerned would be served by an immediate submission of the controversy to the supreme court, and they had united to that end.

Members of the new board were reticent in regard to what their next procedure would be. When A. R. Vandervoort was asked whether members would proceed to organize a police force in opposition to that controlled by the old board, he would not answer directly, but stated that neither board was going to be very strict on the other while the matter was pending before the supreme court.

Chief Justice Novel of the supreme court announced late last evening that a special session of court will be held at once to settle the Omaha police case.

HE NEVER CAME BACK.

George Shirley Left Manchester Some Time Ago Under a Cloud.

Thought at That Time That He Had Eloped.

Finally Located and Arrested by Boston Police on Embezzlement Charge.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 16.—George F. Shirley, who was arrested in Boston for the alleged embezzlement of $2600 from Kimball Bros., shoe manufacturers, of this city, disappeared under shady circumstances Aug. 7, 1893.

He was foreman of the cutting room, and had been a trusted employe for several years. It was Shirley's duty to pay off the help in his department. Each hand kept a small book, which contained a record of piece work. The foreman would take the aggregate amount of work on books and collect the total at the office to distribute among the help.

He had an excellent opportunity to defraud the company by adding a small sum to each account, collecting the total and paying to the men only what their books called for. After he had gone it was found that he had embezzled $600 of the firm's money in this way.

Shirley lived at 989 Valley street, with his wife and two children. He was 45 years old. He went to work Monday morning, Aug. 7, 1893, and left the shop soon after Without Giving Notice at the Office.

Shirley was alleged to have been quite intimate with a woman who roomed in a block on Hanover street, and it was surmised at the time that he had eloped with her. The Saturday before Shirley disappeared the woman gave notice that she was going away and would not want the room longer. Monday afternoon she gave up the key and went away, taking everything belonging to her. Shirley was seen Monday afternoon. He came out of the Hanover street block. This was the last seen of him. From that time to this nothing has been heard of Shirley by his wife.

A Boston dispatch stated that he had been given over to the officers of this city, but the Manchester officers didn't know a thing about it until they were shown the Boston dispatch. Neither had the arrest been made at their request, nor had Shirley been delivered over into their hands.

It is learned that the captured embezzler may not be brought here at all. It is likely that the case will be settled before the fall term of the court. If not by that time, Shirley will then come in for attention.

Shirley was living at 67 Appleton street, Boston, when arrested by the Boston inspectors. He had been watched for some little time.

Hired to Slug Taylor.

SANFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—Fred Elwell of Somersworth, N. H., was arrested yesterday for murderous assault upon Harry Taylor. Elwell made statements implicating a Sanford man, and both confessed that Elwell was hired to make the assault by L. W. A warrant for Thompson's arrest has been issued.

Wife Has Forgiven Him.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Pasquale Garofolo, who on June 24 tried to murder his bride of a day, was arraigned in court yesterday. Judge Braley therefore continued the case three months and held Garofolo in $500 to keep the peace. If, at the end of the probationary term, it appears that Garofolo is behaving himself, the case will probably be placed on file.

QUEEN TO SUBJECTS.

Victoria's Address to New Parliament Very Brief but Pointed.

It Is Formally Approved of In Both Branches.

Dr. Tanner Creates a Scene In the Commons and Is Suspended For a Week.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The house of commons met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were at once summoned by the usher of the black rod to the house of lords to hear the reading of the queen's speech, which was as follows:

The communications which I receive from foreign powers assure me of the continuance of their good will. I am happy to say that no international complication has arisen in any quarter calculated to endanger the peace of Europe. The war between China and Japan, which was in progress at the opening of the last session, has been brought to a peaceable ending. I observed strict neutrality during the war, and have taken no action in respect thereto except as a word from me was likely to be favorable to a termination of hostilities.

I deeply regret to say that the most inhuman outrages upon a body of European missionaries are reported from the province of Fu-Kien in China. In reply to earnest representations addressed to the Chinese government, by my direction, active measures, which I trust will prove effective, are being taken for the punishment of the murderers and all persons in any degree responsible for these crimes.

Internal troubles which broke out in Armenia have been attended with horrors which have moved to indignation the Christian nations of Europe, and my people especially. My ambassador and the ambassadors of the Emperor of Russia and the President of the French republic, acting together, have suggested to the government of the sultan reforms which, in their opinion, are necessary to prevent a recurrence of constant disorder. These proposals are now being considered by the sultan, and I am anxiously awaiting his decision.

The second portion of the speech says: At this season of the year it will probably be found more convenient to defer to another session the consideration of any important legislative measures except those which are to provide for the administrative charges of the year.

The speech concluded with a reference to the incorporation of Bechuanaland and Cape Colony.

The speech to the house of commons merely stated that the estimates for the service of the year which were not voted at the last session will be laid before them.

Before the Lords.

In the house of lords the Duke of Marlborough moved the address in reply to the queen's speech, approving of its contents.

Baron Ampthill seconded the motion, and said that he was confident that if foreign complications arose there would be a master hand at the helm, and he was sure the government would do justice to Ireland.

Lord Rosebery congratulated the Duke of Marlborough and Baron Ampthill on the able manner in which they had fulfilled their task.

Referring to the queen's speech, he said that the policy adopted in regard to Bechuanaland was that of the late government, but he asked what measures were intended respecting China, and wanted details as to how the massacres had occurred. The ex-premier also expressed himself as being certain that the Marquis of Salisbury thought it as necessary as the late government to obtain guarantees from the Sultan of Turkey against a recurrence of the atrocities in Armenia, which the marquis must know officially were terrible and could not be tolerated.

Reviewing the elections just held, Lord Rosebery dwelt upon the fickleness of electoral results and admitted that the present government was supported by a large majority. The government, he continued, would be forced in time to acknowledge that the best means of conducting Irish business is through the Irish. "I am convinced," he concluded, "that you will see home rule extended not only to Ireland, but possibly to Scotland, and I do not limit the evolution there."

The Premier's Address.

Marquis of Salisbury, the prime minister, then arose to reply. He said: "The government holds that the abandonment of Chitral is unwise as a question of moral as well as physical strategy.

"I will not describe our intentions in regard to the constitution of this house or in respect to the adoption of home rule. When we introduce bills touching these matters, it is time enough to discuss them."

Regarding the massacre of missionaries at Ku-Cheng Lord Salisbury said: "There is every reason to believe that the Chinese government is sincerely desirous of punishing the perpetrators of the outrage and those who connived at it. Should any lukewarmness become discernible, it will become our duty to supply its defects.

"With respect to Armenia, we have accepted the policy which our predecessors initiated, and our efforts will be directed to obtaining an adequate guarantee for the carrying out of reform. We have received the most loyal support both from France and Russia. The permanence of the sultan's rule is involved in the conduct he pursues. If the cries of misery continue, the sultan must realize that Europe will become weary of appeals, and the fictitious strength which the powers have given the empire will fail it. The sultan will make a calamitous mistake if he refuses to accept the advice of the European powers relative to the elections."

"How long the present state of things can continue," the prime minister proceeded, "I confess appears to me more doubtful than it did 20 years ago." The advice he was tendering, he said, was the advice of a party most friendly to Turkey in a friendly nation, the neglect of which will expose his dominions to danger which no treaties and no sympathy will prevent being fatal in the long run to the empire he rules.

Lord Salisbury exhorted the sultan to remember that his independence is the creature of an agreement, and Europe.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

QUINCY is famed among other things for the great number of depositors in the savings bank and institutions of the city. Few people realize how surely, if but slowly, money accumulates if allowed to remain at interest. The Lowell Times has a story in point, where a bank book was opened years ago, and contained in all but four entries, $153 all told. The money was depsited by a young girl, a weaver in one of the Lowell mills, who afterwards married and went to New Hampshire. During the war time she returned to Lowell and drew out $700, leaving a balance of seven or eight hundred. After a lapse of years she again returned and took $500 more, leaving $1000 in her favor. She is now an aged woman and lives at Francestown. It has been estimated at the bank that this sum of only $153 has earned for its owner $2000. The blessing which the savings bank is to the wage earner can best be appeciated by some such example as this.

A Quincy Boy Honored.

Mr. A. H. Wright, one of Quincy's rising young architects, has recently been awarded the gold medal by the Architectual League of New York. Every spring this society in order to encourage young architects offers a gold and silver medal to be competed for by anyone in the United States, under 25 years of age, giving the subject or study for which the design is to be made. The subject this year was a monumental staircase for a National library.

Mr. Wright among many others competed for the prizes and as stated above has been awarded the first prize, gold medal, of the society.

The medal resembles somewhat an old Roman coin. Upon one side is the following: "Given to A. H. Wright as first prize in competition for draughtmanship and design, in the year MDCCCLXXXX-IV." Upon the reverse side is a figure representing the seal of the society and the words, "Architectual League."

Captain Nelson.

On Wednesday morning Capt. Angus Nelson passed peacefully away after a long and painful illness.

Capt. Nelson was one of the oldest as well as best known men of this part of Quincy. Having been a great traveller for many years upon the high seas, he was a most agreeable and well informed man. His wide circle of friends attest his good qualities and truly brilliant mental powers. He leaves an aged widow, one daughter and three sons, all residents of this city. Funeral services will be held at the house, 47 Atlantic St., on Saturday, at 2 o'clock.

—The appearance of the first white hearse in the city of Worcester leads the Clinton Item to predict that white will eventually supersede the mournful, dismal, distressing black, in funeral solemnities, so far as faith and trust overcome doubt and unbelief.

HOUGHS NECK WANTS

Meeting of Improvement Society Committee on Illumination Appointed.

The Houghs Neck Improvement Association held its regular meeting Thursday evening, at Pierce's dance hall, which was largely attended.

It was voted to request the Commissioners of Public Works to have the streets through which the water mains had been laid, rolled down.

It was also voted to petition the City Council to appoint a special officer for the beach during the winter months that property which has heretofore been at the mercy of vandals might be properly protected. Messrs. Cavanagh and Macy were appointed to carry out this vote.

Word was received that the street railway were to reduce the fares on the Manet line, the society to fix the time when the new fare should go into effect.

It was decided that the new rate should commence next Wednesday and that a band concert be held in honor of the event.

The illumination committee of 1894 made its report, and the matter of this year's illumination was placed in the hands of the society.

After some discussion the following committee were appointed to have charge of the affair: John Cavanagh, W. F. Macy, Benjamin C. Leonard, William H. Taylor, John Cullen and Walter D. Packard.

It was practically decided to hold this annual event the latter part of August probably on the evening of the 28th.

The ball of Hose 5 at Houghs Neck last Wednesday evening netted something like $65.

Fatal Blunder Somewhere.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 16.—One person was killed and a score of others more or less seriously injured in a rear-end collision between an excursion and an accommodation train on the Camden and Atlantic railroad, in the southern part of this city last night. Immediately after the collision the rear car of the excursion train caught fire and was completely burned. The excursion train had stopped at the South Camden station to let off passengers. The men in charge of the accommodation train declare that they did not know of the presence of the excursion train at the station until after having rounded the curve, and it was then too late to avert the accident.

Missionaries In Danger.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 16. — Anxiety prevails here for the American missionaries at Marsovan, a small town 24 miles northeast of Amasia in the villayet of Sivas, Asia Minor, on account of the Armenian campaign against those of their compatriots who are suspected of being spies. An Armenian priest, suspected of spying, was recently murdered at Scutari, just opposite Constantinople, by the incensed Armenians, as a result of which Armenians in Scutari and other suburbs of Constantinople have been imprisoned.

A Lesson on Finance.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Times, with reference to a letter from a correspondent, denies that it is in favor of a ration of 15½ to 1 between gold and silver, because it is convinced that it is impossible to maintain any ratio. But it considers that the advocates of a ratio of 15½ to 1 or 16 to 1 are its only serious antagonists. The advocates, however eminent, of other ratios, The Times thinks, are not serious.

MASONIC VISITORS.

Quincy to Receive a Visit from the Knights Templar.

As has been previously stated Quincy is to receive a visit from two or three visiting commanderies of Knights Templar, who are to be the guests of South Shore commandery of which a number of Quincy gentlemen are affiliated. The visiting commanderies are Forest City commandery of Cleveland, O., E. C. Sir J. C. Snow and Killington commandery of Rutland, Vt., E. C. Sir J. E. Thomas.

The visitors will leave Boston on the morning of Thursday, August 29, on the 8.30 train and will be met upon their arrival in Quincy by South Shore commandery, E. C. Sir T. John Evans and the Weymouth band.

There will be a short parade, the route to be announced later after which the several points of interest about the city, including the Adams birthplace, will be visited and a light lunch will be served in the Charles Francis Adams house on President's hill. Special cars will be taken for East Weymouth, the asylum of the South Shore Commandery and after an inspection and brief rest carriages will be taken for Downer Landing where a shore dinner will be served, after which the boat will be taken for Boston.

MILTON.

East Milton people are wondering when the work on Granite avenue will be completed.

Rumor has it that the citizens will try and have the street railway extend its tracks from East Milton to the Lower Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Condon are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter.

Miss Alice Wigley has gone to Maine on a brief visit.

Episcopal services will be resumed early in the fall at Ellsworth hall.

Rev. H. C. Vrooman, pastor of the Congregational church, is expected home in a few weeks.

Fatal Accident.

Charles Murray, employed as a deck hand on the passenger steamer Stillman of the Lynn & Boston steamboat company, fell overboard last evening and was drowned.

The boat was heavily loaded with passengers as she left the Nantasket pier for Boston on the 6 o'clock trip. Murray had just gone forward to haul down the jack and hoisted the running light.

He was on the starboard side, and when he reached the forward gangway, from which the landings are made, he grasped that portion of the rail, which gave way, and he fell overboard.

The alarm was given, and J. F. Decey of 116 Quincy street, Roxbury, was the first man to throw a life preserver overboard.

The boat did not come to a stop until it had run fully 300 yards from the spot where Murray went overboard, and none of the life preservers went near him.

The passengers were very much excited, and all manner of things were thrown overboard in the hope that the unfortunate man might reach them.

When Murray came to the surface he put both hands to his face and dashed the water off and then signaled the steamer to back up. He swam a few strokes and then turned over on his back and floated and kicked about for a minute, after which he again righted himself and kept swimming.

The passengers claim no attempt was made to lower a boat to go to the man's rescue.

Murray turned over on his back again, evidently worn out by his heroic exertions, and after he had struggled in that position for half a minute more he went down, and that was the last seen of him.

One passenger, who was said to be an officer, stated that he would prefer charges against the officers for criminal negligence.

Murray originally came from Troy, N. Y., was about 34 years old, and weighed about 180 pounds.

Spear—French.

There was a pretty society wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. French on Washington street, Wednesday evening. The bride was Miss Grace A. French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. French, and the groom Mr. Fred A. Spear of Randolph, son of Mr. William Spear.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. J. Dean of Hudson, New Jersey, and was witnessed by the immediate relatives and friends of the bridal couple.

The bride was gowned in pale blue crepe with lace trimmings and carried a boquet of pinks; her hair was dressed with tube roses. The couple were married in the north parlor under a canopy of ferns and vines.

After the wedding there was a reception and banquet. The wedding presents were innumerable and included silver, silks, lamps, etc.

The happy couple left late in the evening for a honeymoon in New Hampshire and will live in Randolph.

AT RATIO OF 16 TO 1.

Silver Leaders Emphatic In Their Declarations For Free Coinage.

To Secure Control of Next National Convention.

Speeches Not Altogether Complimentary to the Present Administration.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The silver convention adopted substantially the same address to the people as that partially by the Texas convention and in toto by the Mississippi gathering.

The address disclaims speaking with party authority—the assemblage being a voluntary one—but strongly represents the opinion of the conference to a party convention for free coinage of silver, and concludes as follows:

Duty to the people requires that the party of the people continue the battle for bimetallism until its efforts are crowned with success, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Democratic party in national convention assembled should demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold into primary or redemption money at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the action or approval of any other nation.

Resolved, Second, that it should declare its irrevocable opposition to the substitution for a metallic money of a panic-breeding corporation credit currency based on a single metal, the supply of which is so limited that it can be cornered at any time by a few banking institutions in Europe and America.

Resolved, Third that it shall declare its opposition to the policy and practice of surrendering to the holders of the obligations of the United States the option reserved by the law of the government of redeeming such obligations in either silver coin or gold coin.

Resolved, Fourth, that it should declare its opposition to the issuing of interest-bearing bonds of the United States in time of peace, and especially to placing the treasury of the government under the control of any syndicate of bankers and the issuance of bonds to be sold by them at an enormous profit for the purpose of supplying the federal treasury with gold to maintain the policy of gold monometallism.

With a view to securing the adherence to and readoption of the Democratic policy above set forth by the Democratic national convention to be assembled in 1896, and of the nomination of a candidate for the presidency well known to be in sympathy therewith, we hereby pledge our mutual co-operation, and urgently recommend to our Democratic brethren in all the states to at once begin and vigorously and systematically prosecute the work of a thorough organization, and to this end the adoption of the plan of organization herewith submitted is recommended.

Reorganization Scheme.

The part of the report dealing with the plan of reorganization above referred to was read by ex-Senator Jarvis of North Carolina and is as follows:

Believing that a large majority of the Democratic voters of the United States are in harmony with the sentiments expressed in the foregoing address, and knowing that a full and free expression of their views can only be ascertained and made effective through proper organized efforts, we recommend the following as a plan for such organization:

First, there shall be a national committee of Democrats who are in favor of both silver and gold as the money of the constitution, which shall be composed of one Democrat from each state and territory and the District of Columbia, and the executive committee hereinafter provided for.

Second, that until otherwise ordered by the national committee, Senators Harris of Tennessee, James R. Jones of Arkansas and David Turpie of Indiana, Hons. W. J. Stone of Missouri, W. H. Hinrichsen of Illinois and Casey Young of Tennessee be and they are hereby constituted the executive committee, and shall have full power and authority; and it shall be their duty at as early a day as possible to appoint the members of the national committee herein provided for and to fill vacancies in the same.

Third, that said national committee shall have full control and direction of the patriotic effort of the bimetallic Democracy of the nation to secure in the next national Democratic convention the maintenance of the time-honored principles and policies of the Democratic parties, and when the national committee herein provided for is not in session the executive committee shall have all the authority and discharge all the duties hereby conferred upon the national committee.

Fourth, that it shall be the duty of members of the national committee from each state, immediately after his appointment, to take such steps as he may deem best to organize the bimetallic forces of his state, and it is earnestly recommended that in each county and election precinct of each state bimetallic Democratic clubs be organized, and for this purpose he may appoint such committees and sub-committees and canvassers as he may deem best.

Fifth, that fully realizing the fact that this or any other plan of organization cannot be successful without the hearty co-operation of the voters themselves, we urge upon every voter in every state in the Union, who is in sympathy with this movement, and who wishes to restore permanent prosperity to his home and country, to lend his aid and influence to perfecting this organization, and that each of them shall enroll himself in some club.

The Speeches.

Previous to the reading of the address, Casey Young of Tennessee, who acted as secretary of the committee which had called this conference, said that he had received thousands of letters from representative Democrats in 38 states favoring the conference, and expressing their willingness to stand by any action it might take.

Among these were letters from Senators Morgan, George, Walthall, Chilton, Blackburn, Blanchard, Tillman, Cockrell, Voorhees and Turpie. He believed that four-fifths of the people of the country favored free coinage, and he believed that the friends of silver would capture the next national convention.

Ex-Representative Fithian of Illinois said that he was a believer in free coinage and would abide by the action of the conference.

Representative Livingstone of Georgia referred to the recent bond issues and said that they were the most disgraceful thing a party had ever done.

Senator Call of Florida was in accord with the movement now proposed, and thought that the people of the country were now ready to join the great triumphal march.

Mr. Hill of Missouri, when called, responded by thanking God that he was not Hill of New York. "In two short years," he said, "Mr. Cleveland had led the Democratic party to defeat and disgrace by a series of acts of perfidy and treachery unprecedented in the history of this country. Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle," he said, "would go down the lanes of oblivion hand in hand."

Senator Daniel made the last speech of the meeting. He said: "I will only say that I am a Democrat, and being a Democrat I could not help being for the solid and honest gold and silver money of the Democratic party; the party of the people must stand for the money of the people and whom God hath joined together, plutocracy shall not put asunder."

TAKING CHANCES.

WOMEN ARE CARELESS.

They Over-Estimate Their Physical Strength. Advice to Young Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are very apt to over-estimate their strength and overtax it.

When they are feeling particularly well, they sometimes take chances which in the long run cause them much pain and trouble. This is due largely to their not fully realizing how delicate their sensitive organism is.

The girl who has just become a woman can hardly be expected to act wisely, everything is so new to her. She, however, should be told; and every woman should realize that to be well her "monthly periods" should be regular. Wet feet, or a cold from exposure, may suppress or render irregular and fearfully painful the menses, and perhaps sow the seed for future ill health.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will ever be the unfailing remedy in such cases as well as all the peculiar ailments of women. Millions of women live to prove this. Mrs. M. L. Verrill tells plainly what it has done for her:—

"I will write you a few lines to tell you what my troubles were before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It was the same old story,—my back and lower part of my abdomen and painful menstruation. Of course it was female weakness. The doctors (I have tried five different ones) called it chronic inflammation of the womb.

"I had leucorrhœa for over eight years, ulcers on the neck of the womb, terrible headaches and backaches. Your medicine completely cured me." — MRS. M. L. VERRILL, 223 Newell Ave., Pawtucket, R.I.

NEW HAVEN, W. Va., Aug. 16.—In a premature explosion of powder in the mines at this place, four men were burned in a horrible manner. Two may die.

An Odd Custom.

The oldest temperance society in the world is the abstaining commune in Achlyka, in Siberia, all of whose members are strict teetotalers every day in the year except one. Regularly on the first day of September, year after year, all the adlut members of the commune assemble in the parish church, and every one takes a solemn vow before the altar to drink no wine, beer or spirits "from the morrow" of the following day for the whole year. The clause "from the morrow" is introduced in order to give them a reward for their virtues in the shape of a whole day of drunken carnival. As soon as they leave the church they begin to indulge in a horrible bacchanalian drinking, which continues throughout the day, until neither man nor woman in the village is sober. This is naturally followed by considerable physical suffering, and then by mental remorse, whereupon the penitent parish enters upon its twelvemonth of model sobriety, and all live like the Rechabites. Some students imagine that this queer proceeding may be a prehistoric tribal custom.

Animal Humbugs.

In military stables horses are known to have pretended to be lame in order to avoid going to a military exercise. A chimpanzee had been fed on cake when sick. After his recovery he often feigned coughing in order to procure dainties. The cuckoo, as is well known, lays its eggs in another bird's nest, and to make the deception surer it takes away one of the other bird's eggs. Animals are conscious of their deceit, as shown by the fact that they try to act secretly and noiselessly. They show a sense of guilt if detected. They take precautions in advance to avoid discovery. In some cases they manifest regret and repentance. Thus bees which steal hesitate often before and after their exploits, as if they feared punishment. A naturalist describes how his monkey committed theft. While he pretended to sleep the animal regarded him with hesitation and stopped every time his master moved or seemed on the point of awakening.—London Exchange.

which conferred upon Turkey a factitious stability, has long been uneasy as to the moral burden which its joint action involved.

Considered by Commoners.

In the house of commons the formal business in connection with the queen's speech was disposed of. Then Richard Webster moved that a certified copy for the trial of conviction of Michael Daly, the dynamiter who was recently elected to parliament, representing Limerick, although he was convicted in 1884 of having been engaged in dynamite conspiracy, be furnished to the house, and that the governor of Portland prison present a certificate to the effect that Daly is still a prisoner in that prison.

John Redmond said that he recognized in the motion the first step in proceedings aiming at overriding the unanimous election of the electors of Limerick, and he protested against it and insisted upon a division. Webster's motion was finally carried by a vote of 314 to 77. Consideration of the Daly matter was, after further debate, made the order of the day for next Monday.

A Sensation.

Timothy Harrington, in the course of some remarks, declared that the Liberal party had fled from home rule, whereupon Dr. C. K. D. Tanner, who had created a scene in the house earlier in the day, shouted out: "A lie!"

Cries of "Order" were heard from both sides of the house. Dr. Tanner, declining to withdraw the expression, the speaker named him. Joseph Chamberlain moved that Dr. Tanner be suspended. A division was called for, but Dr. Tanner failed to find a teller, and the speaker declared the motion carried.

Upon the speaker declaring the motion carried, Dr. Tanner shouted that he would withdraw if he were directed to do so from the chair. Upon retiring, he made a courtly bow and exclaimed: "I have greater pleasure in leaving than I ever had in entering this dirty house!"

Then, pointing to the treasury bench, he shouted: "Judas!" This was repeated four times. Arriving at the door, he tried to turn back, but was prevented by the officials. Dr. Tanner's suspension is for one week.

Lowndes For Governor.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Aug. 16.—The Republican state convention nominated the following ticket by acclamation: For governor, Lloyd Lowndes; attorney general, H. M. Clabaugh; comptroller, R. P. Graham. The strength of the Lowndes element was shown early in the proceedings. This was soon followed by the formal withdrawal of the name of W. F. Malster, who had made a spirited canvass for the gubernatorial nomination. The platform is confined to state issues. It demands a reassessment of property, and condemns the partisan management of the oyster police force and denounces every effort to deprive the people of their independent right to the public oyster beds.

The Holmes Trial.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—It has been practically decided that H. H. Holmes will go to Chicago and stand trial for the murder of the Williams girls. This, it is said, was the outcome of a conference yesterday between W. A. Capps of Fort Worth, Tex., and District Attorney Graham. Says Lawyer Capps: "I am convinced, beyond a doubt, that Holmes killed Minnie and Nannie Williams. I believe that the deed was committed in Chicago. In my opinion, Holmes can be convicted there. I am anxious that he be tried on the charge, and will try to have him brought to trial. I know I can make arrangements to that end."

Battles In Insurgents' Favor.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 16.—Passengers from Cuba report that on Aug. 7 an insurgent band encountered a band of Spanish guerillas near Colon. Eighty-five of the latter were killed, while the insurgent loss was seven killed and 32 wounded. Last Sunday a train bearing a large detachment of Havana volunteers was destroyed by dynamite at Bolondron railway bridge. Very few volunteers escaped death. On Aug. 5, at Montegordo, the insurgent and Spanish forces, each numbering 200, had an encounter. The Spanish loss was nine dead and about 40 wounded; Cuban loss, four dead and 30 wounded.

No Money In Literature.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Special articles appear in The Times this morning on a comparison of the drink laws of England and America and on the profession of literature in America. The latter article says that, although in no country in the world is literature held in greater esteem than in America, active minds find more profitable fields in commerce, etc., than in literature, and there is no apparent prospects of a new Lowell or Emerson arising.

Imprisonment For Life.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 16.—T. D. Marshall, Democratic nominee for state senator and a member of the state legislature; H. H. Coleman and R. T. Fox, all prominent citizens of Vicksburg, who killed R. T. Dinkins on Aug. 7, yesterday pleaded guilty of murder in the first degree, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

A Monarch's Memorial.

VIENNA, Aug. 16.—The Neues Wiener Tagblatt asserts that Emperor Joseph will present the prater to the city of Vienna upon the occasion of his jubilee. The prater is a park belonging to the imperial family, and will be presented to the city on condition that it remains forever a pleasure park for the use of the people.

Well Attended.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 16.—The 12-days' session of the conference for Christian workers was brought to a successful close yesterday. This conference has been one of the largest attended conferences ever held here.

A Substantial Increase.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 16.—The 5000 operatives of the Pacific mills yesterday received their first pay since the notification of the advance to the rate of 1893. The increase in wages amounts to $75,000 annually.

Suicide Followed Quarrel.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 16.—Thomas Hoben, who arrived in this country only a few weeks ago, quarreled with his relatives last night, and afterward cut his throat. He died an hour later.

Higher Wages Demanded.

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., Aug. 16.—About 250 employes in the carpet factory here struck yesterday for higher wages. Many of the strikers are skilled help, and their places will be hard to fill.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 18. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christ's work for the world.—John 1, 1-14. (A topical song service led by the music committee suggested.)

The prologue to the gospel of John deals principally with the divinity of Christ, His relation to the world at creation, His coming into the world as man, and His rejection by the world. In this passage then we have not only Christ's relation to God, but also to the world, and several of His works in relation to the world are suggested.

1. Christ's work as the revelation of God to the world. Christ is here called the "Word." Words reveal something and Christ was called the Word because he was to reveal God to the world. The world was not in entire ignorance of God. Nature revealed the fact that there must be a Supreme Being and some of His attributes, but this knowledge would not save, and therefore God sent Christ to reveal Him. Christ revealed the spirituality of God, His fatherhood, but most of all the way of access to and reconciliation with God.

2. Christ's work as creator of the world. "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made." But, although Christ was the creator of the world, yet when He came into the world, it did not receive Him. "He came unto His own, but His own received Him not." As creator of the world it belonged to Him, yet this relationship was not acknowledged when Christ came. But all did not reject Him, and "as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God." It paid to accept Christ. It still pays to accept Him. It pays for time and for eternity, for "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come."

3. Christ's work as the light of the world. "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men." "That was the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." The world was spiritually dead when Christ came into it, and He became its life by dispelling the darkness and thus becoming its light. As the light of the world Christ scattered the darkness of the world concerning God, sin, salvation and the future life. He was the true light, in that He was opposed to all false lights, that He was distinct from the imperfect lights and that He Himself was the only true light of the world.

Christian Endeavor In Spain.

The meetings of the Christian Endeavor society in Santander, Spain, held on Sunday evenings, are attended by an average of 30 persons. The exercises consist of Bible study, prayer, hymns, recitations of portions of the Scripture and exhortations. Although it is with us in a somewhat rudimentary and imperfect form, yet the society is of the greatest utility in our missionary work.

Through its influence we are able to retain under the influence of the gospel the young people who have ceased to attend our day school and Sunday school because they are learning a trade.

But the greatest benefit that I note as a result of the Christian Endeavor society is the attendance of young people upon the midweek meetings. The young people not only go themselves, but they endeavor to bring other members of their families with them, so we see at present, what before was unknown to us, the prayers of the young mingling with those of the old in our Tuesday night meetings.—Golden Rule.

To Banish Church Gossip.

If you would quickly and certainly drive out evil speaking and hatefulness of heart from church members, set them to thinking about Christ. Talk about Him in the prayer meeting, not as a far-off God, but as a real, living, human personality. Converse about His sorrows, His forbearance, His love. Study more about Him in the Bible, and then tell others of the treasures you have unearthed. When the pastor preaches helpfully, talk one with another about how he has shown forth the mind of Christ. Seek out the good deeds about you and speak of them as done in the name of the Redeemer. Find in the beautiful lives that you daily meet likenesses to the life of Christ.—William T. Ellis.

God's Goodness and Mercy.

There is dew in one flower and not in another because one opens its cup and takes it in, while the other closes itself and the drops run off. So God rains goodness and mercy as wide as the dew, and if we lack them it is because we will not open our hearts to receive them.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Ignoring Evil.

It is the tendency of men of pure lives, optimistic nature and kindly sentiment to ignore the reality of moral evil. We are inclined to think that all men are good or want to be good, or at most that sin is only a disease to be pitied and cured. It is not true.—Lyman Abbott.

The Better For It.

No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, pure and good without the world being the better for it, without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of this goodness.—Phillips Brooks.

Abide With Me.

Abide with me; fast falls the eventide;
The darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide.
When other helpers fail and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, oh, abide with me.

Not a brief glance I beg, a passing word,
But as Thou dwell'st with thy disciples, Lord,
Familiar, condescending, patient, free,
Come, not to sojourn, but abide with me.

I need Thy presence every passing hour;
What but Thy grace can foil the tempter's power?
Who like Thyself my guide and stay can be?
Through cloud and sunshine, oh, abide with me!

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—They do these things better in England. A man killed his wife in London less than a month ago, and he is already under sentence of death. In St. Louis a man killed his wife and child a year and a half ago and his trial has just begun, with the chance of taking two years more to get through all the courts.

Did you ever think that you cannot have good health without pure blood? Health comes by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, because it makes the blood pure.

Hood's Pills have won high praise for their prompt and efficient yet easy action.

BAY STATE'S GROWTH.

Nearly All Her Cities Show Remarkable Gains in Population.

Boston Increased More Than 100,000 In Ten Years.

Town of Winthrop and City of Everett Show Extremely High Percentages.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—A report of the first count showing the population of the commonwealth of Massachusetts on May 1 of the present year, from the fifth decennial census of the state, was issued yesterday afternoon.

The report shows that the percentage of increase in the last 10 years over that of the 10 years ending in 1885, is, for the state, 28.48 per cent, and for the city of Boston, 26.59 per cent.

Mr. Wadlin, in his introduction of the figures, says: "It is, perhaps, unfortunate that the present enumeration follows a period of extreme business depression. This undoubtedly affects the returns from the textile and boot and shoe cities and towns which, in many instances, account for the failure to reach a population figure as high as that set by sanguine local estimates, and diminishes the rate of increase during the last five years of the decennial period as compared with that shown between 1885 and 1890. Estimates of population made previous to enumeration are generally too high. A census taken in October would be more favorable to some cities than a census taken in May, as required by the constitution."

The figures for the city of Boston show a present population of 494,205, which, compared with 1885, when the population was 390,393, indicate an increase of 103,812.

What the Figures Show.

Figures for the state and counties are shown by the recapitulation to be as follows:

State and counties.	Population. 1885.	1895
Barnstable	29,845	27,338
Berkshire	73,828	86,638
Bristol	158,498	217,817
Dukes	4,135	4,297
Essex	283,727	329,775
Franklin	37,449	40,149
Hampden	116,704	152,791
Hampshire	48,472	54,719
Middlesex	357,311	499,743
Nantucket	3,142	3,017
Norfolk	102,142	134,781
Plymouth	81,980	101,481
Suffolk	421,109	537,139
Worcester	244,039	306,307
Totals	1,942,141	2,495,345

Notable Gains.

Among the towns, the most remarkable increases shown are those of Winthrop, where the population in 1885 was 1870, and is now 4197, an increase of about 206 per cent; Revere, where the figures in 1885 were 8637, are now 7437, an increase of 104.48 per cent; Hull, whose population of 451 has grown to 1041, nearly 131 per cent; Amesbury, where the population of 4403 in 1885 has increased to 9084, a growth of 126.75 per cent.

Among the cities, Everett's increase of nearly 219 per cent is proportionally the greatest, and Newburyport's growth is proportionally the least, being only 6.11 per cent.

All these figures of the first count are subject to modification later, but the principal changes anticipated are those for Fall River and Gloucester, where the absence of many residents at sea makes it probable that a slight change in the present figures may be necessary.

MAY BE REAPPOINTED.

Matt Ransom Is Not Now the Minister to Mexico.

Incumbency In Violation of the Constitution.

Salary of the Post Took a Jump While Ransom Was Senator.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The office of minister from the United States to Mexico was practically declared vacant yesterday by a decision rendered by Holmes Conrad, solicitor general of the United States, and acting attorney general.

Mr. Ransom's incumbency was declared to be contrary to the federal constitution, and the acting attorney general sustained the action of Thomas Holcomb, auditor of the treasury, for the state department, in declining to pass favorably upon Mr. Ransom's vouchers for salary and expenses.

MATT W. RANSOM.

The decision of the acting attorney general was based on a question raised by Auditor Holcomb as to the legality of Mr. Ransom's appointment to the Mexican mission, in view of sec. 2, art. 6 of the constitution, which declares that "no senator or representative shall, during the time for which he has been elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

Where the Hitch Comes.

Mr. Ransom was nominated by President Cleveland in February last, and was confirmed by the senate before his term of office as senator from North Carolina had expired. He was a member of the senate when the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was passed which contained a provision raising the post of minister to Mexico from a mission of the second class to a mission of the first class, and increasing the salary of the office from $12,500 to $17,500 a year.

The constitutional provision through which Mr. Ransom has been deprived of office does not bar him from being reappointed to the Mexican mission. He could have been appointed without violation of the law or constitution at any time after the hour of noon on March 4 last, when his senatorial term expired.

It is believed that President Cleveland will reappoint Mr. Ransom to the office. Nearly every senator united last winter in asking the president to appoint Mr. Ransom.

The bow of the City of Macon was badly stove. The crew of the Jones were taken off by the tug Eva Wall.

Mine Didn't Pay.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Aug. 17.—Foreclosure proceedings have been begun against the Centennial Mining company, and the property will be sold Sept. 28 to pay the indebtedness, amounting to $135,000. Miss Belle Patterson goes to Brockton today to spend a part of her vacation; and from there she will visit friends in New York city. While in New York she will attend the millinery openings, and get new goods for the fall and winter trade.

The hardy hydrangeas are beginning to blossom out, and although we have had some very dry weather this summer, these shrubs are looking thrifty. The editor of this paper thinks he has in front of his house on Spear street, two of the handsomest in the city. If you doubt it take a look at them.

As a compliment to Mr. John J. McNutt, the well known builder of Boston, the Atlantic Brass band gave a concert at the Sorrento Cottage, Winthrop, the palatial summer residence of Mr. G. Henry Wait, on Tuesday evening the 13th. inst. Mr. McNutt has been greatly interested in the welfare of the band since its organization.

The Wollaston Golf Club is now an assured success, 78 persons having sent in their names. A few days will see a hundred on the roll. On Friday there were fifteen playing at once. Few people have any idea of the beautiful grounds at Bellevue, the views, the rolling land, the well kept trees and the moving players, both ladies and gentlemen, make a sight well worth enjoying.

The hay rack ride last evening by the Universalist choir was a great success except in passing through South Braintree where one of the special police threatened to arrest the whole party, Mr. Week's foghorn included, but at the suggestion of a well known resident he thought better of it. We hope this will be a warning to other church parties in riding through South Braintree and that they will go prepared to bail themselves out. Mr. Henry H. Faxon furnished the hay rack for the party and the choir are indebted to him for one of the pleasantest evenings of the season.

Funeral of Dr. French.

Funeral services of the late Dr. C. S. French were held Friday afternoon from his late residence on Hancock street, and were very largely attended by many of his business and personal friends. Rev. Ellery C. Butler officiated, assisted by Rev. A. W. Whitney, a son-in-law of the deceased. After the services at the house the remains were taken to Mt. Wollaston for interment; the following gentlemen officiating as bearers: E. W. H. Bass, George L. Gill, James T. Penniman, Elbridge Clapp and James S. Baxter.

As a mark of respect some of the stores in the centre closed between the hours of 1 and 4.

Yacht Club Concert.

The Quincy Yacht Club outdid itself at last evening's concert, which was given by Baldwin's Boston Cadet Band. The music was divine.

With the incomparable Harry Dagget for leader and pianist, and the famous Mullaly, fresh from conducting the orchestra at the the Vanderbilt house warming of the "Breakers" at Newport on Wednesday evening, for cornet soloist, and Wilder and Percival for flute and xylophone soloists, it is little wonder that the large audience called it the most finished concert which has ever been given in this city.

Youth, enthusiasm, pretty dresses and prettier faces, combined with pleasant weather made the Quincy Yacht Club's first concert something for the members to look back upon with feelings of pleasure at its unqualified success.

Watering Streets.

Some of our streets are so thoroughly watered that they cause considerable annoyance to owners of nice carriages and to bicycle riders. The Boston Herald yesterday, in speaking about the care of Macadamized road, says:

"A good road loses half its usefulness unless it is cared for properly, and without skilful maintenance it will soon go to destruction. A prevailing error appears to exist in considering the dust that is ground away from the surface by the impact of hoofs and wheels as something of value that must be kept in place by liberal watering. In fact, this should be removed as thoroughly as possible, for its presence is a detriment. Our London correspondent, Arthur Warren, in describing the roads of that city, pointed out some time ago how macadamized ways in that city were kept in good condition, under much traffic, by regular scraping of the surface. It would be much better, even, to let the dust blow away than to keep it in place in the form of mud. The drenching of macadamized streets with water is a great nuisance, and imperils wheelmen very seriously, in causing their bicycles to slip on the grease-like surface. And when the mud dries it cakes and makes the way disagreeably rough."

Political Aspirants.

It is perhaps a little early for politics, yet there are several gentlemen who desire to represent this district in the legislature next year, among them being James Thompson, Russell A. Sears, Eben W. Sheppard and T. H. Newcomb.

It is also said that Councilman Eugene H. Sprague would also like to go. The other wards of the city have not been heard from as yet.

A GENERAL HOLIDAY.

Detroit Commandery Will Be Grand Master's Escort in Templars Parade.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Postmaster Coveney yesterday wrote to the department at Washington, asking that he be allowed to close the Boston office during regular holiday hours on the day of the great Knights Templar parade. This will give only one distribution of mail during the day, which will take place in the morning. If the postoffice is closed, it will probably have an effect on the closing of the business houses throughout the city. On State street there is a strong sentiment in favor of a holiday on that day. It is expected that the marching music which will be in the great parade will equal, if not excel, anything that has ever been heard in Boston. It is now certain that 90 bands, containing about 1500 musicians, will be present, and there will be some of the most famous organizations of the kind in the country. Superintendent Doogue of the department of public grounds is making efforts to have his department give the Templars as showy a welcome as possible. Everything is growing finely now at the Public Garden, on account of the frequent showers, and the plants are all in fine condition. The Christian Endeavor monogram is being removed on every hand, and the cross and crown substituted for it. A number of new pieces have been put in.

MASONIC TEMPLE, DETROIT.

The famous Detroit commandery No. 1 of Detroit will be with the other Sir Knights of the country in Boston Aug. 27. It has made its plans, is all ready for the start, and will arrive here Sunday, Aug. 25. It will have the honor of acting as the grand master's escort.

The party will be quartered at the Vendome, where they will have the entire third floor, consisting of 55 rooms, and also have the exclusive use of the large parlors and banquet hall known as the "Presidential rooms," on the first floor, as well as the blue room, across the hall from the parlors, for the overflow.

Crying Baby.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Field this morning says that the latest New York information appears to show that the cup committee is catching at straws with the hope of continuing to hold the cup. The club measurements are concealed for fear the arch-designer of the Valkyrie III should take advantage of them and do likewise. That fear is ill-founded, says The Field, as nothing can be done to alter the Valkyrie III before the contests. She must win or lose as she is. A letter appears in The Field, which says: When the American syndicate, who are presumably gentlemen, cannot fairly treat an American boat (the Vigilant) what can Lord Dunraven expect? The Yankee always wants the butter on his side of the dish.

Unfortunate Youngsters.

AURORA, Ills., Aug. 17.—A passenger train ran through an open switch at the Bleachery last evening and collided with some freight cars on a siding. The passengers were thrown about the cars with great force, but none received serious injury. Ten boys were standing on one of the freight cars. One was killed and five badly hurt. The car was loaded with sulphuric acid, which, spilling, burned all.

Currency Reform.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Members of parliament yesterday formed a parliamentary committee, its members to promote an international conference for the purpose of considering what measures can be taken "to remove or mitigate the evils resulting from the fluctuations growing out of the divergence in the relative value of gold and silver."

ABBEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 17.—Doc Wade, an aged and industrious man, was murdered at the house of Sam Wallace yesterday. Mrs. Sam Wallace is strongly suspected of the crime. Wade was a Confederate pensioner, and it is thought he was murdered for his pension money, having recently received it.

Captain Became Crazy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Schooner Harry, from Gervill, N. S. Aug. 4, to this port, arrived yesterday. Captain Milton became insane on the voyage and First Mate Lockhart brought the ship to port. As the Harry passed through Hell Gate yesterday Captain Milton died in his cabin.

Active Anarchists.

ANCONA, Italy, Aug. 17.—While the police were arresting an anarchist named Bernadelli, who was distributing a manifesto eulogizing Cæsario Santo, the murderer of the late President Carnot, a bomb was exploded in front of the French consulate, doing much damage.

Carpetings.

It's been our good fortune to note, after years of untiring study and observation, that what the people want today in Carpetings, is something that is serviceable, attractive, and not expensive in price. To some people all Carpetings look alike, but it's the wearing quality that counts fully as much as the looks.

We are in touch with the leading Carpet mills in the country, and to intending Carpet buyers we say with pleasure: "You will do well to inspect our new and complete line of All Wool Tapestries and Brussels Carpets, ranging in price from 45 to 85 cents per yard, with the assurance that right in your midst is one of the finest and best assortments of medium priced Carpets, ever offered to a buying public."

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A Complicated Case.

A case that has excited considerable interest was called in the District Court this morning when William Westland was arraigned for the larceny of $429.48 from Clan McGregor, O. S. C.

This case is a peculiar one. For six years Mr. Westland was the financial secretary of the Clan and while such his books were approved every six months.

Upon his retirement from office everything was supposed to be all right. Some eight months later his successor in office became convinced that there was a deficiency in Westland's accounts to the amount of $400. A demand was made upon Mr. Westland who in turn demanded to see the books which were denied him.

The books were then turned over to Horace F. Spear who found the deficiency to be $350.

Things went on for a time and finally it was agreed to leave the matter out to arbitration, each party to appoint a man, and if they could not agree they were to appoint a third party.

The agreement also was that Westland should pay all expenses of the arbitration board unless he proved himself clear. He also furnished a bond to abide by the decision of the arbitrators.

The Clan appointed Edwin W. Marsh, and Mr. Westland appointed Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks.

These two gentlemen came together and after a thorough examination discovered an error of fifty cents, and did not find it necessary to call in a third party as they agreed perfectly.

The result of their finding briefly stated was as follows:

"While many errors are found in the different accounts yet there does not appear any evidence of intentional wrong doing and in our opinion the errors that do appear are caused more by poor bookkeeping and intermingling of accounts rather than any real deficiency."

Mr. Westland paid the expense of the arbitration and also the 50 cents deficiency found.

This was last April, and it was supposed that the matter was ended until the complaint of larceny was made.

The claim made now by the Clan is that Mr. Marsh did not use them right and that their only redress was this complaint.

The case was not heard this morning, but continued until September 7.

QUINCY IS CROWING.

But Not So Fast as Many of Our Citizens Expected.

How the Other Cities have Prospered.

But Three Towns in Norfolk County Show a loss.

The report of the first count, showing the population of the Commonwealth on May 1, issued Friday, and of which mention was made in the issue of the LEDGER of that date is interesting in many ways, and while a verification may change the figures somewhat, enough is known to show that the old Bay state is making a steady and healthy growth. The entire gain in the state during the past ten years was 553,204.

The figures for the city of Quincy show an increase of 8,567 or 70.54 per cent. during the past ten years, and while the increase is not as large as was expected it has been larger than many of the large towns and cities of the Commonwealth.

Quincy has made rapid strides since 1875 when she ranked 31 in the list; having jumped to 21 in the twenty years. Her rank in population since 1875 is shown in the following table:

Year.	Rank.
1895	21
1890	23
1885	27
1880	29
1875	31

The returns for the county show an increase of 32,639 or 31.95 per cent. which is considerable larger than many of the other counties.

Every town in the county with the exception of Holbrook, Randolph and Wrentham show a good gain, the latter town showing the largest loss.

The following table shows the population of the several cities of the state for 1895 and 1885, and their rank:

Disgraceful.

Two of the young youths of the Quincy Point district indulged in a free fight on Sumner street early Friday evening, which attracted a large crowd, and strange to say, although in the crowd there were several well known citizens, none made any attempt to stop this disgraceful affair.

—The Salem Gazette says, the inventive genius may provide a channel through which the 25,000,000 gallons of surplus molasses in Louisiana may flow. One inventor has found it possessed superior merits, when combined with red clay and salt water, over asbestos and fire-clay in the making of furnaces. Another use for which it has been tried is the making of pavements. Combined with a certain kind of sand to the consistency of asphalt, a sidewalk in Chino, Cal., has been laid which dried quickly and became quite hard, and for which great success is claimed.

—The steam railroad employes in New Jersey have formed a political organization to protect themselves from trolley roads, whose increase, they imagine, threatens their wages. The resolutions pledge the association to support no candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose any legislation in favor of electric roads! How is that for "labor reform" idiocy?—Salem Daily Gazette.

WEIGHED IN.

There are 500 trotting bred horses, stallions, brood mares, colts and fillies at Village farm, East Aurora, N. Y.

At the Prince of Wales' sale of hackneys recently, William Waldorf Astor paid the highest price, $5,000, for a pair of harness horses.

The season of 1895 promises to be an exceptionally brilliant one and cannot fail to attract the attention of European trotting horsemen.

St. Louis will have another race track. Cole Ullman is behind the scheme, but he has also succeeded in interesting Chris Von Der Ahe, the baseball magnate.

When Azote, at La Crosse, Wis., beat Fantasy and Phebe Wilkes in three straight heats in 2:07¾, 2:12¾, 2:09, he acquired the gelding championship, held by Ryland T.

Henry McCalmont, the owner of Isinglass and other prominent racers in England, owns an extensive ranch in California, and intends to breed thoroughbreds there.

The ammunition of the Australian Muskets has proved so good as to commend itself to the most enlightened breeders in Britain, who are being closely followed by the Californians.

A consignment of 20 horses from Canada were sold in Glasgow by weight, at ninepence halfpenny per pound. As the horses weighed on an average 1,120 pounds, their average price was about $220.

W. K. Vanderbilt will conduct his breeding operations on the theory that American thoroughbred mares and French thoroughbred sires will produce a race of colts which it will be impossible to beat.

At Tiffin, O., July 16, in the first heat of the 2:09 pace Ben D, by Red Bank, went the mile in 2:07¼, which was announced by Starter Frank B. Walker as the fastest mile ever made on an Ohio race course.

McHenry has given an order for a sulky that will not weigh more than 18 pounds. This will be the lightest vehicle that was ever turned out. The tires will only weigh 13 ounces. With this sulky John R. Gentry will make an effort to set the lowest mark on the turf.—Horseman.

CHIVALRY AND KNIGHTHOOD.

The Iron Crown of Lombardy was founded in 1805 and re-established in 1816.

Hungary has several orders, the leading one being that of the Dragon, founded in 1439.

The only Persian distinction of note is that of the Sun and Lion. It was founded in 1808.

The Order of the Knights of St. Patrick was established in 1783 as an Irish title of nobility.

The Order of the Palm and Alligator, an African title, was granted to Governor Campbell in 1837.

The ruler of Monaco a few years ago established an order in his small dominions, but limited the membership to natives.

There are three Orders of Maria: Maria de Mercedes of Spain, Louisa Maria, a Spanish female order, Theresa Maria of Austria.

The Crown of Prussia is a distinction much coveted by officers in the Prussian service. It is for military achievements and was founded in 1861.

The only American order ever founded was that of the Cincinnati, in 1783. It was soon dissolved, a society of Cincinnati taking its place. It was composed of the officers of the Revolutionary war.

The Order of the Death's Head is the somewhat peculiar designation of an order of knighthood founded by Louisa Elizabeth of Saxe-Marburg, in 1709. It is a female order and has a very limited membership.

Before the days of the empire, the most highly coveted distinction in France was the star of the Order of St. Denis. It was founded in 1267, and was greatly encouraged during the latter days of the Bourbons.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BLOOMERS.

The woman question seems to have been sifted down to "How do I look in bloomers?"—Rochester Post-Express.

Just think! If the bloomer costume continues conquering the fair sex, "the rustle of her skirts" will disappear from fiction.—Elmira Gazette.

"The new woman in bloomers," says Rev. P. S. Henson, "is a sight to scandalize the gods." Let's see—what do the gods wear?—Chicago Dispatch.

The bicycle face may not be pretty, but it is a comparative vision of beauty beside the tight belted bicycle waist so often seen with bloomers.—Washington Star.

A bloomered bicycle girl caused a runaway in New York's Central park the other day. How queer that is! When horses around here see a Boston bicycle girl in bloomers, they whinny with delight.—Boston Globe.

The Paris dressmakers have decreed that fashionable lady bicyclists must wear puffed sleeves to blouses. Of course the flat will be obeyed here, but what, with puffed sleeves to blouses and puffed legs to bloomers, will the dear creatures look like?—Boston Herald.

HOWE'S HOMILIES.

Get double security from your relatives.

That which is called civilization is often a mistake.

A desire to get married is what constitutes an eligible man.

It is said of some girls that they have "the married woman whine."

If a man dies without money, his relatives will bury him, but not for love.

Before marriage a girl complains of her kin to her lover, and after marriage he complains of them to her.

When children are young, their fathers send them to bed early. When the children are older, they send their fathers to bed early.

When married people do not look squarely at each other when they speak and refer to each other as "he" or "she," there is trouble in the air.—Atchison Globe.

HEALTH HINTS.

Court the fresh air day and night.

Never despair. "Lost hope is a fatal disease."

Sleep and rest abundantly. Sleep is nature's benediction.

Don't carry the whole world on your shoulders. Trust the Eternal.

Associate with healthy people. Health is contagious as well as disease.

Avoid passion and excitement. A moment's anger has often proved fatal.

During the coming week the coolest days will probably be the 17th, 21st and 22d, and the warmest days the 19th and 23d. The week will probably average cooler than the past week. The greatest probability of rain is on the 20th or morning of the 21st, and possibly on the afternoon of the 23d. The greatest probability of clear weather is on the 17th to 19th and 22d.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, wear and tear, and hurry-up, will in time wear out the best human engine. The weakest link in life's chain is the measure by which human capacity must be restricted. A Backache may indicate that the weak link is found. When the back aches, it's a sign of internal disorder—tired Kidneys.

Hard Work

Buker's Kidney Pills

A Rule.

'Twixt the quill and the blade
'Tis the quill, they say, rules.
'Twixt the saw and the spade
'Tis a choice of good tools.

But 'twixt cup and the lip,
'Twixt the tool and its use,
There is many a slip.
Hence this truth we deduce:

Every man to his trade,
Every trade with its tools,
But no tool is of aid
To mere fumblers and fools.

Professor Huxley.

Professor Huxley was a man of very simple and direct manner. In the classroom he made his lectures graphic by finding illustrations for scientific truths in everyday examples, as when, in treating of animals that change their color, he referred to the fact that when he was tired or nervous he fancied he was grayer than usual. He was gallant to the fair sex. One of them, who attended his South Kensington lectures, asked him to introduce her to Herbert Spencer and was amused by his mock serious response, "I thought I was your first love." To this same lady he said, in talking about the death of Agassiz, the news of which he had just heard, "I wonder where he is?" He made the remark in a tone of profound sadness.

RIDER HAGGARD'S SNUB.

A popular doubt of his veracity probably kept Rider Haggard out of parliament.—New York Recorder.

Mr. Rider Haggard did not get into parliament, but he did get material for a new thrilling novel.—New York World.

American politics may be rough, but the masses do not throw clods at a candidate and his wife.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Rider Haggard has his revenge in his own hands. He can write another harrowing Kaffir story, though it would appear that the English public does not kaffir him as much as it did.—Boston Herald.

What an irony of fate that the man whose imagination brought forth the wonderful punishments recorded in "She" should be subjected to plebeian vegetables and ancient eggs thrown by an enraged populace!—Kansas City Journal.

A TERRIBLE REVENGE

Will Be Sought by Bulgarian Fanatics Who Were Unjustly Treated.

Friends Slaughtered and Their Property Destroyed.

Bulgarian Government Finds It Difficult to Protect Disturbed District.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The report of the attack by 500 Bulgarians on the Mohammedan village of Dospat, across the Turkish frontier, is confirmed by late dispatches from Sofia.

The later reports received show that 200 houses were burned and 100 persons killed. A dynamite bomb was thrown from a mosque into a crowd of refugees.

The village lies in the wildest recesses of the Rhodope mountains, southeast of Batak. It is inhabited by Mohammedan Bulgarians, brave and warlike fanatics, who hate the Christian Bulgarians more than the Turks, and are therefore likely to take a terrible revenge. The Bashi-Bazouks, who committed the outrages in Batak in 1876, were largely drawn from similar villages.

It is believed that the attack was arranged by the Macedonian committee in order to provoke fresh atrocities and thus incense Europe against Turkey.

The Bulgarian government has explained to the porte in reply to the protest of that government, the difficulty of watching the frontier, because a large concentration of troops would be regarded with suspicion by Turkey.

Pennsylvania's Parsimony.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—The Boston Towboat company, operating a large fleet of coal barges between here and New England ports, has announced its intention of dropping out of the Philadelphia trade. The failure of the state government to make an appropriation to aid in the work of deepening the ship canal between here and the sea is said to be responsible for the move. The Morse line of barges is also considering the advisability of giving up the Philadelphia trade.

On Lines of Peace.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 17.—The international parliamentary conference on peace arbitration adopted a resolution declaring that when a state has proclaimed permanent neutrality such neutrality should be recognized by the powers. The conference also adopted a resolution to ascertain whether two or more governments were prepared to take the initiative in the establishment of an international court for the settlement of disputes by pacific methods.

Received His Marriage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—A man who is said to be connected to one of the royal families of Luxemburg, Ger., and to be the heir to vast estates there—Arnold Wekestein—was arrested last night. Wekestein incurred the anger of his parents by eloping with his wife to this country. Disinherited, he yesterday started to kill the woman, whom he blames for his ill-fortune.

Victory For Revolutionists.

LIMA, Aug. 17. — Telegrams from Ecuador announce that Rio Bamba has fallen into the hands of General Alfaro after his defeating the government troops under General Sarasta. BOSTONS' BAD BREAKS

Give Them Another Push Toward the Foot of the League List.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—The Philadelphias beat the Bostons by a score of 9 to 7, and the two teams are tied for sixth place in the pennant race. Carsey and Nichols pitched with about equal effect, but the Philadelphia man received much the better support. Errors by Nash, Nichols and Tucker cost Boston three runs and probably the game, for Nichols, as usual, kept the Phillies guessing when hits meant runs. Nash's errors were most damaging.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Shows Business to Be Doing as Well as Can Be Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say: It is a belated season; a freezing may set everything back. The heavy business which ought to have been done in May and June was pushed into July, so that the mid-summer decline due in July comes in August. With this in mind, one is not surprised to find the shrinkage from July to August more conspicuous than usual.

The disappointing crop reports of last Saturday, though evidently distrusted, lessen confidence in regard to the future of the trade, even while some speculators gain by them.

Back of all doubts is the fact that industries are doing better than anybody could have expected.

Textile imports have been very heavy, and advances in cotton goods to some extent check buying, while Fall River (Mass.) spinners are organizing for the restoration of wages paid before the panic. Woolen manufacturers find in their way large sales of foreign goods at prices which cause official investigation.

Corn reports modified the expectations as to cotton and wheat, and cotton speculators have bought, lifting the price 5-16 cent, while wheat, with more evidence of loss in yield, has declined 1¼ cents.

Failures for the week have been 196 in the United States, against 229 last year, and 38 in Canada, against 45 last year.

HIS NAME IS BRACE.

Disclosure of the Identity of One of Holmes' Accomplices.

He Worked For a Photographer In Providence.

Wife and Brother-In-Law Tell What They Know About the Scapegrace.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 19.—"Hatch," the much-wanted accomplice of the notorious H. H. Holmes, formerly lived in this city, and his wife is living here at the present time. Suspicions that "Hatch" and one Charles Brace, formerly a photographer here, are one and the same person, have just been verified by the Providence police.

Samuel L. Kirk of this city is a brother-in-law of Brace. Kirk admitted that his sister married Brace, and that the latter deserted her. According to Kirk, Brace is "Hatch's" right name. Brace was born 37 years ago in New York, and was educated at Mooer's Forks, a small place in Clinton county, near the Canadian frontier. While there he was a model young man, and was for a time a Sunday school teacher.

Twelve years ago, while studying for the ministry, he married Melissa Kirk, the daughter of a well-to-do farmer. Soon after the wedding, a Dr. Mudgett came to board in the Brace family. Young Brace and the doctor became fast friends. One day, however, the elder Brace and Dr. Mudgett quarreled, and the latter moved.

Young Brace and his wife soon after this went to Boston, where Brace arranged to go into partnership in a grocery business in Cambridge. The firm was known as Brace & Hull, but one day Brace secured all the available cash and disappeared.

His Career In Providence.

The next heard from him was that he was working for Rose, a photographer here. He took charge of Mr. Rose's Narragansett Pier office one summer, but after collecting all the loose money, and kissing his wife good-by, he left the city. He never returned, but went to Chicago, where he was known as Charles Milbert.

His wife had a brother in Chicago, and through him she learned that he had married a 19-year-old girl, and was employed in one of the offices of the Standard Oil company.

On learning this, Mrs. Brace went to Chicago and laid her case before her husband's employers. They called in Gilbert, and she at once recognized him as her husband. He refused to give either his wife or his employers any satisfaction, and the next day he and his second wife left Chicago.

Mrs. Brace came back here, where she has remained ever since. After her husband left Chicago, she heard he was with Dr. Mudgett, alias Holmes, at St. Louis. While there, his second wife was not with him, and Mrs. Brace is of the opinion she was put out of the way.

Mrs. Brace states that her husband's mother is probably the only one of his relatives who knows where he is now. She lives in Bellows Falls, Vt., and is known to have heard from her son recently. Mrs. Brace and her brother, Mr. Kirk, are willing to do all they can toward bringing Brace to justice.

Off and on Again.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 19.—A probable attempt was made yesterday to wreck an excursion train, which left Nashua for Lake Sunapee, on the Concord and Claremont branch of the Boston and Maine system. While rounding a curve, two miles above West Concord, the engine struck a granite bowlder. The engine went over it safely, but four cars left the rails, and the track was torn up for a considerable distance. The couplings held, however, and the wheels again took the irons. The passengers were badly shaken up, but no one was hurt.

LAW HAVING ITS WAY.

Gotham Liquor Dealers Concluded to Keep Their Doors Locked.

But Few Arrests For Evading Sunday Law.

Saloons Opened For an Hour This Morning and Did Big Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The forecast that yesterday would prove the driest Sunday since the beginning of the recent campaign against open saloons seemed to have been fulfilled to the letter. From appearances, it was evident that the liquor men had given up the fight.

The best idea of the extent of the observance of the law may be gathered from the fact that in the whole city but 63 arrests were made, or less than half the number made the previous Sunday.

The liquor dealers appeared to have arrived with one accord at the conclusion that the day of "taking chances" was passed, and that their only safety lay in passively

Submitting to the Law.

Mullins' fate made itself felt even in the French and Italian restaurants, where syphons of seltzer and vichy generally took the place of the bottle of red wine.

From end to end of the Bowery all the saloons were tightly closed, and in front of almost every door a superfluous policeman kept solitary watch.

In the tenement house region in the East side a few small saloons did business, but usually only with persons living in the house, and then only with infinite precautions against surprise by police officers.

In the Tenderloin not more than three or four saloons attempted to sell, and of these all but one or two early in the day. In front of most of them a policeman was placed on guard sharp on the stroke of midnight.

But at midnight last night all the saloons in the Tenderloin, and, in fact, all over the city, opened their doors, keeping them open till 1 a. m. This they are allowed to do, since the law says that the saloons must be closed only between the hours of 1 and 5 a. m. on six days in the week.

As Sunday ends at midnight, there is nothing to prevent the doors from being opened from midnight until 1 o'clock Monday morning. The novelty of this arrangement induced a great many temperate men to go in and take a drink.

Bad For Spaniards.

HAVANA, Aug. 19. — The sickness amongst the Spanish troops does not abate. A battalion of the Guadalajara regiment, quartered at Mayari, reports that six officers died within a few days. It is impossible to obtain an advance to pay laborers on the plantations.

Monagan helped his pal to mount, and then galloped out of town.

H. H. FAXON INTERESTED.

He Offers $75 in Prizes for Cat Boats 18 to 21.

Another attraction for next week will be an open series of races for cat-rigged yachts of 18 feet and less than 21 feet water line belonging to any regularly organized yacht club will be sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club Aug. 26, 28 and 29, over the regular club courses of seven miles, beginning at 3 o'clock P. M.

The prizes offered by Mr. Henry H. Faxon are a sterling silver cup, or other suitable prize to the value of $50, to be selected by the winner of a majority of the races, and second and third cash prizes of $10 and $5, respectively, in each race.

The start is to be a flying one, and yachts will be timed from the gun. The preparatory gun will be fired at 3 P. M. and the starting gun at 3:10. If the first gun is delayed the regular interval will be observed. If any part of a yacht be on or across the line when the signal to start is given, she must return and recross, keeping clear of all competitors.

The measurement for time allowance will be figured according to Herreshoff tables, and will be as follows:—First race, Quincy Yacht Club rule, water line with crew aboard; second race, Hull Yacht Club rule, sail area; third race, length three inches above and parallel to water line; sails, mainsail only; crew, five men. Ballast must not be shifted or trimmed in any way during the race. Protests must be made in writing to the judges within thirty minutes after crossing the finish line.

Entries must be made in writing, giving owner's name and address, waterline and overall length of yacht, congress number and official measurements under the rules which govern these races to Mr. F. B. Rice, 125 Summer street, Boston, before 12 M. Saturday, Aug. 24. Yachts having no official measurements must be measured before each race by the measurer of the Quincy Yacht Club.

The races will be under the direction of Commodore Pettengill, of the Quincy Yacht Club.

IN THE CHURCHES.

At the Calvary Baptist church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Clark of Weymouth preached from Rev. 21.4: And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more deaths, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any pain, for the former things are passed away. This text was brought before the people with much earnestness and from a heart who like his Master knew how to enter into the sorrow and conflicts of those who from various trials had known what tears mean. Tears greet us as soon as we enter this life and follow us on to the hour when death relieves us from all the sorrows of earth, and then to the faithful in Jesus is the sweet promise, "He shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. Like our Master we are so constituted that our tears mingle with other's sorrows. Sanctified tears are blessed by God. A time will come when the things that call forth tears now shall have passed away. There will be no death there, no pain, no sea to separate us from each other. Here we part from loved ones, there we meet to part no more and the seas of this life with its conflicts will be over and night we instinctively dread, but then the Sun of Righteousness shall shine forth in its beauty and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

The Rev. Mr. Fuller of Cottage City preached at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday.

"The resurrection of the dead; or no life beyond the present," was the subject of the Christadelphian Bible lecture Sunday evening.

—The first electric organ in America was put into a church in Taunton during the month of July, two years ago. The church which has the honor of first using the electric fluid for the purpose of driving its organ was the St. Thomas church of the city above mentioned, and the experiment was a brilliant success. In fact about all the church organist has to do now at St. Thomas' is to press the button and the electricity does the rest. The organ is not nearly as massive as church organs usually are, the cumbersome keyboard being entirely dispensed with.

The greatest velocity attained by a whale when struck by a harpoon is nine miles an wour.

IS IT CORRECT?

The Increase in Ward One Should be Larger.

No comparison has yet been made of the ward populations, but the LEDGER presents some interesting figures below. It has been hinted that the total census is below expectations, and an analysis shows that it is the Ward One figures which may be responsible for this. The Centre has not felt the business depression like South and West Quincy, yet the gain is only about one-third as large.

Ward One is a big ward in territory, being bounded by Town river, the Canal, Elm, School, Quarry and Common streets, and Furnace brook to Black creek. It includes not only the Centre, so called, but much of "the Commons," Houghs Neck and Germantown. The increase of 293 in five years appears ridiculously small. Certainly more than 12 new houses per year have been built, probably more than 25.

The gains of Wards Three, Four, Five and Six do not vary much. The South Quincy ward made the largest actual gain and Wollaston is second. The largest percentage of gain was in the Atlantic ward which has added over 50 per cent. in five years. Wollaston is second with nearly 50 per cent. The figures for 1895 and 1890 with the increase are given below:

	1895.	1890.	Increase.
Ward 1,	3,562	3,269	293
Ward 2,	2,740	2,383	357
Ward 3,	4,692	3,741	951
Ward 4,	4,964	4,164	800
Ward 5,	2,674	1,805	869
Ward 6,	2,080	1,364	716
Total,	20,712	16,726	3,986

Dick Croker's Estimate.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A reporter found Richard Croker at Newmarket yesterday, and tried to secure from him an interview on political affairs in New York. No amount of persuasion, however, could induce him to talk about James B. Martin's assumption of the leadership of Tammany. He showed surprise, however, at the news, and finally observed: "Whoever takes the Tammany leadership now has a big contract on his hands."

QUINCY'S HOLIDAY.

Five Hundred Knights Templars to be Here Aug. 29.

South Shore commandery, K. T., has wide awake committees planing for the visit of the Cleveland and Rutland commanderies on Tuursday, Aug. 29. The Quincy committee are Arthur W. Stetson, Joseph C. Morse, John O. Hall, Charles L. Hammond, A. G. Durgin, E. W. H. Bass and George H. Wilson.

The arrangements will be completed at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening. It is probably that the line of march will be from the depot to the birthplaces of the Presidents Adams, and on the return as far as the Adams homestead on Adams street, and via Goffe street to Presidents' hill.

Some of the business houses have already signified their intention to decorate, and if a few start it is sure to be general. So don't put it off too long.

Fifty-nine Knights of Killington commandery have already signified their intention to come and they will be accompanied by 33 ladies.

The report that Mrs. Bigelow was to entertain the Knights Templar was merely a rumor and had no foundation in fact.

ENDEAVORERS OUTING.

The East Norfolk C. E. Union at Merry Mount Park.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor union upon invitation of the Wollaston societies enjoyed an outing at Merry Mount park on Saturday afternoon and evening. Besides those who were present from Wollaston, there were about fifty from Holbrook, Braintree and Randolph. The afternoon was spent in games and sports, under the efficient management of Mr. Joseph E. Merritt, who proved himself equal to the occasion and to whom much of the credit is due for the pleasure of the day.

While many were the recipients from the hands of the fair ladies of ribbon badges as prizes, yet most of the honors were captured by Mr. Fred. K. Belcher and Mr. Barney D. Mann of Wollaston.

The management of the outing was in the hands of a committee consisting of Mr. Blanchard of Holbrook, Miss Thomas of Braintree, Mr. W. H. Hull, Mr. Barney D. Mann, Mr. Fred. K. Belcher, Mr. Ellis Jones and Mr. A. E Brownville of Wollaston.

Although there were not as many present as was anticipated, yet it was voted a success and suggested the thought that these outings might be made a very pleasing feature of the social part of the Endeavor work.

Origin of Croquet.

Croquet is the rage at Cottage City. An exchange says:—Mrs. W. T. Babcock of Quincy, who has looked up the origin of the game of croquet, says that it was first known as paille-maille, and originated among the poorer people of southern France It was the pet pastime of Charles II, of England. Among the relics in London tower may be seen the mallets used by the King, and the Pall Mall was named in honor of the sport which once flourished there. In 1866, 20,000 copies of the hand book of croquet were sold in England, and a year later the first public match was played on Bowling Green. Thirty years ago the game was all the rage in New England. In New York, Staten Island, Chicago, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Massachusetts, had scientifically prepared grounds, and the game has become as scientific as billiards, calling for even more deliberate judgment, nerve and boldness of play.

FOR COUNCILLOR

Colonel Benjamin S. Lovell of Weymouth, Mass.

For member of the Executive Council,—subject to the action of the Republican councillor convention of the second district,—Colonel Benjamin S. Lovell of Weymouth. Such is the announcement. It is authoritative. In response to an almost universally expressed desire to have him enter the field, and the determination of his friends not to accept a denial from him, coupled with the general good feeling with which he has been urged to act favorably in the matter, Colonel Lovell has consented to stand. Colonel Lovell feels the keenest gratification at the manner in which the matter has been brought to his attention, and the interest which his friends have, without solicitation, shown in bringing him forward, and the loyalty displayed by them in tendering him the nomination.

The sterling character of his Republicanism, so often demonstrated, is again proven by his declaration that if the party interest can be subserved by the nomination of a candidate other than himself, he is content to submit to the party good in deference to any personal ambition which might make the acceptance of the nomination a pleasure. It is safe to say that the nomination will be conferred upon him with practical unanimity. Republicans rejoice in his Republicanism, and no member of the party in the section which is included in the second councillor district enjoys a greater degree of popularity—and his popularity is not confined to the district, but is as wide as the Commonwealth, outside as well as within the fold over which he has so long and so faithfully served as a shepherd. Colonel Lovell has been in evidence since early youth.

Imbued with the patriotic spirit of his sires, he enlisted at the age of seventeen, in Co. A of the forty-second Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, and his services for his country are only equalled by his persistent efforts in behalf of his comrades in later years. For fifteen consecutive years he was chosen commander of Reynold's Post, 58, Grand Army of the Republic. In 1880 he was junior vice-commander of the Department of Massachusetts, and senior vice-commander the following year, and in 1882 he declined the nomination for department commander. In 1877 and '78 he was aide-de-camp to General Robinson, national commander-in-chief, and he also served in the staff of General Alger in 1889 and in that of General Palmer in 1892.

During the administration of Governor Long in 1880, '81 and 82 he was a prominent member of the staff of his excellency. Furthermore, Colonel Lovell has been a delegate to four Republican national conventions, a member of the Legislature through five terms, and long active in the Masonic fraternity and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Governor Greenhalge, too, recognizing his capacity, attached him to his staff. But—enough.

Every newspaper reader is familiar with his name and fame. The "Lovell Diamond" bicycle—a product of the John P. Lovell Arms company, founded by his father, and of which he is treasurer—has wheeled his personality over the world. Endowed with rare business ability, of irreproachable character and pronounced principles, and a Republican of the best stripe, the place of Colonel Lovell in the Executive Council will be a foremost one.

Most Expert Lady Angler.

Among the Wolfboro news in the Sunday Herald was the following paragraph: Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ames of Quincy, guests at the Lake View House, have been trying their luck bass fishing in Lake Wentworth, and have had excellent success. Mrs. Ames is earning the reputation of being the most expert lady angler among the summer population of Wolfboro.

—The tax rate this year in Weymouth will be $17.50 on a thousand, a reduction of $1 from last year.

THE TATTLER.

Florence Lackmore of Franklin, Mass., 15 years old, climbed to the crater of Popocatepetl.

Mrs. John Scott, a sister of the late Professor Huxley, has been a resident of Nashville for many years.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, starting on a 6,000 mile journey at the age of 83, could give the new woman points.

Miss Lucile Eaton Hill, a young woman, is "coach" to the Wellesley boating crew. She studies "strokes" scientifically.

Much of Mrs. John Jacob Astor's $40,000 a year is expended for jewelry. Her collection of diamonds is one of the largest and finest in America.

The Pacific coast trade in printers' ink is almost monopolized by a woman, Mrs. M. Tracey of San Francisco, whose stock in trade is her secret process of manufacture.

Miss Abigail Dodge (Gail Hamilton) is at her summer home in Hamilton, Mass., and has so far recovered from her severe illness as to be able soon to resume her literary work.

Mrs. P. T. Barnum indignantly denies the rumor that she is soon to become the wife of a wealthy Englishman. She proposes to sell her Bridgeport property and live abroad.

Mrs. L. M. Wade, the bright and vivacious daughter of Mrs. Maria I. Johnstone, one of the brightest and best informed women in St. Louis, is an expert wheelwoman.

It may or may not be significant that the only three women ever honored with the degree of LL. D. have all been unmarried—Miss Maria Mitchell, Miss Amelia B. Edwards and Miss Frances Willard.

Mrs. Catherine Smead, who recently died at Rochester at the age of 95, decorated the boat on which Lafayette witnessed the opening of the Erie canal. She was born in England and settled in Rochester in 1824.

Miss Richards of Boston is said to be the best amateur woman photographer in the United States. In addition to the honor attending her exhibition at the World's fair she has recently received a prize for interiors from the Boston Art club.

Sarah Bernhardt says: "If I am in a crowd of people and a dog or cat is near, it will come naturally to me without my making the slightest movement. Why this is the case I cannot say, unless there is developed in me another sense, the existence of which animals at once perceive."

Mrs. Olney, wife of the secretary, does not take a great interest in the woman question, although she hasn't the slightest objection to other women settling the matter to their own taste. For herself, she thinks her home duties are enough to occupy her whole time. Mrs. Olney is a young looking woman, especially for a grandmother.

Mrs. William R. Morrison, wife of the interstate commerce commissioner, is a very able politician. A Washington newspaper even went so far recently as to say that she was responsible for Cleveland's first nomination. Since then Mrs. Morrison has been asked several times if the statement was true, but she has invariably declined to answer.

THE POLITICAL ARENA.

Presidential candidates are like women—when they say no, they very often mean the other thing.—New York Sun.

If decent citizens would serve more often in primaries, they would not have to serve so often on grand juries.—Chicago Times-Herald.

It is very difficult for a great many people to understand why a man should continue to be a reformer after the election is all over.—Washington Star.

We believe the time is not far distant when voting by machinery will be the rule rather than the exception all over the country.—Boston Transcript.

Dr. Depew is getting to be so prominent that a visit by him to Europe excites the gossips almost as much as a visit by Benjamin Harrison to New York does.—Washington Star.

There are many statesmen who don't want to be president or governor about this time. But wait till that irresistible genius, Mr. Urgent Solicitation, gets back in the fall!—Boston Globe.

The next president of the United States will have a glorious opportunity to emulate Jeffersonian simplicity by riding to his inauguration on a bicycle and going through the ceremony with his trousers tied in at the ankles.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

JEWISH JOTTINGS.

A Jewish paper censures those rabbis who glorify their own religion to depreciate Christianity.

Excise Commissioner Harburger of New York is grand master of the Independent Order Free Sons of Israel.

The orthodox Jews affirm that they are as loyal to the American republic and its principles as are the reform Jews.

Those rabbis who ride on a bicycle to the synagogue, hold services there and then ride home are censured by The Jewish Voice.

Rabbi Kranskopf defines reform Judaism as "Judaism taught by American methods, the methods that are peculiar to our own country."

The Levites seem to be numerous in Chicago. The new Chicago city directory contains as many as six columns under the name of "Levy."

The Jewish Messenger is desirous of the organization of a "board of united congregations" which shall work in harmony with the board of rabbis for the strengthening of New York Israel.—New York Sun.

TIRE PUNCTURES.

A wise man who wishes to do as he pleases will buy his wife a bicycle.—Los Angeles Express.

It is strange that no one has yet thought of saying that the bicycle has a tendency to make men far from upright.—Boston Herald.

If the bicycle will prevent the new woman from wearing tight shoes and compressing her waist, there is not much to be said against it.—Washington Star.

The wheelmen and wheelwomen who go out riding at a very early hour of the morning would do well to "take a snack" of something before they mount the wheel.—New York Sun.

It may be that the stooping bicyclist is influenced by the Hahnemann theory and gets his head as near as possible to the wheels of his machine to exercise the wheels which are inside of that head.—Boston Transcript.

A BIG AFFAIR.

The Knights Templar Are Coming to Boston and the Boston Journal Will Write Them Up.

In reporting the Knights Templar Conclave next week the Boston Journal intends even to surpass its magnificent success with the Christian Endeavor Convention.

No other paper in Boston met with so many praises during Christian Endeavor week as did the Journal, and the demand for the paper taxed the utmost capacity of the presses. This was due to the bright reports and the convenient, novel, systematic arrangement of the paper.

During Knights Templar week the Journal will give the best reports of the gathering, treating it in interesting and complete manner. Every day there will be given the handsome half-tone photographic illustrations, printed by the Journal alone among Boston papers, and similar to the pictures in the best magazines, while as on all such occasions, the Journal will have exceptional, exclusive features of novel design. The Journal announces that if an order is sent now, with 15 cents inclosed, the paper will be mailed to any address throughout the Conclave week.

TRUSTING WOMEN.

THEIR CONFIDENCE OFTEN LEADS TO SUFFERING.

An Ohio Woman's Experience, as Here Related, is Interesting to Every American Woman.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

It is a very sad fact that the more a woman trusts to the skill of her physician in treating her female complaints, the longer she is apt to suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham fully realized this fact when she commenced that exhaustive study that has enabled the women of the world to help themselves. She discovered the source of female complaints, and produced the Vegetable Compound, which is their absolute cure.

When such testimony as the following is given, the woman who thinks should act quickly, and no longer permit herself to trust to incompetent doctors. The Vegetable Compound is sold by all druggists, and every woman should have it.

"The doctors had told me that unless I went to the hospital and had an operation performed I could not live. I had falling, enlargement, and ulceration of the womb.

"I was in constant misery all the time; my back ached; I was always tired. It was impossible for me to walk far or stand long at a time. I was surely a wreck. I decided that I would give your Compound and Sanative Wash a trial.

"I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of Sanative Wash, and I am now almost well. I am stouter and healthier than I have ever been in my life. My friends and neighbors and the doctors are surprised at my rapid improvement. I have told them all what I have been taking."—MRS. ANNETTA BICKMEIER, Bellaire, Belmont Co., O.

An Unrealized Dream.

He went fishing in the wildwood,
In the dancing mountain brook
Where he used to fish in childhood
With a bent pin for a hook.
He bethought him of the catches
That he used to show with pride,
And the sunburn and the scratches
That adorned his youthful hide.

Now he had a fancy tackle
And a rod of split bamboo,
Flies of every style of hackle,
Clicking reel and silk line, too;
With a twelve pound basket laden,
Harnessed up with straps and bands,
He had patent boots to wade in
And kid gloves upon his hands.

Gayly then he started fishing
In a shady nook and cool,
Where the willows, gently swishing,
Overhung a well known pool.
That was where he used to catch them
When he was an urchin small;
Surely now he ought to match them
With his fancy rig and all.

But, alas, he could not do it;
Though he fished the pool all day,
Not a trout that ambled through it
Took the pains to come his way.
But his cuss words made the air blue,
And he whipped the creek to foam;
Then he smashed his fancy bamboo,
Paid his bill and came back home.

Browning Bean, Jr.—Grandfather, my conscience urges me to remind you that you forgot the necessity of making a return in your tax report of the fibrous quadruped known as a "hobby horse" that you presented me with during the recent holiday festivities. I believe I am correct in assuming this to be in accordance with the law as exemplified in section 28, income tax, regarding "personal property acquired by gift."—Life.

Shipping Suffered.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 19.—A storm in this vicinity did considerable damage yesterday. The towboat Ludda Keefer was sunk, and the cook, Millie Colbaugh, was drowned. This is the only death reported. The barge Dacotah was also sunk. The Litle Bill was badly damaged. Fleets of loaded barges were broken up by the force of the gale.

Outlaws' Dastardly Doings.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Aug. 19.—A gang of Creek Indians and negroes, with several white outlaws, raided Samuel Norford's store, near Arbeca, and after completely gutting the place, assaulted and otherwise maltreated five women in the neighborhood, two of whom will die.

Will Be Full-Riggers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—It has been determined to construct four of the new light draft gunboats with full sail power and single screw engines. The west will be given preference in the building of these boats.

GASTRIC JUICE.

The merest dash of cinnamon in a cup of chocolate after it is poured is said to add a piquant and undistinguishable flavor.

The Japanese national ice is a pebbly compound of sweet beans and hail stones. Instead of ice cream perfumed snow is served.

A little cold tea added to a sliced apple pie will, it is said, add to its general relish and delectability. The tea should be poured lightly over the apples just before the upper crust is put on.

Fruits, to do their best work, should be eaten either on an empty stomach or simply with bread. In the morning before the fast of the night has been broken they serve as a natural stimulus to the digestive organs.

A new way of serving raisins at a lunch table is to wrap them in bay leaves and then bake them in the oven, when they acquire an aromatic taste. Serve them in these wrappers, side by side, with salted almonds.

—The Boston Globe says:—"A railroad accident is apt to give us an exaggerated idea of the dangers of railway travel. But it is probably as dangerous to walk up and down Washington street, and frequently cross from side to side as it is to take a hundred mile ride in the cars. The same day that three persons were killed by the late railroad collision in New Hampshire, thirteen persons were killed by a falling building in New York."

OF PRODIGIOUS SIZE.

Valkyrie III Surprised Those Who Saw Her For the First Time.

Yachtsmen Turn Out In Force to Give Her Greeting.

Opinion That Defender Has No Mean Competitor to Deal With.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—After a stormy voyage of 22 days the chosen champion of the United Kingdom was sighted yesterday afternoon off the Long Island shore. The way had been long and the wind and sea had been high, but safe through all came Valkyrie III.

At 1:15 p. m., by telephone and telegraph, it was announced that the British boat was off Forge river. She was then about five miles off shore. At 2:35 she was passing Smith Point. An hour later, the lookout in the tower at Fire Island saw her coming in from the eastward. By 4 o'clock Valkyrie III was off Fire island.

Valkyrie III is the best boat ever sent over by England, and will be met by the best boat ever turned out on this side of the water. This will be the second time, if the Defender is chosen, as she undoubtedly will be, to defend the cup, that a keel boat has been the American champion since an American keel schooner, the America, first won the cup.

Craft of all kinds were gotten under way to meet and welcome the foreign visitor. Among the first of these to get in motion was the freight steamer City of Bridgeport, with Lord Dunraven's representative in America, H. M. Kersey, and a large party of friends, aboard.

Vigilant, in tow of the tender Aeronaut, and Defender, towed by her tender, the Hattie Palmer, were soon hastening to welcome the foreign yacht. Valkyrie III passed Forge river life-saving station at 1:15 p. m., and Smith Point at 2:35 p. m. She was reported by Fire Island at 3:32 p. m., under full sail.

Welcomed by Big Fleet.

The fleet of vessels that went down to meet the foreigner was the largest that ever advanced to the place of meeting an incoming yacht. It was an all-day job, but it was Sunday, and yachtsmen were therefore gifted with plenty of time, and they put it in in a most courteous manner.

The news that Valkyrie III had been sighted off Moriches, L. I., at 1:15 p. m. spread with astonishing alacrity, if that opinion may be formed from the appearance of the enormous crowds which gathered along the Fort Hamilton shore. Although it was a Sunday crowd, that same crowd was nearly doubled by the aggregation of "sharps," if not cranks, of the yachting species.

As the night wore on, interest in the arrival of Valkyrie increased, and, when shortly before 9:30, the report arrived at Quarantine that Valkyrie was heading toward the upper bay, there was a great shout of relief, and somebody raised a shout of "Three cheers for Valkyrie!" and they were given with right good will.

At 9:45, the Valkyrie, in tow, and followed by two tugs, slowly passed Quarantine, and was boarded by the health officer. The cup challenger looked trim and neat. Her sails were snugly stowed, and on her decks were apparently all the members of her crew. Hearty cheers of welcome were exchanged with the English sailors, and then, the usual formalities having been complied with, Valkyrie continued her journey up the bay.

When Valkyrie III reached the Quarantine station, she found a good many people waiting for her, and the warmth of her reception must have satisfied her officers. Yachts of all sizes went down the bay in the hope of catching a glimpse of the cup challenger. The larger vessels went away outside of Sandy Hook and cruised about.

Story of the Voyage.

Off Quarantine, Valkyrie was boarded by a reporter, who obtained the following story of the voyage: Captain Cranfield said: "We left Gourock on July 27 with a full crew of 42 men all told. After leaving Tory island on the 28th, we ran into a fresh N.N.W. gale, accompanied by high seas, which blew hard for 24 hours and then moderated.

"On July 31 it commenced to blow again from N.W. to S.W., and it blew hard for five days, when the weather moderated to a light southwest wind, which lasted up to Cape Race. There we caught a northwest wind which carried us to Sable island, when the wind became light and left us becalmed at times, and lasting up to our arrival here.

"We sighted Shinnecock light at noon today, and at 6:30 this evening, when 20 miles west of Fire island, we were taken in tow by The World tug, C. P. Raymond, and here we are. We made 3016 miles in all, and one day only made about 70 miles. We never carried away a rope or yardarm throughout the voyage."

Valkyrie anchored off Liberty island for the night, and was taken to the Erie basin this morning.

Sizing Her Up.

When the Valkyrie came in sight of the gazers from Quarantine, and there were many old pilots among the onlookers, the universal expression among them was: "Well, if she isn't a big one, I don't know." Further than that, they said: "Why she looks like a prodigious clam sloop." They meant by that that the English yacht was one of such immense proportions, comparatively speaking, that she overtopped all yachts that ever raced for the America's cup.

The thing that first struck the vision of the sailors was the boat's beam. Looking at her from ahead of the bow, they saw the cutaway front under the bowsprit that has become so common in late years. When they raised their gaze they saw two great, big, bulging sides that ran to the midships section, always on the increase of width. The estimate that the Valkyrie measures 27 feet at her widest beam was not doubted by any one who knows what beam is. Some of the "sharps" said they would not be surprised if the beam measurement was found to be 28.

After that, the boys who knew it all went astern of the vessel, and took a look at her from that point of vantage. With that view, they only had their previously formed opinions confirmed. She looked wider from the rear than from the forward. Having seen this, the natural conclusion was that Valkyrie was a big, strong ship that would carry a lot of sail, and that is what all the experts said she would do. If the race for the America's cup is resolved into a mere question of sail-carrying power, the experts said, the Valkyrie will take the trophy home with her.

IMPOSING CEREMONIES.

Foundation Stone of Monument to William I Laid In Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The 25th anniversary of the battle of Gravelotte, which had so decisive influence upon the Franco-Prussian war, was signalized here by the laying of the foundation stone of the national monument to the late Emperor William I by his grandson, Emperor William II, in the presence of many of the German sovereigns and other dignitaries.

Addressing the brilliant assembly, Emperor William read aloud from the document to be deposited in the foundation stone, as follows: "The self-sacrificing accord of the German princes; the wise counsel and energetic support of Von Bismarck; the consummate strategy and genius of Von Moltke; the unequaled courage and ability of the commanders of the army, and, before all, Crown Prince Frederick William; the devoted fidelity of Field Marshal von Roon, and the discipline of the people, rendered success certain.

"But, also, in the direction of works of peace, the emperor was untiring to his last breath in active furtherance of the welfare of the working classes. The statue of William the Great should form a testimony of the distinguishable gratitude of the princes and people of Germany."

At this point Count von Lerchenfeld handed Emperor William a trowel, requesting that his majesty would lay the foundation of a memorial which would remind Germany of the great period of her history, and which the entire nation desired to erect to the founder of its unity and greatness.

After the emperor had spread the cement on the stone, Baron von Buol-Berenberg gave his majesty a mallet, at the same time declaring that the memorial would be a bronze monument of the inextinguishable gratitude of the nation. The emperor then tapped the stone twice with the mallet, saying: "In memory of the fallen; in recognition of the living, and in emulation of future generations."

The imperial and royal personages present then tapped the stone in succession, while a salute of 101 guns was fired and the bands played. Superintendent General Fabre delivered a short address, and after the benediction the band played "Nun Danket Alle Gott." Three cheers for the emperor were then given. The troops presented arms and the bands played "Heil dir Kaiser."

BY HIS OWN HAND.

One of Coxey's Right Hand Men Leaves This World Behind.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—Dr. Bozarro, who traveled with Coxey's army as "Smith," the Great Unknown, has committed suicide by taking morphine.

"SMITH," THE GREAT UNKNOWN.

Bozarro claimed to have been an Indian medicine man. He left a long letter, telling of domestic troubles.

Seven Persons Drowned.

OCEAN GROVE, Md., Aug. 19.—A party of farmers had a fish-fry yesterday on Grey's creek, a branch of the Isle of Wight bay, with bathing, fishing and amusements. William Hudson carried a party of nine out sailing, and as the boat was about to come back, the women of the party jumped on the high side, capsizing the little craft, which was hardly large enough to carry five persons. The following were drowned: William Storr, his wife and his daughters, Ida May and Eva; Myrtle Stevens, aged 16; Lina Hall, aged 19, and her sister, Lulu Hall, aged 14.

Driven to Despair.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 19.—Miss Evelyn McCormick, one of the most popular and best known artists in California, shot herself through the head and died almost instantly. Miss McCormick is said to have been engaged to Guy R. Rose. For some reason the engagement was broken. Grief over the termination of this engagement is thought to have been the cause of the suicide.

Disobeyed Orders.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Despite the prohibition, some of the soldiers of the war of 1870 from Darmstadt crossed the frontier to Amanvillers to place wreaths upon the tombs of the German soldiers. The French police treated them politely, but insisted upon the removal of the inscriptions from the wreaths.

Gold In Plenty.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., Aug. 19.—There is considerable excitement over the discovery of gold quartz in Silver City. Emanuel Padroli, a rancher, made a clean-up of $10,000 Saturday. Plenty more of the same ore is in sight, and assays going up to $150 a ton have been obtained.

Overpowered the Jailer.

MONTICELLO, Ark., Aug. 19.—While Jailer Wilson was feeding the prisoners, a stalwart negro secured his pistol. During the struggle three others escaped. Wilson's assailant broke out, and shot James Bennett, who attempted to stop him. A posse caught two of the prisoners.

Victory For Vespers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—The Vesper Boat club of Philadelphia won the amateur championship of America from the 'varsity crew of the University of Pennsylvania, which holds the championship among amateur college crews.

Law Will Not Interfere.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mayor Holland of Dallas, who recently sprang into prominence by reason of his stand on the proposed Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, is in this city. When the mayor was interviewed he said: "After the first day of next September there will be no law on the statute books of Texas which will prohibit physical culture tests from taking place in the state. At present such a law exists, but by an amendment of the legislature it will become null and void after midnight of Aug. 31."

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

HOAR IS DENOUNCED.

Sentiments Plainly Expressed at a Picnic of Patriotic Societies.

Clergyman Talks of Romanism at National Capital.

Sweeping Assertions Made Concerning the Dispensation of Offices.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Senator Hoar's letter to T. C. Evans on the A. P. A. question was discussed by various speakers at a picnic at Downer Landing yesterday. The character of the criticism is best comprehended in this extract from the address of John H. D. Stevens of Ironwood, Mich., judge of the court of common pleas: "Thank God that Senator Hoar is not the mouthpiece of the Republican party."

The picnic was an all-day reunion of the so-called patriotic orders, and was held under the auspices of the Woman's State Auxiliary and Mutual Benefit association, as the program announced.

The addresses were not especially confined to one topic, for the orators discussed the East Boston riot, Senator Hoar's position, woman suffrage, the new woman and the bloomer girl.

E. H. Dunbar of Malden was the presiding officer, and he made a speech, in which he defended the organization which the senator criticised, and declared, with a show of strong feeling, that "We are not bigots, fools or snarling dogs, with our tails between our legs, but American citizens, patriotic citizens, men and women."

Preacher Easton's Address.

Mr. Dunbar introduced Rev. T. C. Easton of Washington. Mr. Easton attacked the Roman Catholic church, and related what he called incidents of his experience in Washington, announcing that Senator Hoar knew that what he was saying was true, even if he had denied it in his recent letter.

Further he said: "No man coming from the capital can speak with fuller knowledge of the awful grasp which Romanism has on the institutions of our country than I can today. There is hardly an appointment made by the powers at the capital of the nation but is dictated by the Roman hierarchy.

"Besides the 4,000,000 of the secret orders in America today that are under the ban of the Roman Catholic church, there are 3,000,000 of A. P. A's, who will stand to the defense of free speech, free schools and a free country."

Major T. C. Ryan of Columbus, O., who was the next speaker, was as unrelenting in his condemnation of institutions contrary to the A. P. A. principles as the previous speaker, and he paid much more attention to enlarging on the elements to which the organization is opposed than to the senator's expressed attitude on the general subject. His speech was a characteristic denunciation of various Catholic orders.

Brief addresses in the same line were delivered by State Senator Young of Springfield, City Councilman Crockett, Alfred Blanchard, Mrs. L. M. Brown, second vice president of the Woman's A. P. A., Anson B. Edgerly and others.

DECORATORS BUSY.

Hub Will Show Her Appreciation of the Visit of Knights Templar.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Mayor Curtis yesterday afternoon received a letter from President Cleveland, stating that he cannot come to Boston during the Knights Templar conclave week, owing to previous engagements.

Boston people have been rather cold in showing their appreciation of the fact that the holding of the 26th triennial conclave is an event of much magnitude. Monday the first signs of enthusiasm were shown, and from many buildings were hung the first strips of bunting and emblems of the Masonic orders, and with the black and white forming a somber background for the red, white and blue, the effect is something that marks a new era in the way of decorations in this city.

The electrical decorations on the front of Masonic Temple attract more attention than anything nowadays. All day long there are interested groups of men and women watching the letters as they are being put in place to spell the words: "Fraternity, Fidelity, Charity," that are to blaze out in all their glory during the week.

The committee on horses and equipments have been at work since Jan. 1, and up to the present time have secured over 800 horses fully equipped. They are horses such as are used for our mounted troops for parades in Boston and neighboring cities. The committee sent a circular to all the stable keepers within 20 miles of Boston, and all having suitable horses responded.

In the morning two electric cars with city officials went to Beverly, and were joined there by the Beverly officials and people from Salem, Wenham and other places. The crowd then came to Gloucester and a big parade took place. The officials of the new road, city officials and guests then sat down at a banquet. In the evening fireworks were set off and a torchlight procession followed. The new railway is 14 miles long.

DENVER HOTEL GONE.

Eight Persons In the Morgue and Seventeen Are Missing.

Boy of Seventeen Responsible For the Disaster.

Explosion of Boilers Quickly Followed by Wreck and Flames.

DENVER, Aug. 20.—The west has not suffered for years so fearful a disaster as took place in the Gumry hotel yesterday. Not only were the victims mangled and crushed, but many of them suffered the more frightful death by fire. Probably 25 men, women and children have perished. There are eight bodies at the morgue, and a half dozen of the guests are trying to recover from their injuries at the hospital. There are 17 persons reported missing.

Flames broke out afresh in the wreckage last night, and the fire engines are again pouring forth water, still further impeding the work of rescue.

Among the missing is included Elmer Pearce, the night engineer, aged 17. It is to his carelessness that the disaster is attributed.

The boy who was in charge of the boiler at the time of the accident had attended a picnic during the day, and was under the influence of liquor when he went on duty.

A vast throng surrounds the building on every side, pushing forward as far as the fire-ropes will allow. The police are constantly guarding against anyone slipping through the lines, on account of the great danger that the front of the building may fall.

Scenes of Sadness.

The scenes surrounding the death of James Murphy, contractor, were heartrending. The firemen engaged at the rear of the building heard the agonizing cries from the man, and asking them to continue to play the water.

After a few hours' heroic work the firemen reached him. His two lower limbs were pinioned between two heavy joists. After the most herculean efforts, with dense smoke blinding them, the firemen released Murphy's left leg. At this moment a sheet of flames compelled them to withdraw. Murphy then offered his rescuers $10,000 to get him out, and piteously demanded them to chop his leg off. A second later the west wall collapsed and covered Murphy with tons of ruins. Murphy came to Denver, from Omaha, six years ago.

The total loss caused by the explosion and fire is about $75,000. The Gumry hotel was worth about $25,000 and had $8000 worth of furniture. It is a total wreck, but was insured for $25,000.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—The Veterans' association of Berlin assembled on the Templehof field yesterday to the number of about 40,000, it being the celebration day of the victories of the Germans over the French in 1870 and 1871. It was also the anniversary of the severe bombardment of Strasburg by the Germans and of the real French army under General MacMahon before the advance of the Prussians. The veterans were received by the emperor on the field.

Secret of the Deep.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20. — The New York syndicate, which visited the Delaware Breakwater to make the preliminary arrangement necessary to an attempt to locate and secure the vast amount of gold which is known to lie in the hull of the British sloop-of-war De Braak, sunk off that place over a century ago in a squall, returned yesterday and at once proceeded to New York. They maintained the greatest secrecy as to their plans.

Talked of War Times.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 20.—The first of the 12 joint discussions between William O. Bradley and P. W. Hardin, Republican and Democratic candidates for governor, came off last night. General Hardin talked of the war and the reconstruction period and of the "conspiracy" of 1873, by which silver was demonetized. Colonel Bradley spoke for an hour and a half.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—George L. Day and Henry Balch, arrested here on charges of issuing worthless checks, are to be sent to Washington for trial on graver charges, including forgery. Split on Silver.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 20.—The silver and anti-silver men opened their respective headquarters yesterday for the Democratic state convention, which meets here soon. The lines have been drawn even in the local reception committee, which has divided into campaign parties in the work.

Incandescent System of Lighting Proposed for Hancock Turnpike.

The determination of some members of the City Council to put through an order for new schoolhouses if it took weekly meetings the remainder of the year, was relaxed Monday evening, when the order was given its second reading, and by an adjournment was allowed to slumber for three weeks.

Perhaps this was necessary as four members were taking a vacation and every man is needed when sixteen votes must be mustered for a measure. The absentees were Councilman Bigelow, Nickerson, Rinn and Spear.

Unpaid Bills.

A communication of City Auditor Hall set forth that Dr. Gilbert and Dr. McLellan had presented two small bills for services in 1894, for which there was no money.

Councilman Rice offered an order for a transfer which was passed.

New Streets.

John G. Ray and others petitioned for the acceptance of Manet avenue at Houghs Neck. To Committee on Streets.

Another petition called for the acceptance of Ryden street. To Committee on Streets.

Licenses.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorably on several application which were granted.

On the application of Thomas A. Whalen for a pool license was leave to withdraw, which was accepted.

Reports.

The Committee on Streets reported reference to the Committee on Public Building on Grounds of the petition for a public landing near the Quincy Point bridge. Accepted.

The same committee reported an order for relocation of tracks on Franklin street, which was given one reading.

The same committee reported an order on petition of the Telephone company for a relocation of poles on Water street and Hudson road.

The Committee on State Aid recommended $4 per month each to Thomas Kelly and Michael Sullivan. Accepted.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $60,000 for two schoolhouses of wood, and the order took its second reading.

Councilman Sprague explained that he had agreed to the last report that a report might be made, but he reserved the right to move at the next meeting the substitution of "brick" for "wood," and "one" for "two."

Street Lighting.

Councilman Bryant offered an order appropriating $250 for changing the system of lighting on Hancock street from arc to incandescent.

COUNCILMAN BRYANT.

Mr. Bryant argued that the street would be better lighted at the same cost. That the few arc lights were worse than nothing. He said the change was favored by the executive department. He moved to suspend the rules that the order might be put on its final passage tonight.

Councilman Johnson queried if the $250 required for the change would not give better satisfaction if spent for additional arc lights.

Councilman Bryant said the $250 would only be required for this year. That after the change the incandescent system would cost no more than the arc system. Additional arc lights would increase the cost annually.

Councilman Adams favored reference to a committee as usual, as there was a question as to system and no particular haste.

Councilman Geary also favored reference as there were other petitions for lights which were refused because the appropriation would not admit.

President Bass ruled that three readings were required, and the motion to suspend was withdrawn.

Councilman Sprague moved to adjourn for one week.

Councilman Pinkham thought Sept. 9 soon enough to meet again.

Rule 1 was suspended requiring a meeting on Labor Day, and the Council adjourned to Sept. 9.

THE ILLUMINATION.

Houghs Neck will Celebrate on Monday Next.

The date of the annual illumination at Houghs Neck is next Monday and the programme will be much the same as in past years.

Children's entertainment in the afternoon, including Punch and Judy show, refreshments and sailing.

Band concerts will be given afternoon and evening and there will be a general illumination of the cottages and fireworks.

The five cent fare on the street railway will have a tendency to attract a larger crowd than usual and a gala time is anticipated.

Serious Accident.

Warren D. Higgins started out Monday morning in good spirits for a week's gunning with friends at Marshfield. While getting out of a Democrat wagon on his arrival at Sea View, the horse became frightened and threw Mr. Higgins beneath the wheels. He was run over, and it was feared for some time that his right arm was broken at the shoulder, but it proved to be a dislocation. Two physicians attended him at Sea View, and Dr. Brown and Mr. Edward Sprague accompanied him home on the train. On his arrival the dislocated arm was set by Drs. Gilbert, Gordon and Brown. He was in considerable pain all day and night, but is comfortable today.

Concert at Houghs Neck.

A concert and social for the benefit of the church of St. Frances-by-the-Sea will be given at the Casino, Houghs Neck, this evening. Miss Mary Frances White, Miss Ellenore Roach, Miss Ellenore Carroll and Mr. Daniel Padula will appear in solos, duets and readings, and the Lady Minstrels will give fifteen numbers. Special cars will leave West Quincy at 7 o'clock and the Centre at 7.30, returning after the dance.

Street Railway Outing.

The directors and superintendent of the Quincy & Boston street railway will attend the outing of the Massachusetts Street Railway association tomorrow. The association will be guests of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill Co, and will enjoy an electric ride from Lowell to "The Pines" at Haverhill where there will be a dinner, games and a steamboat ride.

YOUNG GRIFFO NEXT.

Ziegler Defeats England's Champion Lightweight in a Twenty-Round Fight.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—The international bout between Stanton Abbott, the champion lightweight of England, and Owen Ziegler of Philadelphia, occurred last night at the Eureka club pavilion. Abbott weighed 132 pounds, while Zeigler was 137½. Abbott looked a trifle thin and overtrained, while Ziegler looked to be in the best of condition.

OWEN ZIEGLER.

The fighting was sharp, but uneventful, until the end of the eighth, when the American was fought to the ropes. The Englishman seemed to freshen as the fight went on. He was slow, however, and, as the 11th round opened, the American delivered what was nearly a knockout blow before Abbott got his hands up.

The 20th and last round was a savage one, give and take, the American getting it on the nose and the Englishman being stormed with face, neck and body blows until he was against the ropes. As the gong sounded, the referee declared Zeigler the winner. He will be matched against Young Griffo.

Death of Justice Strong.

LAKE MINNEWASKA, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Ex-Justice Strong of the United States supreme court is dead. Mr. Strong was brought here several weeks ago, suffering from a catarrhal affection of long standing. His system was also greatly weakened by a fall down a flight of stairs at his home in Washington about two months ago. Since his arrival here Mr. Strong had lain in a semi-comatose state, from which he rallied only at intervals. Sunday he had a stroke of paralysis, which affected the left side. He also suffered a recurrence of the catarrhal fever, and again became unconscious until death ensued yesterday afternoon. He was about 87 years of age.

Fierce Rioting.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—Serious disturbances have broken out at Mulheim, consequent upon the Cologne and Mulheim Steam Navigation company reducing fares between those places in order to ruin a rival company. When the police interfered, shots were fired, and bottles, stones and iron missiles were then thrown at them from windows. The police returned the fire in self-defense. The vice burgomaster, a commissioner of police and 22 policemen were wounded. One boy is dying.

All Arrested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—At the tournament held at the Academy of Music last night the star bout of the evening was that between George Dixon and Mike Leonard. In the second round the men fought viciously and fell on the floor of the ring fighting. The police separated the men with difficulty. The principals, their seconds and the referee, together with the promoters of the tournament, were arrested.

Now He Is Alive!

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The report from Havana that General Gomez had died on July 31 is scoffed at here by those best posted on Cuban affairs. A proclamation issued by General Gomez was received in this city yesterday. "How can General Gomez have died on July 31," asked Mr. Trujillo, "when here is a document in his own handwriting dated Aug. 1?"

There May Be Others.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The recent decision that ex-Senator Ransom's appointment as minister to Mexico was unconstitutional, because he was appointed while serving as senator in the congress which raised the salary of the Mexican minister, has started reports that various other officials are illegally holding office for the same reason.

The "Castle" Fire.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Discoveries made by the police lead to the belief that the fire in the "castle" of H. H. Holmes was of incendiary origin. Several people saw two men enter the house shortly before the fire broke out, and leave with great haste. A half-can of gasoline was found in a secret stairway leading to the basement.

Bridge Collapsed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 20.—While a pleasure party of 20 people were crossing a bridge that spans Five Mile creek at Brookside, yesterday, the bridge gave way and precipitated its occupants into the creek, 15 feet below. Two persons were probably fatally hurt. All the others were more or less bruised.

Promise of Prosperity.

ROME, Aug. 20.—The prospect is for a fairly good harvest. Of silk there is an average yield of excellent quality. Cereals have exceeded expectations. Wheat is above the average; oats, barley, maize and rice are fair. The vintage is under the average yield, but promises a good quality.

Pilgrims Flock to Lourdes.

PARIS, Aug 20.—A great pilgrimage to Lourdes is now under way. Many of the travelers are so sick or crippled that it is necessary to carry them on stretchers. With accessions from the country the pilgrims will number 30,000 persons.

Talk of Consolidation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—It is reported that negotiations are pending for the consolidation of the Pullman and Wagner Sleeping Car companies. The overtures for the consolidation are said to have come from the Wagner company.

Won by Johnson.

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—The match race between John S. Johnson and Fred W. Young took place here last night. Johnson won the first heat easily in 2m. 7 2-5s. In the second heat Johnson again won in 2m. 7 3-5s.

Seventeen Drowned.

HAMBURG, Aug. 20.—Steamer Concordia ran down the motor boat Beckman on the Elbe river, and 17 persons were drowned.

The Pneumatic Tool.

A Barre dispatch to the Herald says, Granite dealers in this section are greatly interested over the decision of Judge Wheeler in the United States circuit court for New York, regarding the patent right of the pneumatic tool for cutting granite of which the American Pneumatic Tool Company of New York claims to be the sole owner. The decision sustains the claim of the company, and many local dealers who are using the infringing tool will now be sued in the district court for Vermont, unless the users settle satisfactorily.

THE COMPLICATED CASE.

Trustees of Clan McGregor Claim the Arbitrators Did Not Do Duty.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Your correspondent in the issue of the 17th inst., under the heading "A Complicated Case," is so misleading and wide of the truth in the case, that in justice to Clan McGregor we feel it our duty to make a few corrections.

In the first place it is said that "a demand was made upon Mr. Westland, who in turn demanded to see the books, which were denied him."

This is not so. Mr. Westland was allowed by the Clan to appoint any three clansmen whom he might choose, the Clan to oppoint an equal number, and they to go over the books to his satisfaction, and their findings to be final. This he refused. He was then given an opportunity to say how he would agree to make a settlement and this he failed to do. He was then allowed two weeks to bring evidence to show that the charge against him was wrong; this he also failed to do. It was then that the case was placed to get a settlement by the court, and Horace F. Spear made an audit of the books by mutual agreement of the two attorneys and the parties interested.

Now where it says: "The agreement also was that Westland should pay all expenses of the arbitration board, unless he proved himself clear. He also furnished a bond to abide by the decision of the arbitrators." This is incorrect for the board of arbitration was not appointed then, the agreement between Mr. Westland and the Clan was that if Mr. Spear found a deficit on the books, Mr. Westland would make good and pay the expense of the audit, and if the books were all right the Clan should pay for the audit. When Mr. Spear declared $350 against him he repudiated the decision. It was then Mr. Westland furnished the bond for a stay of proceedings against him for twenty-one days that he might have an opportunity to go over the books himself. He spent about a week on them in a room in the Adams building, attended by a clansman who kept a copy of the audit made by Mr. Westland. The bond saying should they not agree the case to go to arbitration,

When your correspondent was speaking on the result of the finding of the arbitrators, why did he not give the whole report instead of taking one paragraph which neither gives the reasons for their decision on the case, or shows where they reduced the amount to fifty cents. The following is the full report of the committee on arbitration as submitted by them to Clan McGregor.

QUINCY, MASS., Apr. 23d 1895.

W. G. A. Pattee, Esq.,
J. W. McAnarney, Esq:

We the undersigned, to whom was referred the question in dispute between Clan McGregor and Wm. Westland, as to the correctness of his account with said Clan, having given the question considerable attention, submit the following as our findings.

The report submitted to us by Mr. Horace Spear, showed an apparent discrepancy of $350. This report was carefully examined in regard to the dues and initiation accounts, and as a result of a conference with Mr. Spear, the above in the first instance was reduced to $236 78 and we then proceeded with further examinations. Mr. Westland submitted to us several items, claiming that they were not properly credited to him on the books. In consultation with members of the Clan, a certain amount of these claims were not disputed, and upon a further examination of the books we find that Westland should be credited with other items, which leaves a balance small in amount to consider, and as there are other accounts which we have not gone through with, and in which we are satisfied there are many errors, we do not feel justified in deciding that Mr. Westland is in any arrears to the Clan according to the books.

The books show that at stated intervals the accounts have been duly certified to as correct by a committee of the Clan, and after the expiration of so many years, it is at once apparent that all the circumstances in connection with transactions cannot be recalled. The books have been kept in a very loose and unbusiness-like manner, and it would be impossible to present a correct statement of every account, while many errors are found in the different accounts, yet there does not appear any evidence of intentional wrong doing, and in our opinion the errors that do appear are caused more by poor book-keeping and the intermingling of accounts, rather than any real deficiency.

But as a card was presented on which there was a credit, and which was not duly credited on the books, we find that Westland is indebted for that amount and for such other amounts as may be shown on other cards and not duly credited; and we further decree that Westland shall pay the expense of said arbitration, namely,—Mr. H. F. Spear's bill for clerical examination of the book and $30 for services of the arbitrators, E. W. Marsh, Esq., and H. O. Fairbanks, Esq.

Respectfully,
EDWIN W. MARSH,
HENRY O. FAIRBANKS.

A careful study of the above report will convince any intelligent mind whether they did their duty or not.

The article further says Mr. Westland paid the 50 cents deficiency. This is also incorrect. The Clan has not received this amount. If the Clan had accepted this sum it could not with justice demand further satisfaction.

In regard to the Clan making the claim that Mr. Marsh did not use them right, the Clan makes no such claim, but it firmly believes that the board of arbitration did not make a thorongh examination of the books, as by there statement in there report.

This is not written to create a newspaper controversy on the subject, but with the intention of disabusing the minds of the public, to accept as facts, an article that is so one sided and evidently with the purpose of creating a false sympathy to the end that justice should not prevail.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Klaw and Erlanger are considering two plays for the starring tour of Georgia Cayvan.

Rose Leighton has succeeded Helen Reimer in "Kismet; or, The Two Tangled Turks."

It is stated on authority that Charles Frohman has an interest in May Irwin's starring tour.

Ida Mulle and Inez Mecusker have both been engaged by Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger for Palmer Cox's "Brownies."

Joseph Wheelock, Jr., is an additional engagement for the Saratoga lawn performance of "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Thomas Q. Seabrooke's invasion of the field of "straight" comedy will be made at the Park theater in Boston, early in September.

W. H. Crane sends word from Cohasset, where he is spending his summer, that he will produce a new play in New York in January.

William F. Carroll has been engaged by Charles T. Ellis to create the part of Counselor White, in his new production, "The Alsatian."

Richard Harlow of Rice's "1492" company is in Paris selecting gowns to enhance his performance of Isabella, the Daisy Queen of Spain.

Thomas F. McCabe has been engaged to play next season the principal male character in Lincoln J. Carter's new melodrama, "The Defaulter."

James K. Hackett, the stalwart young actor who made so marked an impression last season as De Neipperg, in "Mme. Sans-Gene," has been engaged by Augustin Daly.

An opera is in course of construction in which Jefferson d'Angelis will probably star, as soon as he has finished his next season's engagements with Della Fox and Lillian Russell.

CREDIT IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

In Austria a credit of six months is generally allowed.

In Italy but little credit business is done, and none without good security being given.

In Cuba the time fixed for payment is from four to five months after delivery of the goods.

In the Bermudas accounts are settled but once a year. June 30 is the day usually fixed for the payments.

In Austria it is scarcely possible to do business without allowing a long credit, which is usually one of six months.

In England a payment of the price of goods delivered is required at the end of three months, dating from the day of shipment.

In Spain four-fifths of the transactions are on on a cash basis, while in Portugal great liberality is shown and quite long credit is generally allowed.

In Turkey even objects of prime necessity are sold on credit, and in that country, as well as in Russia, the time allowed is, in most cases, 12 months.

In China it is not customary to credit. Money is obtained from lenders, who exact an interest of 8 to 12 per cent. Business is nearly always conducted on a cash basis.

In Mexico the large commercial houses willingly give credit from six to eight months, and in real estate trade long terms are given customers in which to settle their accounts.

In Canada settlements are made at the end of 30 days, with a discount of 5 per cent. Sometimes a credit of from three to six months is allowed, but in this case there is no discount.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

BABY SEED SONG.

Little brown seed, O little brown brother,
Are you awake in the dark?
Here we live cozily, close to each other,
Hark to the song of the lark!
"Waken!" the lark says. "Waken and dress you,
Put on your green coats, and gay
Blue sky will smile on you, sunshine caress you,
Waken, 'tis morning, 'tis May!"

Little brown seed, O little brown brother,
What kind of flower will you be?
I'll be a poppy, all white like my mother,
Do be a poppy like me!
What? You're a sunflower. How I shall miss you
When you're grown golden and high,
But I shall send all the bees up to kiss you!
Little brown brother, goodby!

ROUTED.

Pingwill was a nuisance. He married a respectable young woman of mature years and lives on her sufficiency, and he goes about pretending to be a literary character on the strength of an edition of a classic, an examination success at some university place or other, and occasional reviewing. He likes to talk about books and is offensively familiar with all the master pieces and most of the rest of English literature. He considers gabble about books intellectual conversation. He regards a quiet man smoking in a chair as fair game for his scraps of quotation—which he is as eager to void as he is greedy to acquire—and he cannot understand that people who write books never read them and are full of bitter memories of their own adventures in authorship. He wears a pince nez, and Mrs. Pingwill, when present, echoes all his quavering severities with the explanation that "George is so satirical." He is exasperatingly reliable in the matter of names and dates, and at first, perhaps, we made the mistake of encouraging Pingwill.

Heydinger was the chief encourager of Pingwill. He is a humorist, a kind of person who sees jokes in things that rouse the passions of ordinary people, and he found an unaccountable pleasure in developing one particular aspect of the Pingwill constitution. No retired pork butcher's lady, no wife of a village rector who has married beneath him, could be more punctilious of her intimacy than Pingwill among his authors. And Pingwill was just as intensely sensitive to the breath of scandal, which in matters literary is called criticism. No one could be thicker with a really chic author; no one readier to "cut" the writer who fell under the shadow of adverse comment.

He was, in fact, a literary snob—a by no means rare variety—and he had an almost passionate dread of admiring the wrong man. He took reviews in the weeklies quite seriously. Naturally he had nothing but serene contempt for Dickens and Jerome and Mark Twain, and "people of that stamp." And Heydinger never tired of drawing him out upon Kipling. In a careless moment he had informed us that Kipling's style was rough and unfinished—it seems he tried for once to form a judgment for himself and had happened upon really quite vulgar and coarse expressions. After he had learned better from a review, the mere name filled him with uncomfortable memories. It was as if the rector's wife had cut the duchess by mistake. Horrible! Then he was privately in great trouble about Besant and Hall Caine. "Ought I to know them?" was the attitude. The oracles differed. He was deliciously guarded upon these authors under Heydinger's most searching questions, but his face flushed guiltily. Le Gallienne, Zangwill, and most of the younger men, who have warm friends and animated critics, bothered him more or less, and he had a horrible dread, I know, that Ruskin, whom he had committed himself to admire, was not quite all that he should be. "One has to be so very particular," was Pingwill's attitude.

However, after awhile we tired of this creature's odd way with books, and his proximity then became, as I say, a nuisance. But Heydinger, who had formed an adequate conception of his character, suggested the remedy, and together we routed him. Both Heydinger and I had got through a morning's work, and in he came, fresh and freshly primed. He dropped into a chair and emitted some indifferent remarks.

"I have heard," he said, "that these delicious child sketches of Kenneth Graham's are out in a book by themselves."

"Read 'em?" said Heydinger brutally.

"No—hardly—yet," said Pingwill, "but they're good, aren't they?"

"Very," said I, "but that's no reason why you should go about calling them delicious before you have read them."

"Perhaps not," said Pingwill. "Perhaps not."

"They remind me very much of Wendle Hooper," said Heydinger. "You know him, Bellows?"

"Intimately," I said. "I have one of his first editions at home."

"You will be reminded very much of Wendle Hooper," said Heydinger, turning to Pingwill.

"Indeed!" said Pingwill, stepping into the trap.

"The same subtle suggestiveness of phrase," said Heydinger. "The same delicate yet penetrating sympathy."

"I must certainly read them," said Pingwill, evidently searching his mind for the name of Wendle Hooper and flushing slightly.

"I know of no man," said Heydinger, "except, perhaps, Lant, who comes so near to Hooper as Graham. You know Lant's style, Pingwill?"

Pingwill flushed a little deeper, and his ears grew pink. "I can't say," said he, "that I've read"—

"He's not so well known as Hooper," I admitted. "He was in the little set that clustered round Leigh Hunt"—

Pingwill suddenly felt hotter again. "I think Leigh Hunt"— he began, evidently ready with a fragment of textbook.

"He borrowed from Lant," interrupted Heydinger. "Certainly he borrowed from Lant. That essay on the chimney pot hat"—

"Pure Lant," I said.

"I've neglected Lant a little, I am afraid," mumbled Pingwell, horribly bothered by this unknown name.

"You should read him," said I. "He's a perfect mine of good things. That passage in Browning, for instance. You were pointing out the resemblance only this morning, Heydinger."

"About the chattering disks," said Heydinger. "You remember that, Pingwell?"

"I think so," said Pingwell. "Chattering disks. I seem to recollect. How does it go?"

"The chattering disks go reeling," said Heydinger, inventing boldly. "You must remember."

Pingwell now was really very uncomfortable. But he was having a lively lesson in priggish conversation. "I wish I had my Lant here," said I.

"You surely remember about the chattering disks?" said Heydinger, turning as he pretended to search for a book on the shelf.

"The phrase is quite familiar to me," said Pingwell, "but for the life of me I can't recall the context! It's queer what tricks one's memory plays."

Heydinger quietly resumed his seat.

"Have you written anything lately?" said Pingwell to change the subject.

"Yes," said Heydinger, and seeing some further question threatened, added, as if in explanation, "Alvarados."

It pulled Pingwell up abruptly. "Alvarados! Ah!" he repeated after Heydinger, with an air of comprehension. If he understood, he was certainly wiser than I. His ears were now bright red. We remained tranquil, watching him. It was not my affair.

He returned to conversation presently with an air of having found and grasped the thing firmly. "Will you make them into a book?" he said bravely. A just perceptible dew was on his face. Heydinger evidently expected as much. "Them!" he answered. "What?"

"Well—it. Alvarados."

"It!" said Heydinger, raising his eyebrows. "I don't know," he said and became silent. Pingwill was evidently baffled. Very awkwardly, and after a pause, he said he hoped that would be the case. Heydinger thanked him dryly. There was an interval while we watched one another. Then he discovered his pipe was out—it always is—and asked me for the matches. He talked incoherently upon indifferent topics for a few minutes after that, and all the time I could see the trouble in his eyes, the awful doubt of his own omniscience that had arisen. Alvarados? Presently he rose to go. Routed.

As he went out I heard him whisper to himself very softly, "Alvarados!"

He has not been near us since. I can imagine the dismal times he has had hunting through Rabelais, Gil Blas, Hudibras, the Dictionary of Phrase and Fable for Alvarados, going through the British museum catalogue for Wendle Hooper and hunting all Browning for the "Chattering Discs," feeling most horribly ashamed of himself all the time. I like to think of his flush of shame, the overthrow of his frail apparatus of knowledge, and ever and again Heydinger and I break the friendly silences which constitute our intercourse by saying casually, "Pingwill seems to be dropping us altogether," or, "Don't seem to see so much of Pingwill as we used to do, Bellows." Such reflections are the olives of life.—H. G. Wells in New Budget.

Vesuvius a Popular Spectacle.

A Naples correspondent reports that the lava descends Vesuvius very slowly, straggling about the crags and small ravines. Therefore the spectacle from the observatory is very interesting, and, so far, quite safe. A large stretch of the mountain is covered by the lava from the new crater close by, and at some distance from its point of issue the fiery mass divides into smaller streams, which find their way down the inclines to the south of the observatory toward Resina. The country people around Vesuvius are more curious than prudent. They climb the mountain in all directions, some even crossing with foolhardy bravery the still smoking stream. Crowds of little boys play on its very edge, where it is not so deep as to emit unbearable heat, and pick up smoking bits to throw at each other. A strange crowd of sightseers! Men in their shirt sleeves, women in their white jackets, come along singing, playing the tambourine, beating time even on empty petroleum tins, anything to make a noise, taking the demonstration of the mountain as a good joke. A few carriages bring foreigners as far as it is possible, after which the tourists must walk. The people who keep little drinking shops on the highroad up the mountain drive a roaring trade.

Economy of Shoeblacking.

Every morning on South Sixth street can be seen a well dressed, one legged young man getting his only shoe shined. The other limb has been amputated at the hip. As he stands on the one crutch he carries, with the shoe resting on the bootblack's box, he is the cynosure of passersby. "That young man is a regular customer," said the shiner in reply to questions asked of him. "No; he doesn't pay the regular price of 5 cents, but gives me 15 cents every week. As he only has one foot and has his shoe shined every day I do the job at half price. I have other customers of a similar character, as this neighborhood is thickly populated with cripples."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Out of Arcadia.

The country boy was in love and young,
And he urged his cause with an eager tongue,
But the maiden bade him work and wait.
She wanted a man who was strong and great.

He loved his home and the country life,
And he wanted a tender little wife.
He wished to live in peace and ease
In the shade of his spreading old elm trees.

But the maiden bade him go and win
A name she could prize and glory in.
She said she would wait and wed him when
He had made his place in the ranks of men.

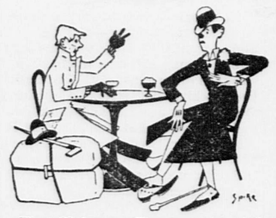

Then the boy plunged into the city's roar,
And he learned the market's sordid lore,
And he learned that life is an awful fight,
Where the wounded fall to the left and right.

But on their bodies he slowly rose,
And he gained new strength from his vanquished foes.
As he overcame them and beat them down
He grew in wealth and in wide renown.

But his heart was cold. He forgot to feel.
His chilling smile had the glow of steel.
His brain grew keen, and his face grew hard
As he stood a victor, seamed and scarred.

Then his words were treasured throughout the state,
And all men followed and called him great.
But he smiled when he thought of the country boy,
And he sneered at love as a childish toy.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

The Week's Reports Generally of an Encouraging Nature.

Grain and Tobacco Faring Exceptionally Well.

Southern Districts Suffering Somewhat From Blight In Potatoes.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—The New England weather bureau issued the following bulletin for the week ending Aug. 19:

Generally warm weather has prevailed with several heavy showers and plenty of sunshine. Most crops have advanced very fast, and much grain has been harvested in good condition; where threshed a fine yield has resulted. Potatoes continue to blight badly in southern districts, and there is considerable complaint of decay. The early potatoes are being dug, and generally turn out well. Corn and tobacco are excellent. The fruit prospect is very good, except for apples; this crop will be very light in all northern counties.

Couldn't Ask For Better.

Correspondents in Maine report the weather to be all that farmers could wish for during the past week. Corn, especially, has pushed ahead, and a good crop is assured. Much grain has been harvested, and where threshed is found to be well filled and producing a good yield; there is no rust reported. Some correspondents report no rust or decay in potatoes yet, but one report from Kennebec county states that the tops are all dead. He says that potatoes planted early on good land with good cultivation will yield well, but late planted ones will be light. A good many report fair size, but few in the hill. Other correspondents report the early crop turning out better than was expected. The root crop is looking well. Blackberries will be plenty. There will be a good many grapes if frost holds off. Apples are very light throughout the state.

Chapter on Potatoes.

We extract the following from the correspondents' reports relative to the potato outlook in New Hampshire: Coos county—Potatoes are being dug, and report says some farmers will have an average yield, while others report a light crop. Strafford—Blight has appeared on potatoes, and is affecting them seriously in this section; they are also rotting badly. Sullivan—Potatoes a heavy crop, no damage yet. Hillsboro—Potato vines are dying in the fields, and some reports of blight and rot come in. Potatoes are yielding well so far as matured, early planted ripe, and vines dead. Belknap—Potato tops are dying on early land. Crop will be large, with no signs of rotting as yet. Rockingham—There is a general complaint of the potato rot, one field, it is said, will not pay the harvesting, and other fields rotting very badly. Potatoes are an immense crop of very large tubers, very little blight or rot noticed as yet, most fields still growing finely. Potatoes have all blighted, and rotting badly. Corn is improving in this state. Grain has ripened fast. Wheat and buckwheat are being cut in Coos county, and a fair yield is indicated. Beans are extra good, but are rusting slightly in places.

Threshing Begun.

Favorable weather has prevailed in Vermont, except that the heavy rains have lodged grain some and washed roads in places. The pleasant weather has been improved by the grain harvesters, and much has been put in in good condition. Threshing has begun, and oats especially are said to be of excellent quality and quantity; some late sown grain is rusting slightly. In places potato rust is showing, but in others the tops are still green and growing well. A good crop is in prospect in most of this state. There are few blackberries in Washington county, but generally this crop will be large. Grapes are showing up well, notwithstanding the late spring frosts.

Fodder Is Plentiful.

A good rain on the 12th, then dry weather until Sunday, with a heavy rain on that day, tells the story of the weather for Massachusetts for the week. It has improved most crops, but has been favorable for the advancement of potato blight and decay. In western counties some fields that were all green last week are now dead, and there are general complaints of their rotting. The crop is pronounced very good by most correspondents. The tobacco harvest is well advanced; reported to be the best crop for years. New heavy growth of fodder. Pastures are in good condition, except in some western districts where too dry weather has prevailed in the past few weeks. The work of cutting the salt marshes has advanced rapidly this week. Tomatoes are growing finely, but ripen slowly. There is complaint that early apples are rotting on the trees in Worcester county; the apple crop will probably be very small. Peaches and early grapes are ripening. Cranberries are rapidly maturing, and picking will begin the first week in September. Fruit worms are doing much damage to the crop on many bogs.

Fine Progress.

The week has been very favorable for crops and farm work in Rhode Island, and all vegetable growth is advancing and crops are ripening fast. Heavy showers prevailed on the 12th and 18th. Blackberries are reported very scarce and inferior in parts of Washington county.

Late Crops Promising.

In parts of Connecticut the rain on the 18th was very heavy, and some damage has been done. At New Britain the fall was 3.09 inches; at West Simsbury, in the same county, 3.44 inches fell; the greater part came in about nine hours and fell so steadily that most of it soaked into the ground. Old meadows have been greatly benefited and are looking better than for some time. All late forage crops and newly seeded pieces are very promising. Pastures are improving, though reported short in places; flies are very troublesome also, and cows are shrinking. Strawberries are being set out freely. A large acreage of seed turnips is being sown in New Haven county. Onion seed is being cut. Potatoes are rotting some throughout the state, but not seriously as yet. The early ones are being generally dug. Apples promise a large yield in Tolland county, but generally the crop is expected to be rather light. Peaches are ripening, and there will be a large yield. Corn is very promising, and a large crop will be gathered. Grain, where cut for threshing, is found very good.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—It was only play for the Bostons to beat the Philadelphias. Nichols had the heavy-hitting Quakers at his mercy, holding them down to seven hits, three of which were on the scratch order. He struck out six men and gave but two bases on balls, both in the first inning. Taylor, who had not pitched a full game for a week, did not seem to be benefited by his lay-off.

WOMEN ARE INVOLVED

In a Big Strike Ordered by Garment Makers of Boston.

Contract Bond Question the Principal Hitch.

Operatives Are Fairly Well Organized and Expect to Win.

BOSTON, Aug. 21. — United Garment Workers' district council No. 2 at a protracted session last night decided to order a strike in 100 shops of the city today. Four thousand operatives in all will go out on strike to enforce the demands of the union. The union recently drew up a new list, revising prices, hours, etc., and laid it before the contractors to sign. It is claimed by the union that during the past 12 months the majority of the contractors have violated their agreements, and have taken very advantage of the garment workers in their employ.

There is a difference from previous strikes in this one in that the women, who constitute pretty nearly one-half the whole number, are involved. If the strike is won, the women workers will have an average increase of wages of from $2 to $2.50 a week. But even with this increase gained, the highest wages paid to the best of them will not exceed an average of $8 a week.

Nobody in authority at the strikers' headquarters looks for a very long strike, although they are making all preparations for a struggle to a finish in case it should be drawn out. In fact they wait the result of today's developments with confidence. They expect many names of contractors will be added to the list before nightfall.

The pay of the men workers, the best of them, is comparatively small as compared with the wages earned by employes in other industries. It is a big week's work that brings to the men much over $12. and Oftentimes the Amount Is Less.

The leaders of the strike have no doubt of success. The great organization of the garment workers and clothing workers of New York city are with them, and their New York brethren have just won a big strike for the same principles as are now involved in the Boston case.

The contract which both parties concerned in the present struggle have been working under terminates this month, and the chief hitch in the new one, as it was in the last one, is the question of bonds. Of course, as has been already stated, the rights and possible benefits of the women are more involved this year than ever before, but the Bond Is the Troublesome Issue.

It was announced by Secretary Felz last night that all of the contractors stood ready to sign the agreement, with the bond clause omitted.

The clothing operatives are fairly well organized, their ranks this year being largely augmented by the female workers, who were not so well organized a year ago.

One of the possible outcomes of this annual difference between contractors and their working people will be in all probability an appeal to the next legislature to appoint a committee who shall sit during the summer and inquire into the life, habits, wages and home surroundings of the clothing workers of Boston. Such an investigation as this was made in New York, and was most beneficial to the working people.

ACTIVE PREPARATION.

Ample Evidence of the Near Approach of the Knights Templar Conclave.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—By direction of Mayor Curtis, City Messenger Peters this morning begun the decoration of city buildings in honor of the Knights Templar conclave. City hall, the old state house, Faneuil hall, the Public Library and the city stand on Commonwealth avenue will be decorated.

Arrangements for the assembling and moving of the Sir Knights during the triennial week have been decided upon. Full Templar uniform will be worn on all parades and receptions. White gloves instead of gauntlets will be worn at receptions. It is left optional with each Sir Knight as to wearing sword at receptions, but it would please the right eminent commander much better if swords are worn on all occasions.

Punch bowls are at a premium, and when the Knights Templar are here every available bowl will be in use by private individuals, commanderies and hotels. All the large crockery stores are busy now packing goods away in baskets and cases to be shipped to the headquarters of the different bodies of Sir Knights who are to give spreads or serve collations.

There were 20,000 triennial conclave badges issued by the committee and there have been many thousands sold. Every Sir Knight that has called at headquarters and has not been previously supplied has bought one, until the stock has dwindled down.

Mechanics' building has been transformed, and is now far from having the appearance of a big barn. A large force of men have been at work the past week. No expense has been spared to make the decorations throughout artistic and effective as possible.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 21.—The Kebo Valley club gave a reception and ball last night in honor of Secretary of the Navy Herbert and the officers of the North Atlantic squadron in rendezvous here. The one-story boiler house was completely wrecked. Charles Padelford was blown across the main room of the machine shop and thrown out of a door to the sidewalk below, escaping with only a broken ankle. The debris took fire, necessitating an alarm. The cause of the explosion is a mystery.

The Murder of Bannocks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The question of what action should be taken by the government in connection with the killing of the Bannock Indians on July 13 last has been referred to the department of justice. It is believed that the arrest of certain settlers by the United States authorities has been recommended, so that the case may be brought into court and the relative weight of the treaty with the Bannocks and of the laws of Wyoming may be judicially determined.

Two Lives Crushed Out.

PORT ANTONIO, Aug. 21.—Through the over-charging of a blast in a stone quarry, bowlders were hurled into the air. One of them crashed through a house, striking a girl on the head and brai ning her, and crushing a man beyond recognition. Two others were badly, if not fatally, injured. The house was completely wrecked.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—General J. W. De Peyster of Tivoli has presented a gift of real estate, which makes possible the erection of the College of Languages of the American university in Washington. The gift was formally accepted yesterday afternoon on behalf of the board of trustees.

A Good Showing.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 21.—The steam trials of the American line steamer St. Louis over a measured course of 104 knots in the English channel were a complete success. The time in which the course was covered was 4h. 41m. 1s., which gives a mean speed of 22 3-10 knots.

No War.

LIMA, Aug. 21.—The term which was set by the Peruvian government for the reception of their minister to La Paz by Bolivia expired yesterday. The relations between the two countries are strained, and there is a likelihood of a rupture, but war is impossible.

DEFENDER WITHDREW.

The Vigilant Captured an Unsatisfactory Race on a Gift.

Rigging of the New Champion Became Loosened.

Stiff Breeze Also Burst the Vigilant's Jib Into Tatters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The first of the trial races between the Defender and the Vigilant was sailed yesterday, and the Vigilant, although outpaced by the new champion, was declared the winner. For the third time this year the Defender broke down. After sailing the course once she withdrew, and the Vigilant, which continued on, was stopped and given credit for a victory.

The boats raced not only to give the committee a line on them, but also for a $300 cup that John J. Astor offered to the winner of the majority of the races that the committee should order. That is to say, that the winner of two of the three trial races will get the cup. The winner, however, will not necessarily be the defender of the America's cup. One boat might beat the other three times straight, and yet the America's cup committee will have absolute power and discretion in picking the defender.

It is generally believed that the committee ordered these trial races more in the hope that they would see Defender in a good stiff breeze, if not a hard wind—a condition of things in which she not yet had the opportunity of displaying her power. They came very near having the desired view yesterday. But they were forestalled by an accident that prevented Defender from really showing what she could do in a breeze of wind that went over the water probably at the rate of 20 knots an hour.

Rigging Gave Way.

In fact, it was the very stiffness of the breeze that brought dire injury to the fin-keeled boat. The breeze stirred up her rigging so much, and played such havoc among it, that it loosened it to a material extent up toward the masthead, and caused such damage that the new boat had to withdraw. The slacking up of the rigging was so extensive that the yacht will not be able to compete in the second trial race for a week. The committee afterward decided that the next two trial races would take place on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

It is a mystery to yachtsmen, especially those who have given the closest attention to the rigging of boats, why the Defender's stays weakened under a breeze which enabled her to still carry her clubtopsail, which she did when she quit, and continued to do all the way up the bay to the anchorage off Bay Ridge.

The Vigilant, too, was prevented from going over the whole course, but from a different cause. After she had made her first round of the 10 miles to windward and return, she hauled down her clubtopsail and then ran up against a wind that burst her jib into shreds.

Nothing daunted, she ran up another jib, and was proceeding on the course the second time over, when the committee's boat, Luckenbach, ran alongside of her while she was tacking, and notified her that she need go no farther; that the Defender had withdrawn, and that she, the Vigilant, had been decided the winner of the day's race. The time:

	Start.	Outer mark.	Finish.	Elapsed time.
Defender	11.46.33	1.09.18	2.04.29	2.17.36
Vigilant	11.45.56	1.14.54	2.08.32	2.22.36

Thus it will be seen that the Defender beat the Vigilant on the elapsed time of the only round by 5m. flat.

Considered a Compliment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Claude Meeker, American consul at Bradford, Eng., writes of a movement among the boards of trade of cities in England to secure from British consuls reports concerning business openings in their localities such as are made by the consuls of the United States. Mr. Meeker regards this movement as a decided compliment to American methods.

Dexter has filed a bill asking an injunction to restrain the transfer of an interest in fees which Mora's attorneys are to receive. The bill says the attorneys in the case are to receive 40 per cent of the $1,500,000 claim.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE NEXT meeting of the City Council will not be held until Sept. 9. As the schools of the city open before that date the city government will know just how much the new schoolhouses are needed. Some argue that if nine-room buildings are needed now that they are too small to build. If not needed now why not build an L and later add to it?

Fiftieth Anniversary.

Crescent lodge, I. O. O. F., of East Weymouth has issued a handsome souvenir in connection with its 50th anniversary to be observed tomorrow. It has pictures of its first quarters and the elegant ones of today, of John P. Lovell, P. G., and Z. L. Bicknell, P. G., the only surviving charter members of Wendell T. Dizer, the present Noble grand of Crescent lodge; Silas H. Sherman, the Chief Patriarch of Wompatuck encampment; and Miss Grace W. Mitchell, Noble Grand of Steadfast Rebekah lodge. There is also the list of officers of each body, the menu for the celebration, and other matter of interest.

—One of the busiest places in the County at present is at the Norfolk Trotting Park, Readville, where the New England Horse Breeder's Association is building its mile track. The lines of the old course are pretty well obliterated now, and the new one has begun to take form. There are 130 men, 50 horses and 25 mules busily engaged in moving the dirt.

—Great preparations are being made in Boston to give the Knights Templar a magnificent reception on the occasion of the triennial conclave, commencing Monday, Aug. 26, and continuing through the week. The display will be a grand one and the day of the parade, Aug. 27, will see another vast concourse of people in the city.

QUINCY'S HOLIDAY.

Five Hundred Knights Templar Expected in Line.

The Route Decided Upon at Meeting Last Night.

The Birthplaces and Burial Places of Presidents to be Visited.

The committee of South Shore commandery, K. T., having in charge the entertainment of the visiting commanderies on Thursday next week, met last night and perfected arrangements. Owing to the limited time the visitors will be in the city, it was necessary to make some changes, shortening the route and omitting the visit to Presidents' Hill.

The committee—Sir Arthur W. Stetson, Sir Joseph C. Morse, Sir John O. Hall, Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass, Sir George H. Wilson, Sir Charles L. Hammond and Sir A. G. Durgin—decided upon the following route:

From the Quincy depot or City Square via Hancock street, School street and Franklin street to the birthplaces of the Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, thence countermarching by Franklin and School streets to Elm street, to Bigelow street to Faxon hall where lunch will be served. After lunch the commanderies will march to City Square and the old First church, beneath whose pillars the Presidents and their wives rest, will be opened that the visitors may visit the spot, see the Presidents' pew and also the mural tablets.

The following Sir Knights are a committee of the commandery to meet Forest City Commandery of Cleveland, Ohio, in Boston and escort the members to Quincy: Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass, Sir Charles L. Hammond, Sir William N. Eaton, Sir A. W. Stetson, Sir G. R. England and Sir Joseph C. Morse.

This committee will meet and escort Killington commandery of Rutland, Vt.: Sir Francis L. Bicknell, Sir John F. Merrill, Sir A. G. Durgin, Sir John Shaw, Sir W. W. Ewell and Sir J. H. Gilbert.

South Shore commandery will assemble at the Quincy depot at 8 30 A. M. and the visiting commanderies will arrive at 8 31 from Boston. A procession will be immediately formed headed by police and the Weymouth band, and will proceed over the route as above.

About 11 30 electric cars will be taken for the asylum of South Shore commandery at East Weymouth, where a brief stop will be made. Barges will then convey the Knights Templar to Downer Landing where a clambake dinner will be served. At 3 55 a steamer will be taken for Boston, the members of South Shore commandery going to the city with them.

The visiting Knights will be accompanied by ladies, and the wives and daughters of the members of South Shore commandery will also participate.

The Knights will parade in black clothing and footwear, black neckties, full Templar uniform with guantlets. The council and members of staff will wear white gloves.

Tomorrow the DAILY LEDGER will give the arrangements of South Shore commandery in connection with the Boston parade of next Tuesday.

—It has been a question whether the rose by another name would smell as sweet. Chemistry is now employed in eliminating the unpleasant odor from some flowers and substituting one that is more agreeable. The marigold, for instance, brilliant in color, is made to emit the delicate odor of the violet, but the modesty and delicacy of the violet is lacking.

CONCERT BY THE SEA.

The St. Frances' Entertainment Draws a Crowd at Houghs Neck.

The Casino at Houghs Neck was well filled at the concert for the benefit of St. Frances-by-the-Sea, a goodly number coming from West Quincy and Quincy. The concert was first-class, all receiving an encore, but which had to be refused on account of the length of the programme.

Miss Tula Rice, a little tot as Baby Carmencita, pleased the audience with her piquant manner and droll songs. The following programme was carried out:

As do all previous locations his agrees exactly with the description in Genesis, but he finds further confirmation of his discovery in the traditions of Egypt. —Springfield Republican.

—The colored man has rights a white man is bound to respect—in this State, at least. A Cambridge barber, recently, refused to cut a colored man's hair and as a result was hauled up before Judge Almy in the Cambridge district court and fined $15, while on Tuesday of this week, Judge Hardy in the municipal court of Boston fined a barber of that city $5 for a similar offence.—Dedham Transcript.

SYNDICATE'S HELPING HAND

Once More Extended In Behalf of the Treasury's Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The gold syndicate yesterday prevented the gold reserve from falling below the $100,000,000 mark. About 2 o'clock the treasury department was informed that $2,850,000 in gold had been withdrawn for export from the sub-treasury in New York. As the gold reserve at the close of business yesterday stood at $102,527,148, the withdrawals would have reduced the reserve to $99,677,148. A few minutes afterward, however, Acting Secretary Curtis received a telegram saying that Pierpont Morgan of the syndicate had deposited $2,000,000 in gold in exchange for greenbacks. This deposit swelled the reserve to $101,677,148.

The officials at the department display no apprehension as to the gold reserve, and intimate that the syndicate will continue to make deposits to offset withdrawals, but they decline to express their reasons for their faith, and the question raised constantly is as to the pledge under which the syndicate is making those deposits and the period it covers, as well as the ability of the syndicate to continue to protect the reserve.

But little light can be shed on these questions, however, as it is said that probably only two government officials—President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle—know the unwritten part of the agreement made with the syndicate which secured the last issue of bonds.

Roasted Alive.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 21.—Six men met instantaneous and horrible deaths by an explosion at the Edgar Thompson steel works of the Carnegie Steel company at Braddock yesterday, and eight others were terribly injured. Two of the latter died while being conveyed to a hospital. The accident occured at "H" furnace and was the result of a "slip." The men at the top of the furnace lost control of a large barrow, from which ore was dumped into the furnace. The unfortunate workmen were envolved in a sea of flame. The force of the explosion hurled six of the men skyward. They fell back near the opening of the furnace, where the flames and intense heat roasted them alive.

Boss Quay's Pull.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—The Republican primaries to select 70 delegates to the state convention and also to choose candidates for various city offices were held last night. The indications are that the Quay faction have certainly elected 18 delegates and possibly 22, with one or two districts still in doubt. The anti-Quay people concede the senator 16 votes. All the candidates for city offices are unopposed. It appears probable that Senator Quay has won his fight for the state chairmanship, with some votes to spare. A conservative estimate gives him 160 votes in the convention, 15 more than the number necessary to elect.

About Peter Gumry.

DENVER, Aug. 21.—Thirteen bodies have been found in the Gumry hotel ruins. Peter Gumry, the owner, who was killed, was never married, and leaves no known relatives. All he knew about himself was that he was of French birth and that his parents were drowned at sea. Of all the crew and passengers of the British brig Peter Gumry, when she foundered off the banks of Newfoundland over 50 years ago, he alone was saved. His rescuers gave him the name of the wrecked vessel. He leaves property valued at $100,000.

Took His Family Along.

NEW YORK, Aug 21.—Stephen O'Brien of the detective bureau is looking for George T. Parsons, until lately a bookkeeper for George B. Gurley & Co. Parsons has been indicted by the grand jury for grand larceny and forgery in the third degree. Parsons left his home suddenly about two weeks ago, taking his family with him.

Steamers In Collision.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The cargo steamer Lyon collided in the fog, 25 miles off New Haven, with the passenger steamer Seaford. The Seaford sank within 45 minutes. The 255 passengers and crew of 42 were transferred to the Lyon safely, except three of them, who had their legs broken. All the baggage was lost.

Manslaughter Charged.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 21.—The coroner's inquiry into the collision between steamer Miramichi and schooner Osceola resulted in the jury returning a verdict of manslaughter against Captain DeGrace and William Tait of the steamer Miramichi.

Maceo's Revenge.

HAVANA, Aug. 21.—It is rumored at Santiago de Cuba that the insurgent leader, Maceo, has ordered that no quarter be given in future, in consequence of an attack made on an insurgent field hospital in which many rebels were killed.

Eight Alleged Lynchers.

ELLENSBURG, Wash., Aug. 21.—Eight persons are under arrest here on a charge of being implicated in the recent lynching of the Vinsons, father and son. They had a preliminary trial yesterday afternoon.

Sprockets.

The front and rear sprockets on the "Spalding" are readily detachable, the former without removing the cranks. The front sprocket is firmly secured to the sprocket flange by four friction bolts, the axle flange being in turn screwed on the rank axle, and secured to it by our new and improved crank, which both secures itself and the sprocket flange at one operation, all crank pins and sprocket keyes being dispensed with, and the tread narrowed without decreasing the distance between the crank hanger ball cases, this combination insuring absolute strength and reliability with the advantage of easy removal of cranks, sprocket, cones or bearing cases, for exchange or repair.

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

How To Eat

Is as much a matter of education as how to walk or how to dress. There are hundreds of individual ideas, and the best way to please every one is to let them eat as they choose. Our business, however, is to furnish the dining room with suitable, attractive, serviceable and up-to-date furniture. Of course every one doesn't know just how a dining room should be furnished to be in quite the proper style and make the expense as little as possible. But that's what we're here for—all our ideas can be yours if you'll say the word. Oak Dining Table, Side Board and Chairs, we can furnish the set complete as low as $25.00, and by adding a few dollars where you choose, you can increase the elegance.

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. INSTANTLY KILLED.

James Gilraine Struck by a Train Near His Home.

For years James Gilraine, employed as farmer at the Adams homestead on Adams street, has crossed the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to and from his home and his work. This morning he attempted to cross just after the 8.29 inward from Quincy passed and was struck and instantly killed by the express due at Quincy at 8.31.

No one saw the accident, probably, not even the engineer, for it was the rear brakeman who pulled up the train. Gilraine had just left the barn of Frank McCormick, with whom he had been talking, to cross the track to the Adams barn to feed the horses.

The body was taken on the train to Quincy, where Medical Examiner Gilbert ordered its removal to Hall's undertaking rooms. Dr. Gilbert found the scalp cut on the right side, the ribs fractured on both sides, the right leg crushed and the pelvis fractured on the right side.

Gilraine was about 45 years of age and leaves a large family, a widow and 9 small children.

ENGINEER TIDD DEAD.

Well Known in Quincy from Connection with Water Works.

Engineer Tidd was employed on the Quincy water works at their construction, also when the reservoir was built. He also figured as an expert in the water cases, and recently made an investigation for the city.

Marshall M. Tidd, a well-known civil engineer, died suddenly at his home in Woburn Tuesday afternoon, aged 68 years.

In his early life, Mr. Tidd attended to one of the locks of the old Middlesex canal in Woburn. He had a talent for drawing and made many sketches of scenes on the canal, and later in the early fifties he made a drawing of the centre of Woburn, which was lithographed.

At the age of 19 he adopted civil engineering as a profession, and entered the office of Engineer Storrow in Lawrence.

For 45 years or more he has been in business for himself, and it was in hydraulic engineering that he was most successful.

He was one of the oldest members of the Boston Society and the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The preliminary plans for the Woburn system of sewerage were made under his supervision, and he had just been awarded the contract for doing the same work for the town of Stoneham.

He built many large systems of sewers and water works, mostly in Maine and Massachusetts, but has had the supervision of others all over the country, in Mexico and the Provinces.

He left his mother, a sister, Mrs. George C. Nichols, a daughter and a brother, Capt. John E. Tidd, who is a deputy sheriff for Middlesex county.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

Surely no building of its size ever contained more food for the imagination that my friend Norman's riverside bungalow. It was fairly crammed with curiosities from many lands.

Jack Norman had not only "been everywhere and seen everything," as the saying is—he had brought home a shipload of mute but convincing witnesses.

Capital yarns he would spin about his treasures too, but of one object neither he nor his pretty Spanish-American wife could be induced to speak, except casually.

"The Liberator is sacred," he would say when asked where he got it, or "The Liberator has been in an earthquake," when its battered appearance was commented upon.

It was the figure of a satyr in bronze, about 3 feet high, with the legs and hoofs of a goat, short, blunted horns, huge pointed ears, grinning, lopsided mouth and a broken nose. Its left eye had also been in the wars—the metal was dented as if by a heavy blow, which had changed the figure's original roguish expression into a hideous leer.

Often have I seen Jack put his arm round its wry neck and talk to it with all the affection that a parent bestows on his offspring. But it was Mrs. Norman who gave me the clew to the secret.

Jack had been seriously ill—a return of jungle fever. His wife came to me in the drawing room.

"Oh, he is so much better," she said, with her dark eyes swimming. "He soon will be well. Ah, me! What would I do without my brave, true husband? I think no wife has ever been so happy as I. And"—turning to the hideous satyr—"you gave him to me, you dear old thing!"

She flung her arms round the twisted neck and kissed the grinning mouth. A dozen times she pressed her warm lips to the cold bronze.

I could not help smiling.

"You laugh," she said, "but it is true. Some day Jack shall tell you, perhaps. We do not like to speak of it. There is a grave beyond the sea. A mother tends it who would grieve if the truth were known."

Soon afterward I had the good luck to do Norman a service.

"I must make you a present," he said. "Look round and tell me what you would like. I bar the Liberator, of course."

"I won't take anything," I answered. "If you'll tell me why you set such store by that old bronze, we shall be quits."

"I couldn't have done it a week ago for a certain reason. But the person concerned is dead." I had noticed that Mrs. Norman was in deep mourning.

He took a nude, guardless sword from the wall. "Do you know what this is?" he asked.

"Some sort of sword," I replied.

"It is a Nicaraguan machete, carried by all the men and many of the women in that unquiet country. Look along the edge."

I did so and perceived a dull stain near the square point. Jack drew his finger down a long white scar on his bronzed cheek.

"That stain is blood. It came from here—some of it. I got a worse cut on the head. Now I'll tell you the story."

He lit a cigar, flung himself into an easy chair and began.

* * * * * *

"Some years ago I had an interest in a Segovian gold mine. Segovia, I should say, is in Nicaragua, between the Great lake and Honduras. Tiring of the wild life, I resolved to visit Granada. One night I passed in the hotel, and that was too long, for I was eaten alive. Next day I sought out a vacant house, found the owner and struck a bargain.

"The house I rented was an immense building, erected on three sides of a courtyard paved with marble. There was not a pane of glass in it, but plenty of iron bars. The courtyard had a broken fountain in the center, waterless, of course, and half hidden by rubbish and shrubs, run wild long since.

"The time hung pretty heavily upon my hands, so one morning I set to work to clear away the rubbish that choked the basin of the fountain. At the very bottom of the heap I found the Liberator.

"I cleaned the statue myself. Pepe dared not touch it at first. He said it was a Carib god. It wasn't in its present battered condition then, and I considered it a great find. We set it up on a shelf above my bed, and in 48 hours I had forgotten all about it.

"Of course I visited the cafes, where you may drink bad chocolate and gamble to your heart's content. Everybody does both there, and 'when one is in Rome'—you know the adage?

"At a gambling house I met Don Manuel Arguello. By way of return for the money he had won of me he took me home and introduced me to his mother and cousin. After that I called every day, for I had fallen in love with the Senora Isabel.

"The passion of my life was returned. But I was unaware that Don Manuel also loved her. I did not learn until too late that he had long looked forward to repairing his broken fortunes by marriage with his cousin. He enlightened me—I need not describe the scene—and I refused to stand aside. Then he threatened to take my life.

"As you know, my wife is a capital horsewoman, and it was our custom to ride daily on the Los Cocos road. One morning my darling failed to meet me at the trysting place. I dismounted to wait, leaving my horse with Pepe. Presently he called me, and I found him examining the tracks.

"'Senor,' said he in his grave fashion, 'here is the trail of the senora's mare. It is fresh. It was made this morning.' He moved on, bent double.

"'Other horses have halted here, have plunged about and have gone. The senora's mare went with them.' Again he moved on.

"'Ah!' he exclaimed presently, 'there is the print of a lasso ring which has missed the mark. There the senora's mare halted suddenly, like the wise animal she is. That lasso did not miss, and she has had a fall before maybe'—

"'What on earth are you driving at?' I cried.

"'The senora turned there and spurted the mare,' he said. 'The other horses followed in a great hurry, senor. She did not gallop far, as we have seen. Afterward she went quietly.'

"'For the love of heaven tell me what you have learned!' I cried.

"'A mile farther on, senor,' answered the Indian stolidly, 'there is a path which leads to Don Manuel's hacienda. If the senora's mare turns there, that is where the Senora Isabel will have gone—not willingly, senor.'

"We galloped hard to the byway spoken of. Sure enough, all the tracks left the road there. The observant Indian was right.

"I had my pistols, he his machete. We pursued the abductors and caught them before they reached the hacienda—as ugly a quartet as I ever set eyes on. The prudent Don Manuel had directed the business from a safe distance.

"His fellows showed fight, of course, but I managed to wing one at the first fire, when they all turned tail. I took my darling back to her aunt, with whom she was quite safe. Don Manuel did not show up. He knew better."

Mrs. Norman came in just then, and Jack abruptly changed the subject. Half an hour later Jack resumed.

* * * * * *

"My darling was very fond of her aunt and unwilling to hurt her, so we said nothing of her son's villainy. But when Pepe and I got back to our ruinous palace he advised me to barricade the door of my room. However, I didn't think it worth while, but at nightfall I stretched myself on the hide bed and fell asleep, with a revolver close to my hand.

"About midnight I was awakened by a cut on the head, which, luckily, did not stun me, or I shouldn't be spinning this yarn now. I started up with the blood streaming down my face.

"Don Manuel stood over me with my revolver in one hand and an uplifted machete in the other. There's the machete.

"'Now you shall die, robber!' he hissed and aimed another blow at me, which I avoided. Shouting loudly for Pepe, I grappled with him and got hold of his wrists. I was the stronger, but loss of blood had weakened me. He wrenched his right hand free and cut me across the cheek. The blow dazed me; I staggered and fell on the bed.

"Before I could rise his knee was on my chest, the machete at my throat. I felt the edge. With a last effort I flung him from me. That instant the bed heaved and tossed, the stout walls shook, the sleeping city awoke wih a scream of terror. Dazed as I was, I knew what had happened. So did my enemy.

"'The earthquake shall not save you!' he yelled, and rushed at me over the quivering floor. But again the bed heaved beneath me. Something fell from above. There was a dull, sickening thud—a scream of agony—and Don Manuel rolled over and lay still, leaving the machete across my neck. Ah, that was a close shave!

"I staggered to my feet and groped my way through clouds of dust to the street, which was full of people, shrieking, wailing, praying to the saints. An hour the earthquake lasted, shock following shock.

"When all was quiet and the people had ceased to wail and pray, I returned to the palace. Pepe lay in his hammock, bound and gagged. Together we entered the room where I had so narrowly escaped death.

"The body of Don Manuel, with the skull crushed in, lay beside my bed. Close at hand lay the Liberator in the condition in which you see it. The statue had toppled over in the nick of time, killed the would be murderer and set me free. On such chances do the lives of men hang.

"Don Manuel's mother never knew the truth respecting his death. It was attributed to the earthquake, as also were the cuts on my head and cheek. I left Granada as soon as I could, taking my bride with me.

"Now you know why we treasure the Liberator, and why we have not dared to talk about it."—Answers.

New Sort of Poker.

A new variation of poker has sprung up. It deals out the entire pack in equal numbers to all players. If five are playing, for example, each will get ten cards at the start. If seven are playing, each gets seven, the three cards left over being put aside. Then, instead of drawing, each player discards as he likes from his hand, so that he shall have five cards to play with, making the best hand possible out of those dealt him. Hands are apt to run high in this sort of game. It is called "peculiar."

A poker game in which six cards were dealt, discards and draws being so regulated that only five cards constituted the final hand, has been known for some time, but this is a further development of that idea. It is said to have originated along the shores of Long Island.—New York Sun.

NO SECRET
IN THIS WOMAN'S CASE.

Mrs. Campbell Wishes Her Letter Published so that the Truth May Be Known.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Of the thousands of letters received from women all over the world by Mrs. Pinkham, not one is given to the public unless by the wish of the writer. Thus absolute confidence is established between Mrs. Pinkham and her army of patients; and she freely solicits a letter from any woman, rich or poor, who is in ill health or ailing.

In the case of Mary E. Campbell, of Albion, Noble Co., Ind., her suffering was so severe, her relief so suddenly realized, and her gratitude so great, that she wishes the circumstances published, in the hope that others may be benefited thereby. She says:—

"My physician told me I had dropsy and falling of the womb. My stomach and bowels were so bloated I could not get a full breath. My face and hands were bloated badly. I had that dreadful bearing-down pain, backache, palpitation of the heart, and nervousness.

"One of my physicians told me I had something growing in my stomach; and the medicine that I took gave me relief only for a short time. I thought I must die. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it worked like a charm. After taking the first bottle I could walk across the street, now I am well. I advise all my friends to take it."

The Derelict.

I am the Hakon Jarl. The waters play
Around my battered hull, and underneath
The sharks glide fishing. From the frozen north
The icebergs gather in a spectral fleet,
Shining in lakes of sea beneath the moon.

Drifting, drifting! Unto the misty port
Where neither signal gun nor flashing wire
Sends back arrival to the anxious hearts
That wander on the highlands and the shore.

So shall ye drift, oh, great, loud clanging ships
That pass me by so haughty and so cold—
A mockery of death, a menace yet
To those that live and swim upon the sea.

And drifting ye shall follow all that were,
As all that are shall follow in their turn,
Until a lighthouse rises in the night
From that dim port men call oblivion.
—John James Meehan.

Snake Pictured In an Egg.

Edward Holland of Elizabeth township, near Galena, Ills., went to his barnyard the other evening to collect eggs for marketing. On one nest he found a turkey hen, evidently very much perturbed, and on a second glance he found the fowl was held charmed by a snake which lay coiled in the grass before her. He killed the snake and drove the turkey from the nest. Then he discovered that the egg that had just been laid was without a shell, and the membrane was drawn out at one end in perfect similitude to the body and head of the snake. So perfect was the impression that the eyes and mouth were plainly discernible.—Exchange.

THE KU-CHENG RIOTS.

Hitch In the Investigation Was Not Unexpected at Washington.

American Interests Are Not Seriously Involved.

Minister Denby and Admiral Carpenter Disagree With Consul Jernigan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The state department was informed yesterday afternoon that there was some disposition on the part of the Chinese officials not to allow the American and British officials to be present at the investigation of the Ku-Cheng riots.

It is stated at the department that the usual hitch has occurred, in which the Chinese officials have refused to allow any interference with their forms of procedure. In every case where there has been an investigation of the kind proposed, the same objections have been made, the Chinese officials fearing that they will lose prestige with their people if they allow foreigners to participate in their courts. These objections have always ended in the submission of the Chinese after some delay.

It can be stated authoritatively that the instructions to Minister Denby cover all questions now in controversy and that the investigation will be conducted in such a manner as to allow the American representative to secure complete and full information as to the cause of the riots and the persons participating in them, whether high or low. The assurance is also given that this will be done in such a manner as to leave nothing for complaint by the American people on the score of failure to obtain the facts relating to the disturbances.

It is not at all probable that Minister Denby has been directed to make any such demand as that to be made by the British minister at Pekin, as it is known here that such a demand will not be necessary. It is understood that the Chinese minister has informed his government that the best interests of China will be served by according to the American and British officers the most thorough facilities for obtaining all information desired.

The attention of China has been called to the fact that when the United States government was investigating the Chinese riots in this country, officials of the Chinese government were asked to be present to obtain all the particulars.

It is not believed at the state department that the refusal of the Chinese authorities will do more than to delay the investigation for a time.

Nothing to Worry Over.

Advices received by officials at the state and navy departments from Minister Denby and Admiral Carpenter indicate that neither the diplomatic nor naval representative of the United States in China regards the situation resulting from the Ku-Cheng riots as very serious or alarming, so far as American interests are concerned.

It appears that the Chinese government and officials are very friendly toward the United States and American citizens, and regret disturbances which have tended to cause so much consternation. Officials in Washington are convinced that both Minister Denby and Admiral Carpenter feel assured that the Chinese government will prevent further outrages, and that the alarm felt by Americans in Shanghai, Foo-Choo and Tien-Tsin is greater than the situation warrants.

The advices from the minister and admiral are reassuring, and, it is stated, not in accord with the cables of Consul General Jernigan at Shanghai, and the statements made by other American citizens, indicating that further outrages were contemplated, and that the lives of American citizens and their property were in great danger.

"Alive and Well."

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—W. A. Shoemaker, counsel for Holmes, yesterday received a message from "Minnie R. Williams," dated Providence, which stated that the sender was alive and well. This is one of the women Holmes is accused of having murdered in the Chicago "cast e." The genuineness of the telegram will be investigated by Mr. Shoemaker, and, if it is found that Minnie Williams sent it, it will be a valuable link in the chain of evidence for the defense.

Hold-Up In Michigan.

GRAND RAPIDS, Aug. 21.—A fast express on the Chicago and West Michigan road was held up by five men in a piece of woods, just before crossing the Kalamazoo river, at 9 o'clock last night. The brakeman, Timothy Murphy, was shot in the side, receiving a serious flesh wound. Without demanding admission, the robbers placed dynamite under the side door of the baggage car and blew it off. They ordered the conductor, baggageman and express messenger to throw up their hands, and went through their pockets. They then tackled the safe, and blew it open in less than 30 seconds. It contained no valuables; the messenger, having gone out in the afternoon, was returning on a "dead" trip. The trainmen cannot give a good description of the robbers.

Disaster on Lake Erie.

BUFFALO, Aug. 21.—By the capsizing of the small pleasure yacht Rung Brothers last evening seven men of the 13 on board were drowned. That there was not a greater loss of life is due to the nearness of the tug E. C. Maytham and the quickness of the life-saving crew in getting to the scene. The party on board the yacht were members of the East Buffalo stockyards employes, who had spent the day down the river on an annual outing. At the time of the disaster the boat was in charge of Engineer L. J. Burley, one of the owners, who claims that the steering gear went wrong.

Mischievous Servant to Blame.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 21.—William J. Winberg, aged 35, a prominent East New York banker, shot his wife fatally last night and then committed suicide. Mrs. Winberg discharged a female servant, and the girl went to Winberg's office, and out of revenge told him several stories reflecting on the good name of his wife. He went home, and the tragedy followed. Mrs. Winberg is dying. The couple had three children.

Strike of Boston Garment Workers Is Having a Good Effect.

A Number of Contractors Have Already Yielded.

Men Determined to Hold Out In Behalf of the Women Workers.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The success of the strike of the garment workers is assured, and the time of idleness for the operatives promises to be very brief. Already 27 of the contractors have agreed to the conditions required by their working people, and the majority of the others, it is confidently expected, will sign today. The men have taken a chivalrous part in this labor conflict. They are standing loyally to the women, even when a settlement of benefit to themselves might result by their deserting them. They claim the women are doing as good and as much work as they are, and should be paid accordingly.

"With this object in view," say the officers of the union, "we have resolved to protract this struggle to a successful termination. Either the demands of the women shall be granted or we shall demoralize the entire contract system and inaugurate something better in its stead."

In reply to the query as to why the bond was so sternly exacted, Secretary A. J. Felz replied: "Even with the bond at our disposal during the past year, our people have been so provoked through the most flagrant violations of the agreement that we have been very many times in which we would have been fully justified in the eyes of a justice-loving public.

On the Verge of a General Strike,

"We sympathized with the victims and tolerated the abuse when, perhaps, we ought not to have done so, rather than it should be said we had taken advantage of the weapon at our disposal, which today stands us in good stead, because it emphasizes our veracity and entrenches our honor from the possibility of doubt."

The premature, yet not unexpected, "call out" yesterday was received with a kind of doubt, and the presence of the agents in a few instances was necessary to convince them of the edict of the night previous.

If a single evidence of the earnestness and determination of the strike was required, a glance at the financial secretary's desk all day long yesterday, and the line of depositors eagerly waiting, all spoke with a pleasing chime.

The contractors now claim they have no hesitancy to give the bond demanded, if only the request of the women was expunged.

This Is the Bone of Contention standing in the way of a settlement, and the contractors say that if the firms will concede to their request of paying more for their contracts they will at once affix their names to the settlement.

In reply to a dispatch forwarded by A. J. Felz to National Secretary Reichers of New York, apprising him of the strike, that gentleman replied that the interests of Boston will be looked after in New York and Brooklyn, and any attempt of contractors to handle Boston goods will be followed by a reopening of hostilities.

At 10 o'clock last night bonds to the amount of $15,000 were on file. Thus the backbone, it may be safely inferred, of what promised to be a protracted struggle is broken, and by tonight, it is surmised by the officers of the union, that very few needles will be idle.

Perils of Excursionists.

MT. WASHINGTON, N. H., Aug. 22.—The temperature here has been freezing, and early yesterday afternoon it was down to 28°. Snow has fallen, and the mountain summits are now white, suggesting midwinter. A party of five left the Crawford House yesterday morning and reached here about 3 p. m. One of the young women would have perished if assistance had not been rendered from the hotel.

One of Clark's legs was broken and his skull was crushed to pieces.

Democrat Against Democrat.

Hurst, the present Democratic candidate for governor. Governor Brown urges the calling of another state convention. Governor Brown subsequently stated that the interview was a "joke."

Murderer Lynched.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 22.—At New Richmond, 25 miles from Cincinnati, a mob took Noah Anderson, colored, from the jail and hanged him for the murder of Franklin Friedman, nearly 80 years old, and president of the First National bank of that place. OUT OF HER ELEMENT.

Valkyrie Looked Over In Drydock by Those Who Know It All.

General Opinion That She Is a Good Article.

Defender Compelled to Undergo General Repairs at Herreshoffs' Works.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Valkyrie III is safely drydocked in the Erie basin. The vessel's appearance below the water line only goes to confirm the judgment that had been formed on seeing her afloat—that she is a very large and powerful boat. There was some surprise that she is so very bulky and shows so few signs of the beauty that one would look for in a racing yacht.

In spite of Valkyrie's great size, she has certain lines that easily bespeak the Watson model. This resemblance was chiefly discernible in the angle from the bow end downward. From the extreme forward end of this stretch down to the aftermost part of the keel, there is not a straight line in her. It is a continuous bend all the way through. Valkyrie's keel is built at an angle that may be called a rake. Her bow is very full, and in this suggests Vigilant.

In the matter of overhang, both forward and aft, she exceeds Defender, while in her spars the difference is further enhanced. In fact, as one old sailor remarked, after he had looked the ship over: "There is only one thing about her like Defender, and that is the rake of her rudder post." It is at the foot of this post that the vessel has her greatest depth.

The boat's mast attracted much attention and comment, because of its height and tremendous diameter. The steel boom also came in for a large share of comment. It is a very long spar, and men with experienced eyes said that those who had estimated it to be 105 feet long were

Not a Bit Exaggerative In the Guess.

There was every evidence to confirm the reports from the other side that the Valkyrie would spread a record-breaking area of canvas, and the old salts who noticed this added, in their remarks on the subject, that the ship would be well able to stand up under all that could be crowded on her, up to "a good, smart breeze of wind." Beyond that, they were rather doubtful.

The longer the yachtsmen studied the lines of the foreigner the more convinced did they become of two things. One was that her load waterline length was not nearly so great as her bulky size indicated at first glance, and the other that the challenger has more depth of keel in its deepest part than Defender. Their conclusions necessitated deep surmises, and in both the result was favorable to Valkyrie. If the length on the waterline is less than Defender's, it will shorten the time allowance which everybody says Valkyrie will have to give to her opponent. If her keel is deeper, it will, in all probability, assist her the more in beating to windward.

Among the most interested of the spectators on the dock was E. A. Willard, commander of the Vigilant. It could be seen from the expression on his face that he thought she was a pretty good article. He would not, however, express more of an opinion than to say that he believed her to be "a pretty good boat." He did add that there was no sign of her having been strained on the rough voyage across the Atlantic, but anybody could see that.

The Mishaps to Defender

in Tuesday's trial race were more serious than had been thought.

A careful examination of the yacht showed that the hound-band to which the shrouds are attached had for some reason slipped down the mast, allowing the shrouds to sag three-quarters of an inch. Further than this, under the strain of the heavy breeze, the mast had "buckled" about 20 feet below the topmast, which made it unsafe.

It was concluded to take the yacht at once to Bristol for repairs. As soon as she arrives there a large force of men will be put at work day and night getting her ready for the next trial. A new and larger mast, which is all ready, will be stepped, and the necessary alterations in sails will be made. It is hoped that the Defender will be ready to race by next Tuesday.

Andrew For Governor.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 22.—The state Populists' state convention adopted resolutions endorsing the Omaha platform of the Populist party, declaring against free silver, in favor of reform in the oyster laws, and of property reassessment. The following ticket was then chosen: For governor, Henry T. Andrew; for attorney general, B. W. Monott; for comptroller, S. H. Gibson.

This Means Prosperity.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The Produce Exchange expects the biggest corn crop in the history of the country. According to the statistics of the Produce Exchange the indicated crop is not less than 2,425,000,000 bushels. The increase over the great crop of 1889 will be 312,108,000 bushels, if the exchange figures prove correct when the crop is gathered.

Doyle Deposed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Jack Doyle is no longer manager of the New York Baseball club. President French's reasons for removing Doyle are that he is no disciplinarian; that he has failed to show any control of the men, and that he has absented himself from the team without sufficient cause.

Dissenting Republicans.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 22.—The Republican county convention of Wyoming county adopted resolutions opposing the re-election of J. D. Cameron as senator, believing that his views on various public questions are not in accordance with the prevailing belief of the party.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Bit by Rattle-Snake.

Children were playing Wednesday morning on a wall on Edge Hill road, Milton, when a little six-year old son of John Atkins was bit on the thigh by a rattlesnake. The fangs entered through the pants, and the sting was not as severe as it would have been on the bare skin. Drs Ash and Gilbert attended the little fellow and he will soon be all right.

IN KNIGHTS' UNIFORM.

Boys From Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home Will Visit Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The Masonic Home drill corps, better known as "The Little Commandery," will be seen in Boston during the conclave, and will no doubt create more interest than any other body that will be here. It is composed of 30 boys, the oldest of whom is not over 14 years old.

They will wear the true Knight Templar uniform, with chapeau, baldric, sword, gauntlet and apron with skull and crossbones, and on parade will make one of the neatest and most unique sights ever witnessed in this part of the country. Being kept in constant trim by Sir H. B. Grant, author of "Grant's Tactics," their evolutions will excel all others of their older brothers, no matter how "crack" they may be regarded.

The Masonic Widows' and Orphans' home at Louisville is supported by the Masonic bodies of that state, every Mason being assessed so much a year for its support, and with this is an annual contribution.

There are from 250 to 275 sons and daughters of Masons and from 25 to 50 widows of Masons which are recommended by the Masonic bodies to which the father or brother belonged.

Children as young as 4 or 5 years of age are taken, educated, taught practical methods of livelihood, and at the age of 16 they are found situations and an eye is kept on them in after life.

The care of the home, the cooking and housework is done by the children, and in every way the little inmates are taught self-reliance and industry.

The building was erected at considerable cost. It is four stories high and has two large wings, one occupied by the girls, the other by the boys.

It was at the request of the Boston Templars that the Little Commandery was allowed to come to Boston and take part in the parade. The Boston Templars pay all expenses from the time the boys leave until they return. The trip to Boston will be made one long to be remembered by the boys.

Two Sir Knights of the Luverne commandery No. 22, of Luverne, Minn., and three from Toledo commandery No. 7, of Toledo, arrived here yesterday afternoon. Prominent Knights from other states are already in the city.

Arrested While Praying.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 22.—The whole local Salvation Army was arrested by the police. Its members were informed by the police that no more blockading of streets would be permitted. The army paid no heed to the warning, but planned a great demonstration in honor of Brigadier Winchell of Milwaukee. A policeman seized him as he prayed, and other officers took his 10 associates to jail. The women were released, but the men were placed behind the bars.

Steamer Argonaut Abandoned.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Steamer Dorian, from Kingston, brought as passengers Captain McGillivray and 23 distressed seamen, being the crew of the British steamer Argonaut, abandoned at sea off the Jamaica coast. The Argonaut sailed from Halifax, July 29, bound for Port Morant, Jam., with a cargo consisting principally of fish and lumber. On Aug. 6, the engineer reported the vessel leaking and she was abandoned, the crew taking to the boats and making their way to land.

The Ameer's Nerve.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—It is rumored from a good source that the ameer has forbidden the shazada to return until he has secured Great Britain's consent that the ameer shall be diplomatically represented at London. He desires to deal directly with the government, instead of through the viceroy of India. This impossible demand is supposed to explain the shazada's long stay.

Eagle Will Scream.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—There is good authority for the statement that a peremptory demand will be made by the United States upon France for the release of ex-Consul John Waller of Tamatave, and that satisfactory indemnity will be required for his arrest and imprisonment, with a request for a commission to determine Waller's rights in Madagascar.

Trouble Brewing In Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 22.—The French squadron for fishery protection along the Newfoundland coast is waiting at Bay of Islands to protest against the new trans-insular railroad, now in course of construction, touching at any part of the so-called French shore where fishing claims exist. It is feared that the question will lead to international trouble.

No Punishment.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Magistrate Kudlich yesterday discharged "Parson" Charles Davies, Tom O'Rourke and Joseph Gordon. He reserved until Sept. 4 his decision in the cases of Dixon and Leonard, the principals. The five were arrested for participating in a sparring exhibition.

Coliseum Collapsed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The great Coliseum of the South Side, which was nearly completed, and was to have been opened for business on Sept. 2, partly collapsed just before midnight. There were very few workmen or watchmen around, and it is not thought any of these were fatally hurt.

At Rest.

READING, Pa., Aug. 22.—The body of the late Justice Strong was buried in the family lot, alongside the remains of his two wives, yesterday afternoon. Impressive services were held in the cemetery chapel by Rev. Dr. Hamlin of the Covenant Presbyterian church, Washington.

Big Coaster Launched.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22. — The steel steamship Comanche was launched at Cramps' shipyard today. The Comanche is in every respect the highest class steamship ever built for the coasting trade.

Ruins Set Afire.

DENVER, Aug. 22.—Twelve bodies have been taken from the wreck of the Gumry hotel. Fire was started yesterday to destroy the threatening walls. No other way was seemingly practicable.

Labor Troubles on the Isthmus.

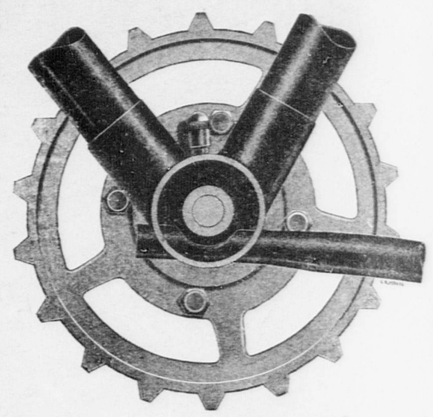

COLON, Aug. 22.—Labor troubles have again broken out on the canal works, and the laborers have gone on strike to enforce a demand for an increase in their wages.

On Robbers' Tracks.

ALLEGAN, Mich., Aug. 22.—Two of the New Richmond robbers were traced to Allegan yesterday. The sheriff and a posse of deputies are after them.

Sprockets.

The front and rear sprockets on the "Spalding" are readily detachable, the former without removing the cranks. The front sprocket is firmly secured to the sprocket flange by four friction bolts, the axle flange being in turn screwed on the rank axle, and, secured to it by our new and improved crank, which both secures itself and the sprocket flange at one operation, all crank pins and sprocket keyes being dispens d with, and the tread narrowed without decreasing the distance between the crank hanger ball cases, this combination insuring absolute strength and reliability with the advantage of easy removal of cranks, sprocket, cones or bearing cases, for exchange or repair.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

How To Eat

Is as much a matter of education as how to walk or how to dress. There are hundreds of individual ideas, and the best way to please every one is to let them eat as they choose. Our business, however, is to furnish the dining room with suitable, attractive, serviceable and up-to-date furniture. Of course every one doesn't know just how a dining room should be furnished to be in quite the proper style and make the expense as little as possible. But that's what we're here for—all our ideas can be yours if you'll say the word. Oak Dining Table, Side Board and Chairs, we can furnish the set complete as low as $25 00, and by adding a few dollars where you choose, you can increase the elegance.

CRISP LOCAL NOTES

The Home News of the Granite City Bulletined in Brief.

Supt. Weeks reports a grand outing at the gathering of street railway men at Haverhill on Wednesday.

The extension of Walker street is practically completed, and the people on the east side not only have an outlet but a good street.

Improvements are being made in the basement of the Unitarian chapel. New partitions have been put in also a floor in the supper room. It will be much more attractive.

Postmaster Pearson of Lowell entertained several Massachusetts postmasters on Wednesday. Postmaster Burke of Quincy was there.

H. H. Faxon gave a party of Swedes a hay-rack ride Wednesday night to Weymouth and Braintree. The young ladies desire to express their thanks to that gentleman for his kindness.

An excursion boat from Boston, which brought five hundred to Lovell's grove on Wednesday, left the wharf to allow the City of Quincy to come in, and got stuck in the mud and remained several hours.

This has been a good season for corn, and many fine fields can be seen in this county. Mr. William T. Spargo, who resides off Franklin street, in this city, has some of the tallest we have seen anywhere, being 11 feet and 3 inches high.

Miss Eva Miller arrived home on the 18th from Norway, Me., where she had a very pleasant time, having visited Poland Springs and numerous other places of interest. She spent a few days at Portland and enjoyed her trip on the steamer Portland very much.

When you go to Nanta-ket and find that you want your pictures taken it will pay you to visit E. A. Bartlett. He has the only gallery there doing all kinds of work. All his work is first-class and patrons have the satisfaction of knowing they are dealing with a reliable establishment.

Alfreda Anderson, a Swede girl stopping at Alfred Anderson's on Granite street left the house thinly clad on Monday night and was found nearly insensible in Parkersville the next morning. Of late she has been an enthusiastic member of the Salvation Army, and the excitement has been too much for her.

Died in Ireland.

Andrew Kerwin, well known in West Quincy where for many years he was the popular clerk at E. H. Doble & Co's, died in Ireland Aug 9. He went to the old country in February and was about to return. No further particulars are known.

—The town of Milford has just built a four room schoolhouse. Being one of the best appointed in the State; it is of brick, and with furnishings cost $16,000.

A Good Appetite and refreshing sleep at this season indicate a condition of bodily health. These are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It makes pure blood and good health follows.

WESTON—In Duxbury, Aug. 6, Lincoln Harold, son of Mr. George and Mrs. Anna W. Weston of Wollaston, aged 2 months and 2 days.

Reported Sale.

It was reported Wednesday that the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. had purchased the Braintree & Holbrook street railway. The story is not credited, but it is probably a fact that the steam railroad would like to check the increasing travel over the street railways which now connect Brockton with Boston.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

An Old Time Novel.

A pretty girl
With wavy curl,
An evening party somewhat late,
A homeward walk,
A loving talk,
A kissing tableau at the gate.
A moonlight night,
A hand squeezed tight,
A little reference to papa,
A little kiss,
A little bliss,
A consultation with mamma.
A little church,
"For bad or worse
You take this maid your wife to be?"
A trembling yes,
A loving press,
A little wife to live with me.
—Williams' Weekly.

The Mournful Consideration.

Ah, this dolce far niente, with its leisure hours a-plenty,
When the mercury is rising in the glass,
All life's torrid griefs forgetting in the oscillating netting
Of the hammock as it sweeps the waving grass!

How we generously pity those who summer in the city
While we quaff the breezes from the hill or bay!
Oh, this dolce far niente! But, alas, it costs you twenty Every day the gentle landlord lets you stay!
—Washington Star.

Anticipated His Readers.

"My hero dies in the middle of my last story," said the young author.

"That's a grave mistake," replied the editor. "He should not die before the reader does. I've heard of three men who actually finished your book before they gave in."—Atlanta Constitution.

What Did It.

His eyes had a dull, unintelligent stare.
He staggered and turned from the desk in a daze.
Bewilderingly through his disordered hair
His fingers he ran, while he uttered such phrase
As only a tottering mind would invent.
Was he drunk? Had he rashly and recklessly tried
Some knockout concoction, with deadly intent?
Oh, no! He'd been reading a Traveler's Guide.
—Richmond Dispatch.

Cycling Song.

The dew reflects the coming day.
I mount my wheel and speed away
Along the street as if on wings;
The wild wind through my whiskers sings;
I see a fat man from afar,
In waiting for a morning car.
A jolt, a crash, a sickening thud;
I send him rolling in the mud
With that stern joy which cyclers feel
In foemen worthy of their wheel.

STARS ARE IN THE SKY ALL DAY.

The stars are in the sky all day.
Each linked coil of Milky Way
And every planet that we know
Behind the sun is circling slow.
They sweep, they climb with stately tread,
Venus the fair, and Mars the red,
Saturn engirdled with clear light
Or Jupiter with moons of white.
Each knows his path and keeps due tryst.
Not even the smallest star is missed
From those wide fields of deeper sky
Which gleam and flash mysteriously,
As if God's outstretched fingers must
Have sown them thick with diamond dust
There are they all day long, but we,
Sun blinded, have no eyes to see.

The stars are in the sky all day,
But when the sun has gone away,
And hovering shadows cool the west,
And call the sleepy birds to rest,
And heaven grows softly dim and dun—
Into its darkness one by one
Steal forth those starry shapes all fair.
We say steal forth, but they were there.
Where all day long, unseen, unguessed,
Climbing the sky from east to west.
The angels saw them where they hid,
And so perhaps the eagles did,
For they can face the sharp sun ray
Nor wink nor heed to look away.
But we, blind mortals, gazed from far
And did not see a single star.

I wonder if the world is full
Of other secrets beautiful,
As little guessed, as hard to see,
As this sweet starry mystery.
Do angels veil themselves in space
And make the sun their hiding place?
Do white wings flash as spirits go
On heavenly errands to and fro,
While we, down looking, never guess
How near our lives they crowd and press?
If so, at life's set we may see
Into the dusk steal noiselessly
Sweet faces that we used to know,
Dear eyes like stars that slowly glow,
Dear hands stretched out to point the way—
And deem the night more fair than day.
—Susan Coolidge in Congregationalist.

A RUNAWAY WHEEL.

"Fred, old man, you are indeed fortunate," said I as I leaned back in the easy chair before the grate fire in his cozy home.

"Yes, fortunate is the very word," he answered musingly. "The events of an hour changed the course of my life. If that hour had been left out of the day, I should not be the possessor of such a home, but would be back in the old bachelor quarters. They were not so bad, and there was only one woman for whom I would give them up. At that time she had refused me—was, in fact, engaged to another.

"I have never before spoken of this, but what I have gained has been well earned. I was favored by fortune in that hour, but it was seizing the opportunity that made me successful.

"A party of us had gone away on a wheeling trip. We were young, gay and joyous, and the weeks slipped by until it came time for us to think of returning.

"From being in love with Emily Brant I became madly infatuated with her. Though she treated me in the most distant manner, I still thought, with the conceit of youth, that she cared a little for me. I was helped out in this idea by little incidents and trivial circumstances which led me to hope she would accept me.

"I had a rival—a man who did not seem to consider my actions of any importance. I could not seem to make him jealous in the slightest degree. He had naturally a very self composed manner, but this alone would not account for his bearing.

"I came to the conclusion that I must propose to Emily before we returned to the city, as I would have a much better opportunity of stating my case amid favorable surroundings than in the city with its bustle and interruptions.

"One afternoon we were riding through a beautiful valley, and it so happened Emily and myself were quite a distance to the rear of the party. The road was smooth, the trees arched overhead, the sunlight streamed in gold shafts through them, falling alternately upon Emily as she rode her wheel so easily and gracefully, lighting her beauty with a soft glow. I could keep silence no longer, and riding close beside her, as we sped on together, I told her how much I loved her and asked her to be my wife.

"Then came the breaking of the dream I had had for so many weeks and months. In a few words I learned there was no hope for me; that though she admired and respected me she had never thought of me in any other way; that there was already an understanding between Mr. Fernow and herself, and that their engagement was soon to be announced.

"At first I could hardly believe my ears. We rode the rest of the way in silence. For me the glory of the day had departed. It was as if a haze, like the melancholy haze of Indian summer, through which I should see all things for all time, had closed around me.

"If it had been possible, I should have left that night for the city, but circumstances compelled me to accompany the party on one last ride.

"I never saw a gayer set of people than we were when we started the next day. Some of them guyed me a little about my lack of gayety, but I answered that I was to leave the next day and felt sad in consequence.

"We were to ride down one valley, then descend a mountain into another valley. I was the only one in the party who had been over the road, and it was so long ago I had partially forgotten it. When we began to descend the mountain, I told them we had better walk, as the road was very steep. They took my advice for a time, and we had gone the greater part of the way, when one of the party, in a spirit of frolic, mounted his wheel and dared the others to do likewise.

"Thinking we were almost at the foot of the mountain, we all followed his example. I was riding in the lead, Earnest Fernow was close beside me. Suddenly, on turning a bend, we came upon a pitch in the road so steep as to greatly alarm us.

"We had all been riding at good speed. This in itself would have mattered little had each one of us had our wheels under perfect control, but timidity, carelessness or fright might mean great danger.

"I saw Earnest Fernow turn white and jam his brake down hard, while he back pedaled with all his might. Suddenly we were startled by a cry of fear—a cry for help, 'Earnest, save me!' The next instant Emily Brant sped by us. She had lost control of her wheel.

"Fernow paid no heed. He was too frightened himself. He turned his bicycle into the bank and jumped. Even at the speed with which she was going I knew she realized he had deserted her.

"Unless you have been similarly placed, you cannot understand the ghastly feeling of horror that comes over you as you know your wheel is beyond your control on a steep mountain. There is no way to stop but by turning into the bank and taking a headlong plunge, and the chances of injury or death, or to keep on, while the speed increased with each revolution of the wheels, and the chances of escape grow less.

"I realized if I started in pursuit my wheel would be in a moment more beyond my control. Still, my opportunity had come, and I did not hesitate. A moment more, and I was close behind her. I had no idea up to this time what I should do, but as my wheel, owing to superior weight, closed up the gap between us my thoughts began to take form.

"The road, fortunately, was almost straight. I remembered that where it came upon the valley there was a wide, shallow river. It came down the mountain at right angles to this river, then turned to the left. There was a small open field between the road and river. I knew that instinctively she would try to turn away from the river. In that case she would be hurled against a mass of rock through which the road had been cut.

"I must reach her before we came upon the river. For a time our speed was terrific. The rocks and trees seemed to be strangely blurred as they sped by. We could feel the air like a resisting wall through which we were plunging. Then we came upon a rise in the road, almost a hill, which reduced our speed somewhat, and I came nearer her.

"As I came close beside her wheel she turned her head as if she could not bear the sight of the water toward which we were plunging.

"She saw me, and in all the horror that surrounded us I felt a great happiness, for there was trust, confidence and admiration in that look. It said, 'You will save me.'

"Up to that time I believe she thought she was riding to death alone.

"Then I was close beside her, and as we came toward the turn in the road I reached over and seized, for one instant, the handle bars of her wheel, keeping both wheels pointed for the open field and the river.

"There was a minute's jar as we crossed the field, then the river seemed to spring forward to meet us. There was a dull shock, and a plunge into the water.

"I found myself, when I had recovered from the force of the blow, half standing, half floating in the shallow water holding Emily Brant, who was white and unconscious. The landscape seemed to be spinning round like a top.

"I realized we had escaped serious injury, as the river had acted as a cushion and lessened the force of the impact as we plunged from our wheels. She soon revived, but was very weak and dizzy. That night the order of things was changed. I remained, and it was Fernow who left for the city.

"From that day the haze of Indian summer that threatened to envelop my life has given place to the glory of noontide."

For a moment or two as Fred ceased speaking we both sat looking at the grate fire where the coals glowed in the ruddy flame.

I was thinking, knowing Fred as well as I did, that Emily might well consider that hour a fortunate hour for her, though at the time it carried with it a great dread, but all I said was, "Thanks for the story, old man."—Henry E. Haydock in Once a Week.

Lead Pencils.

The ordinary sized lead pencil, such as one gets when he goes into a store and asks for "a lead pencil," is seven inches in length and a trifle more than a quarter of an inch thick. Pencils are made in many different styles and shapes and for many uses. Special pencils of very small diameter are made for mathematical instruments. Another small diameter pencil is the programme pencil made for dancing orders, of which the sale in this country is estimated at 5,000 gross annually. Programme pencils are made round and hexagon in shape and finished in a variety of colors and styles. Some are wound with silk. Programme pencils are sold sharpened and with a ring and a cord and tassel attached, ready for use. Other small pencils made are those used for tablets and memorandum books. Checking pencils, with red, blue and green crayons, are now used extensively in commercial establishments and by express and railroad companies and in almost every office. Thousands of gross of checking pencils are sold annually, and the sale of them is constantly increasing. Crayon pencils for various uses are made of all colors and in many tints.—New York Sun.

Acid In Oysters.

In a paper read before the Paris Academy of Sciences, as reported in La Nature, Messrs. Chatin and Muntz described their experiments to determine the amount of phosphorus in different kinds of oysters. "A dozen oysters of the variety known as Portuguese contained four grams (62 grains) of phosphoric acid, representing one gram of the tribasic phosphate of lime found in boxes. The French oysters are less rich. They contain only two-thirds as much phosphorus as the Portuguese oysters. This determination is important from the point of view of the nutritive properties of different kinds of oysters."

A Toast.

God bless the free American shore!
God bless her sons who stoutly bore
The banner of the stripes and stars
Triumphant through her fiercest wars!
May wealth and peace in her abound!
May still she be by freedom crowned!
May virtue, truth and happiness
Her generous sons and daughters bless!
May heaven's choicest blessings fall
Upon her children, one and all!
Protect them, Lord, from every harm
In times of peace or war's alarm,
And may their prayer forever be,
"God bless American liberty!"
Yes, sons of freedom, shout this toast
Through all the land from coast to coast
Until its thunder tones arise
In deafening chorus to the skies,
Till distant lands shall hear the strain
And answer back the glad refrain,
Till round the earth, from pole to pole,
The echoes of its thunder roll,
Till every freeman's song shall be,
"God bless American liberty!"

AN AGGRESSIVE FIGHT

Promised by the Nomination of Campbell For Governor of Ohio.

Said to Be an Aspirant For Presidential Nomination.

Democratic and Republican Platforms Drawn on the Same Lines.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 22.—The state convention of Ohio Democrats chose for the head of its state ticket ex-Governor Campbell and the platform it adopted was built on an honest money foundation. Although Mr. Campbell had previously intimated that he had no desire to again be a candidate, he accepted the nomination.

The convention made all its nominations without opposition. The convention was in session from 10:20 a. m. until 1:40 p. m., and the nominations were completed in a half-hour after ex-Governor Campbell had been drafted for the standard bearer. The ballots were all on the minority report, on credentials and resolutions, and the time was thus consumed in the contests between the gold and the silver men.

The gold men, headed by Senator Brice, had claimed that there would be less than 800, and probably not many more than 200, of the 808 delegates vote for free silver. The silver men claimed they would have no less than 300, and probably 350, delegates for free silver. It developed that there were 270 free-silver delegates. It was a fighting minority, but it did not carry the fight further than on the platform. The nominee for member of the board of public works is said to be the only free-silver man on the state ticket, although the silver lines were not drawn on the candidates.

There was considerable enthusiasm over the nomination of Campbell. He defeated ex-Governor Foraker in 1889, and was defeated for re-election as governor in 1891 by William McKinley, Jr., the present incumbent.

JAMES E. CAMPBELL.

When nominations were called for, Mr Campbell took the floor to head off the calls for himself, and to present the name of Judge Peck of Cincinnati for governor. He was interrupted by James A. Norton who moved to suspend the rules and nominate Campbell by acclamation.

Mr. Campbell protested, saying that he had run for congress three times in a Republican district and twice for governor in a Republican state till he was depleted financially and otherwise unable to make the sacrifice for the race. He insisted on the nomination of Judge Peck or some other good Democrat who could make a good race and afford to make it. The motion of Dr. Norton was put and carried with a great whirl of enthusiasm, and the chair declared Mr. Campbell the nominee for governor.

President Ingalls and Dr. Norton escorted ex-Governor Campbell to the platform, when he was received with a grand ovation, and said:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen—I received the announcement of this committee with mingled feelings of surprise and regret. A good soldier may fall, but he dare not falter. I promise not to falter, and it is for you to say whether in the end I shall or shall not fall."

Following is

The Ticket In Full.

Governor—James E. Campbell.
Lieutenant governor—John B. Peaslee
State auditor—James W. Knott.
State treasurer—William Sholler.
Supreme judge—William T. Mooney.
Attorney general—George A. Fairbanks
Member board public works—Harry B Keefer.
Clerk of supreme court—J. W. Cruick shank.

The nomination of Campbell means an aggressive campaign in Ohio, where McKinley is now recognized as a candidate for president and Foraker for senator, the fate of both depending largely upon the pending contest between Campbell and Bushnell for governor. It is generally understood that ex-Governor Campbell was induced to make the race by promises of support for the presidential nomination, in the event of success, next November, in which contingency he may again confront his old opponent—McKinley. And in co-operating with Senator Brice for a Democratic legislature, ex-Governor Campbell is again confronting his other old opponent—Foraker.

Although Senator Brice is also known to have presidential aspirations, it is the generally accepted theory that Brice and Campbell have reached such an understanding, so as to contest everything in Ohio with McKinley and Foraker, who have everything at stake on the election of Asa Bushnell for governor and a Republican legislature next November.

It is thought that the contest between these old leaguers in Ohio will foreshadow the currency question and other issues. There is so little difference between the Republican and Democratic platforms on silver that the currency question is now generally believed to be disposed of in Ohio, but the tariff will be kept prominent, as the parties differ widely on that issue, and Governor Campbell is expected to arraign the Republican state administration of the past four years very severely, as he did in the previous campaigns.

Governor Campbell called in his friends before leaving and, with Senator Brice and others, arranged for beginning at once an aggressive campaign, in which they expect the co-operation of leading Democrats throughout the country.

For Sound Money.

The majority report of the committee on resolutions, adopted 19 to 2, cites as the work accomplished according to promises: The repeal of the Sherman law, the federal election law and the McKinley law. It congratulates President Cleveland that his efforts in favor of the repeal of these laws [illegible] the maintaining of the credit of the country have been successful. It congratulates Senator Brice "for the earnest and effective support he has given to the president in these matters." It declares that the Democratic party "is entitled to the thanks of the people for the courage with which it has attacked and repealed the tariff laws." It also reaffirms that portion of the plank of the national Democratic platform which says: "We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to the coinage of both gold and silver without discrimination against either metal or charge for mintage; but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, or be adjusted by international agreement, or by such safeguards of legislation as shall secure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the payment of debt, and we demand that the paper currency shall be kept at par and redeemable in such coin. We insist upon this policy as necessary for the protection of farmers and laboring classes, the first and most defenseless victims of unstable money and fluctuating currency." The remainder of the platform deals with state issues.

BUILT LIKE A HORSE.

Wild Man Creates Terror Among Farmers Around Injun Meadow.

He Scares Brutes as Well as Human Beings.

Posse to Organize and Make a Determined Effort at Capture.

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 23.—The wild man was seen again yesterday by passengers on Dodd's stage, en route to Winsted from Sandisfield, Mass. He was in the same tract of brush as when seen last Saturday by Selectman Smith, which is five miles from here on the old and lonesome highway leading to Colebrook.

The wild man lives in "Injun Meadow," as it is known to the countrymen. He is thought to be one of a family of three wild men seen two years ago. The man seen by Mr. Smith had no clothes, but was covered with hair. The wild man was seen in Canaan mountain a few months ago is thought to be the same person.

Farmers in that section are terrorized and afraid to go out of doors after dark, and the robberies of henneries and mysterious dissappearance of calves, lambs, and even Sandisfield and Colebrook farms are Blamed Upon the Wild Men.

Five hundred men leave here Sunday morning to hunt for the strange character. They will go out in gangs and surround Injun Meadow, and Cobble mountain farmers have given the use of their teams free, while every man of the posse is warned to go armed.

On Saturday, Riley Smith, while coming over the road, stopped to pick a few berries, but no sooner had he commenced to eat than the wild man emerged from the center of a batch of berry bushes. Smith was about scared to death. His dog commenced to whine, and with its tail between its legs sought refuge in Smith's wagon under a pile of blankets.

Mr. Smith described the man as an awful looking sight. He is large in stature and his head is the most conspicuous part of his body, being nearly the size of a horse's head. His teeth resemble those of a horse in size, but are pointed. His hands are extra large.

DIED OF PARALYSIS.

Hon. L. B. Morris, Who Held the Highest Position Within Connecticut's Gift.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—Ex-Governor Luzon B. Morris was found unconscious on the floor of his office by a caller yesterday morning. How long the ex-governor had been in that condition is not known. The indications are that he was stricken while reading his morning paper. Efforts made to bring Mr. Morris to consciousness failed, and 2:30 it was decided that the attack was one of acute apoplexy. From this time the pulse grew weaker and the ex-governor died at exactly 3 o'clock. Mr. Morris had been complaining of distress for a few days past, but attributed it to indigestion.

L. B. MORRIS.

Luzon Burritt Morris was born in Newtown, April 16, 1827. He worked in a blacksmith shop and edge tool factory in Seymour as a boy, and earned money to put him through Yale college, from which he graduated in 1854. A year later he was elected a member of the state house of representatives from Seymour, and served two terms.

In 1857 he was appointed judge of probate from the New Haven district, and removed to that city, where he has since resided. He was elected a member of the house from New Haven in 1870, and in 1874 was elected to the senate, of which he was president pro tem and also chairman of the judiciary committee. For a quarter of a century he had been a prominent member of the New Haven county bar, and served six terms as judge of probate.

In 1888 he was a candidate on the Democratic ticket for governor, but, although receiving a plurality of votes, Governor Bulkeley was seated by the legislature. Then followed the deadlock session, which was finally settled by his undisputed election to the governorship in 1893.

Mr. Morris married Eugenia L. Tuttle, daughter of Lucius Tuttle of Seymour, on June 15, 1856. She and three sons and three daughters survive him.

Proud Boston Will Be Decorated as She Never Was Before.

The City Virtually Sprinkled With Grand Stands.

Various Sub-Committees Have Been Squeezed Out of Old Quarters.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—There is no bootblack in Boston too poor to hang a Templar flag at the door to his cellar. For days men have gone about the streets selling armfuls of cheap Templar banners, and the humbler storekeepers have made their windows gay with them.

From the cheap printed flag the decorations range to grand effects on handsome business blocks and hotels. This lavish use of incandescent lights and flags and paintings, in addition to miles of bunting of varied hues, is costing Boston many thousands of dollars. When the Templars march through our crowded streets on Tuesday, they will see a city decorated as was never city before.

Day by day it becomes more apparent that no expense will be spared to make the conclave a grand success. The Templars of Massachusetts and Rhode Island will spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in entertaining their guests. The guests themselves will spend other thousands. It will be one of the gayest weeks Boston has ever seen.

And the public takes quite as deep an interest in it as do the Templars. This is evinced not alone by the extensive decoration, but by the innumerable private grand stands, erected in front of nearly every house on the line of the parade. Commonwealth avenue is solidly lined with them. So is Arlington street. The little strip of Boylston street up to Copley square contains Many Bits of Bleachers.

More are going up all the time. Columbus avenue looks to be a lane walled in by scaffolding. Massachusetts avenue has no space left for another grand stand. The upper end of Washington street is equally crowded with them, while windows are no longer available, being spoken for long ago. This does not take into consideration the large stands built by the Templars.

Already the decorators have begun their work on the grand stands, while the hotels have bloomed gorgeously. Not content with covering the buildings themselves, some hotels have run long lines of flags from flag poles on the roof, till it looks like the dress parade of a warship.

The severe attack of decoration on the interior of Mechanics' hall has broken through the walls, showing in gorgeous colors over the entrances. Bunting flaunting everywhere. Who called Boston the Puritan city?

The quarters at School street have become too small, and all the sub-committees, save the committee on hotels and the press committee, have moved to the old Public Library. As soon as they got there they decorated it, and then settled down to busy work. There were many callers at headquarters, and an atmosphere of good comradeship was evident.

Mayor Curtis has had a city grand stand built, and has sent 15 tickets to each of the aldermen, which they have returned with scorn. Fifteen seats not being large enough for one alderman to spread himself, the board will now be invited to stand on the curbstone.

Templars' March and Song.

Eminent Sir Eugene A. Holton for the past week has been at work perfecting the arrangements for the publication of the only authorized piece of music presented by the triennial committee. It is by Sir Howard M. Dow of De Molay commandery, who has, it is said, written a march of more than ordinary merit.

Sir Henry E. Barney of Boston commandery has written the words of this piece, which is entitled "In Hoc Signo Vinces," the souvenir march and song of the 26th triennial conclave of Knights Templar.

It is dedicated to Right Eminent Samuel C. Lawrence, grand commander of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The words, printed below by permission permission of the publisher, Sir F. Trifes of Boston commandery, are copyrighted:

In Hoc Signo Vinces—by the sign we conquer;
Our father still lead us; defends our free land.
Our banners are waving, our triumphs pro claiming.
Inspired by their glory, the cross goes before us;
Inspired by its glory, by this we shall stand.
For all that is noblest, for all that is blest,
Our hearts will beat ever within out true breasts;
Our hopes shall e'er be for our order so sacred;
Made strong by its wisdom, protected from schism;
We stand or we fall by the truth it contains.

This will be heard upon many occasions during the conclave, and will prove a great feature.

Cheap Fares to Boston.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Knights Templar rates went to pieces yesterday. Tickets were sold freely from $10 to $12 over the different roads, by which the regular agreed fare is $19. There seems to be a regular scramble among the roads for the business, and they appear willing to carry it for whatever is offered them. No explanation can be given for the demoralization.

Detective Murdered.

GRAND RAPIDS, Aug. 23.—Two men, answering the description of the Fennville train robbers, boarded a train at Dorr last evening and rode to Eagle Mills. Detective Powers attempted to arrest them and received a bullet in his brain. The men escaped.

Hundred Persons Reported Killed.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 23.—The Chinese soldiers stationed at Tien-Tsin revolted Wednesday and assembled outside the gates of Li Hung Chang's yamen, clamoring for their arrears of pay. Later they attacked a number of shops in the city and killed over 100 persons.

How To Eat

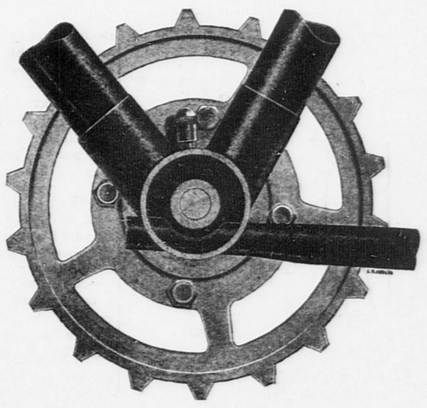

Is as much a matter of education as how to walk or how to dress. There are hundreds of individual ideas, and the best way to please every one is to let them eat as they choose. Our business, however, is to furnish the dining room with suitable, attractive, serviceable and up-to-date furniture. Of course every one doesn't know just how a dining room should be furnished to be in quite the proper style and make the expense as little as possible. But that's what we're here for—all our ideas can be yours if you'll say the word. Oak Dining Table, Side Board and Chairs, we can furnish the set complete as low as $25.00, and by adding a few dollars where you choose, you can increase the elegance.

Sprockets.

The front and rear sprockets on the "Spalding" are readily detachable, the former without removing the cranks. The front sprocket is firmly secured to the sprocket flange by four friction bolts, the axle flange being in turn screwed on the rank axle, and secured to it by our new and improved crank, which both secures itself and the sprocket flange at one operation, all crank pins and sprocket keyes being dispensed with, and the tread narrowed without decreasing the distance between the crank hanger ball cases, this combination insuring absolute strength and reliability with the advantage of easy removal of cranks, sprocket, cones or bearing cases, for exchange or repair.

LADY BLANCHE WON.

After Losing Two Heats She Took the Next Three.

Those who went to Franklin park Thursday to see their favorite, Lady Blanche, were not disappointed, for the bay mare won the purse of $500 in the 2.26 class. Lady Blanche is owned by J. W. Dennen of this city and was driven by Foley. The Journal reports the race as follows.

The third race called was the 2.26 class, with five horses at the wire, and Miss Albert for a strong choice. Silver Belle was at the pole. Lady Blanche took the pole and the lead to the half, with Miss Albert at her shoulder. At this point in the mile Lady Blanche made a skip, and Miss Albert came on easy and won in 2.19¼.

In the second heat in this race there was nothing but little Miss Albert all the mile. Lady Blanche gave her a race at her shoulder from the quarter to the half, when the little mare went out front to win. Lady Blanche was at a break as she came into the stretch, and Belle Brandon beat her out for the place. The time was 2.21, and Miss Albert won.

Miss Albert made a break going away and Lady Blanche took the pole and the lead and never was headed. She won the heat in 2 19 1 4, with Miss Albert in the place.

It was Lady Blanche all the way in the fourth heat, without a contest. Miss Albert was way back and just escaped the flag. Lady Blanche won in a walk. Belle Brandon was second, and the time was 2.20.

In the fifth heat Miss Albert went dead lame and refused to score down for the word. Her nigh hind leg was so sore she refused to step on it, and she was drawn and taken to the stable. Lady Blanche won the heat easily in 2.20½, and the race.

Five drunks were arraigned on Thursday: William McNair of Weymouth was released. Cornelius Connell of Weymouth paid $10. Bernard Griffin and Joseph Fee of Quincy, paid $5 each, and Madan Johnson in default of fine was committed.

Struck by Locomotive.

Shortly after four o'clock on Thursday afternoon a tramp named John H. Smith, hailing from Boston, while walking on the railroad track near President's bridge was struck by an outward train. Calvin Dyer, the Superintendent of Streets, was near by at the time and brought the man to the police station. He was struck on the shoulder, but Dr. Welch found no bones broken. Smith spent the night at the station, and continued his tramp today.

THE SOUTH SHORE.

Many Quincy Gentlemen Enrolled in Commandery.

T. John Evans of Weymouth the Eminent Commander.

Instituted in 1870 and Now Has a Membership of 200.

For some months South Shore commandery, Knights Templar, whose asylum is at East Weymouth, has been preparing for the triennial conclave in Boston. The attendance at meetings has been large and the knights have become proficient in drill. The final drill will be held at Weymouth Saturday afternoon, in full uniform. On this occasion the ladies will be present and they will present the commandery with an American flag.

The LEDGER has already given the programme of the commandery for Aug. 27 in Boston and Aug. 29 in Quincy, and presents below a sketch of South Shore commandery which was instituted June 9, 1870.

It was formed from a part of Old Colony commandery of Abington, and now comprises about 200 members including many of the most prominent and influential citizens of Weymouth, Quincy, Braintree, Hingham and Cohasset.

He is a veteran of the late war, having served in the 4th Massachusetts cavalry, and is president of the veteran association. He is a member of Reynolds post, 58, G. A. R. Although not aspiring for public office, he has held numerous offices of trust and high rank in several local orders, having been chairman of the board of trustees of the Knights of Honor for a number of years, and is secretary of Orphans' Hope lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Weymouth. His Masonic record has been a gradual ascension from his first degree. He is a member of Orphans' Hope lodge, A. F. and A. M., and Pentalpha chapter, R. A. chapter. He is a 32d degree Mason, and has taken the degree of the Mystic Shrine. Mr. Evans is at present connected with the firm of Messrs. Edwin Clapp & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers of East Weymouth, and is a director in the Weymouth & Braintree electric railroad corporation. Mr. Evans is a member of the general triennial committee, committee on exhibition templar drill and of the general reception committee.

Its first commander was Em. Sir Zechariah L. Bicknell, who has been a prominent citizen of East Weymouth for many years, serving on the board of selectmen for a number of years, and representing the town in the legislature for several terms.

The successors of Em. Com. Bicknell have been Em. Sir George W. Fay, Em. Sir William Humphrey, Em. Sir William S. Wallace, Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass, Em. Sir William Fearing, 2d, Em. Sir A. J. Garey, Em. Sir T. H. Humphrey, Em. Sir George Cushing.

Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass is one of the most prominent citizens of Quincy. For several years he has served in the City Council and is now the President of that body. He was mentioned for mayor last year and may be elected to the executive chair of the young granite city within a few years.

Em. Sir George W. Fay, deceased, was a 33d degree Mason, and one of the most widely-known Masons in the country.

Em. Sir T. H. Humphrey is a prominent citizen of Weymouth, having served for several years on the board of selectmen, and at present water commissioner of the town.

Em. Sir George Cushing is at present postmaster at Hingham, and chief of the fire department.

Em. Sir A. J. Garey is well known in Weymouth, having held several public offices, at one time being postmaster of the village.

Charles N. Marsh, recorder of this commandery, has held this position for nearly 22 years, having been elected for the first time in 1873. Mr. Marsh was born in Weymouth. He has gained the confidence and respect of all who know him, which is clearly shown by his public career. He has served as town clerk of Hingham for nearly forty years, represented that town in the legislature for several terms, and is at present messenger in the house of representatives, a position which he has held for a number of years. He is purser on the steamer Mayflower, plying between Boston and Nantasket. Mr. Marsh is past master of Old Colony lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Hingham, and is a member of Pentalpha R. A. chapter of Weymouth.

EM. SIR E. W. H. BASS.

Sir Francis A. Bicknell, a member and officer of the commandery, represented Quincy and Weymouth in the Legislature for a number of years, was chairman of the board of registrars for several terms, and is at present connected with the state aid commission.

Col. B. S. Lovell, Senator John F. Merrill and Representative George L. Wentworth are members of this commandery.

From the first this organization has been composed of active, earnest men, who have done all in their power to enhance the interests of their order.

The asylum where the commandery meets is in the Masonic building on Broad street, Weymouth, and is one of the most attractive in the state, the interior fittings being very fine.

The South Shore has always been represented at the conclaves, delegations being present at Denver, Col.; San Francisco, Cal., Washington, D. C., and other cities.

Sir Arthur M. Raymond of this commandery has composed a march entitled, "South Shore Commandery," which will be rendered for the first time by the Weymouth band in the parade.

The commandery has prepared a very pretty "exchange badge." South Shore, the name of the commandery, is inscribed in gilt on the bar, which is of black enamel, with a fancy border of gold, on which is "1870" in black letters. Pendant from the bar is a maltese cross upon cross swords, and surrounded by scroll work of gold, which bears Weymouth, Mass., at the top, and at the bottom the Latin words, "Non nobis, Domine non nobis sed nomimi tuo da gloriam." The ross is of white enamel bordered with gold, and has at the centre the red cross of St. George, which also has a gold border, and which is encircled by a narrow band of gold, on which, in black letters, is the Latin phrase, "Magna est veritas et prevolobit." The maltese cross is upon a much larger Latin cross of red enamel, bordered with gold, which bears a raised gilt crown upon the lower arm and the letters K and T also in gold upon either of the vertical arms. On the left of the upper arm of this cross is a very small Templar cross of red enamel upon a small patriarchal cross.

ACCESS TO WALLER.

The State Department Has Been Working Actively in His Behalf.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Acting Secretary of State Adee authorizes the statement that information from Minister Eustis, in reference to urgent instructions cabled him some three weeks ago, is that the record of evidence and proceedings of the court-martial of Mr. Waller at Tamatave is expected to reach Paris toward the end of this month.

Mr. Eustis also reports that access to Mr. Waller has been accorded to him after repeated and urgent requests made on the reiterated orders of the department of state. The department not having been advised whether Mr. Eustis has taken advantage of this permission to delegate a competent deputy to visit the prison where Mr. Waller is at present confined and confer with him, Mr. Adee has instructed him by telegraph that he should do so at once, if not already done.

Mr. Adee adds that it is hoped that the production of evidence before the court-martial will enable the department to form a judgment touching the conviction of Mr. Waller. The international right of this government to demand the evidence upon which conviction was reached—in order that it may determine its action in the case, is unquestionable—and is fortified by abundant precedent.

In the case of the American citizen lately tried by court-martial in Honolulu on charges of treason to the government of the Hawaiian republic, the proceedings of the court were asked for, and the documents were promptly forthcoming.

Slight Mishap to Defender.

BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 23.—Another mishap befell the Defender while on her way from New London to this harbor yesterday. At about 2:30 she appeared to have come to an anchorage off Hog Island lightship, but, instead, she was aground. The deep keel took bottom on the shoal that runs off from Hog island, and the Defender was again practically helpless. The same tactics which have been successful in previous mishaps of the same sort were at once tried, and shortly afterward the yacht cleared, and was soon standing up the harbor. She dropped anchor off the Herreshoff dock about 4 o'clock. Workmen were waiting for her at the dock, and at once begun the work of overhauling her.

Frenchmen Are Excited.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—A letter from Tamatave says that the French are incensed at the commander of the American cruiser Castine for refusing to salute the garrison and to accord other customary courtesies, on the ground that America has not recognized the French protectorate. The Americans have also caused irritation by persisting in a personal investigation of the Waller case. The commander of the Castine consulted United States Consul Wetter before deciding not to salute the garrison.

Narrowing Down.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 23.—The expected stoppage of the railway by French warships causes great excitement here. It is felt that this is a crucial point where England must make a determined stand against French aggression or else sacrifice Newfoundland's prosperity, which chiefly depends upon the development of internal resources made available by the completion of the railway. Premier Whiteway has started for Bay of Islands, where trouble is expected to arise.

Whisky Trust's New Name.

ALBANY, Aug. 23.—The reorganization of the Whisky trust was consummated yesterday in the incorporation of the American Spirits Manufacturing company, with a capital stock of $35,000,000, for "Distilling and dealing in spirits, including the distilling, redistilling and rectifying of high wines, alcohol, spirits, gins and whiskies, and malting and dealing in malt."

Bad Shooting Scrape.

LINCOLN, Ills., Aug. 23.—While under arrest, a negro, supposed to be Albert Phoenix, shot his companion, Frank Phoenix, colored, and also shot Private Watchman Blackford, and M. A. Rogers, who went to the watchman's assistance. The shooter escaped. The two negroes were being taken to the police station when the shooting began.

Tempest In a Teapot.

LIMA, Aug. 23.—The question at issue between Peru and Bolivia has been settled as a result of a conference held yesterday. It has been agreed that the question of a salute to the Bolivian flag at Peru, which has been demanded by the Bolivian government, shall be submitted to the arbitration of another American republic.

Carpet Weavers Winning.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—The ingrain carpet weavers of this city, who went on strike some weeks ago for an increase of 7 per cent in wages, have won the fight. Of the 61 firms involved, all but 20 have signed the new scale granting the advance, and the remainder will doubtless follow suit at an early day.

Patchen Defeats Gentry.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Joe Patchen yesterday won the match race against John R. Gentry in straight heats. As a wind that amounted to almost a gale blew, a sensational time performance was out of the question. The three heats were covered in 2:03¼, 2:07¼ and 2:07¼.

For Free Coinage.

OMAHA, Aug. 23.—Five delegates composed the Democratic state convention which assembled here to nominate a supreme court justice and two university regents. The platform favors immediate restoration of free coinage 16 to 1.

Built First Tea Clippers.

GLASGOW, Aug. 23.—Peter Denny, one of the best known shipbuilders on the Clyde, died at Dumbarton yesterday. He was about 80 years of age, and was the first builder of the ships known as "China tea clippers."

To Place the Blame.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Assistant Secretary McAdoo has ordered a court of inquiry to meet at the New York navy yard Tuesday next to investigate the docking of the cruiser Columbia at Southampton.

Nabbed by Comstock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Anthony Comstock yesterday arrested Dr. Jones on the charge of counterfeiting. Comstock says Jones is wanted in almost every state in the Union to answer charges preferred.

Colombia Asked to Settle.

COLON, Aug. 23.—The United States legation has lodged a claim against the republic of Colombia on behalf of Mr. Cherry, the holder of a concession for the Cauca railroad.

It is Known By Its Cures

It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit.

The thousands of people whom it has raised from disease and despair to happiness and health, are the strongest and best advertisements Hood's Sarsaparilla has. No other preparation in existence has such a record of wonderful cures.

Brocktonians Like It.

A trip by way of the electrics which is beginning to come into warm favor as the season progresses is from this city to Nantasket Beach. The electrics run as far as Quincy Point. There a steamer is taken for Nantasket. The combination of the ride on the cars and the boat is a very pleasant one, at the same time a cheap one, hence its popularity. The entire cost of the trip is very small, amounting to something like 28 cents each way, and not at all in proportion to the pleasure which can be derived from the journey on a hot Sunday, when to remain idle in the city is to swelter and be as uncomfortable generally as a man at a new woman's convention.—Brockton Enterprise.

—At the sale of effects of the Tisdale estate at New Bedford recently, a framed order for half a barrel of pork, in Daniel Webster's handwriting, written at Washington and asking Porter Wright to forward it to that city, was sold for $1.90. Mr. Wright, who is still living in Marshfield, was for many years a trusted agent of Mr. Webster at his country residence.

—The Democratic State convention will be held at Worcester on Wednesday, Oct. 2d. Josiah Quincy will preside.

Supper of First Importance.

Punctuality is the soul of business, as was fully illustrated yesterday to a well known Wollaston storekeeper. Having occasion to visit Boston he left the store in charge of the head clerk agreeing to return by a certain train, but owing to unforseen circumstances he did not return by the train agreed upon but came on the next about an hour later. Imagine his dismay on arriving at his store to find the clerk in the act of firmly fastening the doors and windows with nails. In response to enquiries the clerk replied that his usual supper hour having arrived and not being in possession of a key to the store he thus took the most effectual means in his power to keep out intruders during his absence. The storekeeper has decided that "punctuality" will be his motto in the future.

Couldn't See the Joke.

One evening last week there sat in a North Side beer garden two stout old Germans enjoying their pipes and lager beer and placidly listening to the strains of an orchestra. In moving his chair one of them stepped on a parlor match, which exploded with a bang.

"Dot vas not on de programme," he said, turning to his companion.

"Vat was not?"

"Vy, dot match."

"Vat match?"

"De match I valked on."

"Vell, I didn't see no match. Vat abound it?"

"Vy, I walked on a match, and it went bang, and I said it vas not on de programme."

The other picked up his programme and read it through very carefully. "I don't see it on the programme," he said.

"Vell, I said it vas not on the programme, didn't I?"

"Vell, vat has it got to do mit the programme, anyvay?"

A weary look came over the face of the first man as he said: "You tam fool! You can't see no choke, anyvay. Zwei beer, waiter."—Chicago Chronicle.

The Old Fashioned Flowers.

"What do I care for orchids and American Beauties and all those other expensive things under glass? How much does it please me to have two great big formal beds of gladiolus and foliage plants in the front yards, one on each side of the steps? No; what I want is a bed of portulaca, and some cypress vines running up strings to the top of a pole. As soon as I get poor enough to afford it I am going to have a lot of phlox and London pride and bachelor's buttons out there in the back yard, and the girls can sun their clothes somewhere else."

"It's hard to keep flowers in a city," said Jane.

"I know it is," said Mrs. Bates. "At our old home we had such a nice little rosebush in the front yard I hated so to leave it behind—one of those little yellow brier roses. No; it wasn't yellow. It was just yaller, and it always scratched my nose when I tried to smell it. But, oh, child," wistfully, "if I could only smell it now!"—"With the Procession," H. B. Fuller.

A Foundation Sacrifice.

It was recently ascertained that the tower of Darrington church, about four miles from Pontefract, had suffered some damage during the winter gales. The foundations were carefully examined, when it was found that under the west side of the tower, only about a foot deep from the surface, the body of a man had been placed in a sort of bed in the solid rock, and the west wall was actually resting upon his skull. The gentle vibration of the tower had opened the sutures in the skull and caused a crack of about 2½ inches long. The grave must have been prepared and the wall placed with deliberate intention upon the head of the person buried, and this was done with such care and art that all remained as placed for at least 600 years—till, in fact, the storm of December last found out the weak place. The spot can still be seen, being protected by a framework of bricks.—Yorkshire Herald.

Bumble's Staff.

Bumble is disappearing from sacred places, but his staff, which was his chiefest pride, remains and is carefully preserved in the vestries of many London churches. The glory of the staff was its knob. Some of these knobs present some very elaborate specimens of silver carving, for, in addition to the ordinary plain pear shaped knobs, there were staff tops representing buildings, crosses, crowns, medallions, statuettes and various other objects. Some of these staves have a historical interest. The beadle's staff of St. Giles in the Fields, the top of which is a figure of old Time, with his scythe erect in his right hand, was used in the church in which Archbishop Laud officiated, in 1623. And St. Giles, Cripplegate, possesses one which was presented to the parish in 1693.—New York Herald.

MOST DISMAL FAILURE

Campos Campaign Has Been a Waste of Lives, Money and Time.

A High Strata of Society Joining the Insurgents.

Spain's Refusal of Autonomy Means Cuba's Annexation to America.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A Times dispatch from Havana urges the necessity of large concessions in the direction of autonomy, or else even loyal Cubans will drift into disloyalty. "The only alternative is a costly campaign in men and money," the correspondent adds, "followed by the occupation of the island by 50,000 men for a decade."

"I am unable authentically to discover the source of the rebels' funds. Very little is obtained in Cuba. I am assured from revolutionary sources that the Cuban colonies at Key West subscribe $7000 to $10,000 weekly to the revolutionary committee in New York, but I doubt whether it is paid with regularity."

In an editorial on the foregoing The Times also says: The failure of Campos to suppress the rebellion has caused bitter disappointment at Madrid. We sympathize heartily with Spain's patriotic determination to hold Cuba at any sacrifice, and we admire her energy, however misdirected, in resisting projects for further disintegration and plots concocted in foreign countries to foment rebellion among her subjects.

At the same time it is suicidal folly for any nation to obstinately refuse to look facts in the face. Englishmen have no desire to see Cuba separated from Spain. The movement for annexation to America is opposed by most intelligent and independent American of all parties, and for obvious political reasons annexation to America would be regarded with Little Favor by British Statesmen.

We should be well pleased if Spain were able to arrive at a practical settlement with her rebellious subjects, but that demands a quality of statesmanship far higher than has yet been displayed, and if General Campos is to gain a victory he must show greater energy and ingenuity than hitherto. General Campos only opened his eyes after the fight at Bayamo, on July 12, to the fact that the insurgents were armed, disciplined and provided with ammunition.

Without the havoc which yellow fever and dysentery have played and will play with the troops arriving at this sickly season, the constant and aimless marching and countermarching of the last three months itself have sufficed to invalid men by wholesale, without help from epidemic disease.

A remarkable characteristic in the spread of the rebellion is the higher strata of society now joining the insurgent ranks. General Campos has tried to treat with the rebels and has failed; he has tried to suppress them and has failed; he has tried to patch up a reconciliation and has equally failed. The rebels have been quick to profit by his mistakes.

A three years' campaign will cost Spain £30,000,000 sterling, which she cannot afford. Giving autonomy will be a bitter pill, but unless it is swallowed the embryo movement for annexation to America may gather strength until it becomes irresistible.

Warehouses Ablaze.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—Fire broke out yesterday in the Union steamboat dock and warehouse on the Menominee river. The fire was not got under control until all the warehouses (which were mostly frame) for six blocks along the west side of the river were burned with their contents, including much freight. The loss will foot up probably $800,000 to $500,000. A boy named McManus was run over and killed by a supply coal wagon of the fire department during the progress of the fire.

Left to Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — Ex-Senator Manderson has telegraphed Controller of the Treasury Bowler that he had forwarded a motion to refer the whole question of the payment of the sugar bounty appropriation to the secretary of the treasury on account of the peculiar language of the appropriation law, which he claims takes the matter out of the hands of the regular accounting officers of the government.

Plotters at Work.

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—A revolutionary movement, connected with which many arrests have been made, has been discovered at Odessa. Plans looking to a general uprising had been made, and the situation is said to be very strained. The government seems to be prepared for all eventualities.

White Elephants.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The navy department does not know what to do with the torpedo boats built for the battleships Texas and Maine. These boats have failed to make the time required for torpedo service, and, in the opinion of naval experts, they will be useless in battle.

In Behalf of Indians.

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Aug. 23.—Rev. W. D. Cleveland has left South Dakota for the scene of the late Indian troubles at Jackson's Hole, to investigate the causes leading up to the recent trouble. He goes at the request of the Indians' Rights association of Philadelphia.

Lost His Courage.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 23.—John McKennon, 59 years old, was struck by a train here yesterday afternoon and killed. Three companions state that he deliberately jumped in front of the engine. McKennon was out of work and had grown despondent.

Spofford's Case.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Concerning the charges against Congressional Librarian Spofford, it is stated here that even if the published statement be found to be true, it is unlikely that he will be liable to any penalty except dismissal from office.

First Race on Sept. 7.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The America's cup committee have selected Sept. 7 next as the day on which the first of the series of races between Valkyrie III and Defender shall be held.

Railway Litigation.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—The hearing on the application of Brayton Ives for the removal of the receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad company began here yesterday.

MERITED REWARD.

SALES OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkham's wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms, — Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

The Country Doctor.

The country doctor! Let the bard
Whose lyre is tuned to idle praise—
His locks unshorn, his face unmarred
By sweat and grime, his hands unscarred
By daily toil—in dulcet lays,
In empty word and hollow phrase
Recount the annals of the great;
Let him record and celebrate
Their noble deeds, their pomp and state,
Their wisdom, all, perpetuate.
A humbler theme to you I bring—
The smell of flow'rs, the breath of spring,
The flutter of the bluebird's wing—
And with it all I bring to you
The country doctor, good and true.

Ah, ye who traverse city streets
On swaying springs and cushioned seats,
The difficulties that he meets,
The bumps and jolts, ye little know,
Through seas of mud, o'er wastes of snow
Where icy tempests howl and blow,
In pouring rain where torrents flow
And sheen and shadow come and go,
Astride the sorriest of nags
And armed with spur and saddlebags,
He onward works his weary way,
And be it night, or be it day,
He never falters nor looks back
Adown the steep and rugged track,
But sets his teeth and onward plods,
Himself a clod among the clods.

The city doctor spends his days
In crowded marts and traveled ways.
At night he sees the latest plays
And rests his half enchanted gaze
On some new "star" that lights the stage—
A star of most uncertain age
Of whom the critics rant and rage.
The country doctor, poor, despised,
His purse half starved and undersized,
Contents himself to stay at home.
The only stars he ever knows
Are those that rest in heaven's dome
And light the waste on winter snows.

The country doctor! Blessed be he
Who sets the weary suff'rer free
From burning fever, racking pain
And countless ills, and does it, too,
Without a thought or hope of gain,
Without a single credit in view.
I come to sing in praise of him
Whose soul is fat, whose purse is slim,
Whose eyesight keen, whose foresight dim,
For, caring naught for fame or pelf,
While there's a crust upon the shelf
He works for fun and boards himself.

FRESH COURAGE.

Nichols' Fine Work Enables the Bostons to Again Defeat Louisvilles.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Weyhing, who on Tuesday held the Bostons down to five hits, was placed in the box again by Louisville to, if possible, repeat the trick. He was, however, unsuccessful, and the exchampions by their magnificent playing infused new life into the hearts of their supporters. Nichols was the young man to wreck Weyhing's chance for another victory, by holding the Colonels down to five hits, and allowed them nothing but goose eggs until the eighth. Both teams put up an exceptionally fine fielding game, some of the plays made by individual men being marvelous.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 25. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Conquering difficulties with Christ's help.—II Cor. xi, 24-28; xii, 7-10.

1. Difficulties (II Cor. xi, 24-28). In these verses Paul recounts the trials and tribulations that he had endured as a servant of Jesus Christ, and the long list of calamities place vividly before us the difficult path of the faithful and true servant of Christ. He had been beaten, stoned, shipwrecked, attacked by robbers, by his own countrymen and by the heathen, and had suffered much from physical privations, such as hunger, thirst and cold, and in addition to all these things there was his great anxiety for the churches which he had organized, and over which he had a general supervision. It seems hardly possible that so much that was difficult and had to be borne should have been the lot of one man, and yet Paul's experience is only that of all disciples of Christ. "Strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leads to life." The pathway of every Christian is strewn with hardships and difficulties. There are adversities, calamities, difficulties, doubts, privations, mysteries, afflictions and sorrows to be met upon every side. The one consolation in it all is that we do not meet these difficulties single handed. There is one who strengthens us, and it is through Him that strengthens us that we are enabled to do all things.

2. Conquering difficulties with Christ's help (II Cor. xii, 7-10). While troubled much in his Christian life, Paul was yet singularly blessed by his Master, and that he might not be too much exalted over these superior advantages there was given to him some affliction which he calls "a thorn in the flesh." Paul prayed three times that this might be removed, yet it was not, but instead Christ gave him grace to bear it, saying unto him, "My grace is sufficient for thee." In answer to our prayers Christ will not always remove difficulties and obstacles from our path, but He will give us the strength to conquer them. The Christian is able to undergo every trial, to brave every sort of suffering, to overcome every variety of temptation, to perform every duty because Christ helps him by His teaching, by His own patient example in enduring hardships and particularly by the abundant bestowal of His Holy Spirit.

A Few Suggestions.

The members of one Australian society have agreed among themselves to pray regularly for one another, and a special hour is set aside on Sunday morning for this purpose. All the officers pray for one another by name, and the committees do likewise.

The Christian Endeavor cause across the water is of the genuine stripe. In England one society has, in addition to the regular committees, an "old people's committee" and an "associate members' committee." Societies on this side of the Atlantic may well heed this hint.

A capital suggestion is that no meeting of a Christian Endeavor society be allowed to pass without some item of missionary information being presented and a missionary prayer being offered. The missionary committee is made responsible for this. There is no subject with which the great missionary theme cannot accord.—Golden Rule.

Remember These Proverbs.

He whose goal is better never finds best.

Who hates not rightly will not rightly love.

Do not let your clothes smother your souls.

Blank cartridge, big gun; all talk and nothing done.

Seek God for Himself, or you will never find Him for yourself.

The rivulet can fill a bottomless cup as well as Niagara could.

You will take nothing from church unless you take much to church.

For a cracked boat a pound of putty is better than a ton of cargo.—Golden Rule.

Enduring All Things.

Paul made the sanctified soul a well rounded character, broad and liberal, that could "endure all things," could be just as much of a saint in the kitchen on a July day as in the parlor on a holiday, just as pious behind the counter six days in the week as in the pew on the Sabbath.—Mrs. C. F. Wilder.

Christian Endeavor Briefs.

The Irish Wesleyan Methodist church has practically decided to adopt the Christian Endeavor society as the official young people's movement of the denomination, instead of a Wesleyan guild.

The North Carolina state colors are white, green and gold—white for purity, green for growth and gold for sunshine.

South Carolina's Endeavorers are loyal to their churches. From the latest statistics it is learned that 97 per cent regularly attend the Sunday services, over 50 per cent regularly attend the midweek prayer meeting, and nearly 20 per cent are teachers in the Sunday school.

The territory covered by the Canadian Northwest Territories union extends north and south 367 miles and east and west 711 miles. Sixty-five societies, with a membership of 1,553, are reported.

It has been found that there are only six countries into which Christian Endeavor has not penetrated.

For genuine happiness and true mirth give me any one of the many Christian Endeavor socials that I have attended. —Bishop Rondthaler, D. D.

The Epworth league, at its biennial convention, held at Chattanooga, used the great tent used at Cleveland by the Christian Endeavor convention.

DEFENDER ALL RIGHT.

Such Is the Positive Declaration of Those Who Built Her.

The Few Slight Accidents Were Unavoidable.

Workmen Busily Engaged In Preparing Her For the Cup Race.

BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 24.—The many rumors which have been circulated during the past few days regarding the condition of the Defender were given a quietus yesterday afternoon by a positive statement made by John B. Herreshoff, in which he said that there was nothing the matter with the "crack" boat, and that she had more than met the highest expectations of her builders.

The several recent accidents which have happened to the Defender, including the fact that she has run aground twice, and her withdrawal last Tuesday from the race with the Gould boat, have led many people to believe the designers and builders were sadly disappointed at the outcome of their labors.

Mr. Herreshoff said that the newspapers had used him very unfairly, having published many stories in which there had been not a particle of truth. "In the first place," Mr. Herreshoff continued, "there is nothing the matter with the Defender and never has been. The boat was as sound as a dollar when taken off of the ways, and is just as sound today. The reports that her hull had been wrenched, either on the ways or in any of the trial spins or races, were entirely without foundation.

Accidents Unavoidable.

The breaking of the first mast and many of the slight accidents, Mr. Herreshoff said, were unavoidable. Regarding the action of the Defender on Tuesday last, Herreshoff stated that it was discovered that the second mast was scarcely strong enough for the new rigging, and in order to prevent any serious accident after the steel boom and gaff were placed in position, the Defender was brought back to Bristol in order that she might be thoroughly overhauled and everything done that could be done to prevent any future accident.

As soon as the boat arrived, the work of overhauling her was commenced. In a short time she was stripped of her rigging, with the mainboom and mainsail lying on deck. As soon as the new mast is put in position, the steel boom will be put on. The Defender will then be ready to protect the cup from the Valkyrie III. Mr. Herreshoff is of the opinion that this work will be completed by Monday or Tuesday at the latest

The reason why the sloop went aground on Hog island was because of a miscalculation. The Defender draws fully six foot more water than the Vigilant, even when the latter has her centerboard down, and Captain Haff did not allow for so great a difference in the draft of the boats. The Defender slid on the bar gently, as the breeze was only a light one, and she worked off gradually, so that no harm was done.

Master of Many Languages.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Aug. 24.—There is now but little doubt that John P. Cowles, whose wife resides in this town, has met death in South America. It is thought that he was killed during one of the insurrections in Granada. Mr. Cowles was appointed in 1880 by President Hayes vice consul and interpreter at Foo-Choo, and held the place until nearly the close of President Cleveland's first administration, returning to the United States in 1891. He was the son of the late Rev. J. P. Cowles of Ipswich, and a linguist of considerable note, speaking many languages. In 1869 he was sent to Foo-Choo by a Boston tea house, and spent over 20 years in the Celestial kingdom.

Wrecker Confesses.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Aug. 24.—The mystery as to the condition of the switch which caused the wreck of the New York express on Aug. 10 is fully explained. Evidence was received warranting the arrest of Harry Lord, 15 years old. He was given a hearing last night before Justice Williams, and the boy confessed. He was passing the switch a few minutes before the express was due, and seeing the ball and lever, wondered if he could throw them over. He did so, leaving the switch leading to the side track, then went home, not realizing the danger. The justice held him for the September grand jury, and he secured bail in the sum of $200.

The Clothing Trades Strike.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—The backbone of the strike seems broken, all but eight of the contractors having now signed the agreement and given real estate bonds to keep it. The clothing trades council had decided that all the remaining contractors who have not signed the schedule by tonight will have to pay full wages to their employes if they remain idle after next Monday. The strikers are jubilant over the outcome of the strike, and may increase the weekly dues to establish such a strike fund that the contractors will hesitate before again causing a conflict between the union and themselves.

The Pawtucket Tragedy.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 24.—Patrick O'Day, who shot and killed his wife yesterday, was arraigned before Judge Shove. He pleaded guilty, and was held without bail to await the action of the grand jury O'Day is 45 years old, and a man of temperate habits. People have been telling him stories regarding his wife's actions, which are, in fact, declared to be untrue. He brooded much over the stories, and about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning O'Day, after striking his wife with the revolver, fired two shots which took effect in her temple, killing her almost instantly.

Murder at Waltham.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 24.—Gus Johnson, a colored laborer, was shot and almost instantly killed by Albert Crawford yesterday afternoon. Crawford, also colored, was placed under arrest. The two men had been quarreling all day over a debt of $9, which Johnson alleged Crawford owed him. Finally Johnson drew a revolver to shoot Crawford, but before he could use it Crawford drew his own and shot Johnson through the breast. Johnson fell, and fired a shot, but it went wide of its mark. Johnson expired in a few minutes.

Prominent Labor Leader Dead.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 24.—Richard McGuy died yesterday of a complication of diseases. He was a weaver by trade, but devoted himself to speaking that brought labor and capital into conflict for the advancement of labor interests. He became a master workman of the Rhode Island Knights of Labor, and was the recognized leader in many successful strikes. On a labor ticket he was three times elected to the city council.

With $1,000,000 Capital.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 24.—The Mosler Safe company of Hamilton, O., the Mosler Safe and Lock company of Cincinnati, and the Corliss Safe company of this city have been consolidated under the name of the Mosler Safe company of New York. The capital stock is $1,000,000. The Corliss works at Auburn are to be started immediately, and will be running in full capacity by the year's end.

Fernald Found.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 24.—Oscar E. Fernald, the young man who disappeared some weeks ago on the day set for his wedding, has turned up in New Haven. His brother traced him there. When asked what possessed him to go away he told the ancient yarn about finding himself in a strange city with no idea how he got there. The customary "perfect blank" had overspread his mind.

Cattle Prohibition.

HARTFORD, Aug. 24.—The state board of agriculture has prohibited the importation of meat cattle into this state except under certain regulations. They may be kept in quarantine until slaughtered, or may be brought in for exhibition and held in quarantine. No other cattle shall be brought in unless certified to as having been tested with the tuberculin test.

Burns Declines.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 24.—Manager Burns of the Springfield team received a telegram yesterday from President Freedman of the New York club asking him to go to New Brunswick for a consultation concerning the future management of the New York Giants. Manager Burns replied that he could not leave his team until the finish of the season.

Rival Knights of Labor.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—Two fighting factions of the Knights of Labor are contending as to which shall be recognized in the Labor day parade. Each has elected a marshal for the Knights of Labor division and the chief marshal has the delicate task of deciding which is entitled to the honor.

Colored Man Won.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—A 15-round go for a decision between John E. Butler of Lynn, the colored lightweight champion of New England, and John A. Sullivan of Providence, resulted in a knockout in the eighth round, Butler flooring his opponent.

Perhaps Lost.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 24.—Considerable anxiety is felt for the safety of John Mason, a shoe manufacturer, and Harry Buckley, shoe salesman. Four days ago the men left Marblehead in a yacht bound for Hampton Beach. They have not yet arrived there, and it is feared they are lost.

Operatives' Grievances.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 24.—Factory inspectors have made frequent visits here during the past few weeks to investigate complaints regarding the non-enforcement of the particulars bill. Operatives think no action has been taken against the corporations, and are talking of protesting.

Successful Thus Far.

MILTON, Mass. Aug. 24.—W. A. Eddy sent a kite up 600 feet above the Blue Hill observatory yesterday afternoon. Four photographs were taken in midair, with the wind blowing at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The experiments thus far have been very satisfactory.

FAIR WEATHER NEEDED

To Insure the Parade of the Knights Templar on Tuesday Next.

Police Arrangements Will Be of the Best.

Souvenir of the Twenty-Sixth Triennial Conclave Has Been Issued.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—The clubs in the city have made preparations for entertainmentduring the week. The Trade club has opened its house to all Sir Knights, and the Boston Press club will be open to all visiting newspaper men.

The subject most talked of is the parade, and it should be so, for, with the 30,000 Sir Knights and the 3000 musicians, it will be an event of great magnitude. The list of bands is closed, and they are all good, solid marching bands. There will be no special feature, as was at first thought. There will be a small band from Hamilton, Ont., and one from Topeka. The Boston and Massachusetts bands will be scattered through the procession. There is a Texas band coming, which is awaited with some curiosity.

If it should rain heavily on Tuesday, the parade will not take place. The banners and expensive regalia of the Knights make it out of the question to parade in the rain, and to postpone the parade until Wednesday would also be impossible, as the laws of the order prevent any parading while the conclave is in session, except for the purpose of escort duty. Therefore, rain will indefinitely postpone this event.

At the head of the parade will be Deputy Superintendent Orrinton M. Hanscom, on horseback, in charge of a detail of 13 men. Ahead of him will be a few skirmishers to clear the crowd. All of the large observation stands will have plenty of policemen near them, and, in fact, a blue-coated guardian of the peace will be seen every few feet and on both sides of the line of march.

The Official Publication.

The publication committee have completed their work by issuing yesterday the handsome souvenir volume of the 26th triennial. It is an exceedingly beautiful volume in a cover of green and gold. Within the long covers are found half-tone portraits of Grand Master McCurdy, Chief Marshal Lawrence, Edwin B. Holmes and Thomas S. Webb, one of the early grand masters. Here, also, are the old buildings in which the early Boston Templars used to meet, illustrating a vivid story of "Incidents in Massachusetts." One of the features of the book is a sketch of the order of Knights Templar.

The grand officers of the grand encampment are given a prominent place in the book. They are followed by lists of the triennial committee and the sub-committees, together with a revised edition of the notable general order No. 3, in which the details of the parade are given.

The book also includes many full page illustrations of points of interest in Boston, Providence and Springfield. Boston advertisers have patronized it liberally. The publication committee has accomplished its purpose in making the volume a permanent memento of the 26th triennial conclave, as well as to give much information to visiting Sir Knights, which will be of use to them during their stay in Boston.

Rate Slashing Begun.

The Lake Shore, Michigan Central, New York Central and connections announce that the return portions of tickets in the hands of original purchasers will be honored from Boston and intermediate points between Aug. 27 and Oct 2, whether or not they bear the stamp of the terminal agent in Boston, thus practically ignoring the Boston agreement.

Of course, this means complete passenger rate demoralization in the west, for the weaker lines have already taken similar action, and half-rate tickets on sale will be purchasable during the week.

The advance guard of the various delegations are beginning to arrive. The first detachment of 100 delegates from Nebraska arrived yesterday, and were escorted to their headquarters. Two delegations from Ottumwa and Keokuk, Ia., were scheduled to arrive at 5 o'clock, but their train was 12 hours late.

Every Possible Precaution to protect visitors and citizens during the coming conclave week of the Knights Templar is being taken by the authorities here.

The detective service has been augmented by pressing into service the liquor squad and the state police and by the presence of detectives from the principal cities of the United States. Every avenue of ingress is being carefully watched, and orders have been given that all suspicious characters be arrested. On Monday every policeman, excepting those who are sick, must report for duty. Throughout the week the entire police force will be detailed to different places where there are gatherings and parades.

Superintendent of Police Eldridge has arranged to have members of the Red Cross Ambulance corps stationed near the line of march next Tuesday ready for an emergency.

Inspector of Buildings Damrell, with a large force of assistants, yesterday inspected the scores of temporary reviewing stands which have been erected for Tuesday's parade, and a number, principally those erected by private parties, were condemned and labeled "Unsafe." The labeled stands will have to be pulled down and rebuilt according to specifications laid down by the building inspectors before they can be occupied.

Afraid of Socialists.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The unusual secrecy relative to the movements of Emperor William during his visit to Lord Lonsdale, at Lowther castle, was due to a hint given to the police that German socialists might attempt to attack the emperor. The police had sentries to watch under Emperor William's windows and to patrol the grounds all night.

DR. CARTER DROWNED.

Also His Niece Miss Beulah and Another Young Lady.

Boston papers report Dr. L. F. Carter of Atlantic and two young ladies to have been drowned Wednesday evening at Brooklyn, Me. They were crossing the channel between Neskeag Point and Harbor island in a small boat.

Mr. Carter's family reside on Appleton street, Atlantic, but Mr. Carter is away from home much of the time. He is not a practising physician, although known as "doctor."

The young ladies were Don E. Elora and Miss Madine Foster. The former was his wife's niece, an actress and authoress, better known as Miss Beulah. Miss Foster was a miss of twelve years.

Miss Beulah has written several dramas which have been published by Lee & Shepard of Boston.

The bodies of the ladies were recovered, but at last accounts that of Mr. Carter had not. He was about 53 years of age and leaves a widow, two sons 23 and 18, and a daughter of 13.

It will be remembered that about a year ago Mr. Carter's house on Squantum street was destroyed.

Masonic Visitations.

The following visits are announced by Rt. Wor. Amos A. Lawrence of the 24th Masonic district: Phœnix, Hanover, Thursday, Sept. 5; Corner Stone, Duxbury, Saturday, Sept. 28; Satuit, Scituate, Wednesday, Oct. 5; Plymouth, Plymouth, Monday, Oct. 14; Delta, Weymouth, Tuesday, Oct. 29; Orphans Hope, East Weymouth, Wednesday, Nov. 6; Old Colony, Hingham, Tuesday, Nov. 19; Konohasset, Cohasset, Friday, Nov. 29.

The Granite Men.

The visit of the Michigan granite dealers is almost a fake. After all that had been said and done, we are now informed that less than a dozen started informally, and it is nowise certain that these will reach Quincy.

It is a sore disappointment to the officers of the Quincy association and others. The entire Greenleaf House was reserved and it was necessary to cancel the agreement. Also the City of Quincy which was chartered for an excursion. The DAILY LEDGER had arranged at considerable expense to publish eight-page papers on three days, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and they will probably be issued as granite and Knights Templar numbers.

SPLENDID OPPORTUNITIES.

Y. M. C. A. Planning to Offer Helpful Attractions in Near Future.

The Young Men's Christian Association has been carrying on a vigorous work this summer, chiefly along religious lines. Mr. Pirazzini's work among the Italians has been remarkable, resulting in a number having become regular attendants at church services. The interest in the Monday evening Bible class has been well sustained. The study has consisted in an analysis of the historical books of the New Testament also several of the epistles. The class will continue until October with the New Testament, when it will be reorganized and take up the study of the Old Testament.

The plans for the fall and winter work, however, especially along educational lines, will surpass anything yet offered the young men of Quincy. In fact, the course will not be equalled by any Association in Massachusetts, unless it is Boston, and for practical studies and thoroughness Quincy stands higher in Association circles than Boston, a fact which is proven not only because Quincy received two highest rewards at the International Convention and Boston none, but in the annual report of the educational report of the International Committee of New York a reference list is given of the Associations of North America which are doing especially good work in certain lines of study and Quincy is mentioned both for her drawing and clay modeling. The full meaning of this can best be understood when it is learned that the Quincy Association is the only one mentioned in Massachusetts, and, with possibly one exception, is the smallest Association in the smallest city of the list. Add to this, the fact that the Quincy Association has been invited to take entire charge of the exhibition of clay modeling at the Mechanics Fair in Boston during October and November it will be seen that Quincy may well be proud of this young but vigorous institution which has for its sole purpose the uplifting of the young men of the community. It is proposed to start the following classes in October.

Free-hand drawing,—Beginners, intermediate and advance work.

Monumental drawing,—Same grades as free-hand.

Clay modeling,—Beginners and intermediate and advance studies.

These classes will be conducted as last year by Mr. Herbert W. Beattie, to whom much of the credit is due for the success of last year.

Vocal music,—For beginners and advance students. While he has not been definitely engaged, the Association has secured the refusal of the services of one, an experienced instructor, who makes a specialty of male voices. The committee will recommend the securing of his services at the September meeting of the Board.

English class for Scandinavian men.

English class for Italian men.

Competent teachers will be secured for these classes. It is believed that these classes will be adapted to the majority of the young men of the city, helping them along practical lines. That the endeavors of last year to help the granite workers is appreciated by the manufacturers as well as by the men themselves is shown by the members who have responded to the appeal of the Association for financial aid.

Membership Growing.

A few more names have been added to the membership roll of the Wollaston Golf Club from those previously invited. On Friday the splendid record of 44 was made by Mr. Robert E. Porter. This score will probably never be beaten by more than one or two. The best record by a lady is that of Miss Marion Sherman, 72.

The completed list is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Sparrow, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Simmons, Mr. James Hall, Mr. Harry R. Terry, Mr. Henry R. Holden, Mr. A. F. Schenkelberger, Mr. John Ball, Mr. Daniel B. Lincoln, Mrs. Charles K. Crane, Miss Almira E. Simmons, Miss Kate Simmons.

No Reduction.

John R. Graham denies that there has been any reduction of wages at his shoe manufactory. He knows of no change whatever in prices, and regards the report a malicious one.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A VISIT FROM HARDIE.

British Labor Leader an Ardent Advocate of Socialistic Principles.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Among the passengers on the steamer Campania yesterday was J. K. Hardie, president of the English Labor party. Hardie will lecture in this country.

JAMES KEIR HARDIE.

Mr. Hardie was three years in the British parliament and is an out-and-out socialist. He has spent much time in educating the trades unionists in socialistic principles. He believes in the abolition of the competitive system and in municipal or state ownership.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Large Shrinkage Offset by Enormous Business of Industries.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The volume of business shrinks, as is natural in August, and the shrinkage seems rather larger than usual, because transactions in July were somewhat inflated for that month. Some industries are doing more than ever before in August, and the prospect for fall trade is good in others, although much depends on the crops, and the outcome is less clear than speculators on either side are disposed to admit. Industrial troubles have not entirely ceased, but during the past week have become much less threatening.

It is a relief to turn to the great industries, in which the enormous orders placed some weeks or months ago cause phenomenal activity for the season.

In boots and shoes the shipments on old orders again exceed those of any previous year for the month thus far, and yet in almost every branch the new orders are very scanty, although prices of boots and shoes, of leather and also of hides, are very firmly maintained.

In cotton goods the demand is rather more active, as the price of the raw material advances, but otherwise the business has not materially changed, and the quotation for print cloths is a shade lower this week.

Sales of wool are again smaller than in 1892, and for the month thus far have been 16,847,200 pounds, of which 9,121,300 pounds were domestic, against 19,072,950 last year.

Failures for the week have been 222 in the United States, against 334 last year, and 43 in Canada, against 33 last year.

Progressive Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 24.—The chamber of deputies yesterday voted the credits necessary for the construction of a ship canal from Heyst to Bruges, and for the conversion of the latter place into a seaport. Heyst is in the province of West Flanders, nine miles north of Bruges, and near the sea. Bruges is the capital of the province of West Flanders and is situated at the junction of several railways and numerous large canals. The new ship canal will undoubtedly greatly increase the commercial importance of the place.

July Revenue Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The internal revenue receipts for July were $13,579,666, a decrease as compared with July, 1894, of $11,979,331. This large difference is accounted for by the fact that in July, 1894, great quantities of whisky were taken out of bond to escape payment of the increased tax on whisky imposed by the new tariff bill.

In Farmers' Interests.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—In the house of commons, in reply to a protest against the exclusion of Canadian cattle, it was stated that the prohibition of the importation under the present circumstances was advocated by the farmers of the kingdom as the only safeguard for their herds.

Water, Acid and Revolver.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 24.—J. W. Walker, a leading merchant of St. Joseph for years, stepped into a bathtub full of water at the Midland hotel, and, after taking carbolic acid, blew his brains out with a revolver. Domestic trouble is said to be the cause.

Engagement In High Life.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Miss Emma Rockefeller, eldest of the four children of William G. Rockefeller, is engaged to marry Dr. David G. Hunter McAlpin, Jr., of this city. The wedding will, in all probability, be celebrated this fall.

Clergyman Missing.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 24.—Rev Milton Morris of Niantic, Conn., has mysteriously disappeared while on his way from his home to Montrose, where he was to be installed as pastor of the Montrose Baptist church tomorrow.

Hennessey's Pluck.

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 24.—Dick Moore of St. Paul and Billy Hennessey of Boston fought 20 rounds to a draw here last night. Hennessey broke his right hand in the 13th round, but gamely continued the fight.

Fishermen Drowned.

HALIFAX, Aug. 24.—Joseph Arsenault and Camille Gallant were drowned at Egmont Bay, P. E. I., yesterday, while fishing, by their boat being upset by a squall.

Where China Bows.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that the French claims for indemnity for outrages on French missionaries at Szechuen have been settled.

Assets Equal Liabilities.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24.—J. N. Woolliscroft & Co., grain and provision merchants, have assigned. Assets and liabilities, $30,000 each.

How To Eat

Is as much a matter of education as how to walk or how to dress. There are hundreds of individual ideas, and the best way to please every one is to let them eat as they choose. Our business, however, is to furnish the dining room with suitable, attractive, serviceable and up-to-date furniture. Of course every one doesn't know just how a dining room should be furnished to be in quite the proper style and make the expense as little as possible. But that's what we're here for—all our ideas can be yours if you'll say the word. Oak Dining Table, Side Board and Chairs, we can furnish the set complete as low as $25.00, and by adding a few dollars where you choose, you can increase the elegance.

The Greenleaf block is being decorated today, and quite extensively, as it is in this building that Rural Lodge, F. & A. M., have their headquarters.

On the front above the sign "The Greenleaf" is a wide banner with red Maltese cross enclosing the cross and crown. Above is the word "Welcome," and below "Knights Templar."

Beneath the sign is a small shield of white, red and black with the date "1895."

From the window in the tower, below the emblematic square and compasses, black and white streamers extend to outer windows of the third floor. From these windows red and white streamers are drooped horizontally. There are also various flags.

The Durgin & Merrill block is also being decorated. A large flag hangs from the top in front and there are red, white and blue streamers and other decorations.

ABANDONED.

The hornets build in plaster dropping rooms,
And on the mossy porch the lizard lies;
Around the chimneys slow the swallow flies,
And on the roof the locusts snow their blooms.
Like some sad thought that broods here, old perfumes
Haunt the dim stairs. The cautious zephyr tries
Each gusty door, like some dead hand, then sighs
With ghostly lips among the attic glooms.
And now a heron, now a kingfisher,
Flits in the willows, where the riffle seems
At each faint fall to hesitate to leap,
Fluttering the silence with a drowsy stir.
Here summer seems a placid face asleep
And the near world a figment of her dreams.
—Madison Cawein in Century.

AN INFANT PRODIGY.

She was the only child of two artistes engaged at one of the boulevard theaters.

Slaves to their profession, they had no time to spare for Lucette, who was left to the care of her grandmother, a dear old lady of 60 years, who loved the little "morsel," just opening its eyes on existence, with the strength and fervency of three—father, mother and self.

All day long she would play with Lucette, while her son and daughter-in-law were learning their parts or rehearsing their roles at the theater. Poor little Lucette! From her earliest days she had been lulled to sleep by long speeches and awakened by explosions of dramatic wrath. How many times in the apartment of the Vernieres, which looked upon a gloomy court in the Rue de Bondy, had she been startled by the melodramatic voices and extravagant gestures of her parents while repeating "Robert Macaire," "The Wandering Jew," "Thirty Years of an Actor's Life" and other works of the same class. When the Vernieres were "on tour," the grandmother delighted to take Lucette for a day's outing in the suburbs, where the grass was green enough and the trees tall enough to make one think oneself really in the country.

"The child needs a breath of fresh air," she would say, and while she sat upon a folding stool, reading with profound attention the journal she had brought with her, Lucette would roll upon the grass in happy innocence, amusing herself with chasing butterflies, pulling flowers or listening to the blackbird whistling in the branches.

On these occasions the little white face would glow all over with health and pleasure, while the good old dame, made happy at seeing "her child" looking so much stronger and better, would thank God for her and lie down to rest with a peaceful smile and quiet conscience.

When she was 6 years old, Lucette was lively as a kitten and sang like a lark. The grandmother took especial pride in teaching her to repeat passages from Racine and fables from La Fontaine, which the child would recite with a serious air in a voice both musical and impressive.

About this period the parents began to bestow more attention on their charming little daughter.

One evening at dinner Lucette gave a recitation, and Verniere, listening with his mouth full, cried: "Wife, we must make an artiste of this youngster. What's bred in the bone comes out in the flesh. She's in love with the 'boards' already. She'll do."

"Not quite a bad idea," said the mother.

"Bah!" interposed the grandmother. "There's plenty of time to talk about that. There's"—

"Listen, granny. There's no time like the present. Now, in a very short while they're going to put on 'The Old Corporal' at the Theatre du Nord. I'm cast for the principal role, that of Corporal Simon, in which I succeed the great comedian, Frederick Lemaitre, but the manager has no one to fill the part of Emmeline, the little girl that Corporal Simon carries perched on his knapsack at the siege of Ulm. Well, if I were to propose Lucette"—

"You're a fool," interrupted the old lady, with great energy. "A child of 6 years—delicate, sensitive! You want to kill her perhaps?"

"Get along with you. Don't worry yourself with nonsense of that sort, granny. The child will take no harm. She will be with me. It's an opportunity not to be thrown away. She will make respectable acquaintances and at the same time learn her profession. Just leave us alone, and all will go right.

The old grandmother had to submit.

Fifteen days after Lucette was letter perfect in the short part of Emmeline, and Verniere, having laid his proposal before the manager, brought his daughter down to rehearsal.

"She's a prodigy. She'll cram the house," was that astute gentleman's reflection as he watched the performance. At the finish he accepted the offer and closed the bargain.

The curtain rose for the first act of "The Old Corporal." It was the camp before Ulm. General Roquebert, whom Napoleon had ordered to "draw the Austrians" in order to mask an important movement of the main army, was confiding to the old veteran, Antoine Simon, the care of his daughter Emmeline.

The audience, a most sympathetic and enthusiastic one, had eyes only for Lucette Verniere, the child who impersonated Emmeline. As for Simon, he raged and stormed inwardly at the unhappy fortune which had turned him into a "nursery maid," instead of permitting him to bear a hand in tanning the hides of the "Kaiserlichs."

The corporal and Emmeline had taken shelter on the outskirts of a wood, when of a sudden Simon perceived the glitter of cannon and the sheen of steel among the trees. Almost at the same moment the enemy "spoke." Volley after volley whistled through the branches, scattering the leaves and tearing off the bark.

"It's nothing," said he to the child "Don't be afraid. Here, let's play 'pick-a-back.'"

The cannon poured in a broadside.

Simon lifted the little girl upon his shoulders and set her on his knapsack, and trembling for the first time in his life, fired his musket, to the great delight of Emmeline, who clapped her hands and shouted gleefully. In due time a company of French troops arrived upon the scene, and amid frantic cheering from the spectators the corporal and his companion are borne off in safety, but General Roquebert has been mortally wounded. He is carried in upon a litter, and in his last agony blesses Emmeline, who is left in charge of the old corporal after a thousand instructions and recommendations necessary to the rest of the piece.

The little innocent, crowing and smiling in the middle of this crowd of soldiery, among all these decorations, this noise and smoke of battle, won a veritable triumph. The public applauded with frenzy, and when some one spoke of her as an "infant prodigy" the phrase was caught up and echoed round the house.

Always "pick a back" on the knapsack of the old corporal, she was "called" three times, and on reaching the wings was immediately hugged and kissed, feted and fondled and crammed with bonbons and dainties by the ladies of the company.

"That was a capital idea of mine," Verniere had said to himself on signing the engagement of his daughter at the Theatre du Nord, "capital."

For a hundred nights "The Old Corporal" drew crowds to the boulevard, and those unable to get inside remained outside to cheer the "infant prodigy," Lucette Verniere.

All was going merrily.

At the end of three months Lucette began to show signs that the strain was telling on her. Her slim figure and pale face were growing slimmer and paler. Her eyes were heavy, her look jaded. The grandmother observed the symptoms with alarm. She called the attention of the parents to the child, but Verniere would listen to nothing and contented himself with replying:

"Don't make yourself uneasy about nothing. 'The Old Corporal's' beginning to flutter. We can't keep him going much longer, and after he drops Lucette will have plenty of time to rest."

* * * * * *

She was "resting" now, little Lucette.

Resting, with a face whiter than the pillow on which her head lay, a victim to brain fever.

From time to time her wasted little hand would grasp convulsively, as if seized with sudden fear, the long, bony hand of her old grandmother.

Poor old woman, how she suffered to see her darling lying ill, and in a fury of anger she would charge Verniere with sacrificing the child to his vanity.

"You have driven her beyond her strength. You've exhausted all her forces. Maudit!"

The father never replied. He knew that he had done a bad business and deserved all the reproaches his mother heaped upon him.

When Lucette opened her big eyes and fixed them on him, they seemed to reproach him also. They felt like knives in his heart.

One afternoon, after the doctor's departure, Lucette was taken delirious. She sat up in bed, staring about her wildly and crying: "The enemy! Look there! Forward! Vive l'empereur!"

And again:

"General Roquebert is mortally wounded. A doctor—quick—hurry—there's no time to lose!"

They were phrases from "The Old Corporal," which were passing through the fevered brain of the poor child. Verniere and his wife stood at the head of the bed, plunged in an abyss of grief. As for the old grandmother, she could scarcely see for weeping. Her heart was broken.

For a few moments the child remained quiet, and the watchers thought she had fallen asleep, but suddenly starting up "all of a piece," and with an agony of terror lighting up her face:

"The enemy!" she cried, throwing up her arms. "The enemy!"

And she fell back dead.

Three days later the body of the "infant prodigy"—Lucette Verniere—was laid in the cemetery at Pantin. On the coffin was placed a magnificent floral crown, which bore the inscription, "To Lucette Verniere, artiste, from the Theatre du Nord."

The old grandmother was too prostrated to join the funeral procession, but after the sun was down, the figure of the poor old creature might have been seen bending over the still open grave, and her voice heard calling softly, so softly that she seemed afraid it might awaken the little sleeper who lay below: "Lucette, my child; my darling Lucette. It is I. Do you hear me? I am coming to you."

Next morning the gravediggers found upon the grave of the "infant prodigy" the inanimate form of the old grandmother, smiling in death upon her well beloved grandchild Lucette.—From the French.

The Burgomaster's Ready Wit.

The London Standard special correspondent gave a description of a picturesque incident of the Hamburg fetes. When the emperor, after the banquet in the town hall and in response to the acclamation of the crowds outside, stepped on to the balcony to show himself to the people, there came a terrific clap of thunder. The first burgomaster, with the quickness of a true courtier, at once remarked to his majesty, "Sire, le ciel vous salue!" (Sir, heaven salutes you.) The emperor's reply is not recorded.

A Margin to Boot.

"Do you really think that a bicycle is worth the money?"

"Worth the money?" said the quick tempered man. "Why, mine has paid for itself in less than three months in the beautiful explanation it furnishes for a black eye."—Washington Star.

"Darling," he said, "I never meant

"I would not hurt you for the world.
Am I to blame if I forget?"

"Forgive my selfish tears," she cried,
"Forgive. I knew that it was not
Because you meant to hurt me, sweet.
I knew it was that you forgot."

But all the same deep in her heart
Rankled this thought and rankles yet—

So much that he cannot forget."

Brooding.

Brooding over trials and difficulties and disappointments is one of the most prominent and sure characteristics of fretfulness. The mind seems to fasten itself on life's troubles. It thinks of little else from morning till night, and then in the nighttime sleep departs and the time that should be spent in sleep is spent in fret and worry until it festers and becomes more and more absorbing, so much so that the mind becomes wholly occupied with the thought of trouble. In many cases this state of things continues till its victim finds a home in the insane asylum.—Selected.

Her cheeks by turns grew pale, then red.
She slowly raised her drooping head.

EUSTIS MAKES A MOVE

Which Is Likely to Soon Bring the Waller Matter to a Crisis.

Refusal to Salute French Flag at Tamatave

Has Led to Another Matter For Diplomats to Ponder Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The state department has felt that its efforts in the Waller case have not been as ably seconded at Paris as they might have been, and Ambassador Eustis explains in a dispatch yesterday that the delay has been due to the absence of the minister of foreign affairs. Officials were gratified to learn in the dispatch that Ambassador Eustis had made a move in the matter of ex-Consul Waller and had carried out a portion of the instructions which have been sent him.

The department believes that within a few days the French government will make some response to the requests made for the papers in the case of Mr. Waller. It is recognized at the department that the French government is not only slow, but that the French people are inclined to be nettled at the course of the Americans, as shown in the resentment felt because the commander of the Castine had failed to salute the French flag at Tamatave.

It is thought that much may be made of this incident by the French, in order still further to delay the settlement of the Waller case, but it is probable that the United States authorities will not allow the two things to be coupled, but will insist that the Waller case must be considered Solely on Its Own Merits.

The United States has not recognized the French protectorate over Madagascar, nor has it refused recognition. Consul Wetter, who is at Tamatave, is only acting consul in one sense, as the United States has never applied for nor received an exequatur from him. In advising the commander of the Castine not to recognize or salute the French, the department presumes that Mr. Wetter has taken the right course and knows what he is about, and will act upon that assumption until something to the contrary is learned.

The effect this position of the consul and the commander of the Castine may have upon the Waller claim is altogether speculative. If French control is not recognized in the island, and, in fact, should be denied by the United States government, it would define clearly the issue and make the claim of Waller indisputable from an American view, but it is said that such a position by the United States is not necessary to the establishment of the Waller claim if Mr. Waller received his concession from a de facto government.

The World's Wheat Crop.

BUDA-PESTH, Aug. 24.—The minister of agriculture announces, as a result of data obtained from consuls and specialists, that the world's wheat crop for 1895 is as follows: The total production in countries which import wheat is estimated at 749,032,000 bushels. In countries which export the total production is 1,651,701,000 bushels. The minister also amends the estimate of the crop of 1894 so as to make the total in that year 2,632,733,000 bushels, showing that the crop of 1895 is 232,000,000 bushels less than that of 1894.

Indians Must Be Released.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Attorney General Harmon yesterday instructed United States District Attorney Clark of Wyoming to sue out writs of habeas corpus for the Bannock and Shoshone Indians who are under arrest for violation of the state game laws. Mr. Harmon holds that the hunting rights of the Indians which were obtained by treaty with the United States cannot be abrogated by the passage of state game laws.

Thompson Discharged.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—The case of Samuel D. Thompson, charged with assault upon Howard S. Parsons, came up for trial yesterday. The autopsy showed that Parsons' death was due to natural causes, and upon the presentation of the medical evidence to that effect, Judge Cotton discharged Thompson.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 23.—The game here between the Pittsburg and Brooklyn teams was an eventful one. Both teams played with a vengeance, it being the protested game of June 1, which Brooklyn won. The score was tied on two or three different occasions, and when Corcoran lifted the ball over Center Fielder Stenzel's head in the ninth inning, sending in the winning run, the crowd went wild.

MONGOLIANS HAPPY

Over the Anticipated Failure of Investigators Into the Massacres.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24.—The members of the comission which left Foo-Choo for Cheng-Tu to investigate the recent massacre of missionaries there are virtually prisoners.

Commander Newell of the U. S. cruiser Detroit has gone to Cheng-Tu to consult with J. C. Hixson, the United States consul at Foo-Choo, who is the leading member of the commission, about the landing of marines for his protection and for the protection of the other members of the commission.

The Chinese officials are jubilant at the defeat of the efforts of the American and British consuls to obtain an open inquiry into the massacre. It is also said that the delay is giving the Chinese time to prepare a defense of the prisoners.

After Huntington's Scalp.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—According to the A. R. U. members, C. P. Huntington will be arrested should he come here. It is contended the charge against the president of the Southern Pacific was dismissed at the instance of United States District Attorney Foote, and was not done by United States District Judge Morrow. Hence it is held that Huntington could still be arrested here.

Sprockets.

The front and rear sprockets on the "Spalding" are readily detachable, the former without removing the cranks. The front sprocket is firmly secured to the sprocket flange by four friction bolts, the axle flange being in turn screwed on the rank axle, and secured to it by our new and improved crank, which both secures itself and the sprocket flange at one operation, all crank pins and sprocket keyes being dispensed with, and the tread narrowed without decreasing the distance between the crank hanger ball cases, this combination insuring absolute strength and reliability with the advantage of easy removal of cranks, sprocket, cones or bearing cases, for exchange or repair.

THE WHITE SQUADRON

Arrives In Boston to Add Dignity and Grace to Templars' Conclave.

Thousands of Knights Are Pouring Into the Hub.

"The Little Commandery" Promises to Be One of the Chief Attractions.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The four ships of the White Squadron were moving about Massachusetts bay yesterday and steamed into port this morning. The four cruisers are the New York, Montgomery, Minneapolis and Raleigh.

These vessels compose the most powerful squadron ever assembled in these waters. More vessels, it is true, have been here at once, and in recent years, but none represented so well the power of modern naval means of offense and defense.

All the four cruisers represent the latest developments in naval architecture, ordnance and engineering, as all are brand-new vessels, their keels having been laid but five years ago, and all have been launched within three years.

On the Hustle.

Little was indoors yesterday as far as the Knights Templar are concerned. The whole story was pictured on the streets. There was no hour of the day that the hotels, depots and headquarters of commanderies were not crowded, but they continually changed in personality, people coming and going, staying but a few moments to transact business, attend to private affairs or see what they could see, according to their relation in the present excitement.

Local commanderies of the Knights Templar were on the alert all day looking after the welfare of their fellow Knights who have been coming in at intervals, some of them after long and tedious journeys from the south and west.

The trains, with one exception, were from one to three hours late, but when the Knights arrived their welcome was such that any discomforts they had encountered were banished.

At the Union station a scene was presented that had never been witnessed in this city on a Sabbath before. The vast crowd of spectators who cheered each arriving delegation numbered far into the thousands, and the strains of music from the bands of the escorting commanderies enlivened the tedious waits.

The first delegation to arrive over the Fitchburg road were the Pittsburg commandery, of Pittsburg, which numbered 100 Knights and their ladies. They were met with Masonic honors, and escorted by the Boston commandery to their headquarters. The Ascalon commandery brought 70 Knights and ladies from St. Louis.

The chief arrival yesterday was that of Grand Master Hugh McCurdy, who, with 196 Knights and ladies from Detroit commandery of Detroit, reached here shortly after 10 o'clock. This commandery is noted as the crack regiment in the drill contests, and will no doubt be heard from in Wednesday's competition.

This afternoon a train of 12 cars containing Iowa delegates to the number of 300 Knights and ladies were warmly welcomed. The delegation that have excited the most curiosity of the citizens were the Golden Gate of San Francisco, which arrived yesterday afternoon. They were escorted through the streets by the Boston commandery. At the head of this parade was a 4-months-old cinnamon bear, which caused much amusement among the spectators. His bearship, however, got tired before the end of the route, and

Had to Drop Out.

During the early evening and up to midnight, train upon train brought in their quota of living freight. The grand commandery of Iowa, comprising 400 Knights and 100 ladies, arrived in time for a late tea. The grand commandery of Maryland were welcomed and escorted to the Vendome. This delegation were all from Baltimore, comprising 250 Knights, accompanied by a number of ladies. The Detroit commandery of 100 Knights and 70 ladies were escorted by the Boston commandery to the Vendome.

At the other depots in the city large delegations arrived, and were taken in charge by the various commanderies. The streets of the city are thronged with visitors and citizens, who are viewing the decorations and waiting for the occasional appearance of a visiting delegation escorted by a commandery headed with a band.

A special Knights Templar service was held in Trinity church yesterday afternoon, when that edifice was crowded by the Knights and their ladies. The sermon was preached by Grand Prelate Joseph M. McGrath. He chose for his text Matthew x, 42: "And whosoever shall give to drink unto these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward."

After the service the Knights, headed by Grand Master McCurdy, Grand Commander Lawrence and the other dignitaries of grand encampments, returned in parade to the Vendome.

Today is the busy day for arrivals. Over 153 delegations are scheduled to reach this city

Lads From Louisville.

It is no disparagement to the other bodies to say that the chief interest is centered in the appearance at the drill of the "Little Commandery" composed of boys from the Kentucky Widows' and Orphans' home. These boys are from 12 to 15 years of age, three only being over 15, and the ease and precision with which they execute all the movements of Knights Templar tactics will astonish all beholders.

The triennial committee of Massachusetts and Rhode Island requested that "The Little Commandery" be allowed to come to Boston as its guests during the conclave week, and the answer came from the directors that, as Sir Knight H. B. Grant had consented to be responsible for their training and oversight, and that the Louisville Masons would replenish the uniforms, the directors were willing that the boys should accept.

Boston generously provided the sinews of war, and Little Commandery arrived at the Union station in this city late last evening, after a very enjoyable trip through Canada and among the White Mountains.

As has been before intimated, the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island is to take the Little Commandery from "threshold to threshold," and the "mascots," as the boys from the pet Masonic institution are affectionately called, will be met on their arrival in Boston by Eminent Sir Winthrop Messenger, who, as chairman of the drill committee, will have special charge of these juvenile guests. The Little Commandery will leave for home Sunday next, via New York city, where a glorious time awaits them.

A Grievance.

St. John commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, of Providence, the oldest commandery in America, has refused to join in the parade at Boston next Tuesday, because of a misunderstanding with Grand Commander S. C. Lawrence. When the program was arranged in March, St. John's commandery was given the right of line, as the senior organization. It transpired last week that General Lawrence had changed his plans and had decided to place St. John commandery, No. 2, of Boston, ahead of Providence.

Judge Carpenter, commander of St. John commandery, No. 1, called on General Lawrence and ascertained for a certainty that a change had been decided on. After considering the matter, St. John commandery, No. 1, decided not to parade. Cavalry commandery of Providence is considering the advisability of also remaining out of the parade in sympathy. The leading members of St. John commandery feel that as they have been given right of line at Washington and Denver, they should be first in line of unattached commanderies in the parade.

The commandery expended several hundred dollars in purchasing new flags, banners, regalia, etc., besides hiring Reeves' American band. The delegates will attend the conclave, and will occupy their headquarters as if nothing had happened.

General Lawrence said last night that no change was made in the roster of the parade; that it is the custom of the home commandery to escort the grand commandery, hence St. John of Boston will fill this office. St John of Providence, on account of seniority, was assigned to the head of the second division, its usual place. General Lawrence states that he is utterly at a loss to understand the action of the Providence commandery.

Modern Barbarity.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Aug. 26.—A bull was killed in the arena at Gillett yesterday in the presence of 6000 people, and the work was done in the style of Spain and Mexico. The first bull turned into the arena was an exceedingly tame animal, and refused to fight even after the darts were in him. The next animal made a fight for his life. Chiretta, king of the arena, made two stabs at the animal, and then left him practically dead, but the Mexicans, with the red cloaks, teased the creature and made him dart at them. One of them came within an ace of losing his life, and there was great excitement in consequence. Not a few women fainted.

Said He Feared Lynching.

ANTOINETTE, Colo., Aug. 26.—Elmer Loesher, the engineer of the Gumry hotel, under arrest here, claims that he was in no way responsible for the explosion. He says that three months ago a boiler inspector declared the boiler unsafe, and ordered Gumry to repair it. Gumry contracted to have the valves repaired, but it was incompletely done, and was left unfinished, so that Loesher himself had to cut off some of the flues. Since then the boiler had not been inspected. Gumry and Greiner looked after the boiler more or less during the night. Loesher claims that he is not a drinking man. He fled because he feared lynching.

The Wages of Sin.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 26.—In a house of ill-fame here Max Noack of Marius was found dead in a room, with a bullet wound in his brain. By his side lay Hazle Hammond, an inmate of the house, with a bullet wound in her head. Noack, it is believed, was trying to induce the woman to leave the life she was leading and return to her home, and that when she refused he shot her and then killed himself. It is reported by some that Noack was the woman's half-brother, and by others that he was her husband. The doctors say the woman may live.

Heavily Punished.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 26.—Colonel Romero was convicted yesterday for unlawfully killing Verastegui in a duel. The judge sentenced him to prison for three years and four months at hard labor; to pay all the costs of the trial; to pay Verastegui's funeral expenses; to pay a fine of $1800, or to serve three months more in prison, and to pay in monthly installments to Verastegui's widow and children $4500 annually for 18 years.

Vessels In Distress.

HALIFAX, Aug. 26.—There has been a heavy windstorm all along the coast. Schooner Moscoromo, of Gloucester, Mass., with 80,000 pounds of halibut, is ashore at Port Jollihead, and full of water. The crew were saved. Schooner Morning Light is stranded at Malignant Cove. She was bound from Cape Breton, for Hawkesbury, with coal. Captain Walker was drowned, and the rest of the crew were saved.

Fire Loss $500,000.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A fire which broke out at Hanbury's wharf, Blackfriars, destroyed the granary and the storage for oil, sugar and combustibles. The damage amounted to $500,000.

A Bad Lot.

ROME, Aug. 26.—At the village of Favara 42 members of Mafia societies were arrested on charges of murder and other outrages.

Uncle Sam as Arbitrator.

LIMA, Aug. 26.—The United States will be asked to be arbitrator of the dispute between Peru and Bolivia.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

If Valkyrie Fails to Win It English Boats Will Take a Rest.

The Foreign Racer an Object of Great Interest.

Thousands Visited Her Drydock Only to Meet With Disappointment.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Captain Cranfield has firm faith in Valkyrie III. He has told several persons in the most emphatic way that he expects to win the America's cup this year.

He has often said the same thing before, it is true, but those who have heard the sounds of his voice when making predictions since his arrival here a week ago are thoroughly impressed with the man's sincerity. He has even gone so far as to say to these same confidential friends that if the Valkyrie III does not win, no English yacht will beat an American for 20 years, because there will be no more challenging in that time, unless some other nation than England sends forth the defiance.

The cup, being an international trophy, is open to challenge from any country, and it has been said several times during the last year that a syndicate of Frenchmen may be formed to build a yacht next year to contest against the holder and against any other challenger who may choose to enter the match.

After the Valkyrie reaches her hereafter regular anchorage within the horseshoe of Sandy Hook, there will be made every effort to keep her movements on the water secret from the public up to the time that she starts in the first race for the cup. This is acknowledged by her officers, who say that there is no reason why the points of the vessel, be they good or bad, should be made known. There is no doubt that the claim is reasonable; but, all the same, preparations are being made by certain inquisitive persons to watch the foreigner.

Sized Up by Big Crowd.

Never did such a crowd collect at the celebrated drydocks of the Erie basin as that which gathered yesterday. The attraction was the Valkyrie III.

Unfortunately, while they found entrance to the yard without hindrance, they could not see the yacht as they had hoped, as her hull was almost entirely covered with tarpaulins and cloths.

These "curtains" had not been for the purpose of obstructing a clear view of the yacht's powerful lines, but for more practical reasons. The sun's strong rays of Saturday had blistered in spots the pot lead or lacquer with which the vessel's sides had been brushed, and it was to prevent further blistering that the cloths were stretched.

This caused a slight delay in floating the ship, as another coat of lacquer had to be put on her in order to smooth the rough spots made by the blistering. The new coat was applied this morning. As the lacquer dried as fast as it was put on, the water was turned into the drydock only a couple of hours later than fixed in the original program.

The Valkyrie will have her sails bent while being towed to Sandy Hook from the drydock. She will probably have a trial spin during the afternoon.

Hurrying Along.

BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 26.—The Defender now carries her new mast, it having been stepped last evening. Eight wire stays from the masthead were temporarily made fast to support the mast, and then the work of rigging had to be stopped on account of darkness. It was resumed at daylight this morning, and it is expected that everything will be in shipshape tomorrow morning. Every effort is being made to have the steel boom ready at that time, but it is hardly thought possible that it can be completed so soon.

An Old Sport's End.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—A Hungarian named Theodore Jakabffy, whose horses won the highest number of races for many years, has committed suicide, by shooting, at Buda-Pesth. Recent losses had ruined him, and a court of honor had decided that he was disqualified from challenging to a duel a member of the National casino, who demanded his exclusion on account of defaults amounting to 500,000 florins.

Four Records Lowered.

DENVER, Aug. 26.—Four world's records were broken at the state L. A. W. races as follows: One mile, class B, unpaced, A. B. Hughes, 2:10; one mile novice, class A, Radalzell, 2:05 2-5; half-mile, class A, competition, C. C. Collins, 1:01 4-5; five miles, class A, competition, F. C. Lawton, 11:50 1-5.

Indians Raise Objections.

ARDMORE, I. T., Aug. 26.—Delegates from the Chickasaw and Choctaw nations met in convention at Willow Springs and adopted resolutions strongly declaring themselves unalterably opposed to the allotment of their lands as proposed by the Dawes commission.

Submitting to the Law.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Yesterday was another dry Sunday in New York city. A tour made through various sections of the city pointed to the fact that only the smallest proportion of the saloons made any attempt to do business.

Stewed Tomatoes.

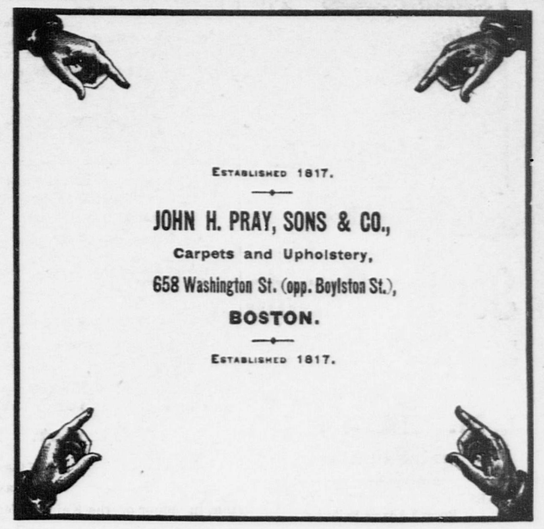

BRIDGETON, N. J., Aug. 26.—The large canning works of B. F. Maule & Co. at Greenville were destroyed by fire. The loss is $40,000. The firm but recently began the season's pack of tomatoes, with 1,000,000 cans to fill.

Spreading Pestilence.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 26.—Seven deaths from cholera occurred on board the steamer Balkow, at Vladivostock, from Che-Foo, since which time 16 cases and 12 deaths have occurred at Vladivostock itself.

—The much dreaded gypsy moth has made its appearance at Lawrence and is doing much damage to the elm and maple trees on the common.

NO LEDGER TOMORROW

IF PLEASANT.

As Tuesday will be generally observed as a holiday in this city as well as Boston, in honor of the Knights Templar parade, the issue of the DAILY LEDGER will be suspended and the office closed for the day. Should the day be stormy causing a postponement of the parade, the LEDGER will be issued as usual.

Wednesday's LEDGER will contain a good report of the Boston parade, of the Houghs Neck illumination, and the Knights Templar programme in Quincy for Thursday with some illustrations.

THE PUBLISHERS of the DAILY LEDGER are disappointed at the collapse of the excursion of the Michigan Marble and Granite Dealers to this city. Perhaps they had heard that it was to be too much of a boom to Quincy granite, as the DAILY LEDGER was to issue special eight page papers. Because of the collapse of the excursion the "boom Quincy" paper will be deferred a few weeks, and the employes of the office will enjoy the Knights Templar parade in Boston tomorrow. Had the Michigan dealers come they would have enjoyed one of the best times ever given to visiting excursionists, for the Quincy Manufacturers' association had planned many outings.

Quincy's Recommendation.

The Herald says: We risk nothing in recommending to the attention of our guests the attractions of our suburbs. It is the proud boast of Bostonians that no city in the world has more beautiful surroundings in the outlying sections than can be found here. They are now arrayed in all the glory of summer, and nature and art combine to make them exceedingly attractive. Moreover, they are easily accessible every day in the week, including Sunday. We beseech our guests not to miss Boston's suburbs.

King's Daughters Entertain.

The Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters of Wollaston, entertained twenty-seven little boys and girls from the Berkeley Temple Sunday School at Merrymount Park on Saturday. The day was hugely enjoyed by the little ones. The members of the circle who looked after the party were Mrs. Edmund S. Taylor, Mrs. Charles S. Adams, Mrs. V. J. Emery, Miss Marion F. Taylor, Mrs. Albert E. Rhoads, Miss Mary F. Ela, Miss Robbins, Miss Winifred F. Howard and Louise S. Kolb. The circle was also assisted by Mrs. Chas. W. Tucker.

The Boston Route.

The line of march of the Knights Templar in Boston tomorrow will be as follows:—Commonwealth avenue from Exeter street to Arlington street, Arlington street to Boylston street, Boylston street to Huntington avenue, Copley square, Huntington avenue to Dartmouth street, Dartmouth street to Columbus avenue, Columbus avenue to Massachusetts avenue, Massachusetts avenue to Washington street, Washington street to Hanover street.

Manufacturers' Outing.

The annual dinner of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association will be held on Thursday at Hotel Nantasket. This is one of the grand treats which the Michigan dealers will miss. The Steamer City of Quincy will make an early special trip to the beach. An elaborate menu will be served.

TODAY'S COURT.

Neil McIsaac of Quincy Neck for non-support; case continued to Sept. 16.

Daniel Lawlor for drunk was fined $5, and for disturbing the peace $10.

Sadie Jacques was taken from an outward train at Quincy Saturday afternoon and arraigned for drunkenness; released.

RACES EVERY DAY.

Two Held Saturday and This Week a Busy One.

The principal events in local yachting the coming week will be:—Monday, first in the series of open races, under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht Club for 18 foot catboats.

Tuesday, Quincy club race.

Wednesday, Hull Yacht Club ladies' day, second race in the open series of the Quincy club.

Thursday, Manchester Yacht Club, cup race, third and last race of the Quincy club series.

Friday, Winthrop Yacht Club, moonlight sail.

Saturday, Hull Yacht Club, first championship race, South Boston Yacht Club open race, Beverly open sweepstakes at Monument beach, Duxbury Yacht Club race, Squantum club cruise, Dorchester club cruise.

Squantum Championship.

But four boats entered the Squantum yacht race on Saturday. There was a high south wind and a choppy sea.

Commodore Burkhardt's Fannie had a walkover in the second class sloops.

The Sunbeam and Arcturus had it nip and tuck in the second class cats. The latter finished first but being much larger lost on time allowance. The summary:

SECOND CLASS SLOOPS.

Name and owner.	Length ft. in.	Actual Time h. m. s.	Corrected Time h. m. s.
Fannie, H. O. Burkhardt	21 11	1 40 30	1 16 51

SECOND CLASS CATS.

Sunbeam, H. B. Faxon	16 06	1 10 30	40 30
Arcturus, G. H. Hallwell	19 07	1 10 00	46 39
Fairy, B. Sargent	14 07	1 19 30	50 36

The Arcturus protested the Sunbeam. The championships this season have been won as follows: First class cats, Myrtle; jib and mainsal, West Wind; special, Gertrude; second class cats, in doubt because of protest. A sail off is necessary in the first class.

The Hull Race.

The Gleaner, Swirl, Cocheco and La Chica were the winners at Hull Saturday. The little Gleaner had as rivals the big sloops Beatrice and White Fawn, but fairly outsailed them on actual time. The Herald had a good report of the fifth class, as follows:

In the 20-foot catboat class the trio of stars—the Swirl, Kayoshk and Rooster—got away well together, with the old-timer, Opeeche, in their wake. All the boats but the Swirl carried double reefs, and she had three sets of her reef points tied down. The Kayoshk seemed to like the hard puffs and the windward work, and jumped ahead to a fine position at the front of the procession. The Opechee soon settled down into second place, with the Swirl third and Rooster last. The two latter boats were having hard work keeping right side up, and the Rooster in particular rolled her weather side up until one could actually see a portion of her bronze board out of water. The Kayoshk was first at the weather mark, and after rounding she shook out one of her reefs and went to leeward with only a single reef tied in. The Opechee turned second, the Swirl third and the Rooster last. On the run the Swirl shook out to double reef and began her task of getting by the leaders. The Swirl went to leeward like a racehorse. She ran by the Opechee before Bunkin island was reached, and on the way to Strawberry hill the Kayoshk fell a victim to her powers as a sled down the wind. The Rooster pulled up a little on the leaders—just enough to have the time allowance put her in second place and drop the Kayoshk into third position. The race in this class was a splendid exhibition of how a boat badly beaten to the weather mark can run down the leaders when her sheets are started up.

The corrected time was: Swirl, 52 26; Rooster, 53.57; Kayoshk, 55.40; Opechee, 57 28.

The High School Golden-Rod.

The High school Golden-Rod was generously supported by the school and the community last year. It is the purpose of the management to make the paper better than ever before. Special numbers will be a feature of this year's volume. Advertisements are beginning to come in already. Until the Board of Editors is re-organized, local advertisers will kindly send in their advertisements to Frederic A. Tupper, 4 Linden place, Quincy.

Flag Presentation.

Every commandery of Knights Templar will carry the National colors when parading, and South Shore commandery was presented on Saturday with a beautiful silk flag. The commandery met in full dress on Saturday at Weymouth for its final drill before the Boston parade, and the ladies embraced the opportunity to make the presentation. The speech was made by Miss Jennie F. Thayer and Em. Commander John Evans responded. The flag is seven by nine and suitably inscribed.

Birthday Party.

Mr. George Monk who for many years has been connected with the Tremont Theatre orchestra celebrated his birthday Saturday evening by giving a supper to his fellow associates. The dining-room was very tastefully festooned with flowers. Prof. Butler at the symphony orchestra gave the toasts which were responded to by Prof. Thelma, a musician from New York. The party broke up in the wee small hours after wishing George many such pleasant birthdays.

Paper plates are used in some German restaurants.

WON FIVE GAMES.

A Lucky Week Pushed Boston a Little to the Front.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—By winning five out of six games last week the Boston team were able to better their standing several points over that of a week ago. With the exceptions of Bannon and Tucker, who got two and three hits, respectively, the batting was very good. Duffy is now batting strongly, and in the six games last week he hit safely 16 times. In each of the last 17 games he made at least one hit. In fielding, the team also had a good week.

Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland, New York, Brooklyn and Chicago won Saturday's League games. The New England league games were won by Augusta, Lewiston and Portland.

President Young has had about 80 disputes of double contract signers, etc., to settle this year.

The Springfield Union banks on Pitchers Coughlin and Callahan as against Hodson and Lovett.

Two Gibsons?

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—The trial of Theodore Durant for the murder of Blanche Lamont was resumed today. When Durant's preliminary examination for the Lamont murder was being held, Rev. J. Gibson, pastor of Emanuel church, was asked by Durant's counsel if he had ever been pastor of a church in Rominy street, London, and he said he had not. The defendant's counsel say that a Rev Joseph Gibson, while pastor of the Rominy street church, became involved in a scandal through attempted familiarities with the ladies in his congregation. He was compelled to leave England and came to America. The defendant's counsel insinuate that the two are one and the same.

CAPTAIN ASSAULTED.

At an Out-Door Salvation Army Meeting on Sunday.

For several weeks the Salvation Army have held out-door meetings off Arthur street, at West Quincy, and they are largely attended. Not all are friendly to the Army, however, and each week the toughs have made it hotter for the leaders of the meeting.

Sunday afternoon fully 1000 were present at the meeting, and the disturbance culminated in an assault. Books in the Swedish language had been passed around for use. One of these fell into the hands of a tough who was about to destroy it when the captain of the army made a request for the book. The crowd thereupon set upon him and he was severely thumped. Others who came to his assistance were also assaulted.

Arons L. Klipp, the captain is able to be about today and arrests may follow.

Flowers at Franklin Park.

We clip the following from the Boston Courier of the 17th. As many of our readers frequently drive over to Franklin Park this may be a warning to them, not to pick wild flowers until after they have been to the park.

"I heard a vague rumor a few days ago that if one was seen by a park policeman, carrying flowers across the park, or on the park with a bouquet, he would be requested to give up the flowers or leave the park—as the person might elect. So last Sunday I started out to test the constitutionality of the law. I went away out into Milton and gathered a great quantity of golden rod, wild azaleas, elder berries and clematis. With these I loaded down my bicycle until I could just see over it. Then I started for the park and peered around for a policeman. I soon saw one coming towards me. He had a far-away look in his eyes, and was apparently greatly interested in something that was going on elsewhere. But he came my way, and in a faltering voice expressed his regrets for speaking without an introduction, assured me that without a doubt the flowers I carried grew unchained and ran wild without a muzzle, but that was something that wasn't allowed in the park. I told him that they were 'suttenly' wild flowers, and that I only wanted to take them home and tame them. But he said I would have to go some other way. The regulation, by the way, is an excellent one, for, while it would be unnecessary if all people were honest, were it allowed then all people who would pick flowers in the park and then swear that they came from outside. Thus are the just punished for the wrongs of the unjust."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Tobacco War.

The present war existing between the big plug tobacco manufacturers is proving very interesting for the consumers, they being the only ones who are profiting by this war. The manufacturers are unquestionably losing a great deal of money, and as far as we can see the whole cause of the war is on account of a brand of plug tobacco called "Battle Ax," which appears to be as powerful a weapon as its name implies. The manufacturers of "Battle Ax" claim it to be the largest piece of high-grade goods ever sold for the money. And the success of the brand, the enormous quantity which is being sold, clearly demonstrates that the consumers have not been slow in detecting the fact that they have a bargain. This has caused the demand for other heretofore popular brands to be greatly diminished. Hence the present great tobacco war. lpo

QUEEN ANNE COTTAGE.

A Beautiful Design That Has Many Excellent Points In Its Makeup.

[Copyright, 1895, by George Palliser, Architect, 32 Park place, New York.]

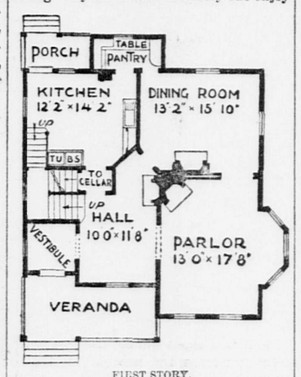

It is study and careful thought that bring about the best results in the planning of a home, and too much care cannot be given to this very important subject beforehand. Even the time used in planning what may well be termed air castles is well spent, as it is an educational period that is bound to load up eventually in the path of practicability and bring the thinker around to a haven of safety and rest.

One of my most intimate friends, who lives in a beautiful home with all the comforts of wealth, health and with his family at the fireside, once told me, "This is all the result of building castles in the air, and if I had never indulged in that habit I do not think I would now be enjoying this castle in reality." The attainment of this reality had taken years of toil, study and self denial, and through all his misfortunes and reverses he said he had always looked for the silver lining behind the clouds when he could acquire and carry out the dream of his ambition, and that at the darkest times in his business career he had built up the largest and best air castles of his life, and thus the final result was born and kept alive under the most adverse times by living in the air castles built and tumbled over as he journeyed along. By all means let every one enjoy the erection of these dreams—and build on and on; it is beneficial, it is good, it is economical, and, as above, when it does lead to reality it is valuable beyond measure.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

This real cottage home has many good points in its plan—the fine vestibule entrance, beautiful hall reception room, the stairs of combination order, from both hall and kitchen, and the liberal size and arrangement of its rooms on both floors. Think the plan over and may be you can see in it the reality of your air castle dreams. It may lead you out of the wilderness into realms of bliss and thus come to you, as the dove to the ark, a messenger bearing the olive branch you have been looking so long for—let us hope so at least.

Make a Business Woman of Your Wife.

Make a business woman of your wife. This is my advice to every married man, no matter what his station in life may be. But how can I do this in my position? many may ask. Easily. Give your wife your wages and intrust her with the spending and saving of your earnings. Co-operate with her in giving her good advice as to what to buy and also in saving toward a rainy day. Have a distinct understanding with her that a certain amount shall be saved, and the start once well made the battle is won. If you are a business man yourself, you can the better understand why your wife should be a business woman. She will save you money, be a better buyer, understanding and learning by her experience how to make the money go the farthest. Make her a certain weekly allowance according to your means. Be liberal with her and she will save for you when you would fail to do it for yourself and prove a treasure to you both financially and otherwise.—Miles Spencer.

A TRADITION OF THE DAYS OF THE SANTA FE TRAIL.

Frank Aubrey Went 800 Miles on Horseback In Less Than Six Days, Beating a Previous Ride, and Won $15,000 on the Two Trips—Killed In a Brawl.

Not long ago the writer had occasion to visit western Missouri. Among one of the traditions of the little city of Independence, which until the days of the railroad was the eastern terminus of the Santa Fe trail, the following story was told:

In the old days of the Santa Fe trail the freighters made one round trip a season. The Americans very generally wintered at Independence, while the Mexican traders naturally put in the same season at the town of Santa Fe. In the spring the teams were made up, the wagons loaded, and the long caravans of prairie schooners, with their white tilts and from 5 to 15 yoke of oxen, began moving out on their long voyage across the plains.

As was stated, these outfits made only one round trip per season, the Mexicans getting rid of their freight at Independence some time along in midsummer and loading up again for Santa Fe, while the Americans threw off their first load at Santa Fe and reloaded again for Independence.

Along in the late forties an energetic character named Frank X. Aubrey came from New York to Independence, bought a lot of teams and started into business as a freighter. Such was his push and vim that he made two trips a season, starting out from Independence in the early spring and winding up his second round trip at that point rather late in the fall. Aubrey piled up a great deal of money at the business and set such an energetic example that he was soon recognized as a leader.

With all his business thrift and vigor Aubrey was also what one might call "a sporting character." The distance from Santa Fe to Independence was about 800 miles. One day while discussing freighting and the length of time it ought to take to cover the distance between Independence and Santa Fe Aubrey made the rather bold assertion that he could start alone on a single horse and push through to Independence in eight days himself.

A dispute arose, and the result was that Aubrey offered to wager $5,000 that he could start on a thoroughbred horse he had, of unusual speed and bottom, and with the liberty to buy such horses as he might need on the way, and so remount himself as often as he had a chance, and be in Independence at the stage station in less than eight days of 24 hours each from the time he left Santa Fe. The money was covered and the wager made.

Aubrey started and was in Independence, Mo., in just 7 days and 10 hours from the time he said goodby to Santa Fe. He had remounted himself twice.

Then a second wager was made. The parties who had lost the $5,000 with the bold New Yorker, after considerable dickering, managed to make a wager of $10,000 a side with Aubrey. This time he was to go from Santa Fe to Independence, a run of 800 miles, in six days.

It was at the best season of the year. There were no rains, while the grass was good and the trail as hard as a pavement. Aubrey had the same liberty to remount himself as often as he came upon a horse that he preferred to his own. But he was not permitted to arrange relays or post horses in advance along the trail. Indeed he had no time wherein to make these arrangements even if he had desired to and they had been allowed.

He started out of Santa Fe the evening of a June day. It was Sunday. The Mexicans looking on argued success to the daring rider from the holy character of the day. All he had with him as provender was a little dried beef. He expected to get food at the stage stations along the trail. Saturday afternoon of the same week he rode into the public square at Independence, winning the race by five hours. He was just 5 days and 19 hours riding the 800 miles, and had used 11 horses. He had had two brushes with Indians, and had been chased by them at the Cimmaron crossing of the Arkansas, and again at Pawnee Rock. He escaped, however, with nothing worse than an arrow through his arm.

It is related that when he slipped from the saddle at Independence he hadn't slept a wink for 56 hours. Bystanders asserted that he was sound asleep the instant he touched the ground. Aubrey was carried into the hotel and put to bed, and never opened his eyes again until Monday morning about 2 o'clock. He then came around as fresh as a daisy and as hungry as a wolf. He routed out the cook of the hotel, made him come down to the kitchen and cook him something to eat. He won $15,000 on these two races, and in the last one made a record for long distance riding never surpassed.

Just to show how such a man of steel and zeal may end, it might be added that Frank X. Aubrey was stabbed to death in a brawl in a Santa Fe dance hall. This was some five years after his great ride. Old plainsmen will tell you, however, of the exploits of Aubrey, and he is reverently mentioned with such worthies as Sublette, Kit Carson, Ben Holliday and old Jim Bridger.—Washington Star.

His Own Figures.

Heard at a heap of dry goods labeled $1.69:

Irish Woman (with a baby in her arms)—Phwat is the price of them?

"One dollar and sixty-nine," politely answered the proprietor.

"Which are the $1 and which the 69 cint wans?"

"There are none at those prices, ma'am."

"Shure, thin, ain't thim yer own fig ures?"—Boston Transcript.

A Model English Public.

Of a plain and unpretentious exterior it stands near the center of the village, hard by the church and the rectory. The sign of the boar's head nailed against the wall over the door indicates the character of the establishment, just as in its unregenerate days. Neither parade nor concealment has been attempted. Inside you have the ordinary taproom, furnished with wooden seats and a small bar, and a larger parlor adjacent. During the major part of the day little business is done, and what there is can be easily attended to by the manager's wife—a tidy woman, who can keep the accounts. With the exception of occasional passersby, the customers are an almost constant quantity and regular in their habits.

The same men come day by day and drink just about the same amount of beer, although no attempt is made to limit them, except of course by the condition of sobriety. They have their pint after dinner and their pint and a half or so again in the evening, when they come to sit and smoke and discuss the weather and the crops. The liquor dispensed is light, but clean and palatable stuff. Drunkenness seldom occurs, and then only in persons who have come in from other places already the worse for liquor and have been accidentally served with more.—National Review.

What Was a Yeoman?

The following quotation from Bishop Latimer's "First Sermon Preached Before King Edward VI," March 8, 1549, is a good illustration of the meaning of this word and shows the primitive manners and customs of those times:

"My father was a yeoman and had no lands of his own, only he had a farm of 3 or 4 pound by year at the uttermost, and hereupon he tilled so much as kept half a dozen men. He had walk for 100 sheep, and my mother milked 30 kine. He was able and did find the king a harness, with himself and his horse, while he came to the place that he should receive the king's wages. I can remember that I buckled his harness when we went unto Blackheath field. He kept me to school, or else I had not been able to have preached before the king's majesty now. He married my sisters with 5 pound, or 20 nobles apiece, so that he brought them up in godliness and fear of God. He kept hospitality for his poor neighbors, and some alms he gave to the poor. And all this he did of the said farm, where he that now hath it payeth 16 pound by year or more and is not able to do anything for his prince, for himself nor for his children, or give a cup of drink to the poor."—Notes and Queries.

The French Postal Dictionary.

Recently a postal dictionary, about the size of Webster's Unabridged, has been published in the French language by the international postal union. It contains the names of all the postoffices in the world, 203,200.

Everything from Aa, an office in Norway, to Zywice, in Austria, is given. Even our own little Uz, in Texas, is there. In names of offices and places this book furnishes several amusing incidents. For instance, Tombstone is given as in "Territoire du Arezonie;" "Las Vegas, Territoire du Nouveau—Mexique;" West Virginia is "Virginie Occidentale;" South Dakota is "Dakota du Sud," and North Dakota is "Dakota du Nord," and the District of Columbia is "District de Colombie, Etats-Unis d'Amerique." Here can be found the offices of Hell-fer-Sarten, Yuba Dam; plain, everyday Hell, in Norway; Kiss-Me, in Montana; Who, in Texas; Hell's-Half-Acre, in Dakota; Breckinridge in several places, but Trilby is not in it.—Postal Record.

He Had That Honor.

A gentleman sojourning in Edinburgh and having heard much of the eloquence of the members of the general assembly paid an early visit to it. Next to him sat an elderly, hard featured, solemn faced man, who was leaning with both hands on a heavy stick, which he eyed with great concentration. Soon the stranger's attention was riveted upon the speaker who had opened the day's discourse. The wonderful command of language he possessed, combined with his eloquence, excited the listener's curiosity. "Can you tell me who is speaking now?" he asked eagerly, turning to the sober faced old man beside him. "Who's speaking now?" echoed the old man, lifting his eyes from the contemplation of the stick to fix them in contemptuous amazement upon his interlocutor. "That, sir, is the great Docther Chawmers, and I'm holdin his stick."

Relative Strength of Metal and Timber.

Dr. Robert H. Thurston, in a recent article, discusses various materials in which comparisons of interest are made. At the outset he gives the following generally accepted figures: Cast iron weighs 444 pounds to the cubic foot and an inch square bar will sustain a weight of 16,500 pounds; bronze, weight 525 pounds, tenacity 36,000; wrought iron, weight 480, tenacity 50,000; hard "struck" steel, weight 490, tenacity 78,000; aluminium, weight 168, tenacity 26,000. A bar of pine just as heavy as a bar of steel an inch square will hold up 125,000 pounds, the best ash 175,000 and some hemlock 200,000 pounds. Wood is bulky. It occupies 10 or 12 times the space of steel.

A Disappointed Storekeeper.

A man went into a hardware store in Portland, Me., and asked for a second-hand coffin. He said he kept a country store and thought he would keep second-hand coffins for sale. He thought the Portland stores kept everything, from hornets' nests to secondhand coffins, and was grievously disappointed to find they didn't.—Hardware.

Straw Mattings.

The recent troubles between China and Japan have greatly increased the price of mattings, and importations in this line have been wonderfully small for months gone by. It's the old saying that where there's a will there's a way, and untiring searching brought to us a splendid lot of the neatest patterns in China mattings we have ever seen. Although these mattings are well worth 20 cents, while they last our price to all will be 12½ and 15 cents per yard. Other mattings at any price.

HEROIC WOMEN.

Their Struggle Against a Common and Merciless Enemy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Woman's heroism is not evinced by fearlessness or enterprise in time of danger, but her courage and fortitude are unquestionable in time of suffering.

Think of the woman who smiles and tries to make those around her cheerful, while she is racked with the excruciating tortures of womb trouble.

Think of one who, day by day, begs her physician to help her, while the torture of tortures could not add to her misery.

Does she yield? No! She endures her agonies, and meets her friends with cheerfulness.

This is woman's heroism, and few men realize how prevalent they are. Physicians rarely render relief in such cases.

After twenty years of success, with ever-increasing popularity, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is, to-day, woman's only sure and safe refuge from inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, ovarian trouble, leucorrhœa, painful and suppressed menstruations, kidney trouble, nervous prostration, and all manner of distressing and life-sapping female diseases.

"O my sisters, believe what is told you of this wonderful medicine! Before I took it I had falling of the womb and leucorrhœa. My womb came down so badly I could not walk across the floor; the pain was excruciating; now all is so changed, and I so happy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved me from a life of misery. Don't, don't suffer, I say, when a cure is so easily obtained."—MRS. WILLIAM HOWE, 163 Antoin Street, Detroit, Mich.

Myself and Mine.

Let me have my own way.
Let others promulge the laws. I will make no account of the laws.
Let others praise eminent men and hold up peace. I hold up agitation and conflict.
I praise no eminent man. I rebuke to his face the one that was thought most worthy.
(Who are you? And what are you secretly guilty of all your life?
Will you turn aside all your life? Will you grub and chatter all your life?
And who are you, blabbing by rote, years, pages, languages, reminiscences,
Unwitting today that you do not know how to speak properly a single word?)
Let others finish specimens. I never finish specimens.
I start them by exhaustless laws, as nature does, fresh and modern continually.
I give nothing as duties.
What others give as duties I give as living impulses.
(Shall I give the heart's action as a duty?)
Let others dispose of questions. I dispose of nothing. I arouse unanswerable questions.
Who are they I see and touch, and what about them?
What about these likes of myself that draw me so close by tender directions and indirections?
I call to the world to distrust the accounts of my friends, but listen to my enemies, as I myself do.
I charge you forever reject those who would expound me, for I cannot expound myself.
I charge that there be no theory or school founded out of me.
I charge you to leave all free, as I have left all free.

—Walt Whitman.

BRIDE OF TWO WEEKS

Ended Her Career at the Same Time as Did Her Erring Husband.

She Had Clung to Him as Her Last Refuge.

Story of a Couple Who Took Their Own Lives by Use of Chloral.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The bodies of Louis Hammond of New York and his wife, who committed suicide by taking chloral at the American House, are at the morgue. The bodies will be kept there two or three days, and, unless friends claim, they will be buried by the city.

A dispatch from New York says the reason why Hammond and his bride of two weeks concluded to end their lives is made reasonably clear by the story told by Mr. Hammond's former partner, Irving Bittner, and by Mrs. John O'Donnell, the wife of an engineer, residing on East Eighty-ninth street, that city.

Mrs. O'Donnell and her daughter Lilian seem to have been the only intimate friends Kathryn Hammond had. Mr. Bittner is in the perfumery business in this city. He gave the following account of his business relations with Hammond:

"We were together in business about seven months. Hammond was a peculiar fellow and would seldom talk about his affairs. All I know is that he told that he came from Des Moines, and that his father and mother were dead.

Took Partner's Money.

"Saturday, July 27, I bought Hammond out. We dissolved partnership, and on the following Monday I discovered that on the Friday previous he had drawn from the bank a considerable sum of money belonging to the firm. I will not name the bank or the amount. I took no legal steps against him. Maybe I should have done so if I could have found him. In all probability it was fear of this that drove him to suicide. I can't see, however, how he could have become so quickly bankrupt, unless he speculated."

Mrs. O'Donnell and Miss O'Donnell explained Mrs. Hammond's antecedents as follows: Mrs Hammond's mother, who is a trained nurse by profession, is a widow. Kathryn was for six years with Mrs. Osborne, who lives in Belleville, Newark. She was for a time a seamstress in Newark, living with her sister. Then she studied stenography at the Orange institute. In April last she came to live with Mrs. O'Donnell, who had just moved to this city.

"In the family," said Mrs. O'Donnell, "she got a place, but she lost it when winter came. Then she went to her mother and asked for shelter, because she did not want to burden us any longer. Her mother, she informed us, told her that she had no room for her. She came back and said: 'They are lost to me forever. Never let them know what happened to me. If I die, keep them away. I believe I should rise out of my coffin if I knew they were near.'

"Out of work, friendless, except for us it seems she clung to this man Hammond as a last refuge, and when that failed, resolved to die."

SHOT WIFE AND HIMSELF.

The Woman May Recover but Daniel McLeod Is Dead.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 26.—Daniel J. McLeod, a Melrose carpenter, attempted to kill his divorced wife, Mary McLeod, on Washington street, yesterday afternoon, and afterward shot himself through the head, dying instantly. Although the woman was badly injured, it was thought that she will recover. The shooting occurred in a narrow passageway between a house and barn.

Mary McLeod, who is employed as a domestic by J. P. Sweet, obtained a divorce from her husband 2½ years ago. Since then McLeod has frequently asked her to live with him, once threatening to shoot her if she refused.

Yesterday he met her on Washington street and renewed his request. Mary refused, and informed him that she did not wish him to follow her around. McLeod became angry at her reply, and, drawing a 38-caliber revolver, fired two shots at the woman, who was close behind him.

The first one shattered her jaw, the bullet passing through the roof of her mouth and out through the left cheek. She ran away before the second was fired, and it missed her. McLeod then placed the weapon behind his right ear and fired. The bullet passed through the brain, and he died instantly.

A FRUITLESS SEARCH.

Three Hundred Armed Men Scoured Woods For the Wild Man.

WEST WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 26.—The hunt for the wild man in the wilds of Colebrook yesterday was made by a posse of 300 armed men, but all their scouring was of no avail. The only trace of the wild man to be seen were his footprints.

A hut was also discovered on the Beardsley farm, a half mile south of where the wild man had frightened so many people. A fireplace and a bottle, quarter filled with milk, were all there were to be found within the hut. Farmers think it is one of his homes.

Some picnickers recently located a small cabin, and ran to town, saying they had seen the wild man's cabin in the woods. Investigation yesterday showed it to be the present quarters of Mort Pond, a hermit, who has lived in the forest the past 20 years.

Searching parties are liable to start out any time. The inhabitants of Colebrook and other small hamlets north, as far as Sandisfield, propose to organize among themselves to hunt the terror.

Timely Rescue.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 26.—Steamer Commodore last night picked up a small boat in the Sound containing four men. A fifth was clinging to the boat, as it was not large enough to contain five. The men took to the small boat and were helpless when picked up.

Murder at Waterbury.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 26.—Marciano Pugliese, 22 years old, was almost instantly killed during a brawl in the Italian quarter. Joseph Calo and Joseph Pugliese, the dead man's cousin, are under arrest for the murder. Bad blood had existed between the men for some months. Saturday night, while all were in drink, the younger Pugliese boasted that he could thrash Calo and his friends. The latter thereupon attacked him, and Pugliese received a deep cut from a knife in the neck, severing several large blood vessels. He bled to death in about three minutes. It is believed that Calo struck the blow. The two men arrested are severely cut.

A MILLION PEOPLE

Saw Magnificent Display by Templars.

SIGHT OF A LIFETIME

Fully Appreciated by Hub's Residents and Visitors.

An Interesting Story of the Interesting Doings of the Day.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The famous triennial conclave of Knights Templar reached an impressive climax yesterday. A million people saw the highest Templar in the world, most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy, grand master, escorted to the Masonic Temple by a marching army of 25,000 Sir Knights. The city fairly bulged with its temporary population.

People everywhere; in the streets, on the sidewalks, on the roofs of buildings and street cars, clinging to the tops of telegraph poles, whenever the vigilance of the police and linemen was relaxed for a moment, in wagons and drays filled with seats in the side streets, and on hundreds of grand stands, large and small, along the route.

Never in the history of ancient Boston has a greater host of strangers crowded within the city's gates, and for many years the spectacle of yesterday will be the precedent with which great gatherings in New England will be compared. It was a good-natured crowd, and, considering its size, was well handled.

For about six hours the principal avenues were occupied by plumed Knights Templar and hundreds of thousands of spectators obligingly crowded onto the sidewalks to give them room. It was nearly 6 o'clock when the last commandery of Knights Templar broke up at the foot of Washington street and the traffic of the city was resumed.

GRAND MASTER M'CURDY.

All the afternoon the street-car system was almost entirely suspended, even in the streets through which the parade did not pass. When the cars did start up, however, there was the greatest rush ever seen in Boston. Every one was anxious to get home to supper, as the majority of them had been standing with nothing to eat since early morning. They did not remain at home, however, but hurried back to become a part of the great human kaleidoscope which was moving up and down the principal streets last night.

The day was a grand one. Somewhat cloudy at first, the sun came out brightly in the afternoon, but at no time was the heat so great as to cause much discomfort and every one seemed to enjoy himself greatly, from the grinning urchin who had climbed an electric light pole, to the proud bearer of the handsome beauseant in the line.

There were none too many grand stands to accommodate the immense throng that clamored for seats, although most every foot of available space along the line of march had been covered with platforms and seats. Every inch of space was occupied, and there was hardly breathing room. Both incoming and outgoing local trains were practically deserted during the afternoon, but as soon as the parade was over there was a stampede for the depots, and the early evening trains were crowded to suffocation. The great exodus, however, seemed to make no appreciable difference in the size of the crowd, which still continued to fill every thoroughfare.

The Knights presented a splendid appearance on parade, and, with very few exceptions, completed the entire line of march. As they passed the reviewing stands before Grand Commander McCurdy and Governor Greenhalge, and later before Mayor Curtis, many of them executed intricate military evolutions which won the expressed admiration of the thousands who witnessed them. These tactics were also introduced by the more proficient commanderies at intervals along the line of march.

Great admiration was expressed at the appearance of the California and other western delegations, but there was but slight difference in the manifest pleasure of the spectators as one after the other of all commanderies passed.

Officially Welcomed.

It was shortly after 6:30 o'clock last evening when the conclave was officially opened at Masonic Temple. Most eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy, Governor Greenhalge, Mayor Curtis and Right Eminent Sir Samuel C. Lawrence proceeded to the temple, where they were greeted by a large audience of Sir Knights and Masons. Sir Lawrence acted as master of ceremonies and introduced Mayor Curtis, who welcomed the Knights Templar to Boston in the following address:

"Most Eminent Grand Master, Officers and Members of the Grand Encampment—It is with unusual pleasure that, in behalf of the city of Boston, I extend you a welcome, for I greet you as brethren 'in vinculis fraternitatis.' Be assured that the proverbial coldness is but an outward seeming, and even this we have endeavored with all our powers to dispel with our smiles of welcome. The heart of Boston is warm today. You have seen the mute but eloquent welcome waving in brilliant colors upon our outward walls. As the darkness gathers, the welcome will still be taken up, and in letters of fire you will read your greeting. Our welcome is sincere and heartfelt."

To Grand Master McCurdy the mayor extended an especial greeting, as the chief officer of the great body of noble men, saying: "You have been placed in positions of the greatest importance, often by the suffrages of those with whom you differed in political views and theories, but never has the trust of the people been betrayed. The best thought of the present day is looking forward hopefully to a better era of citizenship. It is with such men of sturdy integrity that lies the realization of this hope.

"Again, Most Eminent Sir; again, Gentlemen and Brethren, I extend to you Boston's most hearty greeting. Our doors, the doors of our hearts and our homes, are wide open. We trust that when you go away, your regret may be as sincere as is our pleasure in your coming."

Mayor Curtis then introduced Governor Greenhalge, who spoke as follows: "After what has happened today it would be superfluous for me to add anything further. The welcome is so great that the sound waves will carry love from Boston to San Francisco and from Canada to New Orleans. Events of this sort bring together citizens of a true republic, one people, one purpose, one cause. The event today has been an inspiring spectacle, inspiring in numbers, inspiring in character and inspiring in significance. This conclave represents a magnificent purpose. The lesson which has gone out today will be heeded in every state in the union."

McCurdy's Response.

In response to the addresses of welcome from Right Eminent Sir Samuel C. Lawrence, grand commander of the Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Mayor Curtis and Governor Greenhalge, Grand Master McCurdy, after thanking them for their kindly expressions, said in substance that he could not better define Templar Freemasonry than that, like the Holy Bible, it is "a book of men loving—it is full of faces turned toward faces."

"The best of all that will happen during our stay," he said, "will be that friend will meet friend, and faces will look into faces. We are Templars only that we may be better men, and have come to your city, not merely to advance the interests of our order, but to promote the claims of universal brotherhood. In the very forefront of American commonwealths, as the eloquent living exponent of this idea, stands your historic state, a state founded on faith in man, and, therefore, sure to stand. To be welcomed by men having an ancestry so noble as yours, is, indeed, an honor which as men and Knights Templar we most highly esteem, and we assure you that we shall ever cherish the memory of your fraternal greeting among the most treasured associations of our many joyful pilgrimages."

At the close of Sir Hugh McCurdy's address, every one not a member of the grand encampment of the United States was requested to withdraw, and the encampment went into executive session. No business was transacted further than to declare the conclave open, and adjournment promptly followed, the Knights dispersing to their various headquarters, which were at once thrown open to visitors.

Good Fellowship.

The Mecca of the grand officers of the grand commanderies from all parts of the country last evening was the Hotel Brunswick, where the grand commanderies of Massachusetts and Rhode Island tendered a reception to the members of the grand encampment, the officers of the grand commanderies and the councils of commanderies, with their ladies.

The east parlors of the hotel where the reception was held were beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants and the Salem Cadet band orchestra was in attendance. Many prominent Knights from all sections of the United States called during the evening. At the Brunswick, also, several of the subordinate commanderies received their friends.

On one of the main grand stands in Copley square, near the Hotel Brunswick, Marshall's Military band of Topeka gave a concert.

California commandery No. 1 of San Francisco received at their headquarters on Bosworth street, and distributed a basket of fruit and a bottle of wine, both products of California, to each lady caller. Hundreds of visitors shared the bounty of the generous westerners.

Most of the receptions were not terminated until midnight and until a late hour crowds thronged the streets near the large hotels and hurrying carriages blocked the streets.

Which Shall It Be?

There is a competition of the most lively sort between the Pittsburg and Philadelphia commanderies to secure the triennial conclave in 1898. The claims of each city are being presented with pleasant yet unceasing energy on both sides. Pittsburg rooters are to be found everywhere there is likely to be a gathering of Knights Templar and are extolling their city for all it is worth. The headquarters of their commandery are at the Quincy and open house is the order of the day to all Sir Knights and their lady friends. A band concert in front of the hotel each evening is also on the program.

The Pennsylvanian delegations are working like beavers, and at their headquarters an almost uninterrupted "at home" is being held. Many visitors are attracted each evening. The boom committee, headed by a band, is also visiting and serenading the various headquarters. In spite of their earnestness, however, neither side will express themselves on the outlook for success. They simply say: "Time will tell."

Iowa Statesman Dying.

DES MOINES, Aug. 28.—General E. D Wright, for six years secretary of state and ex-speaker of the house of representatives, is dying.

NO MEAN COMPETITOR

Valkyrie Will Make a Great Struggle For America's Cup.

Navigators Appear to Have Her Well In Hand.

Will Prove a Dangerous Rival of Any American Boat.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Valkyrie III took her first sail in racing trim in American waters yesterday, and successfully evaded an attempted challenge of the Vigilant for a race. One fact was developed, however, and that is that the idea that Valkyrie is going to give us the biggest tussel of our lives in the fall match for the America's cup has been greatly heightened by the result of yesterday's spin off Sandy Hook.

The prospects of drawing a line through the Vigilant upon Valkyrie were deemed good when Vigilant started from her anchorage previous to the departure of Valkyrie. She had on board George Cormack, and was sailed by Captain Charles Barr. She had set only her small gafftopsail and jib, in addition to her mainsail, and saluted Valkyrie and Mr. Glennie as she passed the trim black British challenger.

The tide was at the last of the flood, and Valkyrie III left her mooring buoy at 3 o'clock under her big mainsail, which was hoisted from below, and jib, set up by a fall in stops upon the port tack. It was evident that she did not desire a trial spin for any other purpose than to stretch her canvas and make her sheets pliable. She followed the Vigilant out toward the Hook in a leisurely way, breaking out her forestaysail as she neared the channel.

Comparison Impossible.

She tacked about, luffed and eased sheets from starboard to port at will upon her way out to the channel, and it was evident that the men in charge did not intend to allow the small fleet of newspaper tugs to have a chance of seeing her work beside that of the Vigilant. Cranfield did not hurry at all, and it was evident that he had an eye to the necessity of sufficient preliminary testing of even his strong, able rig.

The canvas set beautifully. The mainsail, in particular, was admirable in its fit, although the buttons were not yet in the pockets. Her headsails look smaller than the Defender's, but are still good fitting cloths. No jibtopsail was carried during the spin, nor was any gaff or club topsails stretched.

She moved beautifully under the good breeze, and showed that her hull is moulded to a delicacy and power enough to insure the fact that she is a very dangerous rival of any American boat. She is marvelously quick in stays and time at 30 seconds from eased sheets.

Little can be learned from what was so evidently a relaxation trip, and Mr. Glennie showed that he enjoyed it after the hard life he has had in the heat and dust at Erie basin drydock. The yacht came about off can buoy No. 4 and returned to the Horseshoe.

Reds and Whites at Odds.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 28.—Trouble has again broken out between Kalispell Indians and settlers along the east side of the Pend d'Orielle river in Idaho over the disputed possession of what the Indians claim is their reservation, but which is in reality government land. The redskins forcibly took possession of the homes and property of the whites, and told the latter that such were their instructions from Indian Agent Dubb. The Indians are ugly and the settlers determinedly serious.

Quay and Anti-Quay.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 28.—Both factions held caucuses last night. The anti-Quay caucus held a five-minute meeting and adjourned until today. The Quay caucus transacted such business. One hundred and fifty-three uncontested delegates, eight more than a majority, answered to their names. The Quay people decided to hold a separate convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—About 6000 cloth weavers here have asked their employers to adopt a uniform wage scale, which they have drawn up. If their demand is not acceded to, a general strike may ensue.

Banker Commits Suicide.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—J. V. Lewis, a banker of Chatham, Ills., committed suicide here by throwing himself in front of a passenger train. He had been undergoing treatment at a sanitarium.

The Quincy Patriot,

BOSTON'S PARADE.

All Quincy Was There and Nearly Everybody Else.

Aside from the going and coming of our citizens to Boston yesterday it was a remarkably quiet day in Quincy. Business was very generally suspended, particularly the stores, banks, newspaper offices, news stands, etc. It was interesting to watch the travel by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and the electrics. Both were taxed to their utmost and probably did the biggest day's business on record.

The Quincy members of South Shore commandery went to Boston about 8 A. M. On the arrival of the train a procession was formed, headed by police and the Weymouth band, and marched to Huntington avenue, and were in position three hours before the start. LEDGER representatives viewed them at different points along the route of procession and their appearance and marching was creditable. They turned out in good numbers and proudly followed the new flag and banner.

Several Quincy gentlemen were also noticed in the ranks of other commanderies

The lady friends of South Shore commandery viewed the procession from the grand stand in Copley Square, where Sir Joseph L. Whiton was chairman of the committee.

The South Shore commandery completed the line of march about three o'clock and later found a dinner awaiting the Knights and ladies at Phœnix hall, corner of Washington and Kneeland street, which was served by Blunt.

The parade was about four hours and one-half in passing a given point and was not finished until after five o'clock.

Then came the scramble for the trains and electric cars, and one was lucky if he obtained standing room from five to seven.

It was a great day and everybody was impressed by the fine body of men who paraded. The somewhat cloudy sky and the cool breeze made it a perfect day, and it was all in all a grand success.

Bulletins of Parade.

One of the features of the day in connection with the Boston parade was a highly meritorious piece of enterprise on the part of Messrs. John H. Pray, Sons & Co., carpet dealers at 658 Washington street. This firm did what, so far as known, has never hitherto been undertaken by any but a newspaper establishment.

Arrangements were made by which a complete news service was furnished by the firm, and was displayed upon a bulletin board in front of the store to the gratification of an immense crowd which quickly gathered when it became manifest what was being done.

It was understood that the idea of the firm's bulleting news in this way was conceived by Mr. A. E. Sproul of Quincy, the well known advertising agent, who has charge of Messrs. Pray & Co.'s advertising, and it was successfully carried out by a corps of trained men under his supervision.—Herald.

OUR DAY TOMORROW.

Three Commanderies of Knights Templar to Parade.

The South Shore to Entertain Killington of Rutland, Vt.

And Also the Forest City Commandery of Cleveland, Ohio.

Bright and early tomorrow morning the Knights Templar will be astir in Quincy, for it is "suburban day" of conclave week and two commanderies from other States have accepted invitations of South Shore commandery to be their guests, while other Massachusetts commanderies will extend hospitalities to visiting knights.

Already the committees of South Shore commandery have made the acquaintance of their guests at their headquarters in Boston, and promised them an enjoyable outing.

The visitors are the Killington commandery, No. 6, of Rutland, Vt., and Forest City, No. 40, of Cleveland, O., and the Sir Knights will be accompanied by ladies. The Green Mountain boys were in the Fifth division in the Boston parade and the Buckeye State commandery in the Sixth division, and they made a creditable showing, and Quincy will be honored by a visit from them.

The following committees will escort the commanderies from their hotel in Boston to Quincy:

Killington,—Sir Francis L. Bicknell, Sir John F. Merrill, Sir A. G. Durgin, Sir John Shaw, Sir W. W. Ewell and Sir J. H. Gilbert.

Forest City,—Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass, Sir Charles L. Hammond, Sir William N. Eaton, Sir A. W. Stetson, Sir G. R. England and Sir Joseph C. Morse.

The Quincy committee are: Sir Arthur W. Stetson, Sir Joseph C. Morse, Sir John O. Hall, Em. Sir E. W. H. Bass, Sir George H. Wilson, Sir Charles L. Hammond and Sir A. G. Durgin.

SIR ARTHUR W. STETSON, 32°, Chairman of Quincy Committee.

The commanderies will leave Boston on the 8.30 express, which will make a special stop at Quincy. South Shore commandery will assemble at the Quincy depot to receive the visitors.

Route of Procession.

The procession will be formed immediately, and headed by a squad of police and the Weymouth band, will march over the following route:

Hancock to School street.
School to Franklin street.
Franklin to Independence avenue.
Halt at the birthplaces of the Presidents.
Countermarch on Franklin to School street.
School to Elm street.
Elm to Bigelow street.
Bigelow to Faxon hall, where a lunch will be served by Caterer Nash.

The procession will then be called from refreshments to labor again, and will march to City Square and disband.

If time will admit an opportunity will be given for an inspection of the interior of the old First church, where the Presidents Adams worshipped, and which is now their resting place. Mural monuments on either side of the high pulpit briefly tell their history.

About 11.30 electric cars will be taken for the asylum of South Shore commandery at East Weymouth, where a brief stop will be made. Barges will then convey the Knights Templar to Downer Landing where a clambake dinner will be served. At 3.55 a steamer will be taken for Boston, the members of South Shore commandery going to the city with them.

The business houses and some private residences along the route in this city are already decorated. These include the City Hall, Carlson's news stand, Hearn's pharmacy, C. C. Mueller's, Doctor Bamford, the Greenleaf block, C. F. Pettengill, the Durgin & Merrill block, residence of Col. Abner B. Packard, the late residence of G. F. Wilson, Wilson's market, Walker & Colpitt, N. Y. & Boston express office, H. L. Kincaide & Co., Tirrell & Son, residence of Mayor Hodges, Hodges bakery, residence of John H. Dinegan, the W. H. Doble & Co. block, residence of W. E. Howe, and Stetson shoe store.

Good Work by Constable Furnald.

The family of Mr. Francis J. Cain of South Braintree went on a sailing party last Friday. They invited the girl in their employ to accompany them but she declined saying she would be seasick. On the return of the family it was ascertained that the house had been ransacked and goods to the value of $100 and the girl were missing.

The services of Constable Furnald were solicited that night, and he did a clever piece of work.

The girl's name was Lillian A. White, and he succeeded in tracing her to Marlboro by the bundle of stolen goods which she had forwarded by express. He arrived in Marlboro in fact at the same time as the bundle and went to the house with the expressman. The expressman inquired at the house for Lillian A. White and she responded and receipted for the bundle, but Officer Furnald stepped in at this point and girl and bundle came to Quincy Tuesday noon.

In the Quincy court today she was sentenced to six months at the house of correction at Dedham.

THE ILLUMINATION.

Houghs Neck Has Its Annual Gala Day and Attracts Crowd.

The annual illumination of Houghs Neck Monday night was quite a success although hardly up to the standard of previous years in brilliancy or in attendance.

In the afternoon the cottagers had it much their own way as the travel was not large from Quincy. Many who did go down were attracted by the yacht race.

From 2 to 3 o'clock Caterer Nash served ice cream and cake in the car house to the children, and it took 35 gallons to satisfy them.

The steam yachts Athlete and Get made several short trips between 3 and 5 P. M. and many ladies and children enjoyed a sail.

Result of Sports.

During the afternoon there was an interesting series of sports in charge of Messrs. W. F. Macy, Lawrence Hoey, Henry Hoey, Arthur T. Downey, Joseph Moebs and Bert Harvey.

In the boat race the prize of $1 was won by Adolph Moebs and Joseph Fitts.

The first prizes of 75 cents in the tub race was won by Adolph Moebs, and the second prize of 50 cents went to Elvin Taylor.

The other events were in the field on the Bayside, and were interspersed with Punch and Judy shows selections by the Dedham band.

Sack race,—Alvin Moebs, first, $1; James McTrask, second, 50 cents.

100-yard dash,—Willie Jacobs, first, $1.

Doughnut eating race,—Lloyd Hoey, first, bicycle lamp; Moses Hoey, second, a bicycle bell.

Apple race a tie and prize divided among several.

Blind hunt for dollar,—James Lahey won the dollar.

Barrel race blind folded—Fred Hoey first, $1; James McGrath second, 50 cents.

Hunt for boots and race won by Elvin Taylor, who received a prize of $1.

In the Evening

At dark the cottages generally were illuminated with Chinese lanterns, red lanterns, candles and colored fires. Fireworks were set off on Great Hill and in the field near Rogers street and there were some private displays.

Chief Hayden was on duty with ten policemen to preserve order, and Chief Engineer Williams had taken extra precaution against fire.

It was not until 8.30 that the crowd was manifest. At this hour seven or eight loaded cars arrived, but four cars being necessary at 7.30 and three at 8. The carriages were late also, but from 8.30 to 9.30 there was a crowd, and then the return travel set in, and cars were run until 1 A. M.

Is the earnest, almost agonizing cry of weak, tired, nervous women, and crowded, overworked, struggling men. Slight difficulties, ordinary cares, household work or daily labor, magnify themselves into seemingly impassable mountains.

Straw Mattings.

The recent troubles between China and Japan have greatly increased the price of mattings, and importations in this line have been wonderfully small for months gone by. It's the old saying that where there's a will there's a way, and untiring searching brought to us a splendid lot of the neatest patterns in China mattings we have ever seen. Although these mattings are well worth 20 cents, while they last our price to all will be 12½ and 15 cents per yard. Other mattings at any price.

THE YACHT RACES.

Championships Decided in the Quincy Yacht Club.

Cups for the Gleaner, the Swirl and the Sphinx.

The Rooster Wins the First Leg in the Faxon Series.

The 128th regatta of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed off the club house on Tuesday afternoon. At the time the preparatory gun was fired there was a strong, single-reef breeze from the southwest.

When the first class was started the Gleaner and Beatrice crossed the line together slightly in advance of the Moondyne. The Gleaner pulled away from the Beatrice and Moondyne, and when she rounded Channel Rock buoy on the first round she still held it. The Beatrice on rounding the buoy squared away before the wind, and broke out her spinnaker. When off Bumkin island she overhauled the Gleaner and passed her, but as soon as they got the wind on their quarter the Gleaner again passed the Beatrice and won the race as well as the championship in her class for the season—the Sanborn cup.

In the second class there were two starters, the Swirl and Gismonda. The Swirl lead the Gismonda one minute in crossing the line. Just after the Gismonda rounded Sheep Island buoy her centre-board pennant broke, allowing the half-ton board to dangle useless in the water. The Gismonda withdrew and headed for the club house, where she was beached and the board raised.

When the third class started, the Sunbeam was away closely followed by the Sphinx. The Sunbeam led the Sphinx all the way over the course. The Sphinx had however previously won the championship, Sanborn cup in her class, as had the Swirl in her class.

The judges were Commodore Pettengill, Secretary Whiting and Mr. William P. Barker. The summary:

The Faxon Series.

The first of the series of races for the Faxon cup, competed for by cat rigs from 18 to 21 feet waterline measurement was sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club off the Club House on Monday afternoon.

The race was a notable one as it brought together eight of the crack boats of that measurement in the bay, including the famous Nancy Hanks of Kingston.

The weather conditions for the race were nigh perfect. With a good breeze from west-nor'-west the boats were started off on the No. 1 course at 3 10 o'clock. As usual there was some clever jockeying by the skippers to get their boats just about one inch from the line when the starting gun was fired and the blue peter on the judges' stand was lowered. The Adams Brothers in the little Rooster lead the procession across, although there was not very much of a procession to it as the Opechee, Sphinx, and Kayoshk chased the Rooster up pretty close.

The race was exciting from the start. There was just wind enough to give the boats a good sail full without spilling any of it.

Kit Cleverly sailed the Sphinx but before she had reached Grape Island buoy her gaff broke, disabling her so that she had to pull out. The Gismonda, after rounding the Grape Island buoy, had the misfortune to have a band near the masthead give way. She had to pull out.

The fight between the Rooster and Swirl was a hot one. The Opechee was ahead of the Kayoshk 10 seconds and behind the Nancy Hanks only 10 seconds on the first round.

The first round:

	Actual time
Rooster	41 30
Swirl	41-47
Nancy Hanks	42-50
Opechee	43-00
Kayoshk	43-10
Joker	46-03

Then came the tussel for the final leg. The Rooster came in on top of the heap and got a leg in the cup.

As the club measurer disappointed the skippers in not being present the corrected time for all of the boats cannot be given:

Second prize, $10; third prize, $5.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Another Faxon race today.

Quincy Yacht Club hop on Friday evening.

Mr. Walter B. Wilson is in town for a couple of weeks.

The outward travel from Boston has been large today.

Mr. Emery E Fellows, a former resident, is in town for a few days.

The residence of Col. A. B. Packard, always attractive, is prettily decorated for the gala day tomorrow.

Miss Grace W. Emery of Wollaston is enjoying a delightful vacation at the Webster House, Franklin, N. H.

There will be a handicap tournament, open to the members of the Wollaston Golf club, on Saturday afternoon.

One of the finest decorations of private residences, which we have seen in this city is that of Mr. John H. Dinegan on School street.

Capt. Boyd will probably resign his commission as postmaster at Houghs Neck at the close of the present season, because of ill health.

Mrs. Fritz Swanson and children and Miss Zelma Gustafson of Chestnut street have returned from a two months' visit in La Porte, Ill.

The alarm from Box 26 about 6.15 Tuesday evening was for a slight fire on the roof of the L of the Temple street restaurant. It was unnecessary.

Had Mayor Hodges been anxious for the passage of the school house order he should have enclosed it in the call for the special meeting of Friday evening.

The squad of police on duty at Houghs Neck illumination night were entertained at Pierce's Hotel. Officer Sandberg likes chowder and pie and took first prize.

About 2,000 fares were sold at the Quincy depot for Boston on Tuesday, but this does not represent half the number who rode as many books are out. At Quincy Adams about 350 were sold.

The officers of the Hospital Aid Association are invited to meet the Trustees of the Hospital at the Probate Court Room, Thursday evening, at quarter before eight to discuss matters in connection with the Hospital.

Living Stones In Falkland.

The most curious specimens of vegetable or plant life in existence are the so called "living stones" of the Falkland islands. Those islands are among the most cheerless spots in the world, being constantly subjected to a strong polar wind. In such a climate it is impossible for trees to grow erect, as they do in other countries, but nature has made amends by furnishing a supply of wood in the most curious shape imaginable.

The visitor to the Falklands sees scattered here and there singular shaped blocks of what appear to be weather beaten and moss covered bowlders in various sizes. Attempt to turn one of these "bowlders" over, and you will meet with a surprise, because the stone is actually anchored by roots of great strength—in fact, you will find that you are fooling with one of the native trees. No other country in the world has such a peculiar "forest" growth, and it is said to be next to impossible to work the odd shaped block into fuel, because it is perfectly devoid of "grain" and appears to be nothing but a twisted mass of woody fibers.—London Exchange.

Reaped the Advantage of Being Dead.

A well known Italian poet hit on a neat plan for securing the distinction that comes from death, without the pains. He published a striking volume of lyrics, affixed an unknown name to it, and in a laudatory preface told of the bard's wretched life and early untimely taking off, even pointing out for the benefit of admirers the position of his tomb in a certain cemetery. The book had all the flavor of genius perished in its young promise, and secured a big sale, a deluge of sentimental tears being shed by countless damsels over the dead singer. And when the deceased unknown was secure in his posthumous reputation and had raked in shekels enough to make the publication a good thing on the business side the well known poet came out with the confession that no such young writer had ever existed. The name was a pen name adopted by himself. The bogus death was a device he had invented. The success of his peculiar log rolling caused a sensation, arousing indignation or amusement, as it happened, but on the whole vastly helping his own selling powers.—Hartford Courant.

Birds Shun Sour Cherries.

Birds are said to have a sweet tooth as well as members of the human family and can tell a sweet cherry from a sour cherry better than the average boy, who is supposed to know more about cherries than any other creature. They certainly let alone the sour class of cherries, as the Morellos are usually termed, when they have the chance of foraging on the sweeter kinds. For this reason the Morello, or "pie," cherries are much more popular around cities where birds and boys are likely to be troublesome. A point not generally known is that these trees usually grow as dwarfs, but make quite large trees when grafted on the Mazzard stock. They grow dwarf and are very productive when grafted on the Mahaleb. If not quite as productive as when grown on the latter, the fruit is much finer in every respect, and for this reason as well as from the fact that they make larger trees they are more popular for the situations indicated.—Meehan's Monthly.

Agnosticism.

There can be no hope apparently of laying new foundations for a rational theology in any direction excepting that of the study of the universe and of humanity as manifestations of the supreme power, in that spirit of thoroughgoing intellectual honesty of which Huxley is truly said to have been an illustrious example. That we are made and intended to pursue knowledge is as certain as that we are made and intended to strive for the improvement of our estate, and we cannot tell how far or to what revelations the pursuit may lead us. If revelation is lost to us, manifestation remains, and great revelations appear to be opening on our view. Agnosticism is right if it is a counsel of honesty, but ought not to be heard if it is a counsel of despair.—From "Gnesses at the Riddle of Existence," by Professor Goldwin Smith, in North American Review.

Anecdote of Norbury.

It is said of Lord Norbury that he would at any time rather lose a friend than a joke. On one occasion he began the sentence of death in this wise: "Prisoner at the bar, you have been found guilty by a jury of your countrymen of the crime laid to your charge, and I must say I entirely agree with the verdict, for I see 'scoundrel' written in your face." Here the prisoner interrupted with, "That's a strong reflection from your lordship," whereupon the judge, keenly appreciating the joke, commuted the sentence into transportation for seven years.

He Understood Woman.

Jack—I had good reasons for not coming.

Ethel—You poor dear! Forgive me. What a tiresome evening you must have had.—Boston Courier.

White Capping Up to Date.

"They did."

"What was the trouble?"

"All of them were owing him money."—Atlanta Constitution.

A girl feels flattered when told she looks well in anything, but a wife thinks such a compliment only a plot to get her to wear old clothes.

ALWAYS TIRED.

HOW MANY WOMEN DO YOU KNOW

Who Can Say They Are Thoroughly Well? How They Can Be Strong.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

I don't feel very well; I am so tired all the time; I don't know what is the matter with me.

You hear these words every day. As often as you meet your friends, just so often are the words repeated. More than likely you speak the same pregnant words yourself, and there is no doubt but that you do feel far from well most of the time.

There is a cause,

And—

There is a remedy for all that is covered by those words so constantly spoken by women.

Lydia E. Pinkham discovered the source of nearly all the suffering endured by the sex.

"Women's Complaints,"—these two words are full of more misery to women than any two words that can be found in the language of the world.

Sudden fainting, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or to do anything, backache, "bearing down," and kindred symptoms of serious disturbance seldom imagined by your family physician, and reluctantly mentioned by you.

The remedy is found; the same noble woman who discovered the cause of all your misery also worked out the remedy. All druggists have it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest blessing that ever came into the lives of suffering women.

Bicycle Riding

The easiest riding wheel constantly jars the system—an easy sort of jar, maybe, but the kind that wears the vital organs. The greatest wear is on the Kidneys; constant jarring prevents their doing their work properly.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a natural remedy and act on the Kidneys as sleep acts on the brain. They restore them to their functions and remove the dragging pains in the back. Backache and Kidney ache are tired aches, aches that indicate disease. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Backache, free.

Forty Years After.

We climbed to the top of Goat Point hill,
Sweet Kitty, my sweetheart, and I,
And watched the moon make stars on the waves
And the dim white ships go by,
While a throne we made on a rough stone wall,
And the king and the queen were we,
And I sat with my arm about Kitty
And she with her arm about me.

The water was mad in the moonlight,
And the sand like gold where it shone,
And our hearts kept time to the music
As we sat in that splendor alone,
And Kitty's dear eyes twinkled brightly,
And Kitty's brown hair blew so free,
While I sat with my arm about Kitty
And she with her arm about me.

Last night we drove in our carriage
To the wall at the top of the hill,
And though we're forty years older
We're children and sweethearts still,
And we talked again of that moonlight
That danced so mad on the sea
When I sat with my arm about Kitty
And she with her arm about me.

The throne on the wall was still standing,
But we sat in the carriage last night,
For a wall is too high for old people
Whose foreheads have linings of white,
And Kitty's waist measure is forty,
While mine is full fifty and three,
So I can't get my arm about Kitty,
Nor can she get both hers about me.

His Mission.

To promote the increase of natural knowledge and to forward the application of scientific methods of investigation to all the problems of life to the best of my ability in the conviction (which has grown with my growth and strengthened with my strength) that there is no alleviation for the sufferings of mankind except veracity of thought and action and the resolute facing of the world as it is when the garment of make believe by which pious hands have hidden its uglier features is stripped off.

It is with this intent that I have subordinated any reasonable or unreasonable ambition for scientific fame which I may have permitted myself to entertain to other tends; to the popularization of science; to the development and organization of scientific education; to the endless series of battles and skirmishes over evolution, and to untiring opposition to that ecclesiastical spirit, that clericalism which in England, as everywhere else, and to whatever denomination it may belong, is the deadly enemy of science.—The Late Professor Huxley.

BURNED IN A STOVE.

Methods Adopted by Holmes to Dispose of a Human Body.

Proof of Awful Crime Unearthed In Indianapolis.

Detectives Have Found the Supposed Remains of Little Howard Pitzel.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 28.—The body of little Howard Pitzel, one of the alleged victims of "H. H. Holmes," the insurance swindler, was found last night by Dr. J. F. Barnhill.

Two detectives, Geyer of Philadelphia and Richards of Indianapolis, and Inspector Gary of the Fidelity Insurance company have been at work for weeks hunting for traces of the boy's body. He was traced to here with Holmes, and then he disappeared.

Yesterday morning the detectives went to Covington, a suburb of the city, and the seat of Butler college, and before they had been at work an hour their attention was called by a local real estate dealer to a small vacant cottage situated in the woods at the edge of the town and far from any other dwelling.

The party went to the house, and a few minutes later the officers found beneath the side porch the missing trunk which was taken from the side door of the Circle House in this city by H. H. Holmes and which was thought to contain the body of the boy. Great excitement followed, and hundreds flocked to the scene as soon as the discovery leaked out, although the officers endeavored to keep the matter a secret. The house was guarded and work begun searching for additional evidence.

In a barn connected with the house was a large stove of cylindrical shape, of the same pattern as Holmes bought in Cincinnati.

In a Stove-Hole.

Late last evening D. J. F. Barnhill's attention was called by a small boy named Walter Jenny to the stove-hole where the stove had been. It was filled with refuse. This was pulled out and the remains of the boy were found.

Physicians and dentists were there, and in this pit of refuse hundreds of pieces of charred bones were found. The teeth showed that the body was that of a boy between 8 and 10 years of age, and all the other bones confirmed this. All were charred, and pieces of flesh clung to some of them. The skull-bones and pelvis added to the same convincing truth.

The boy had evidently been burned in a cob fire and in the huge stove found in the barn. Howard's overcoat was found at a grocery store nearby, where Holmes had left it, saying the boy would call for it. He never came. Owners of the house recognized Holmes from the pictures shown them.

All identify him as the man who, last October, rented the house, with the same story as he told in Toronto and other places, came with the boy and the big stove, washstand and bed, stayed two days and then disappeared. Several people have identified him and all doubt is removed.

Unfortunate Settlers.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Aug. 28.—Consternation has been caused in this county by the appearance of an army lieutenant and a squad of men, with instructions to settlers on government reserves to vacate the same before Sept. 15, or be removed by troops. One hundred settlers will probably lose their homes. It is feared that trouble will ensue should the government attempt to forcibly take from the settlers homes they have built by many years of toil.

Assistance Needed.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 28.—Dr. Greenfall, superintendent of the Deep Sea mission, writes announcing extreme destitution among the residents of northern Labrador, owing to the failure of the salmon fishery. He says that many persons will perish next winter unless prompt assistance is rendered.

Prince Chose Death.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—Prince Ernest Rohan Guemenee, who escaped from a lunatic asylum recently and has since been declared sane, has been found dead in a stable with a bullet in his head. He is supposed to have committed suicide.

GALLANT SIR KNIGHTS

Enjoy Themselves to Their Hearts' Content at the Hub.

A Splendid Exhibition Drill by Crack Commanderies.

Two Sessions of Delegates and Numerous Receptions Keep All Busy.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—With their grand parade a thing of the past the Knights Templar are taking all their time for pleasure—such, at least, as are not attending the triennial conclave. A great many of the commanderies are keeping "open house"—the drill at the baseball grounds held the close attention of thousands yesterday; all the harbor excursions were well patronized, and, all in all, it was a very happy occasion for the visitors.

The weather all day yesterday was clear. It was warm, to be sure, and most of the western contingent had something to say about humidity, as they wiped the perspiration from their faces, but it was a fine day, nevertheless, and was especially enjoyed by those who participated in the many excursions.

A new feature has come into notice. It has become the proper thing for the commandery that happens to have a fine band to visit the various headquarters and serenade its fellow Sir Knights, and all day and all evening music filled the air. It ranged from grand opera selections to "Two Little Girls In Blue" and "On the Bowery." Owing perhaps to the general holiday spirit, the popular songs seem to excite the most enthusiasm.

Another source of amusement is to visit Chinatown, and the Celestial restaurants are dispensing an immense amount of "chop suey" and other delectable dishes. The gods at the joss house are also becoming enriched by the Knights Templar conclave, as hundreds of visitors crowd the place every day, and each one is expected to offer a small sum of money to propitiate the powers that control the destiny of every good Chinaman.

The members of the grand encampment are all busy preparing for the election of officers, and private meetings for consultation are frequent. Whereever half a dozen members come together they are seen conversing for a few minutes and then they invariably disappear as if by magic. When they become visible again there is a lively nodding of heads and each one walks away, apparently lost in deep thought.

The streets are still thronged with people, and this, together with the fact that Boston returned to business yesterday, shows the numerous number of visitors that have come to the conclave besides the Knights and their families. The crowds are so great as to interfere seriously with the progress of the street cars, and in the city proper one can make much better progress by joining the multitude and letting it propel him along, than by patronizing the trolley cars.

The black and white plumes are everywhere on the streets, in the hotel, in the theaters, and aboard the suburban trains.

A Beautiful Sight.

Never in the history of the Boston baseball grounds had such an immense throng of people crowded through the gates of the enclosure as were gathered there yesterday forenoon to witness the exhibition drill by six visiting commanderies. The drill was announced to begin at 10 o'clock, and before 9 there was a line of trolley cars on Tremont street a mile long, every one loaded to its utmost capacity, and most of the passengers even then reached the grounds too late to secure anything but standing room, while after the drill commenced hundreds were turned away from the gates.

Introductory music was rendered by the Salem Cadet band, and a few minutes after 10 o'clock Columbia commandery of Washington marched on to the field, headed by the Germania band. The knights marched and countermarched, wheeled by company and platoons, and then executed many maneuvers which have no military significance, but are arranged with a view to effect and complication. The climax of Columbia's exhibition was superb. Coming down the field in perfect alignment, the men suddenly broke ranks and formed three simultaneous tableaux, representing "Attack," "Defense" and "Defeat."

Apollo commandery of Troy, N. Y., then took the field. The feature of this exhibition was the formation of words on the ground by arrangement of swords. In their different maneuvers the words "Apollo, Troy, N. Y.," and "Boston" were shown.

"The Little Commandery" from the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home of Louisville furnished a unique drill. Although small boys, they marched perfectly, and performed a series of maneuvers in a circle around their standards which were extremely difficult. Not a single mistake was made and the little fellows received a storm of applause.

St. Bernard commandery of Chicago made a magnificent display. This commandery holds the banner which was awarded at the last competitive drill several years ago, and their magnificent work and discipline showed them to be able to defend it strongly whenever challenged.

The Minneapolis Knights Templar drill corps followed the Chicago men and aroused great enthusiasm, executing several original figures.

The last on the field was Detroit commandery. Their exhibition was one of the features of the day. Their alignment was perfect, and every movement was made with a precision which showed careful practice and a perfect knowledge of tactics.

At Mechanics' Hall.

Vast numbers of the Knights and their ladies turned toward Mechanics hall last evening to attend a reception tendered Grand Master Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy by the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Fully 6000 couples were presented by General Samuel C. Lawrence, grand master of the commandery, to the honored guest. The hall presented a brilliant spectacle, the elaborate and many-hued costumes of the ladies blending in pleasing harmony with the dark and profusely ornamented regalias of the Knights.

Seated behind the receiving party, the Salem Cadet band discoursed a program of excellent selections. Prior to closing the reception, the members of the Little Masonic home of Louisville marched into the hall and on to the platform, where Grand Master McCurdy, in a short address, talked to them in a fatherly kind of way, urging them to be good and true men; to shun the wine bottle, and to be like George Washington, and never tell a lie. After the reception the boys went through a number of different military evolutions, which delighted the audience and for which the boys were warmly applauded.

"At Home."

While the reception to grand master was proceeding at Mechanics' hall, there was no end of entertainment offered at the headquarters of the various commanderies about the city. The grand commandery of Ohio received and was assisted by various Ohio commanderies.

At the Brunswick the grand commandery of Virginia and the Maysville commandery of Kentucky received.

At the Victoria the Portland (Me) commandery entertained.

Washington commandery, 1, of Washington, held a reception at Young's hotel.

Boston commandery gave a big reception in Horticultural Hall.

De Molay commandery of Louisville gave a reception at the United States hotel.

All the afternoon and evening, up to midnight, De Molay commandery of Washington received at the Copley Square hotel.

The grand commandery of Tennessee was "at home" at 491 Massachusetts avenue.

General reception and "at home" of Texas grand commandery was at 328 Commonwealth avenue.

St. Bernard commandery of Chicago gave a reception at the Copley Square hotel.

The grand commandery of Wisconsin was "at home" and gave a musicale at the New England Conservatory of Music.

A complimentary banquet was given in Faneuil hall by the general grand chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Trinity commandery of Manchester, N. H., received at the American House.

The Indiana grand commandery held a formal reception at Cotillion hall and will keep open house all the week.

St. Louis commandery received at Hotel Bellevue.

Columbia commandery of Washington received at the Castle Square hotel.

Nebraska grand commandery received at 391 Boylston street.

Dwight hall was the scene of the reception given by Mt. Horeb commandery of New Hampshire.

Enough For All.

California commandery, of which so much has been heard and said since they started on their pilgrimage from the Pacific coast, will not belie their reputation for hospitality while in Boston.

It has been reported that they have brought with them fully 20,000 bottles of wine, as samples of the products of the Golden state. But the half has scarcely been told. They have brought not only 20,000, but 30,000 bottles of the product of California vintage, and they do not intend to take any of it back with them. Fruit, also, has been brought by them in such quantities as would not be safe to attempt to measure.

The Californians have been preparing for this affair for a long time. Many a long month ago they sent an order to Japan for 10,000 dainty little round wicker baskets. Each of these were packed with

A CLEAN KNOCKOUT.

Joe Walcott Made Quick Time In Putting Dick O'Brien to Sleep.

A Fast and Furious Contest of Just One Round.

The Battle Was For Blood and the Lewiston Man Met His Waterloo.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Dick O'Brien of Lewiston, champion middle weight of New England was knocked out in the first round of what was to be a 25-round bout, by Joe Walcott, colored, of Boston, last evening. It was no secret that the fight was to be for blood, as O'Brien, whose only defeat was at the hands of Walcott a year ago, was determined to retrieve the lost honor, while Walcott was just as determined to retain what he had won. Last night's exhibition settled the question of superiority, for the knockout was clean, determined and fatal to O'Brien's hopes.

Both men realized that this contest last evening meant much for them in their future careers, and they trained faithfully. O'Brien weighed in yesterday afternoon at 150, while Walcott was 12 pounds lighter. O'Brien also had about two inches the better in height. The betting was 100 to 80 in favor of Walcott, but last evening a number of bets were placed at even money.

"Short and Sweet."

Walcott was the first to put in an appearance in the ring. He was seconded by Tom O'Rourke, Jimmy Gordon and Maurice Kelly. When O'Brien appeared shortly afterward, he was given a perfect ovation. The fighting was sharp from the start. O'Brien, for a send-off, landed his left on Walcott's jaw and his right on the stomach. Walcott then straight-countered and almost immediately landed tellingly on O'Brien's jaw, and the Lewiston man went down. He recovered quickly, however, and both men went at it again in a rapid manner, but Walcott again found an opening and floored O'Brien, who again recovered his feet for the second time.

The next instant Walcott planted a left on the heart and a right on the jaw, and O'Brien fell and lay on the floor. When eight seconds had been counted, the gong rang for the end of the round. As O'Brien then showed no evidence of being able to proceed, Referee Daly gave the decision to Walcott.

A Magnificent Affair.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt gave a ball last night at the Marble Palace which outrivalled all social events ever given here for splendor and magnificence. The affair was given in honor of Miss Consuela Vanderbilt, and she, with R. T. Wilson, Jr., led the cotillion, the favors of which were imported. A fountain, encircled by humming birds, butterflies and bees, was a feature of the decorations.

A Fine Show.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 29.—President's day at the New England fair was a big success. The floral parade passed in review before Governor Cleaves and staff, Mayor Baxter and the city government, and Admiral Bunce and the officers of the North Atlantic squadron, and thence to Rigby park. Nearly all of the prominent merchants and corporations of the city were represented by handsome floral floats.

"Doesn't Remember."

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 29.—James H. Curtis, assistant superintendent of the Credential Insurance company, who has been missing for over a week, has been heard from in New York. He explains that he did not know anything from the day of his disappearance until last Monday, when he woke up in a barn in a small village on the Hudson river.

Granville's Centennial.

GRANVILLE, Mass., Aug. 29.—The Granville centennial, observed in honor of the Rev. Maine Vets Meet.

GARDINER, Me., Aug. 29.—The third annual reunion of the Twenty-fourth Maine regiment was held here yesterday. Twenty-five members were present. Edwin Tolman of Richmond was elected president. There was a parade, after which a campfire was held.

A Surprise.

Last night the Welch Cymrodorion of Boston and Quincy arrived in Wollaston depot at 7.22. There they formed in line, the marching orders were given and a beeline made for R. S. Jones' mansion on First Hill.

The object of all this was a happy surprise to Mr. Ellis Jones who is going, next Tuesday to Moody's Institute in Northfield, to prepare for the mission field. A bountiful collation was served by the Welsh caterers, Phelps & Clark of Boston, after which Mr. Jones was presented with a beautiful silk purse containing $50 in gold.

Mr. Jones is well known to the young people of Wollaston and Quincy. He has been for years one of the shining lights in the Y. M. C. A. and Y. P. S. C. E. work. We all wish him Godspeed in his new field.

A Short Parade to Birthplaces and Tombs of the Presidents.

A Lunch Served at Faxon Hall—Go Weymouth and Downer Landing.

The escort committee of South Shore commandery started off from Boston in a rain this morning and from seven to eight o'clock it did not look much like a parade and gala day.

The visiting Knights came about 8.45 and at this time the rain had ceased and the programme was carried out.

The visiting commanderies—Forest City of Cleveland, Ohio, and Killington of Rutland, Vt.,—passed in review of the South Shore, and South Shore was then reviewed by them.

Thousands of people were assembled in City Square and along the following route of procession:

School to Franklin street.
Franklin to Independence avenue.
Countermarch on Franklin to School street.
School to Elm street.
Elm to Bigelow street.
Bigelow to Faxon hall.

AGED 80 YEARS.

At Faxon Hall light refreshments were served to Knights and their ladies, including sandwiches, coffee, ice cream, sherbet, cake punch, etc.

Considerable interest was manifested in the visit to the old historic First church which was placarded as follows:

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

SOCIETY ORGANIZED SEPT. 17, 1639.

BUILT OF QUINCY GRANITE. DEDICATED IN 1828.

THE REMAINS OF PRESIDENTS JOHN ADAMS AND JOHN QUINCY ADAMS AND THEIR WIVES LIE BENEATH THIS PORTICO.

Inside they saw the Presidents' pew—No. 54, and the mural monuments and took pleasure in mounting the old pulpit. Laurel wreaths from the old Adams homestead were placed on the pew, pulpit and tablets, having been sent by Brooks Adams, Esq.

The mural monuments read:

Beneath these walls
Are deposited the mortal remains of

JOHN ADAMS,

Son of John and Susanna [Boylston] Adams
Second President of the United States;
Born 19-30 October, 1735.
On the Fourth of July, 1776,
He pledged his Life, Fortune, and Sacred Honour
To the INDEPENDENCE OF HIS COUNTRY.
On the third of September, 1783,
He affixed his seal to the definite Treaty with Great Britain,
Which acknowledged that Independence,
And consummated the redemption of his pledge.
On the Fourth of July, 1826,
He was summoned
To the Independence of Immortality,
And TO THE JUDGMENT OF HIS GOD.
This House will bear witness to his Piety;
This Town, his birth-place, to his munificence;
History to his Patriotism;
Posterity to the depth and compass of his mind.

At his side
Sleeps, till the Trump shall sound,

ABIGAIL,

His beloved and only wife,
Daughter of William and Elizabeth [Quincy] Smith.
In every relation of life a pattern,
Of Filial, Conjugal, Maternal and Social Virtue.
Born Nov. 11-22, 1744,
Deceased 28 October, 1818,
Aged 74.

Married 25 October, 1764.
During an union of more than half a century
They survived, in harmony of sentiment, principle, and affection,
The tempest of civil commotion,
Meeting undaunted and surmounting
The terrors and trials of that Revolution,
Which secured the Freedom of their Country;
Improved the Condition of their times;
And brightened the prospects of Futurity
To the race of man upon Earth.

PILGRIM.

From lives thus spent, thy earthly duties learn;
From Fancy's dreams to active virtues turn;
Let Freedom, Friendship, Faith, thy soul engage,
And serve like them thy country and thy age.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS,

Son of John and Abigail [Smith] Adams.
Sixth President of the United States.
Born 11 of July, 1767.

Amidst the storms of Civil Commotion
He nursed the vigor
Which nerves a Statesman and a Patriot,
And the Faith
Which inspires a Christian.
For more than half a century,
Whenever his Country called for his labors,
In either Hemisphere or in any Capacity,
He never spared them in her cause.
On the twenty-fourth of December, 1814,
He signed the Second Treaty with Great Britain,
Which restored Peace within her Borders.
On the twenty-third of February, 1848,
He closed Sixteen Years of Eloquent Defence
Of the Lessons of his Youth,
By Dying at his Post
In her great National Council.
A Son, worthy of his Father;
A Citizen, shedding Glory on his Country
A Scholar, Ambitious to Advance Mankind;
This Christian sought to walk humbly
In the sight of his God.

Beside him lies
His Partner for Fifty Years,

LOUISA CATHERINE,

Daughter of Joshua and Catherine [Nuth] Johnson.
Born 12 February, 1775;
Married 26 July, 1797;
Deceased 15 May, 1852.
Aged 77.

Living through many Vicissitudes and Under high Responsibilities,
As a Daughter, Wife and Mother
She proved Equal to all.
Dying, She left to her Family and her Sex
The blessed Remembrance
Of a "Woman that feareth the Lord."

"Herein is that saying true, one soweth and another reapeth. I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labor. Other men labored, and ye are entered into their labors."

An opportunity was also offered to visit the tomb beneath the church which is reached from the basement of the chapel. Here a huge stone door securely padlocked guards the remains of the Presidents and their wives. The tomb has not been opened but once in 40 years.

In the cellar is also the old parish hearse said to have been used at the funeral of the Presidents, but which is now neglected and going to decay.

But the tarry was short in Quincy. At 11 o'clock seven electric cars were taken for the asylum of South Shore commandery at East Weymouth, where a brief stop was made. Barges then conveyed the Knights Templar to Downer Landing where a clambake dinner was served. At 3.55 a steamer was taken for Boston, the members of South Shore commandery going to the city with them.

Golf Tournament.

Considerable interest is shown in the approaching handicap golf tournament to be held at the grounds of the Wollaston Golf Club on Saturday next, at 2 P. M.

Two prizes will be given by the club, and Mr. Chas. R. Sherman offers one to the lady making the best score. It is expected that a large number of people will witness the games.

A new carriage entrance to the grounds has been made on Broadway, (the street directly opposite the Norfolk Downs station,) so that it is possible to drive over the lines without difficulty.

The Moonlights.

A large party enjoyed the moonlight sail on the steamer, City of Quincy, Wednesday evening, the night being grand. The music by the Quincy Quartette was fine and contributed much toward the enjoyment of the passengers.

The sail tonight around the harbor and among the "White Fleet" will be one of the events of the season.

Friday night it will be repeated and the Quincy Quartette will furnish the music.

Friends pleaded for his release, but without avail. The governor's reply was: "I could with more safety release two or three murderers than one person abducting slaves." He had assisted nearly four hundred slaves to escape from slavery.

The recent troubles between China and Japan have greatly increased the price of mattings, and importations in this line have been wonderfully small for months gone by. It's the old saying that where there's a will there's a way, and untiring searching brought to us a splendid lot of the neatest patterns in China mattings we have ever seen. ROOSTER WINS.

No More Races Needed in Faxon Series.

THE KAYOSHK LED IN GOING ROUND THE FIRST TIME.

But the Rooster Had Two Minutes to Spare at First.

The Rooster has now the Faxon cup after sailing two of the most hotly contested races for small boats that has ever been sailed in New England waters. She not only had to down the flyers in her own club and from Boston, but the South Shore sent up two of their invinciable creatures, Commodore Maglathlin's Nancy Hanks of Kingston Yacht Club, and Commodore Melbourne McDowell's Fanny D. of the Duxbury Yacht Club. Commodore Maglathlin with the assistance of "Johnnie" Watson,—nephew of the celebrated designer and builder Nate Watson of Clark's Island, Plymouth harbor,—and a part of the Gleaner's crew, sailed the Nancy Hank's. Commodore McDowell held the stick of the Fanny D. He was assisted by John T. Cavanagh.

It was a great race. The weather conditions were of the made to order kind. The wind was from the west and there was enough of it outside of the lee of Houghs Neck to push the boats along at a good gait. Course No. 2 was the one sailed.

The start was a beautiful one. The Fanny D. was within a foot of the line when the gun was fired. The other boats were there, too. They all started in a bunch. There were no stragglers.

The Swirl slowly joyed ahead and rounded Jacknife Ledge bouy 45 seconds ahead of the Fanny D. and 50 seconds ahead of the Rooster. When she reached Sheep Island bouy she was but 47 seconds ahead of the Rooster and had increased her lead over the Fanny D. to one minute.

After rounding Sheep Island buoy the boats had a chance to show what they could do on windward work. Good seamanship and a thorough knowledge of the tides and currents then came into play. The Kayoshk's skipper proved himself to be the most adapt in this piece of fine work. He stood off towards Princess Head to get into the West Gut current. It was a very shrewd move. Before the other boats were aware of it the Kayoshk was coming down towards the line like a race horse. The other boats were still struggling towards it.

The time of crossing :

	h	m.	sec.
Kayoshk,	3	55
Swirl,	3	56
Rooster,	3	56	10
Arab,	3	58	12
Fanny D.,	3	58	55
Nancy Hanks,	3	59	14
Sphinx,	4	00	26
Opechee,	4	01	57

But all the time the Swirl and Kayoskh were speeding along that great bug-a-bear of racing yachtsmen was getting in its steady work. It goes by the name of "time allowance." After rounding Jackknife the Swirl again lead the procession but when she rounded Sheep island bouy with the Kayoskh next and the Rooster third it took but a few moments to figure out that the time allowance made the last of the trio first by 34 seconds. To the landsman the Rooster apparently stood no show of winning the race. The Rooster finally crawled up on the Swirl and beat her by actual as well as corrected time and won the Faxon cup. The Kaysokh came in three minutes ahead of the Arab but had to give away to her on time allowance.

The judges were Commodore Pettengill, Secretary Whitney and Mr. H. A. Keith.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Intelligent Sheep.

"I was on my bicycle," writes a man to an English magazine, "and was passing a very large field where a number of sheep were grazing. As I passed a sheep ran toward me in an excited state, looking up at me like a pet dog and bleating in a most piteous way. I was so interested in what I saw that I stopped, and instantly the sheep galloped to the farther end of the field in the same excited way, and then raced back to me again, bleating and looking up at me just in the same beseeching way as it did at first. Had it spoken it could not have been plainer in its request that I should go with it to the other end of the field. I could see nothing but a few trees; still I felt compelled to go with the sheep, so unmistakably did it let me know that it wanted me to go with it. So I went, the sheep galloping on before me, till it reached the spot at the end of the field where I felt sure it wanted me to go. Till I reached the place the animal ran round and round the same particular spot in the same excited way, as if it wanted to say: 'Make haste. Come as fast as you can.' When I arrived, I found there was a deep stream of water, and one of the sheep had fallen into it and was struggling to get out."

A Duel Bismarck Did Not Fight.

To hot headed electioneerers let me commend this story of Bismarck. On one occasion, during some diplomatic maneuvers, which were being discussed by Count Rechberg, he (Rechberg) lost his temper and passionately exclaimed to Bismarck, "One of my friends shall wait on you in the morning." "Why all this unnecessary delay?" Bismarck replied. "In all probability you have a pair of pistols handy. Let us settle the matter immediately. While you get the things ready, I shall write a report about the whole transaction, which, in case I am killed, I request you to forward to Berlin."

Both set about their work. When Bismarck had finished, he handed the sheet to Count Rechberg, requesting him to examine the same. Rechberg's passion had in the meantime given way to sober reflection. After having perused the report he said, "What you say here is quite correct, but is it really worth while to fight a duel for such a reason?" "That is exactly my opinion," was Bismarck's answer, and the matter ended. —Westminster Budget.

Two Casual Gentlemen.

When Lord Longford came in, I escaped from cribbage and heard many entertaining things. One was of his meeting a man in the mail coach who looked as if he was gouty, and could not stir without great difficulty, and never without the assistance of a companion, who never moved an inch from him. At last Lord Longford discovered that this gentleman's gouty overalls covered fetters; that he was a malefactor in irons, and that his companion was a Bow street officer, who treated his prisoner with the greatest politeness. "Give me leave, sir—excuse me—one on your arm and one on mine, and then we are sure we can't leave one another." A worse traveling companion this than the bear, whom Lord Longford found one morning in the coach opposite to him when day dawned—the gentleman in the fur coat, as he had all night supposed him to be.—Maria Edgeworth's Letters.

To Train the Respiration.

Of all means of training the respiration Dr. Fortescue Fox thinks cycling is the best. When a person first takes to cycling, he is troubled with shortness of breath, his heart beats uncomfortably, and his legs get tired, but after some training these discomforts all disappear. Why should not people liable to attacks of asthma also train their respiration by such a kind of exercise—of course on condition of the heart and lungs being in perfect health? Cycling exercise, first of all, increases the depth of breathing, and that without fatigue, as the respiratory movements are automatic. At the same time it will accustom the rider instinctively to take in at each respiration the volume of air required to aerate the blood and to eliminate a fixed proportion of carbonic acid, leaving in the circulation the precise amount compatible with health.—London News.

Because He Stared at Her.

Lady Frances Wilson, daughter of Lord Aylesbury, was one day informed that a man who had recently died in a Pimlico lodging had left her a valuable estate in Hants. Incredulous, she went up to town and recognized there the remains of a man who had very frequently annoyed her by staring at her at the opera. The same man had also bequeathed £4,000 to the speaker of the house of commons and £1,000 to the chancellor of the exchequer, neither of whom had been aware of his existence.—Temple Bar.

The Intelligent Voter.

A correspondent of The British Weekly had some odd experiences in a county council election some time ago in a rural district of England. "The names of the candidates were Mr. Hook and Colonel Holland. 'Ah, well,' said a man to me, after I had been expatiating on the merits of one of them, 'I don't know nothing about 'Ook, and I don't know nothing about 'Olland, but my wife's a Dutchwoman, and so I mean to vote for 'Olland.'"

DUNRAVEN AT GOTHAM

Says Valkyrie Will Be Ready to Race by Sept. 7.

English Boat Goes Out For Another Spin.

Vigilant Was Delayed and Failed to Get Into a Friendly Race.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Among the passengers on the steamer Teutonic, which arrived here last evening from Liverpool, were Lord Dunraven, his two daughters, and James E. Watson, the designer of the Valkyrie.

Lord Dunraven was seen on the steamer at quarantine. He was anxious to learn the latest news concerning his yacht, and was pleased that she was in trim for the trials which she is taking daily off Sandy Hook. When asked concerning the yacht's prospects, he said that he knew very little of her abilities as yet, and that those who saw her performances here were better able to judge. He said that the yacht would be ready for the race Sept. 7.

The Valkyrie's Spin.

Valkyrie III started on another sail-stretching trip yesterday. This time she carried mainsail, jumbo sail, jib and club-topsail. The party on the yacht were astir at daybreak.

The sailors on the Vigilant were also astir, and it was evident the Gould boat would again try and get a brush with Valkyrie if she went out. The wind at that time was from the northwest at about 10 miles an hour, but when Valkyrie dropped her moorings there were only about eight miles in it, and from the west, apparently hauling to the southward, with promise of a good sailing breeze.

Valkyrie's big clubtopsail attracted a great deal of attention, as it was seen for the first time in these waters, but there was no opportunity to compare it with Vigilant's, as she was delayed in getting her mainsail in place, and Valkyrie had slipped away from her in the light breeze.

At the same time it was evident that the sail was larger than the biggest yet spread by any yacht in this country, although its exact proportions could not be estimated. Under the full sail it looked as if the American yacht would be entitled to Considerable Allowance From Valkyrie.

Under the influence of a light breeze, Valkyrie headed for the deep water near the southwest spit, with her sails filling well and at a fair rate of speed. As soon as she got into the ship channel she lowered her staysail, and hauling her sheets flat aft she sailed up the bay in a breeze which did not blow more than four miles an hour. Even then she heeled way over. She stood on this course for a short time, sending up another staysail while on the port tack.

The sail seemed to set better than the other, and when she reached the junction of the Ship and Swash channels she turned smartly on her heel and headed down the latter, out to sea on the starboard tack. As Valkyrie stood out to the eastward and southward through the Swash channel she seemed to get a fair breeze and set her jumbosail, thus having all plain sail set, no matter what wind there was.

She soon reached the Romer beacon, where she met the strong floodtide. The wind dropped to almost nothing and seemed to be coming out of the southeast. Valkyrie found that she could not stem the tide, so she went about and headed up the channel again.

WHIPPED A PRINCE.

How Poor "Tom" Benton Fell Foul of England's Future King.

Tom Benton occupied for many years—in fact, until his death—a responsible position in the household of Queen Victoria. Benton, who was of humble birth, was but a lad at Brighton when his parents died within a few months of each other. It was shortly after these events when the queen's attention was called to the young boy under rather peculiar circumstances.

One day, while Benton was gathering shells on the beach at Brighton to make pincushions, which he sold to the summer visitors, a young boy, nicely dressed and about his own age, appeared upon the scene and scattered, with a vigorous kick, the accumulated shells. Benton gathered up his treasures, and placing them again in a pile warned the intruder that if he repeated the trick he would give him a "good licking."

The kick was repeated with even more vigor than before, and the shells were sent flying in every direction. True to his word, the "poor boy" soundly thrashed the stranger. It was a close contest at first, as the lads were quite evenly matched, but the more fully developed strength of Benton finally brought him off victorious.

Just as the melee was over a gentleman and lady approached, and the former said: "You did quite right, young man. We have seen the whole transaction. This boy is our son, but he was the aggressor and received the thrashing he well merited." A number of questions were asked the lad as to himself and his family. The replies told the boy's life, how the death of his parents had brought poverty to himself and his brothers and sisters.

"This is the queen," said the gentleman, who was none other than Prince Albert, "and the young man to whom you administered such a merited whipping is the Prince of Wales." Turning to the prince, he continued: "You must send his young man to school and pay for his tuition out of your own pocket money That cannot add to your punishment, but can benefit this poor lad with whom you picked such an uncalled for quarrel."

Thus it was that Tom Benton met the queen of England. He was sent to a school about midway between Portland and Dover. After completing his studies there he was taken into her majesty's service and remained there his entire life. Between Benton and the Prince of Wales there was a strong bond of friendship, such as could exist between true manly men.—New York Herald.

DEAR OLD LADY.

She Was Going to "Albert's" and Reached There Safely.

An old woman wearing a pair of gold eyeglasses was a passenger on one of the trains from Buffalo to New York. She had come through from the west, and the nervous way in which she gathered her bundles around her and the number of questions she asked all showed that she was not accustomed to traveling. When the trainboy came through with his assortment of books, she confided to him the facts that she was going to New York to see her son and that she had not seen him for over a year. She grew talkative and said:

"My son Albert's a great preacher. He is a Methodist, and I am a Methodist. I taught him when he was a little bit of a boy what was right and what was wrong. He hasn't been back to see me for over a year. I live way out in Missouri, and he couldn't get away this year, but he wanted to see me, and he sent for me to come on. He preaches in a big church there, and he has got a fine family growing up"—

So she prattled on. The trainboy listened to her attentively and succeeded in selling her a copy of "The Quick or the Dead?" solemnly assuring her that it was a Methodist religious book. When he left her, she began to read it, calmly at first, then nervously, until she grew tired. Then she began to nod, and finally the book slipped to the floor. The gray hair reposed on the cushion of the palace car seat, and its owner dozed peacefully.

The conductor came through to collect tickets, and seeing the peaceful sleep of his passenger was loath to wake her. Finally he leaned over and shook her gently and said:

"Where are you going, mother?"

"To Albert's," was the quick reply as the eyes behind the glasses opened, and the old woman looked around her for a moment, still unable to tell where she was. The motherly response touched a sympathetic chord in the conductor's heart, and he carefully looked after her until the end of the trip and saw her rush into Albert's arms half laughing, half crying.—New York Times.

The Obedient Dog.

Here is a dog story by a Putnam chronicler: "One of the most interesting and at the same time truthful dog stories we have heard for some time is that told by Victor Peloquin, who keeps a confectionery store on Bridge street. Last winter he went to Canada and brought back with him a little black and tan dog, the gift of his father. All went well for about a month, when he had occasion to reprove him for some trivial offense, telling him in French to 'go home.' He saw no more of his dog and was greatly surprised recently to receive a letter from his father in Canada, informing him that the dog had returned. He was three months in making the journey."—Hartford Courant.

Chancellor Ale.

At Oxford there is what is called "chancellor ale," brewed out of 16 bushels of malt to the barrel, and so strong that two wineglassfuls will intoxicate most people. It is kept in oak, bell shaped casks, and is never tapped until it is two years old. Some of the casks have been in use for half a century, but "chancellor ale" is only used at high table, when a man takes very high honors.

The South Shore in Boston.

The South Shore commandery of Weymouth, comprising the best citizens of Braintree, Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham, proved to be splendid marchers, and kept nearly perfectly straight ranks. With this commandery was the Weymouth brass band.—Journal.

☞ The first woman to be appointed colonel on the military staff of the governor of an American state, and perhaps the first in the world since Joan of Arc, who became a general in chief, is Miss Antoinette Humphreys, a pretty young lady of Mount Auburn, a suburb of Cincinnati. She has recently been appointed on the staff of Gov. McCorkle of West Virginia. Col. Humphreys is 19 years of age.

Electricity has now, it seems, beaten the record of the gold beater, and can produce a foil of the metal from five to ten times thinner than ordinary gold leaf. Joseph Wilson Swan, the chemist of electric lighting fame, has presented to the Royal society specimens of this wonderful thin foil made by depositing gold on copper with the electric current and then dissolving away the copper from it with perchloride of iron.

Three Powers.

The Spirit saith: "All things are mine,
In earth and sky and sea,
Unmeasured space, unnumbered dead,
The wealth of things that be."
Nor Truth saith nay.

And Mind doth say: "Still yet am I
The power in every thought.
I rule the earth, great kingdoms sway
Where sceptered hand is naught."
Nor Truth saith nay.

Yet Love, in modesty unmeet
For power unlimited and great,
Doth rule them both, in ecstasy
O'er sweet its power to mate,
Yet knows it not.

SULLIVAN A MARKER.

Clevelands Had on Their Batting Clothes and Welted the Bostons.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The home team lost the first game of the present series, principally through Sullivan, although McDonald was a great assistance. The visitors batted like fiends, were tricky and did everything imaginable to win. Young, the tall product of a small hamlet in Ohio, was in the box and pitched a steady and careful game. The home team played rather loosely in the field and many base hits should have been stopped.

The Dospat Massacre.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 29.—Details of the recent attack made by a band of Bulgarians upon the Mohammedan village of Dospat, across the Turkish frontier, in the Rhodope mountains, show that the attack occurred at dawn and while the villagers were asleep. The Bulgarians used dynamite bombs and set fire to the houses. Men, women and children, it is claimed, were killed indiscriminately, and according to one version of the affair 300 persons perished.

—The loss of life by the Gumsy Hotel catastrophy in Denver, Col., is now put at not less than 25 men, women and children. The cause of the explosion was an old delapidated boiler.

GALLANT SIR KNIGHTS

the prettiest little bottle of wine imagimable, bearing the special label in red, black and gold of the California commandery. Around and about this, concealing all but the gold foil that covers the cork, lie an array of fruit, such as California only can produce. Luscious peaches, apricots, grapes, prunes and plums strive to hide the pretty little bottle that contains the heart of the California sunshine.

Every lady who attended their reception last night, accompanying a brave Knight, received one of these souvenirs, together with the hearty goodwill of Commander Hurlburt and his brother Knights.

Here, too, was Zerubbabel IV. From his cage he received visitors with tact and courtesy, if not coolness, for the little bear was anything but cool.

He should make haste to become acclimated, however, for he is destined not to return to his far away home with the Knights.

His diminutive majesty, pride of the commandery, and playfellow of their youth, is to be presented to the Bay State commandery of Brockton.

It has always been the custom of this commandery to give the bear which they take with them to the different conclaves to one of the local commanderies, and this custom will be followed in this case.

The Conclave.

The meeting of the encampment in Masonic Temple was largely attended, over 200 members being present. After the rollcall, devotional exercises were conducted by Grand Prelate Very Eminent Sir Joseph M. McGrath, and then Grand Master Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy delivered his triennial address.

Acting Grand Recorder Sir William B. Isaacs, Jr., of Richmond submitted his report, as follows: There were 813 subordinate commanderies in 1889 under the grand commandery, 22 subordinate commanderies under the grand encampment, 16,877 knighted in grand commanderies, 964 knighted in subordinate commanderies; total membership of commanderies, 87,724.

In 1892 the number of subordinate commanderies under the grand commandery was 880, and 30 under the grand encampment; 19,884 knighted in grand commanderies; 99 knighted in subordinate commanderies; 92,781 total membership.

There were 961 subordinate commanderies under the grand commandery in 1895, and 36 under the grand encampment; 21,531 knighted in grand commanderies; 783 knighted in subordinate commanderies; total membership, 106,770.

The total receipts for dues from grand commanderies for 1893, 1894 and 1895 were $14,930.90 and from subordinate commanderies $1694, a total of $16,534.90; $1313.40 was received from commanderies on various accounts, making a total of $17,848.30 paid over to the grand treasurer.

The report of Grand Treasurer Sir H. Wales Lines of Meriden, Conn., was also submitted, after which the meeting adjourned until 2 o'clock.

At the afternoon session of the grand encampment the matter of time and place for the next triennial conclave was referred to a committee of eight. The principal business was the discussion of this matter of time and place.

The committee on time and place later reported in favor of Pittsburg for the next triennial conclave. It is asserted that this is practically equivalent to a vote, as the report of the committee will without doubt be ratified.

The Masonic Veterans' association held its triennial convention yesterday in Masonic Temple and elected the following officers: President, S. T. Williams, Newark, O.; W. W. Lee, Connecticut, and James W. Slater Kentucky, vice presidents; John M. Carter, Baltimore, orator; Edwin A. Sherman, San Francisco, marshall; J. G. Oliver, Arizona, standard bearer; W. S. WILD MAN'S IDENTITY.

Strange Marauder Now Known to Be a Full-Grown Gorilla.

Has Been Prowling Around For Three Years.

Will Be Found Hard to Shoot and Still Harder to Capture.

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 30.—The Connecticut wild man, that has divided honors with the sea serpent, is a full-grown gorilla. John G. Hall runs a stage between here and Sandisfield, Mass. While he was passing through Colebrook a large animal crossed the highway on all fours and leaped a stone wall. Hall and his passengers at first thought it was the wild man.

The animal, when the stage approached, stood erect. Hall drew a revolver. The beast did not stir. Hall stopped his horses and was getting a good aim at the brute, when off it sped on four feet into the "Injun meadows," uttering awful cries.

Mrs. Mushone and Miss Sadie Woodhouse of New York city, who are summering in Colebrook, also encountered the animal while they were driving in Winsted. The creature, when they espied it in the "Injun meadow,"

Was Standing Upright.

They are positive that the "wild man" is the gorilla. They say that it has large, white teeth, black hair, a muscular form and is about 6½ feet tall.

It is thought the gorilla made its escape from some circus, and has since made its home among the Litchfield hills. It has been heard from in Norfolk, East Canaan, North Goshen and Sandisfield, Mass.

The gorilla spent last winter in the southeastern part of Norfolk. Charles Benson of that town saw it jump from a tree. The brute chased him into the house.

A party of Norfolk people saw it enter a hole in the mountain last spring, and, after closing the opening with huge chains, they went to bed. In the morning they Found the Chains Broken.

John Williams of West Norfolk met the gorilla three years ago while he was returning home one night. The ground was covered with snow, and the footprints of the animal were traced into the mountains.

A son of Richard Parson, a Sandisfield farmer, saw the gorilla steal one of his rabbits.

Mrs. George Marvin of South Norfolk saw the gorilla robbing her hen roost one morning last winter.

It became so hungry that nearly every farmer in the outskirts of Norfolk saw it prowling about his farm.

Carl Moore and Joseph Bruley shot at the gorilla last winter, but bird-shot had no effect.

KNIGHTS AT A DINNER

Deliver Speeches Pertaining to Knight Templarism and Patriotism.

Many Commanderies Preparing to Leave For Home.

Election of Officers, Receptions and Excursions the Order of the Day.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—The glory of the conclave reached a supreme climax last night when the triennial committee of the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island gave a grand reception and banquet to Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy and to the officers and members of the grand encampment at the Hotel Vendome.

It was one of the most brilliant social functions ever seen in Boston. The banquet hall was brilliantly decorated with rare flowers, ferns, wreaths and potted palms. The guests of honor, the speakers of the evening, were seated at a long table in the center of the room, and in either direction stretched away long lines of tables loaded with every device which an artistic chef could originate.

From 8 until 9 o'clock the triennial committee received in the parlors of the hotel, while a superb orchestra gave a concert in the lobby, and at 9 o'clock the guests entered the banquet hall. The place of honor beside General Lawrence, who presided, was occupied by Sir Knight Hugh McCurdy at whose right sat Right Eminent Sir Warren La Rue Thomas, grand master elect.

When the dinner was completed, General Lawrence arose and in a few words welcomed the grand encampment, and introduced the toastmaster of the evening, Right Eminent Sir Charles C. Hutchinson. The first toast was "The Grand Encampment," to which Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy responded briefly, in substance as follows:

Responses to Toasts.

Ever since the day of Peter the Hermit, has there been no such an overflow of Knights Templar as at the present conclave, and everywhere we have seen the insignia of welcome. Everywhere we have been received with open hearts. The grand encampment has 40 grandchildren, which control 110,000 Knights. I know every frater will agree with me that the magnanimous principles of our order are with all Knights Templar whereever found. Templary teaches sublime faith and never-ending happiness.

The second toast, "Fidelity the Eminent Characteristic of Templarism," was responded to by Right Eminent Sir Warren La Rue Thomas, who said: "With whatever power God has blessed us, we must impress all with the beauty of our order, or we will be held responsible for it by and by. We must show the world we believe all that we profess. I call upon you to carry fidelity into all the workings of your order, and Templary will prosper as it never has before."

"The Good Fellowship of Knight Templarism" was responded to by Most Eminent Sir Henry L. Palmer, who paid a high tribute to the hospitality extended to the Knights by the citizens of Boston and Massachusetts.

Most Eminent Sir James H. Hopkins' address on "Templary and Patriotism" was a masterly one, and he was cheered to the echo. He argued that Templary and patriotism were inseparable, that the good Knight could not help representing the ideal citizenship.

Very Eminent Sir William B. Mellish reponded to the toast, "The Knights of the Nineteenth Century." He first treated the subject in a humorous vein, and closed by drawing a splendid outline of what a true Knight Templar should be.

The following toasts were then responded to: "Templarism and Craft Masonry," Right Eminent Sir Josiah H. Drummond; "Our Hosts, the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island," Right Eminent Sir W. Boden; "The Developments of Law as Viewed From a Templar's Standpoint," Right Eminent Sir Thomas R. Norwood; "The Mission of the Knights Templar," Most Eminent Sir J. Q. A. Fellows; "The Knights Hospitallers, the Early Defenders of Civil and Religious Liberty," Right Eminent Sir John Corson Smith; "The Ancient and Modern Promoters of Knight Templarism," Very Eminent Sir Henry W. Rugg.

How Yesterday Was Spent.

While Monday may be called the assembly day for the visiting Sir Knights, Tuesday the parade day, and Wednesday the reception day, yesterday may be called the excursion day. In all directions the Knights scattered to visit historic shrines or other places of interest. Some went to Plymouth to stand on the rock and see the graves of the Pilgrims. Others made the pilgrimage to Cambridge, Lexington, Concord, Salem, Marblehead, Peabody or Danvers, to revive the memories of the revolution or of witchcraft days. Still others went down the harbor to Nantasket, Hull or Nahant. The day was one of profit and pleasure to many thousands.

There were many entertainments and receptions again last night at the different headquarters. The events of the evening were the entertainment and banquet given by the directors of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone company to the Knights and ladies of Texas and Arkansas at the American House. Two hundred and fifty persons were present in all. Music was furnished by the Fifth Regiment band of Greenville, Tex. A novel feature of the entertainment was an exhibition of music by long distance telephone from Springfield. Most of the southwestern delegates will leave for home this evening.

Lewiston commandery, of Lewiston, Me., kept open rooms at the American house.

More than 3000 Sir Knights attended a reception given by the Natick commandery at their headquarters,

Olivet commandery of Lynn received several thousand Sir Knights and their ladies. The Lynn Cadet band played a number of selections.

Oxford cafe was crowded with guests of Louisville commandery No. 1 of Louisville.

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston, on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

"SHALL NAOMID go to the mountain or the mountain go to Naomid." This question seems to have been settled by the President so far as the Knights Templar are concerned. The mountain did not budge an inch.

MANY REGRET that they did not embrace the opportunity Thursday to visit the tomb of the Presidents Adams beneath the First church. The visitors saw what many of our people never have. Even many lifelong attendants of the First church have not visited this tomb of National renown. Arrangements should be made to have the church open to visitors.

Festival for Hospital.

At a joint meeting of the trustees of the Quincy Hospital, and Ladies Aid association held at the probate court room Thursday evening, it was voted to hold an outdoor fete or festival early in October for the benefit of the hospital upon the grounds formerly of C. F. Adams of President's hill if they can be secured for that purpose. Every organization and church in the city will be invited to co-operate. A circular will at once be sent to each, asking them to appoint and send two delegates to a mass meeting to be held in the Council chamber City Hall, next Wednesday evening Sept. 4 when all arrangments will be made and committees chosen.

Sunday Closing in Braintree.

Mr. Charles S. Bates, who is active in forwarding the interests of the First church Sunday school and Y. P. S. C. E. society, has made a complaint against the opening of the stores in Braintree on Sunday. The two places in question are the Braintree drug store, F. A. Smith, proprietor, and Mr. Vinton's variety store on Elm street, which is also a street car waiting station. Mr. Bates made his complaint some days ago directly to these two men respectively, and found them very willing to meet him half way. However they both refuse to close all day Sunday.

As no agreement could be reached about the hours of opening the drug store, so as to have it closed during Sunday school hours and in the evening during the Y. P. S. C. E. meetings, Mr. Bates asked to have the store closed altogether. This Mr. Smith considers unreasonable and refuses absolutely to do.

Mr. Bates has seen the selectmen and all parties interested were to have had a hearing last Monday but the matter has been postponed till next Monday, when the hearing will be held.

Mr. Vinton was not allowed to sell anything last Sunday but newspapers. He will probably apply for a victualler's license. It is needless to say that the general opinion is that the drug store is indispensible and should be open some time during Sunday; if it is so opened the proprietors must pay their expenses and cannot depend on the sale of drugs and medicines to do so.

In case of the waiting room at Mr. Vinton's store the affair assumes a different attitude and it lies for the people to decide whether they wish to close the place or not. If Mr. Vinton secures a victualler's license he is entitled to keep open his place of business on Sundays.—Observer.

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph Connelly of Quincy, arraigned for assault on members of the Salvation Army last Sunday, was discharged.

John Stanton, on a similar complaint, was fined $10. He appealed.

Daniel McHugh, Michael Roach and John Isaac of Boston, whose cases for drunk had been continued, were defaulted. The court has their bank book.

Manuel Jackson of Cohasset has retracted his appeal and paid $60 for illegal keeping of intoxicating liquors.

James F. Gaynor of Randolph has also retracted his appeal and paid $5 for drunk, and $15 for disturbing a school.

ANNUAL DINNER.

Granite Manufacturers' Outing at Nantasket.

A Short Excursion on Steamer in Boston Harbor and

An Excellent Menu at Hotel Nantasket—Those Present.

The members of Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association had a glorious time on Thursday with their invited guests. The morning was a little showery but a large number took the street cars at 8.30, in City Square, for Quincy Point, where the beautiful steamer, City of Quincy, was awaiting their arrival. In a few moments after the party had found comfortable seats, she started for a cruise in the harbor. Sailing down the river she soon passed Germantown, Rock island, Houghs Neck and Peddock island, and, then out through Hull gut to the open sea; then taking a direct course for Boston the steamer passed Fort Warren and Galloupe island on the right; Quarantine and Long island on the left; and continuing, went nearly to the old large steamer Venetian, which was wrecked several months ago upon the rocks in Bostou harbor.

The granite merchants would have been pleased to have gone further up Boston's beautiful bay, but as the steamer was advertised to leave Quincy Point at 11, on her regular trip to Nantasket, Capt. Hopkins was obliged to turn the boat towards the starting point, and we soon rounded Ward's island, where all our noble horses sooner or later find a resting place. Then we soon passed the outlet of Boston's great sewer, and was nearing Nut Island, where lay the two old vessels that are being torn to pieces for the iron, copper, brass and other metals used in building.

About 11 o'clock the steamer was at Quincy Point, ready to take her precious load for Nantasket beach. Soon again she was gracefully gliding over the water for that noted summer resort, and in about forty minutes we were safely landed on the wharf at the foot of Sagamore hill.

After strolling on the beautiful beach, the tide being out, for an hour or more the granite dealers and their guests took seats in the large dining hall, at hotel Nantasket and partook of the following excellent

After enjoying the rich menu served by this excellent hotel, the gathering spent the afternoon as their fancy indicated. Some in bathing, bowling, singing, dancing, getting weighed, tossing rings, etc.

The most exciting events of the afternoon were the scrub races between the fleshy and wealthy bondholders. Fifty-yard dashes, over the smooth hard sand, by young and old, attracted much attention, and fortunately there were no accidents, as the Hull policemen were on the ground to keep the ladies and small boys off the track. We had no stop watch so as to get the exact time in seconds, but one thing is sure, they all beat the old steam locomotive, but did not quite come up to the new electric motor. The following figures show the order in which each race was finished:

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Furnald left yesterday for Poland Spring, New York. They expect to be gone a fortnight.

Two of Mrs. Daniel P. Nye's sisters are visiting her in this city. On Thursday the three went to Nantasket beach on the steamer City of Quincy and had an enjoyable time.

A number of friends of Miss Annie Walsh visited her at Bellevue cottage, Houghs Neck, on Wednesday evening and presented her with a music rack. A good time followed and continued until 12 o'clock, a special car conveying the party to Quincy.

Mr. Hawkes, of Chester, Mass., a guest of the Granite Manufacturer's association yesterday, informs us that the granite company in Chester are intending to build a railroad this fall from the track of the Boston & Albany road to the granite quarry in that town at a cost of $100,000.

Willie Ellis of Robertson street who was killed in Boston Wednesday, was riding on a wagon with Samuel Goell. The team was so close to the sidewalk that the wheel struck an electric car pole, which threw them both out. Goell was not seriously injured. Young Ellis is the son of the foreman at the O T. Rogers Granite works.

Charles H Rodgers, a native of Quincy, but now of Buffalo, N. Y., was in this city yesterday. He is the excellent secretary of the Homestead Savings and Loan Association, a prosperous institution in Buffalo, which is similar to the co-operative banks in this city. Mr. Rodgers' wife and daughter have been visiting his sister, Mrs. Henry C. Rodgers in Quincy, but will return with him today.

THE PILGRIMAGE.

Ovation for Knights at Weymouth and Downer Landing.

Leaving Quincy at 11 A. M. yesterday the Knights of South Shore, Forest City and Killington commanderies enjoyed the delightful ride on the electric cars to East Weymouth. First came Washington street, broad and shady; then the first view of salt water as the river was crossed at Quincy Point, then the attractions of "Old Spain," and the view from King Oak hill.

At the asylum of South Shore commandery at East Weymouth, another lunch was spread, and then the pilgrimage was continued by barges; it being a pretty drive to Downer Landing, especially on an outing of this kind where hospitalities were being extended and enjoyed.

At Downer Landing there was a short march into Melville Gardens and the visiting delegations were not disappointed in this popular summer resort. Of course the salt water surrounding it was a leading attraction, but they enjoyed it all, the grove, the dance hall, boating, etc. And some of the Vermont and Ohio Sir Knights think they could learn to like clams. The shore dinner was a treat to them.

The bugle call reminded the excursionists that time was fleeting and that they must hurry to the steamboat landing. The Knights marched and the ladies fell into line.

Seldom does one have such a variety in one day's excursion, and this last feature the sail up Boston harbor was one of the most attractive.

At the wharf in Boston there were short speeches by the three Eminent Commanders.

Em. Sir T. J. Evans of the South Shore Commandery, in part, said: "We, as Sir Knights have a glorious mission to perform in the world. We are a body of Christian men, and are here to perpetuate the principles of unity, brotherly love and fraternal regard. We have tried to entertain our fellow Knights as best we could, and we sincerely hope that they have all enjoyed themselves. Now we are obliged to say good-by, not without a feeling, however, that the principles which bind us together as one great body will be more firmly cemented by this excursion. Sir Knights, I love you. I could put my hands about your necks and hug you all. I wish I could express the great enjoyment which you have afforded us. But I can only say, if you ever come our way again we shall try to do better by you than we did this time."

Hearty cheers followed and after the demonstration Em. Sir J. E. Thomson of Killington Commandery said:—"We can't find words to express our appreciation for the great kindness shown us by your commandery, but you know we all appreciate your efforts by our every act, If you ever come our way we shall try to reciprocate all that has been done for us, and till we meet again, "God be with you." [Cheers]

The closing speech was made by Sir Eminent Commander J. H. Snow of the Forest City Commandery of Cleveland, O. He could only add weight to what the former speaker said and hoped that it should be the privilege of the Forest City Commandery to entertain their hosts in the near future.

With cheer upon cheer the commanderies separated.

HARD LOSERS.

The Clevelands, Therefore, Put Up Their Customary Kick When They Lost.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—The Clevelands were Boston's opponents. They have always been noted as hard losers, and in a squeeze would do almost anything to win. By a slight streak of batting in the sixth inning the home team scored seven runs. The Cleveland men became wild. They saw before them defeat and immediately began kicking. Owing to slow actions and continued kicking throughout the game of the players, it was quiet dark when the seventh inning was reached.

AFFAIRS IN HAWAII

As Viewed by One Who Held Office Under the Monarchy.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Colonel MacFarlane, former aide-de-camp to the late King Kalakaua, has just arrived in London. In an interview, he said that he was informed that a few Hawaiians and politicans and merchants who favored the old form of government would wait upon President Cleveland, when congress reassembles, to urge the annexation of the Sandwich Islands.

The primary object, he said, would be to test the sincerity of the officials of the Hawaiian republic. A large number of Americans, he remarked, had joined the Republican party in Hawaii, it being generally understood that the existing republic in the Sandwich Islands provided only for a temporary government until annexation to the United States could be arranged.

The natives, he thought, were not wholly opposed to the policy of annexation to the United States. Still, failing to bring about the restoration of the monarchy to which they naturally incline, they would really prefer annexation to Great Britain. Of course, the American commercial influence is in the ascendant, but the British influence is also large.

Colonel MacFarlane favored a permanent republic or else restoration of the monarchy, the best elements of both parties forming a coalition for the support of the government. Failing such coalition, annexation to the United States would be the most advantageous commercially, but there is no doubt that if a test vote were taken the natives who constitute a majority would vote largely in favor of closer political relations with England.

The political upheavals which have occurred there have never seriously affected the prosperity of Hawaii. Sugar, cotton and other industries have not sufferered greatly.

In conclusion, Colonel MacFarlane explains that Mr. Cleghorn, the father of Princess Kaiulani, is now en route for England, accompanied by ex-Consul Wodehouse. It is believed that one of the objects of their visit is to present to the British government a full and detailed account of the situation in the Hawaiian Islands, and the cause that led to the overthrow of the monarchy there.

Extension of a Month.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The secretary of the treasury has extended the time for filing sugar bounty claims from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, 1895. According to the regulations issued to govern the payment of the sugar bounty appropriation, all claims were to be filed by Sept. 1, but the time was found inadequate, and Secretary Carlisle therefore granted the extension of one month.

STONE WORKING.

Very Rapid Strides Predicted in Next Few Years.

Edw. C. Weaver contributes to the July number of Stone the following on the stone worker's future, which will be of local interest:

In looking forward to the probable developments of the next few years it appears to one who has personal contract with the pulse of invention, that we will make very great strides in the perfection of stone-working machinery of an entirely new type. There are, as it were, periods or waves of improvement. The pneumatic tool marks one of these waves, being one of the inventions that stamps its character upon every class of the industry. It marks an era in the craft. The time is fast approaching when we will feel another wave of progress, and it will also make its mark upon every class of the craft.

But a ten minutes' walk through a modernly-equipped stone works reveals to the thoughtful mind, many places where both labor and time are wasted, and are unproductive. And as competition becomes more severe labor and time are the great items upon the expense side of the ledger, and anything that tends to save these becomes a chief factor in a successful business enterprise. Only a week or two ago I had a long and interesting talk with the owner of one of the oldest and most important steam stone works of New York city, and the conversation turned mainly upon this very theme, the mechanical saving of labor and time in the dressing of building stone. When he was young in the business, good work was all that was needed to fill up a fat order book, but now it requires a close cost estimate. And this is truer as the years pass by.

In the first place, it occurs to a practical mind that the cutting of stone as it is done now is entirely too slow a process. And the machinery is too expensive by all means. From five to ten thousand dollars is entirely too much to spend for a saw cutting little more than a quarter of an inch per minute. Again, dimension work must be put through faster. The cuts should follow rapidly, and the measurements be made by mechanical means. Cutting and trying is a relic of the days when carpenters hewed beams with adzes. Measuring and squaring should be absolutely under mechanical control. Gang work should be done at high speed. Planers must work faster and be automatically operated. Tools must be invented to do special work automatically from pattern, and without waste of stock. I expect to soon see arches cut without any waste of material within the segment.

In fact there are great lessons for the worker in stone to learn. Some of them can be found in any well-equipped woodworking shop, and in machine shops. Is there any reason why the same principles cannot be applied to the working of stone? It is not because stone is heavy, for in the Washington Navy Yard I have watched the handling of a hundred ton cannon with as much ease as though it were a Napoleon. Steel is as hard as granite. The real secret is that the inventive mind has not taken hold of the entire problem as yet. The rapid manipulation of stone will be a fact when proper attention is focused to that end.

WEATHER WAS MIXED.

Fair Breeze, a Calm and a Gale Greeted Defender and Vigilant.

Defender Shown to Be the Superior Boat.

British Challenger an Interested Spectator of a Notable Contest.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The trial race between Defender and Vigilant, which took place over a triangular course, eight miles to the leg, starting from the Scotland lightship, was one of the best and most interesting events that ever took place between two yachts in New York harbor. It was won by Defender by 18m. 3s.

There were all kinds of weather. A fair breeze of eight knots an hour was blowing at the start, a calm followed, a small breeze of three or four miles next appeared. Then there was a whiff of about five miles, but the most important conditions prevailed on the last leg, when a squall came up from south-southeast, during which for a period of 20 minutes it blew 40 miles an hour.

Vigilant was compelled to take in her clubtopsail and sailed for half an hour without any canvas above her mainsail. Defender stood the test, which was the first of the kind she had ever been out in, without removing a rag until the sheet of her staysail carried away, and the sail was torn into shreds by the gale. It was quickly replaced, however, despite the blow.

A Wonderful Showing.

Defender's most ardent champions were surprised at the way that she stood up under the blow. She did have to luff up twice, but the general result was more than satisfactory. The ship stood up as a good ship should, heeling so little that her weather qualities were well proven. On all points of sailing, reaching, close-hauled and before the wind, Defender gained on her game opponent.

The following table of the official time gives the figures:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed time.
Defender	11.20.28	4.10.08	4.49.40
Vigilant	11.20.40	4.28.28	5.07.48

On the first leg, which was a reach most of the way in light air, Defender gained 5m. 5s. On the second leg the Vigilant was beaten for the first time on a run before the wind, Defender gaining 2m. 23s. On the home leg, when the squall struck, Defender simply ran away, and increased her lead by 10m. 45s.

In every point of sailing, even the run before the wind with spinnakers set, and in all strengths of breeze, the Defender not only outsailed the Vigilant, but beat her almost ridiculously.

And yet the America's cup committee do not seem to be satisfied that Defender is the better boat, for they have ordered another trial race.

Valkyrie Becalmed.

Valkyrie came out from her anchorage as the racers were starting and followed them at a distance over the course. The challenger caught the seven or eight mile breeze, under which Defender and Vigilant started, and was carried by it close down to the point, where the racers dropped it. When Valkyrie found herself becalmed within half a mile of Vigilant, which was three-quarters of a mile astern of Defender, she went back.

No fair comparison between Valkyrie and Defender could be made, as one had a breeze when the other had not. Valkyrie came down fast, with her big clubtopsail and balloon jibtopsail set, but Defender had done at least equally well before she ran into the calm. Valkyrie saw the squall coming, and promptly took down her clubtopsails. She already had her staysail and jib down. It looked as though her skipper was not anxious to have her out in that kind of breeze.

The English boat was not injured by the blizzard. But it was said by the sharps, who looked at her from Sandy Hook when the bountiful air came upon her, with only her massive mainsail set, that she heeled over under it enough to show that she is very tender for one so big.

Holmes Used a Deadly Drug.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 30.—The drug with which Howard Pitzel was killed before his body was burned in the big stove in the Irving cottage was found yesterday. A part of a bottle of cyanide of potassium was found buried in the barn. Boys digging in an unfinished portion of the cellar found the two feet of Howard Pitzel. They had been burned, but not destroyed, and were evidently too bulky to put into the chimney hole. With the feet was found buried a five-quart can. There was some oil in it.

Have Given Up All Hope.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Robert W. Inman's relatives have given up all hope of ever seeing him alive. This was the conclusion they were forced to accept after a three days' search of the bay and its shores without finding a trace of him. Every effort is being made to recover the body.

Commoners Will Investigate.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The case of Dr. Anderson, who has complained of illegal treatment at the hands of the judges at Tobago, British West Indies, has been brought to the notice of several members of the house of commons. It has been agreed that his case shall be investigated.

Placing the Blame.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The jury in the Ireland building collapse returned a verdict, placing the responsibility for the collapse on Contractor J. H. Parker, Thomas Walker, Thomas Murray, C. R. Behrenz, E. J. Youdale and D. E. Buckley, the latter a building inspector.

What Next?

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The anarchist trial at Magdeburg has collapsed. Eight of the accused were acquitted and one was sentenced to two months' imprisonment on a charge of inciting to bomb-throwing. It is generally felt that the government made a mistake in prosecuting.

Going Abroad.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 30.—An agent of the German government has bought of Mike Bowerman the great mare Martha Wilkes, 2:08, 12 years old. He is also negotiating for the purchase of a number of other brood mares in foal.

Americans Abroad.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Samuel Gompers and P. J. Maguire addressed the Liverpool Trades council last evening in favor of the fraternity of the English speaking workers of the world.

Straw Mattings.

The recent troubles between China and Japan have greatly increased the price of mattings, and importations in this line have been wonderfully small for months gone by. It's the old saying that where there's a will there's a way, and untiring searching brought to us a splendid lot of the neatest patterns in China mattings we have ever seen. Although these mattings are well worth 20 cents, while they last our price to all will be 12½ and 15 cents per yard. Other mattings at any price.

NAPOLEON,

ONCE ASKED FOR AN OPINION,

Gives a Graphic Description of His Ideal Woman. Mothers Please Note.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

In response to a question asked by a lady, the great Napoleon replied,—

"My ideal woman is not the beautiful-featured society belle, whose physician tries in vain to keep her in repair, nor the fragile butterfly of fashion, who gilds the tortures of disease with a forced smile.

"No! my ideal is a woman who has accepted her being as a sacred trust, and who obeys the laws of nature for the preservation of her body and soul.

"Do you know, my knee involuntarily bends in homage when I meet the matron who reaches middle age in complete preservation.

"That woman is rendered beautiful by perfect health, and the stalwart children by her side are her reward. That's my ideal woman."

To grow to ideal womanhood the girlhood should be carefully guarded.

Mothers owe a duty to their daughters that in too many cases is neglected.

Nature has provided a time for purification; and if the channels are obstructed the entire system is poisoned, and misery comes.

At a mothers' meeting the wife of a noted New York divine said to her listeners: "Watch carefully your daughters' physical development.

"Mothers should see that Nature is assisted, if necessary, to perform its office, and keep their daughters well informed as to matters concerning themselves."

Irregularities, from whatever cause, are sure indications of organic trouble. With irregularities come disturbance of the stomach and kidneys.

Violent headaches often attack the victim; pains shoot everywhere. Extreme irritability follows quickly, and then utter despondency overwhelms the already over-burdened life. Unless the obstruction is removed at once, your daughter's whole future will be darkened.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will accomplish the work speedily. It is the most effective remedy for irregular or suspended action known.

"The Proof of the Pudding is the Eating Thereof."

For Gretchen on the Wheel.

Good health to all, good pleasure, good speed,
A favoring breeze, but not too high,
For the outbound spin! Who rides may read
The open secret of earth and sky.

For life is quickened and pulses bound,
Morbid questionings sink and die
As the wheel slips over the glittery ground
And the young day wakes in crimson sky

Oh, the merry comradeship of the road,
With trees that nod as we pass them by,
With hurrying bird and lurking toad
Or vagabond cloud in the noonday sky!

Oh, the wholesome smell of the good brown earth
When showers have fallen for suns to dry!
Oh, the westward run to the mystic birth
Of a silver moon in a golden sky!

Good health to all, good pleasure, good speed
A favoring breeze, but not too high,
For the homeward spin! Who rides may read
The open secret of earth and sky.

Amazing Slips of the Tongue.

A young clergyman in giving out the hymn, "Conquering Kings," merely stumbled over the first syllable, but being unable to save himself startled his congregation with the announcement, "The hymn tonight will be 'Kinquering Congs'—'Kinquering Congs.'"

Much the same was the pitfall into which a reverend gentleman walked when in place of saying, "Behold the fig tree, how it withereth away!" by a simple transposition of two or three letters asked his audience to "Behold the wig tree, how it fithereth away!"

But perhaps one of the most comical instances of slips of this kind is the case of the preacher who, describing conscience and desiring to get his listeners to recognize the promptings of its inward voice in the half formed wishes of the mind, appealed to them whether there was one there who at one time or another "had not felt within him the effect of a half warmed fish."

After this, the instance of a person who, devoutly reading the lessons in solemn tones, announced, "He spake the word, and cattlehoppers came and grassipillars innumerable," seems almost commonplace. So, too, does the mistake of the priest who assured his congregation that "it was easier for a rich man to pass through the eye of a needle than for a camel to enter the kingdom of God."—Boston Herald.

It was ladies' day for members of Cypress commandery of Hyde Park, and 2500 Sir Knights and ladies enjoyed the hospitality of the commandery.

The grand commandery of Virginia entertained between 2000 and 3000 Sir Knights and their ladies at the Brunswick.

Mounted De Molay No. 1, of Washington, entertained De Molay commandery of Boston and St. John commandery of Providence, and later they received all comers. Fully 7000 guests were entertained.

Midnight last night closed the four days' open house kept by the grand commandery of Colorado at Hotel Victoria. They will break camp today.

Apollo commandery, of Chicago, formally disbanded yesterday afternoon, and the members will return to the Windy City in small parties.

California commandery No. 1 also disbanded after a trip to Brockton yesterday afternoon.

There was little celebrating over Pittsburg's victory over other states in securing the next conclave, as most of the Smoky City men left Boston before dark.

Many delegations of Knights Templar left for their homes last night, and others departed early this morning. Many of the delegates will return in parties or individually. But few commanderies will return with their full number of members, as some prefer to remain longer than others.

The Election of Officers.

The meeting of the grand encampment was called to order promptly at 10 o'clock. It was decided to vote for officers by roll-call.

The first ballot, which was for grand master, resulted as follows: Right Eminent Sir Warren La Rue Thomas of Maysville, Ky., 297; Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy of Michigan, 2; Right Eminent Sir Samuel C. Lawrence of Boston, 1; Very Eminent Sir Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco, 1. As but 151 votes were necessary, Sir Thomas was declared elected amid a tumult of applause.

WARREN LA RUE THOMAS.

Grand Master McCurdy arose and officially announced the name of his successor, and Sir Thomas responded in a touching speech of thanks, in which he pledged his untiring efforts for the good of the order.

At the close of Grand Master Thomas' address it was announced that the committee on time and place had reported in favor of Pittsburg as the place for the conclave of 1898. Their action was unanimously ratified, and the time agreed upon is the second Tuesday in October.

The following officers were then elected: Deputy grand master, Very Eminent Sir Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco; grand generalissimo, Very Eminent Sir Henry B. Stoddard of Texas; grand captain general, Very Eminent Sir George M. Moulton of Illinois; grand senior warden, Very Eminent Sir Henry W. Rugg of Rhode Island; grand junior warden, Very Eminent Sir W. B. Mellish of Cincinnati.

When the grand encampment was called to order in the afternoon, the balloting for officers was resumed, and Very Eminent Sir H. Wales Lines of Meriden, Conn., was re-elected grand treasurer. There was a contest for the grand recordership, and four ballots were necessary. Eminent Sir W. H. May of St. Louis secured the coveted position. The appointment of the grand prelate, grand standard bearer, grand warder and grand captain of guard will be made after the installation of the officers-elect. The election of officers ended, the encampment took up the question of revising the code, which consumed the time until adjournment.

Thirteen Men Drowned.

DENVER, Aug. 30.—Thirteen men employed in the Sleepy Hollow and American mines, between Blackhawk and Central City, lost their lives by an overflow of water. Details of the disaster are lacking, but the theory advanced seems to be that the men were drilling a hole when the body of water came rushing in upon them.

Not Made Public.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Librarian of Congress Spofford yesterday forwarded to the treasury department a statement of his accounts covering a period of several years. The report specifies moneys received and disbursed for library and copyright purposes up to Aug. 1 last. The figures will not be given out at present.

Tennessee to Potomac.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 30.—The Army of the Tennessee has extended an invitation to the Army of the Potomac to attend their annual reunion in Cincinnati on Sept. 16 and 17. Immediately after, all will proceed to Chattanooga for the four days' festivities attending the inauguration of Chickamauga park

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 1. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Enthusiasm and what it will accomcomplish.—II Chron. xxix, 1-11; xxxi, 20, 21.

Enthusiasm "is the complete possession of the mind and energies by some cause, subject, passion or fancy." There may be said to be two kinds of enthusiasm—a false and a true. False enthusiasm is fanaticism. It is the state of mind in which the imagination and the feelings predominate the will and judgment. The great danger of enthusiasm is that it may degenerate into fanaticism. True enthusiasm is that state of the mind in which the judgment has selected a subject or cause which is worthy of our interest and attention, and in support of which the whole soul of the man, the entire being, is fervently and zealously enlisted. Enthusiasm is much criticised, particularly religious enthusiasm. We may be enthusiastic in politics, enthusiastic in business, enthusiastic in pleasure without running much risk, but to be enthusiastic for God means at once to subject ourselves to the possibility of being called fanatics. But it should not matter. Enthusiasm, if there is anything to be enthusiastic over, is a good thing, and no one has a cause or subject into which the whole soul, the whole man, so much needs to zealously and fervently enlisted as the Christian. No great movement in the history of the past has been successful without more or less enthusiasm. What is true of the past will also be true of the present and the future.

Enthusiasm calls forth the very best that is in us. It is a godlike inspiration. It inspires men to do their best, to bend forth every energy for success when half heartedness would but lead to discouragement and to failure. Had not Hezekiah had his whole heart in destroying the idol worship and in setting up the worship of the true God it is doubtful if he would have accomplished such a gigantic task, but "he did it with his whole heart, and he prospered." We need enthusiasm in working for God, for he wants our best efforts, our best service.

Enthusiasm enlists the interest and support of others. It is contagious. Enthusiasm kindles enthusiasm. Hezekiah's whole heartedness aroused that of his priests and the people. An enthusiast herself, Joan of Arc filled a dispirited soldiery with enthusiasm and was successful. We need to interest others in religion.

Enthusiasm accomplishes definite positive results. Hezekiah was successful. He put down idolatry. He exalted God. It can also accomplish positive beneficial results for us.

Bible Readings.—Num. xxv, 11-13; Deut. xi, 13-15; Joshua xxii, 1-6; I Sam. xii, 20-24; I Kings xix, 10-18; II Kings x, 16-28; xxiii, 21-25; Isa. lix, 19; Math. vii, 7, 8; xvi, 13-17; xxi, 8-11; Mark ii, 1-5; x, 46-52; Luke xix, 1-5; Acts xviii, 24-28; xxvi, 27-29; Rom. xii, 11; II Cor. vii, 6, 7; ix, 1, 2; Gal. iv, 18; Col. iii, 23, 24; I Pet. iv, 8.

The Umbrella of State.

Last year, at the Cleveland convention, New York state received from China a richly embroidered "umbrella of state" for having reported the largest number of societies that had adopted the Fulton plan for giving "2 cents a week" per member for missions. The "umbrella of state" is a peculiarly oriental object and is usually presented by the Chinese to high officials that have faithfully performed their duty. New York took the "umbrella" to Boston, and this year it was New York's pleasure to place it in the hands of our lively friends from the District of Columbia, it having been decided that this year the umbrella should be awarded to the union having the largest proportionate number of societies using the Fulton plan for giving sysetmatically to missions.—Secretary Baer's Report.

Hints to Committees.

There are two rules that every social committee should bear prominently in mind when arranging a programme for a social, says The Golden Rule. The first is that the exercises should, in part at least, give something to do to every person present. The second is that they should make it convenient or necessary for all the attendants to be thrown into contact one with another. If these two simple rules are kept carefully in mind, socials will be more generally successful, in the fullest meaning of the word "success."

Endeavor Gossip.

Over 20 speakers, including ladies, took part in as many minutes in one of the open parliaments at the Scottish national convention, and each said something well worth hearing.

At a single prayer meeting of the Brookline (Mass.) Baptist society $51 was contributed to foreign missions.

Several societies in and about Boston have contributed enough money to pay for a bed in the Union Rescue mission, on Kneeland street. These societies have paid $8, and the bed nets the mission nearly $40 a year. The name of Christian Endeavor has been put across the headboard.

The Brooklyn Local union has appointed a missionary committee of six to see that each society in the union has a missionary committee of its own.

Within less than a year the First Presbyterian Endeavorers of Portland, Or., have given $185 to missions. One of the members has recently set out for the foreign field as a missionary.

The flower committee of the South Presbyterian Church society of Philadelphia ons Sunday distributed 65 potted plants among the sick and shut ins of their members and in two of the city hospitals.

The Philadelphia committee on floating work reports two societies in seamen's churches, one on a naval ship, another on an ocean steamship, and 2,300 comfort bags and thousands of pieces of reading matter systematically distributed as its first year's work.

KNIGHTS ARE LEAVING.

Business Which Brought Them to Boston Has Been Completed.

Conclave Wound Up With Installation of Officers.

Many Visitors to White Squadron and Historical Points of Interest.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—It is goodby to Boston with the Knights Templar. The conclave finished its official business yesterday, and adjourned, to meet again three years later in Pittsburg.

The Sir Knights have finished their round of hospitalities and are rapidly leaving. Every train bears them away in detached groups. Those who came in solid special trains are now breaking up and are scattering in small parties to return to their far-away homes by routes suited to their own pleasure.

A large number of Templars will test the attractions of many summer resorts of New England for a few days. Others, their return rendered peremptory by business cares, are hurrying away by most direct route.

Templar regalia is growing scarce. Our streets are resuming their wonted appearance. The gayest, happiest Templars remain, however, attracted by the oft-tried enjoyment of a Mystic Shrine, a large number of the members of the ancient order planning to meet at Nantasket Monday and Tuesday.

It is needless to say that the goodbyes were hearty and the farewell clasps of hands most cordial. Boston may well rest content with the way in which her hospitality has been received. A considerable number of the returning Templars plan to make brief visits to other New England cities on their way home, where they will be entertained pleasantly by local commanderies.

Today the city will be deserted by all the Templars, save those who have connection with the Mystic Shrine.

Another Day of Enjoyment.

The majority of the visitors to the city are continuing the carrying out of their week's program of pleasure. There were, as usual, hundreds on hand to go upon the shore trip of the Cygnus yesterday; some of the commanderies went to Providence and other places; but the real feature of the day was the arrival of Admiral Bunce, with four ships of the North Atlantic squadron. A host of Templars went to the navy yard to see the fleet and witness the ceremonies when the admiral was received with honors by the commandant of the station.

A reception and banquet, complimentary to the officers of the grand encampment, were given last night at the University club by St. Bernard commandery of this city. About 80 gentlemen were present, about half being Sir Knights of St. Bernard while the remainder were invited guests. The commander of St. Bernard commandery, Eminent Sir J. Foster Bush, presided at the banquet and, after the viands were served, made a short address of welcome, and he was followed in an informal way by several of the guests of the evening.

Conclave Closed.

The grand encampment devoted almost all of yesterday's session to the discussion of constitutional revision. It was decided to make Washington the headquarters of the Knights Templar, and after 1898 the triennial conclave will probably be held in that city. A motion to levy a per capita tax of 25 cents a year for the purpose of maintaining the archives in the city of Washington was referred to the next conclave.

The following committees were appointed: Jurisprudence, J. H. Hopkins of Pennsylvania, J. C. Smith of Illinois, E. T. Carson of Ohio. J. W. Fellows of New York, B. G. Witt of Kentucky; finance, W. H. H. Soules of Massachusetts, George Davis of West Virginia, G. W. Kendrick of Pennsylvania, E. C. Birdsie of Connecticut, Fredrick Greenwood of Virginia; testimonial to Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy, J. C. Smith of Illinois, H. L. Palmer of Wisconsin and J. A. Geraw of Michigan.

The grand officers-elect were then installed by Grand Commander McCurdy, and the following resolution was immediately passed:

Resolved, That the thanks of the grand encampment are due and are hereby tendered to the retiring grand master, Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCardy, for the able and efficient manner in which he has discharged the duties of his office and for the impartial manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of the grand body.

The new grand master, Sir Warren La Rue Thomas, then appointed the following officers: Grand prelate, Cornelius Twing of New York; grand standard bearer, Thomas O. Morris of Tennessee; grand sword bearer, Edgar S. Dudley of Nebraska; grand warder, Joseph A. Locke of Maine; grand captain of the guard, Frank H. Thomas of Washington.

The grand encampment then adjourned to meet in Pittsburg on the second Tuesday of October, 1898.

Women Elect Officers.

The Eastern Star elected a new board of officers for the ensuing three years, as follows: Most worthy grand matron of the general grand chapter, Mrs. Mary E. Partridge of Oakland, Cal.; M. W. grand patron, Henry H. Hinds of Stanton, Mich.; M. W. associate grand matron, Mrs. Hattie E. Ewing of Massachusetts; R. W. A. G. P., N. E. Gearhart of Minnesota; R. W. secretary, Mrs. Lorraine of Pitkin, Ills.; R. W. G. treasurer, Mrs. Harriet A. Eranbrack of Iowa; worthy grand conductress, Edna L. Hedges of Montana; associate conductress, Laura B. Hart of Texas. The officers were duly installed by the past grand matron, Mrs. Snedden.

Mrs. Gresham Was Furious.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Annie Gresham, wife of Thomas Gresham, was arrested last night on a charge of attempting to stab her husband. The Greshams have not lived together for several months, but met yesterday at the funeral of Mrs. Gresham's younger sister. After the return of the funeral party, trouble commenced between husband and wife, and ended early by Mrs. Gresham seizing a large butcher knife and making a lunge at her husband, who, she claims, was about to strike her. He seized the knife, and received several bad cuts.

Case Is Very Suspicious.

GARDINER, Me., Aug. 31.—Thursday, Aug. 22, Miss Finetta A. McDonald, aged 28, arrived in Gardiner, by boat from Boston, and registered at Evans' hotel. She was sick. Immediately on her arrival, medical aid was summoned. She rapidly grew worse, and her trouble baffled all medical skill. After a week of intense suffering she died. The body was taken to Preble & Keene's undertaking rooms, and Drs. Sawyer, Kimball, Geddings and Strout performed an autopsy. The decision rendered was that death was due to peritonitis, resulting from a miscarriage. Owing to the suspicious circumstances surrounding the case, it was placed in the hands of Sheriff Norton and will be thoroughly investigated.

Not United.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—There is a possibility of trouble breaking out in the Labor day parade because of a division in the ranks of District Assembly 30, Knights of Labor, and Superintendent of Police Eldridge has given instructions to see that everything is done toward preventing a clash. The chief marshal of the parade decided to allow the faction suspended by the general executive board the third place in line, and it is expected the other faction will endeavor to take this place from them. Both factions of the Knights claim to represent District Assembly 30, and when the parade is formed a lively contest is expected.

Socialistic Labor Party.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—The candidates suggested by the convention of the Socialist Labor party, and which were submitted to the membership of the party throughout the state for action, has resulted in the nomination of the following for state executive officers: For governor, Moritz E. Ruther, Holyoke; lieutenant governor, P. F. O'Neil, Boston; secretary of state, J. F. Maloney, Lynn; treasurer and receiver general, C. N. Wentworth, Lynn; attorney general, Squire E. Putney, Somerville; auditor, F. A. Nagler, West Springfield.

Over 200 Cases of Malaria.

UXBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 31.—The epidemic of malaria which has infested the town for the last six months is now raging worse than ever. There are at present over 200 cases, and the number is steadily increasing. The physicians are puzzled to account for it, as the town is situated on high, dry land, and has few stagnant ponds or swamps. The water supply is the purest in the state.

Died In the Stretch.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 31.—An exciting incident occurred at the riding park yesterday afternoon. Bristol Wilkes, one of the horses starting in the 2:35 class, pace, dropped dead in the first heat. The horse broke in the stretch and tottered to one side, crashing through the fence into the field within the track. It is thought that he burst a blood vessel.

One Escaped.

ASHLAND, Mass., Aug. 31.—While walking on the railroad track, just beyond the station here, last evening, Thomas O'Niel and Miss Emma Hughes were struck by a freight train. O'Niel was killed instantly, but the young woman escaped with slight injuries. They were returning home from a band concert.

Telegraph Operators Quit Work.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—Seventeen telegraph operators, employed on extra work in the Western Union office, struck yesterday afternoon because of a difference with the management in regard to wages. The operators assert that they were only receiving seven hours' pay for nine hours' work.

Shot by a Brother.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 31.—While shooting at a mark in East Concord, Winnie Lyle, 14 years of age, received a charge of shot in the hip, inflicting injuries which may prove fatal. The shooting was done by a younger brother and was due to careless handling of the weapon.

Not For Bissell.

MARION, Mass., Aug. 31.—Ex-Postmaster General Bissell has joined his family, who are spending the season here. Mr. Bissell says there is no truth in the report that he has been offered the vacancy on the United States supreme court bench.

Crowded With Orders.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Aug. 31.—The Stanley works, manufacturers of butts and hinges, will hire 50 new men and begin Monday to run night and day to supply the increasing demand. The company now employs 700 hands.

Want $3.25 a Day.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—Work at the different shipyards in East Boston is almost at a standstill, owing to a strike among the caulkers. The men now receive $3 a day for eight hours' work, but they demand $3.25 a day.

A Record Breaker.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 31.—Yesterday was the banner day at the New England fair, there having been fully 20,000 people at Rigby park and many thousand visitors at the city hall.

DEFENDER ONCE MORE.

Easily Outsailed Vigilant In the Last of the Trial Races.

Valkyrie Kept a Weather Eye on the Winner.

American Yachtsmen Inclined to Think That the Cup Is Safe.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Aug. 31.—All the yachting sharps who had a tip Thursday night that there would be a third trial race yesterday were happy when they cast a weather eye aloft yesterday morning. A good stiff breeze was coming out of the northeast, and there were windclouds in the sky. The lateness of the committee's decision to hold another race, and the satisfactory performance of the Defender Thursday, made the attendance of spectators less than usual.

The race yesterday was the third of the official trials arranged by the America's cup committee to enable them to select the best boat to defend the cup. In addition to the honor of being selected to represent Uncle Sam in the international races, there was the additional incentive, the $2000 Astor cup, to be raced for. The Vigilant has one win due to her credit, due to the mishap to the Defender's mast, and Thursday's victory for the new syndicate boat placed the two sloops on even terms up to date.

The unquestioned superiority of Defender made another race unnecessary so far as a decision of merit was concerned, but the desire of Mr. Iselin to put the new boat through as many races as possible before meeting the British boat had something to do with the calling of yesterday's trial. Whether the prowess which Valkyrie has shown since she stretched her sails here had anything to do with it may be guessed at.

The knowing ones of the New York Yacht club are inclined to belittle the abilities of the Englishmen, and they say the cup is safe. Patriotic Americans hope they are right, but they are keeping a close watch on the Dunraven boat.

The Deciding Race.

The course yesterday was 20 miles, off Sandy Hook, 10 miles to windward and return, by 5m. 12s. It was evident that the Defender could have done better if she wanted to, but perhaps she showed too much of her true worth, and determined to pull back a bit.

A wind of 10 knots an hour was blowing at the start, and at one time, just before the yachts turned the outer mark, it increased to 12. On the return it fell to eight knots at the finish. The racers started from Scotland lightship, outside of Sandy Hook, to east-southeast, and beat to windward. Defender was first over the line at 11:10:08. Vigilant was only 10s. behind and just to windward.

On the beat, Defender had a rap all the way, while Vigilant was sailed close to the wind. Vigilant carried baby jibtopsail for five miles, when she took it down. Both had clubtopsails set. On this leg Defender gained 5m. 22s. On the run home the centerboard Vigilant picked up 10s.

Valkyrie was out for an airing with a working topsail up, but she remained away from the race course until the finish, when she came to that point to see the ending. She had her weather eye on Defender all day, however.

The official time table of the race is as follows:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed time.
Defender	11.10.08	2.02.18	2.52.10
Vigilant	11.10.18	2.07.40	2.57.22

After the race, the following announcement was made by the cup committee:

"The America's cup committee have selected the yacht Defender of the New York Yacht club as against Valkyrie III in the contest for the America's cup."

Dunraven at the N. Y. Y. C.

The America's cup committee met last night at 67 Madison avenue. There were present at the beginning J. D. Smith, chairman of the committee, and J. C. Canfield, treasurer; J. F. Tams and Gouverneur Kortwright. Toward 10 o'clock a cob drove up to the door of the New York Yacht club, and Lord Dunraven, who was alone, alighted.

Lord Dunraven remarked that he was there to concede whatever he could consistently concede, and to facilitate any business in which he might be interested. After nearly two hours of discussion nothing was definitely fixed beyond what has already been published, and it was decided that another meeting should be held in the early part of next week, when it is hoped there will be a larger attendance.

Cold Comfort For Newfoundland.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—In the house of commons, on the vote of appropriation for colonial services, Joseph Chamberlain said that he had failed to find any argument which would justify the late government in giving the colony of Newfoundland £50,000 sterling. The distress, he added, no doubt arose from bad administration of the affairs of the colony.

Ghastly Tragedy on the Street.

JOHNSTON, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Miss Teresa Komarny, 22 years of age, was killed on Gas street yesterday by her lover, Josef Flamal, who cut her throat. Flamal then cut his own throat, but will probably recover. The murderer was arrested, and on being asked why he committed the deed, replied: "I don't know how I came to do it."

Whisky Trust's Rival.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The independent distillers, who have been in conference for some days past, yesterday formed an alliance for mutual protection. The object of the association is claimed not to be to raise prices, but to furnish the trade at the lowest cost of production, in opposition to the Whisky trust.

To Prosecute Sealers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—The United States attorney will at once commence criminal proceedings against the captains of the sealing schooners Bowhead and Sophie Sutherland for sealing in the closed waters in Behring sea.

Building is an indication of the progress of a city, and Quincy presents a good showing in new houses. TODAY'S COURT.

William McGinnis of Weymouth, a continued case for assault, was discharged.

John J. Clark of Braintree for drunk was committed.

A Norfolk Downs correspondent writes: We have not our new schoolhouse, but we must convince the city that one is actually needed, not keep our children at home out of spite. Every child of school age should be sent to school next Tuesday if they only go for a week. The city government is said to be waiting for the opening of the schools to see how badly additional buildings are needed and statistics will doubtless be presented at the next meeting of the City Council showing number of pupils in Wollaston and the Atlantic schools; also the number from the Downs and Park.

The New Church.

The stone wall to the cellar of Calvary Baptist church is fast becoming completed and the hopes that inspires every man to come there after doing their hard day's work in stone sheds or elsewhere, is in seeing in the near future a building erected to their honor and for God's glory. Come and lend a helping hand either by labor or money, and cheer the hearts of men who grow weary in the work "but not of the work."

—In the Phrenological Journal and Science of Health for September a phrenograph of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, from a personal examination by the editor, occupies the first place, and explains the elements of character which have made her an eminent reformer. Several fine portraits accompany the description. "How Three People Did Europe Afoot," by George C. Bartlett, is the first of a series of letters from Europe which illustrate the possibilities of cheap living abroad, and promise to be exceptionally entertaining. "The Scientific Relation, Past and Present," by Dr. H. S. Drayton, will be especially acceptable to scholars. The Rev. Stanley Mercer Hunter argues eloquently and logically for phrenology as a definite science of character. Mrs. Charlotte Fowler Wells concludes her interesting sketch of the Rev. Joseph A. Warne. $1.50 per year. New York: Fowler & Wells Co., 27 East Twenty-first street.

☞ Taylor's Anti-Headache Powders are their own best advertisement. Their unparalled success is owing solely to their great merit. There is no case of headache so severe they cannot cure, and yet they are so simple that a child can take them. Get them of Leonard H. Pastor, 27 School street, Quincy.

The tax rate of Brockton is the lowest for three years, yet it is higher than the Quincy tax rate ever was. In 1890 the rate was $15.20; in 1891 it was $17.50; in 1892 it was $18.80; in 1893 and 1894 it was $19.70, and this year $18 60.

Everyone will be welcome at the open-air service in the square tomorrow afternoon at 3 30. The singing will be one of the special features, assisted by a Boston cornetist. An invitation is extended to all to be on hand and assist in the singing. Rev. M. R. Denning, formerly general secretary of the Boston Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker.

Mr. James M. Beckford of Durham, N. H., for many years a resident of this city, is visiting relatives in this place. His old homestead on Hancock street, which was sold at auction a few months ago is being greatly improved by Col. Charles H. Porter, the present owner. The roof has been raised one story, and new rooms are being built under the same.

With the coming of September business in this city should begin to pick up and our business firms should realize this fact and boom the place by advertising their goods. The milliners, shoe dealers, men's furnishing stores, dry good stores and all others not represented by an advertisement in our columns should hasten to send in a bright attractive advertisement and we will help them to a rushing trade. Those who already have advertisements in columns should look them over and change them for wide-a-wake advertising means good business. Try it.

We would make a suggestion to the street railway company that it be more explicit in the directions on the cars. Every person who takes a car at the Quincy depot does not know that the East Weymouth car goes by the way of Quincy Point and North Weymouth. Have an additional sign on the side at the top. "Quincy, Quincy Point, North and East Weymouth." The same is true on the other line; one would hardly expect to start toward South Quincy for East Milton. Put it all on gentlemen, "Quincy, South and West Quincy and East Milton."

Straw Mattings.

The recent troubles between China and Japan have greatly increased the price of mattings, and importations in this line have been wonderfully small for months gone by. It's the old saying that where there's a will there's a way, and untiring searching brought to us a splendid lot of the neatest patterns in China mattings we have ever seen. Although these mattings are well worth 20 cents, while they last our price to all will be 12½ and 15 cents per yard. Other mattings at any price.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

A General Improvement Noted In Nearly All Branches.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Bradstreet's says: The concluding week of August surprised even the more optimistic with a striking increase in the volume of business with jobbers in staple lines at such centers as New York, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and, to a more moderate extent, at distributing points in South Atlantic and Gulf states.

In dry goods, millinery, shoes, hats, clothing and groceries, the autumn demand is making itself felt, with the prospect of a further improvement in immediate succeeding weeks.

This situation is encouraged by the practical certainty of an unprecedented harvest of wheat in the northwest, as well as by the unexpectedly upward bound of prices of steel and iron, followed by a corresponding gain in demand.

The total volume of general trade for the summer has been larger than in 1894 and in many instances than in 1893, with the outlook today for even a better fall demand than many had anticipated. The upward and onward impulse of this week is noticeable.

All winter lines of goods have felt an improved request, and manufacturers and jobbers are preparing to handle a larger trade. At the south, where recovery from the effects of the late trade depression was felt latest, jobbers in dry goods, hardware and groceries announce the receipt of many orders for September delivery.

The general course of prices has been indicated with reference to the leading metals, and higher prices for cotton stimulate advances in quotations for ginghams and prints. Wool is firmly held, largely owing to the strength of the London market.

Copper, lumber, wheat, flour and pork, too, are held at last week's figures, as is leather, which is easier. Anthracite coal is now declared to have seen its lowest prices.

Quay For Governor.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31.—It is stated, on what is considered good authority, that Senator Quay had more at stake in this fight than the state chairmanship, the control of the Pennsylvania delegation to the next Republican national convention and the national chairmanship. He had his eye, it is said, upon the gubernatorial chair, and will be a candidate for that place. His term of senator does not expire until 1896, but he could resign from the senate a couple of months before his term expires, and could, as governor, name his successor.

Fatal Railway Smashup.

MACON, Aug. 31.—An excursion train on the Southern railway, carrying an excursion from this city, left the track between Holton and Popes Ferry. The baggage car and two passenger coaches turned over. Two men were killed, and almost every person in the two coaches was hurt more or less seriously. Several of the are likely to die. There is no way of accounting for the accident, as it is said that the track was in perfect condition.

Cleveland and the Presidency.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—St. Clair McKelway, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, has a letter in The Times this morning in which he declares that if President Cleveland is again nominated it will be different from any former movement in favor of a third term. It will be a popular protest against the limit, the earlier reason for which has ceased. It will be the people's act against conspiring politicians, McKelway concludes.

Factories Open Doors.

DUNDEE, Aug. 31.—As the result of the ultimatum issued by the masters, that unless the striking operatives returned to work yesterday the factories would be closed and an indefinite lockout declared, the strike of the jute workers here is subsiding. Four factories reopened their doors and their operatives went to work.

Insurgent Supplies Seized.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Collector of Customs Cotterell at Cedar Keys, Fla., telegraphs that at the instigation of the Spanish consul at Tampa he has seized, at a point 20 miles from Cedar Keys, 120 remington rifles, a quantity of cartridges and 11 kegs of powder, which were to have been shipped to Cuba.

Worse Than War.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—The steamer Monowai, from Australian ports, did not stop at Honolulu, as usual. When off that port the steamer was hailed by the American consul in a small boat, who announced that cholera had broken out in Honolulu. The Monowai thereupon steamed direct to San Francisco.

Ruhman vs. Gould.

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 31.—Counsel for Zella Nicolaus-Ruhman was yesterday granted permission by Judge Lippincott to incorporate in the suit against George J. Gould for the face value of a check for $40,000, which the latter is alleged to have forcibly taken from his client, the additional charge of assault.

Called to Boston.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—G. W. Mehaffy, secretary of the West Philadelphia branch of the Young Men's Christian association, has received, and will probably accept, a call to be general secretary of the Young Men's Christian association of Boston.

Italy Recognizes Alfaro.

PANAMA, Aug. 31.—Italy has recognized the government of General Alfaro in Ecuador. Alfaro's whole army is now encamped at the gates of Quito, and grand preparations are in progress for the triumphal entry into the city.

Fighting In Africa.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 31.—The Independence Belge says that there has been fierce fighting between the forces of the Congo State and the Mahdists in the district of Adda. Lieutenant Cassart and 19 men were killed.

Syndicate to the Rescue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The Belmont-Morgan syndicate deposited $1,000,000 in gold at the sub-treasury yesterday. This was to meet, in part, the $2,600,000 gold taken for export.

Engineers and Firemen Meet.

MONTREAL, Aug. 31.—The annual convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen of America began here yesterday. C. A. Wilson presided.

Sheriff in Charge.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Aug. 31.—The Canisteo shoe factory, which recently removed to Dunkirk, was closed by the sheriff yesterday on executions amounting to $15,700.

A PHILOSOPHER'S ATTIC.

Quaint Combination of Greenery and Hennery Above the City.

One of the queerest places in New York can be found in what looks, from the street, to be a funny little gable roofed house perched jauntily on one corner of the roof of the Windermere, on Fifty-seventh street. It is a conservatory and observatory in one, a miniature roof garden, the den of an attic philosopher, Henry S. Goodale, whose somewhat celebrated daughters, Elaine and Dora, evidently got from him their poetic strain.

The attic is reached by a steep nautical flight of steps leading up through a small square hatchway straight into a wonderful greenery of bloom, a snuggery of comfort, likewise a hennery, consisting of one fine brown Leghorn fowl and a single fluffy, yellow chick, and a dovecot, where there are softly whirring wings. It is a charming bit of Arcadia, high above the ceaseless roar and heartbeat of a great city, which under its potent spell seems unreal and evanescent, like the undulating, elliptical rings of smoke that float past the "attic" windows. The attic is all windows, except the floor, roof and the simple matched board dado. The little room is a symphony in green; the floor is carpeted with dull green denim; the gabled roof is covered with burlaps of the same hue; a green wicker couch is cushioned in green yachting cloth; a broad green and white striped awning shades the sunny sides of the little house; all the carelessly strewn cushions, though of varying designs and materials, are of the same general hue, and green figured denim draperies on slender brass rods hang ready to exclude the whole outside world if it is desired.

But it is the window gardens that give the greatest charm to the place. Long, deep boxes of country earth and loam give sustenance to thick, tangled clumps of spicy pinks, old fashioned rose bushes and honeysuckle vines, clambering over wire network trellises, which metaphorically kill two birds with one stone by literally preserving the birds—that is, the hen and her chick—from disaster and upholding the lacy green drapery of the vines.

Of course the hen is not allowed the liberty of this garden in the air, though she keeps a vigilant and determined eye out for opportunities to maraud outside her own domain, which is quite spacious enough to keep her hale and hearty, apparently contented with her lot and graciously disposed in the matter of eggs. Dame Attica Hennica—which is the hen's classical name—evidently belongs to a fine old Latin race of fowls, and her neighbors, the doves, are on the most amicable terms.—New York Press.

WANTED FRESH AIR.

The King of Anam Broke a Custom and Created a Panic.

Not long ago there was terrible excitement at the royal court of Anam. The king, Thanah-Tai, who was then 14 years old, was missing. Etiquette requires that the Anamese king shall never leave the royal grounds. He is a knightly prisoner. But the young potentate was not hard to find. Though he was a king, he was a boy, and it is natural for a boy, when he has some money in his pocket, to want to get out and spend it.

That was exactly what the king of Anam had done. Entirely alone he had started on a "shopping" expedition through the streets of Hue. Of course no one knew him because he had never shown his face in public. He was simply a boy, like any other boy, and this was exactly what he wanted.

But he was treated with great respect by the shopkeepers, because he seemed to have plenty of money. Curiously enough, the thing which seemed to attract him most was a head shearing machine, or hair clipper, and when the frightened nobles of the court discovered him at last it was with this singular implement in his possession.

He had already begun an attempt to experiment with it on the heads of several small street boys, who were proving rebellious subjects, when the courtiers approached him, prostrating themselves upon the ground and making alarmed outcries.

The king no longer goes out shopping, but he retains his hair clipper as a souvenir of a happy day of freedom with the street boys.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Old Shoes For New.

Inmates of the House of Correction, when they are discharged from that institution, are usually furnished with a brand new pair of shoes in which to start anew the journey of life. The traders stand outside the gates and wait for these discharged prisoners. The latter are not slow to part with their new shoes in exchange for the old ones offered by the traders, not only because the old shoes are more comfortable, but because there is a money consideration too. The House of Correction shoes are strongly made and command a fair price among workingmen. The traders pay a bounty of about 25 cents, together with the old pair of shoes in exchange for each new pair, and they make money by the deal.—Philadelphia Record.

The Better Part of Valor.

"Isn't that Colonel Jones with his shotgun?" asked the editor.

"It is," replied the foreman.

"I think you are right," said the editor. "Suppose you crawl in the stove there, and I'll just step up stairs and see if the roof doesn't need repairing!"—Atlanta Constitution.

People who refuse to pay their taxes in Burma are promptly dealt with by the revenue officials. In the Pegu district the local tax collector arrests the defaulting householder and family and carries them off to durance vile in his house until the taxes are forthcoming.

The rain falls upon the just and the unjust alike. The unjust, however, are quicker to steal umbrellas, and generally fare best in a shower.—Picayune.

Bicycle Riding

The easiest riding wheel constantly jars the system—an easy sort of jar, maybe, but the kind that wears the vital organs. The greatest wear is on the Kidneys; constant jarring prevents their doing their work properly.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a natural remedy and act on the Kidneys as sleep acts on the brain. They restore them to their functions and remove the dragging pains in the back. Backache and Kidney ache are tired aches, aches that indicate disease. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Backache, free.

A Dear Little Goose.

While I'm in the ones, I can frolic all the day,
I can laugh, I can jump, I can run about and play,
But when I'm in the tens, I must get up with the lark
And sew and read and practice from early morn till dark.

When I'm in the twenties, I'll be like sister Jo,
I'll wear the sweetest dresses and maybe have a beau,
I'll go to balls and parties and wear my hair up high,
And not a girl in all the town shall be as gay as I.

When I'm in the thirties, I'll be just like mamma,
And maybe I'll be married to a splendid big papa.
I'll order things and go to teas and grow a little fat,
But mother is so sweet and nice I'll not object to that.

Oh, what comes after thirty? The forties! Mercy, my!
When I grow as old as forty, I think I'll have to die.
But, like enough, the world won't last until we see that day—
It's so very, very, very, very, very far away!
—Mary Mapes Dodge.

Bliss!

"Lor, fancy eatin a cake like that and gettin married both on the same day!"—Judy.

The Salvation of St. Sophia.

On the morrow, at the first capture of the city, the janizaries rushed to the great church, which they conceived was filled with gold, silver and precious stones. They found the doors fastened, but broke them open and at once began to pillage. The sultan, as soon as possible, rode to St. Sophia. Dismounting on the threshold, he stooped down, and collecting some earth let it fall on his turbaned head as an act of humiliation. Then he entered the edifice, but stopped in the doorway some moments and gazed in silence around him. He saw a Turk breaking the floor with an ax. "Wherefore dost thou do that?" inquired the conqueror. "For the faith," replied the soldier. Mohammed in an impulse of anger struck him, saying, "Ye have got enough by pillage and enslaving the city; the buildings are mine."—"The Church of St. Sophia," Lethaby and Swainson.

RIGHTS OF RED MEN

Are Not In the Least Respected by Settlers In the Northwest.

No Law to Protect Weak and Defenseless Indians.

White Men Responsible For the Recent Jackson Hole Difficulties.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The attorney general has received from Wyoming the official reports of their investigation into the Bannock Indians' trouble, made by the direction of the attorney general. The reports are dated Aug. 23. The district attorney for Wyoming reports as follows:

"I have no doubt whatever that the killing of the Indian Tanega on or about July 13 was an atrocious, outrageous and cold-blooded murder, and that it was a murder perpetrated on the part of Constable Manning and his deputies in pursuance of a scheme and conspiracy on their part to prevent the Indians from exercising a privilege, which is, in my opinion, very clearly guaranteed to them by the treaty before mentioned.

"Should the prosecution by the United States be determined upon, it would be useless to commence it before a commissioner. As the law is now, we are bound to bring prisoners before the United States commissioner nearest to the place of arrest, and in this case it would be before Mr. Pettigrew, the commissioner at Marysvale. I am informed that he is thoroughly in sympathy with the so-called settlers in that region, and that he advised the constable, Manning, and his posse that the provisions of the treaty under which the Indians claimed the right to hunt upon the unoccupied lands of the United States had for some reason ceased to be operative. Hence, I think that to cause the arrest of these men and take them for hearing before this commissioner would simply Result In Their Discharge.

"It seems to me to be a great pity that there is no national law which can certainly be invoked for the protection of these, our domestic subjects, weak and defenseless as they are, in their right to enjoy those privileges guaranteed to them by a solemn treaty, to the enforcement of which the honor of the country is pledged; and that their only protection against forcible resistance to their enjoyment of these rights must be found in the courts of the state wherein the juries will unquestionably look upon them as possessing no nights which a white man is bound to respect."

The district attorney has been advised that the department concurs with him in the opinion that there is no federal statute under which the offenders can be punished.

Accompanying the report of the district attorney is a scathing arraignment of the Jackson Hole settlers made in a report to the United States deputy marshal who investigated the troubles. The deputy marshal's report says that a careful investigation of the whole affair shows that the reports made by the settlers, charging the Indians with wholesale slaughter of game for wantonness, or to secure the hides of the animals killed, have been very much exaggerated.

Is This Justice?

Continuing, the deputy marshal says: "If a full investigation of the Jackson's Hole affair should be had, the fact would be established that when Constable Manning and his posse of 26 settlers arrested a party of Indians on July 13, and started with them for Marysvale, he and his men did all they could to tempt the Indians to try to escape, in order that there might be a basis of justification for killing some of them.

"If the truth of the matter can be reached, it will be found that the captors did not care particularly about getting their prisoners safely to Marysvale. From Manning I learned that none of the horses of the escaping party of Indians were shot, notwithstanding his order to shoot the horses, but that at least six Indians were hit by bullets. Of these, Timega, an old man, was killed; Nimits, a boy of about 20, was wounded so that he could not escape, and the others got away. Timega was an old man, almost blind, and his gun was useless. When the body of this old, sick, blind man was found, after lying buried in the woods for about 20 days, it was found he had been shot four times in the back."

Sentence Was Just.

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 31.—The supreme court handed down a decision yesterday remanding ex-State Treasurer Taylor to the sheriff, who left with him for the penitentiary last night. The opinion was on the jurisdiction of the lower court in giving sentence in excess of the general embezzlement law. The court holds that the lower court did not exceed its jurisdiction.

HARD HITTING DID IT.

The Clevelands Capture Another Game From the Beaneaters.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Cleveland defeated the home team by superior batting. The nearest the home team came to winning was in the sixth inning, when they tied the score. Stivetts was in the box, and during the first two innings he was hit very hard. From the first of the third inning until the seventh he retired the Cleveland men in one, two, three order. Hits by McKean and McGarr, at critical points, in a measure won the victory.

—A little four-year old miss thought it time for her to learn to sew; so her mother, at her request, furnished her with cloth, thread and needle, the latter the largest she had, judging it the handiest for so small a beginner. The juvenile apprentice looked at her outfit and announced the outcome of her inspection with, "What kind of a needle is that?" "That is a darning needle, my dear." This didn't seem to make the matter quite plain to her, so she continued the industrial catechism—"Please mamma, is it the one they darn fools with?"—Rockland Standard
